WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—On eve of the appearance of Sec- ry of the Treasury Mellon be- the Ways and Means Com- tee of the House, Representa- Bacharach, Republican, of New ey, today made public what egarded with some exceptions, n administration tax reduction ram.

Democrats do not hesitate to im that it is the administration gram to reduce the reduction minimum so that another tax ction can be made just before presidential election in 1928.

Bacharach would reduce the imum surtax to 20 per cent, surtax to begin on incomes of 000. The maximum normal would be 6 per cent on in- above $12,000. House Ways and Means Committee Will Start Hearings on New Revenue Bill Tomorrow.

PLANS FOR SENATE ACTION BY MARCH 15

This Provides Ample Time for Decision by Time First Payments on Incomes Are Due.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—What will be, in effect, an extra session of Congress for the consideration of the tax problem will convene in Washington Monday when the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives will begin the preparation of a new revenue bill.

Representative Longworth of Ohino, the next Speaker of the House; Representative Green of Iowa, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; Senator Smoot of Utah, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and other Republican leaders have expressed confidence that a bill revising the tax schedules will be ready for introduction on the opening day of Congress in December.

The program of the steering committee of the House calls for the passage of the bill by that body before the Christmas holidays, so that there will be ample time for the Senate to act before March 15, the date for the first payments on incomes of this year. If this program is realized the same purpose will have been served as if the President had called a special session of Congress for this autumn.

Mellon to Outline Views.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is scheduled to outline his views to the ways and means committee on Monday. The hearings will continue for 10 days, at the end of which time the committee will go into executive session for the drafting of the bill.

One certainty stands out: There will be some sort of tax reduction. President Coolidge has promised reduction and both parties in Congress are for it. The questions to be fought out in committee and on the floors of the two houses are how much of an aggregate cut shall be made, and in what proportions it shall be distributed among the different clases of taxpayers.

Judging from advance statements by their spokesmen, it will be the tactics of the Democrats to "out-Mellon" the Secretary of the Treasury by seeking a greater aggregate reduction than the Treasury is prepared to recommend. The Democrats, while acceding to the principle of reduction in the top brackets as well as the lower, will doubtless endeavor to hold the high surtaxes somewhat nearer their present level than the treasury desires. This will be the aim also of the radical groups in both houses.

The exact details of the Treasury recommendations are not known, but the news has been allowed to come out that Mellon will advocate a maximum surtax of 20 per cent to replace the present maximum of 40 per cent. He is said to favor also a normal tax of 5 per cent instead of the present 6.

Opposed to Estate Tax.

The expressed opposition of the Secretary to the imposition of a Federal estate tax has not abated, nor has he changed his view that the present gift tax provision should be thrown out or amended. Regarding the estate tax, he has pointed out that "it is quite possible under our complex system of property ownership in America for the various states and the Federal Government to take by death taxes more than 100 per cent of a particular estate."

If the estate tax is to be retained at all as a source of Federal revenue, it is Mellon's opinion that a revision of the rates downward is imperative.

The gift tax has been characterized by the Secretary as "an excellent illustration of the futility of trying to prevent avoidance of excessive taxes and still not penalize legitimate transactions."

Mellon is expected to repeat these opinions before the Ways and Means Committee, as well as to re-emphasize his opposition to the publicity feature of the present law.

Some idea of the issues involved in the coming fight over taxes may be gained by comparing Mellon's views with those just put out by

ROSE P. STOKES DIVORCED; TO WED MAN IN THE CASE

J. G. Phelps Stokes, Millionaire, Obtains Decree After Witnesses Tell of Two Cases of Misconduct.

SHE ONCE WAS FACTORY WORKER

Her Marriage to Philanthropist Heralded as Ideal Romance—Espionage Conviction Set Aside.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Rose Pastor Stokes, one-time $12-a-week cigar maker, whose marriage 20 years ago to the millionaire J. G. Phelps Stokes, was pictured as one of the beautiful romances of history, was divorced today on statutory grounds.

Evidence indicating at least two cases of misconduct was introduced before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins in Nyack, who granted the decree. There was testimony that Mrs. Stokes had stated that, when divorced, she would marry H. B. Grossmann, Sharon Springs, N. Y., hotel owner, named as chief co-respondent. But almost overshadowing the sensation of the charges was the climax to the case.

Mrs. Stokes was not in court and when Justice Tompkins asked for her counsel there was no reply. At 10:30 a. m. he handed down his decree. At 12:05 p. m. a man rushed in.

Attorney Later Rushes In.

"I am Mrs. Stokes' counsel," he said. "I am here to contest the suit against her for divorce and to present evidence of extenuating circumstances."

"You are too late," replied Justice Tompkins. "This Court granted James Graham Phelps Stokes an interlocutory decree of divorce more than an hour and a half ago."

The lawyer's protests were unavailing and he declined to make known his name. He left presumably to confer with Mrs. Stokes as to whether an appeal would be taken.

Testimony in the Case.

Mrs. Mary Crast, housekeeper at Grossman's summer resort hotel, testified that Mrs. Stokes came there last summer and occupied a room adjoining Grossma's. She said Mrs. Stokes was known as the "publicity woman," and then described visits of each to the other's room in what she called "suggestive attire."

Turner Branch told of seeing a man, not Stokes, go in and out of Mrs. Stokes' room in West Twenty-fourth street in a bath robe, while George H. Gilman of Norwich, Conn., Stokes' lawyer, testified that Mrs. Stokes admitted the misconduct to him and said she would marry Grossman if divorced. Stokes then testified there was no collusion in the divorce and that he had not lived with Mrs. Stokes for two years.

The career of Rose Pastor Stokes, a settlement worker, communist and radical lecturer has been one to keep her constantly before the public. During and shortly after the war, she was repeatedly arrested on such charges as sedition, anarchy and conspiracy to overthrow the Government. In 1918 she was sentenced to 10 years in a Federal penitentiary for violating the espionage act, but the sentence was reversed and the case later dismissed.

Settlement Worker and Writer.

It was about 1904 that Rose Harriet Pastor came to New York from her Cleveland cigar factory job. She became a settlement worker and wrote for the Jewish press. Soon she became known as the "Jewish poetess" and the "genius of the Ghetto." One day she went to interview the millionaire settlement worker, J. G. Phelps Stokes. It was love at first sight and despite an outcry from the Jewish press and church against marrying a Christian, she and Stokes became engaged.

Friends referred to the wedding as the uniting of virtue with wealth while she herself called it "the union of two souls with one aim—to help those who need the uplifting hand of sympathy."

At the Connecticut country home of Stokes in Norton Point there was a great double ring wedding with the word obey omitted from the ceremony. A honeymoon motoring in Europe and visiting the poor relatives of the bride in the slums of London and the couple came back to live in a four-room, kitchen and bath apartment on Norfolk street in the East Side and to work together in the settlements and in Radical circles.

Robber Herds Clerk and Manager Into Rear Room; Takes $500 From Till.

Two employes of the F. Levy Shoe Co., 2730 Cherokee street, were held up at 10:30 o'clock last night and $500 was taken from the cash register by an armed man, who had Joseph Saiger, a clerk, try several pairs of shoes on him before he drew his revolver.

The customer did not appear to be satisfied with the last shoe, and when Saiger turned to a shelf to get another pair the man slipped his old shoe on and pressed the gun to Saiger's back. He ordered him to a rear room, where Jack De Rienzo, the manager, was. Both were ordered to remain in the room for ten minutes. The robber then looted the cash register and fled.

Saiger and De Rienzo ran to the door when they heard it close, but the man had disappeared.

Butcher Is Robbed and Beaten in His Garage.

William Wuertenberg, 34 years old, of 3956 Schiller avenue, a butcher, was taken to the city hospital about 11 o'clock last night suffering from a possible fracture of the skull following an encounter a few minutes earlier with two armed robbers in the rear of his home.

He was putting his automobile away for the night in a garage when the men approached from an alley and pointed revolvers at him. After taking his purse, containing about $50, one of the robbers struck him on the head with the weapon, knocking him down. The men escaped.

MRS. CRAIG BIDDLE DIES

Police Investigating Circumstances of Demise in Los Angeles.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Laura Biddle, wife of Craig Biddle, millionaire Philadelphia sportsman, died here tonight. Police are investigating circumstances surrounding her death.

A doctor who was called after the body had been found by two maids pronounced death due to heart disease, but an undertaker to whose establishment the body was taken questioned the diagnosis and notified the Coroner, who in turn notified the police. An autopsy to take place tomorrow has been ordered by the Coroner. It was indicated at the official's office that it was believed there that the woman might have died from the effects of poison.

TWO TIMES DIVORCED, HELPS EX-WIFE ELOPE

Former Husband Drives Auto for Actress and Coca Cola King's Nephew.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—A romance and hasty midnight marriage in which the divorced husband of the bride acted as chauffeur for the bridal couple, was disclosed here today when it became known that Sheila Nicolai, dancer in the Shubert Revue, "Artists and Models," and Charles Collins Taylor Jr., nephew of Asa G. Candler, the Atlanta Coca Cola manufacturer, were married at Rockville, Md., in the early morning hours.

Lawrence G. Nicolai, who had twice been married to the dancer and twice divorced, drove the couple to the capital's Gretna Green.

Taylor is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in the class of 1921 and is now engaged in business with his father in the Southern States Life Insurance Company at Atlanta.

At the Naval Academy he won renown as a track athlete. He won the Olympic tryouts in the high jump at Philadelphia several years ago.

Mme. Nicolai, a Russian by birth, married her first husband in Seattle several years ago after coming to this country from Moscow. They were divorced in Chicago, remarried in New York and later re-divorced in Alexandria, Va.

She met her new husband on the Pacific coast when he was on duty there as an ensign. Taylor came to the capital for the world's series 10 days ago, found Mme. Nicolai in the revue, now showing here, and renewed his suit.

Accompanied by Nicolai, the couple were married. The dancer said today she would leave the company here and return to Atlanta with her husband.

CHILDREN ABED BY 9:15 P. M. TAKE FIRST PLACE IN SURVEY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Because 93 per cent of the children of Newton, Mass., are in bed by 9:15 p. m., they take first place in that section of a health survey of 86 cities made by the American Child Health Association.

Across a few states to McKeesport, Pa., only 32 per cent of the children were in bed at that hour.

Massachusetts and California were found to lead on long hours of sleep. Children of Chattanooga, Montgomery, Ala., and Springfield, O., were found to be the early risers.

The average American child of the fifth grade gets up at 7:06 a. m., and retires at 9:05 p. m., the association discovered. Other habits of the average American youngster are:

Drinks 1.4 glasses of milk daily, takes a bath once a week, usually brushes his teeth at least once a day and visits the dentist about once in two years.

20-YEAR RECORD FALLS AS STOCKS RISE AND SLUMP

Morgan Believed to Be Behind Bull Movement as Two of His Favorites Lead Spurt.

NO SIGN OF DECLINE IN MONDAY'S TRADE

Extra Dividends Forecast for General Motors and Dupont Company—Other Factors.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Frenzied speculation on the New York Stock Exchange today sent more than a score of stocks to high levels. The market foamed with activity in one of the most feverish sessions ever witnessed in Wall Street.

Wild buying at the opening was succeeded in the last two hours of trading by successive waves of profit-taking and short selling which in many instances wiped out early gains.

From 10 to 12 o'clock sales totaled 1,730,400 shares, or at the rate of 4,326,000 for a full five-hour day. This was a new high record for all time for a Saturday session, and compared with a previous mark of 1,603,400 shares established Aug. 18, 1906.

Incidentally it was the twenty-sixth time in history and the fourth time this year that sales on Saturday exceeded 1,000,000 shares.

Morgan Favorites Lead.

United States Steel and General Motors, recognized Morgan favorites, led stocks in the first sweep upward. Trading in these issues was on a tremendous scale and at the end of the first hour both showed substantial advances over the closing figures of the previous night.

General Motors came out in long successive blocks on the ticker, which was 28 minutes behind in recording quotations most of the day, and ran on from 132 to 137 in the first hour.

United States Steel, at the same time, soared to 128 on big buying and at that level was within striking distance of the record of 129 5-8 scored last spring.

The last hour witnessed sudden reversal of the bull trend. Urgent profit-taking broke out in various parts of the list and declines of from 4 to 5 points took place in the more speculative issues.

The close was nervous, but there was no indication that speculative enthusiasm would wane in Monday's market. Brokers reported buying orders accumulating in enormous volume.

Exciting scenes were enacted around the motor posts on the floor of the Exchange, and a few moments after the opening gong it was apparent that the speculative imagination of the whole country had been fired by front-page newspaper stories of the upward movement.

Unable to Keep Up.

Brokerage houses with out-of-town wires were unable to keep up with the tide of orders and the tardiness of the overburdened tickers further complicated the situation. Floor men at times did not know the course of the market and bought and sold regardless of what other traders in similar predicament were doing.

The failure of Wilson & Chardon, an important Consolidated Stock Exchange house, was reported in the first hour, but this had only a temporary effect on the general market. The Consolidated announced the firm was under suspension because of its inability to meet obligations. Liabilities may reach $3,000,000.

There was no question in the minds of Wall street observers that J. P. Morgan and his allies were forcing the advance in stocks, carrying the public joyously along with them.

Strength was given this view when Rene Dupont, president of the Dupont company, predicted as he was about to sail for Europe that his company would declare an extra dividend and that the General Motors Co., too, which has $130,000,000 cash on hand, probably would declare an extra cash dividend of $3 a share.

Investigation Started.

While the market was in progress the New York Stock Exchange started an investigation in the American Sumatra preferred situation, ordering brokers to report their position in that issue at the close of business Friday last. It was evident that a corner exists in the stock for the reason that Friday's transactions showed two cash sales of 200 shares each at 136 and 136½, immediately following a sale of 100 shares at 119.

Beginning in the early evening of Friday, a wet heavy snow has been falling all the way from the Rockies east to the great lakes. With from 40 per cent unthreshed to as high as 75 and 90 per cent in Alberta, the resultant damage from weather conditions alone is said to be inculable. Grain exchange officials estimate that close to 200,000,000 bushels of wheat are in grave danger of deterioration from the snow moisture. As though the weather were not sufficient trouble, labor difficulties have arisen. Survivors of Comanche of Clyde Line, Running From Jacksonville, Fla., to New York, Reach Port.

LIFEBOAT CRUSHED, ANOTHER SWAMPED

Tanker and Pilot Boat Answer S O S Call and Vessel Is Abandoned—None of Crew Lost.

By the Associated Press.

MAYPORT, Fla., Oct. 17.—Ten persons, seven men and three women, are missing from the passenger list of the Clyde liner Comanche, which was destroyed by fire off this port late today.

The vessel was virtually a total loss. At midnight it was abandoned and still burning. The survivors were taken aboard the tanker Reaper, while physicians were hurried here from Jacksonville and neighboring sections.

The Reaper and pilot boat, Mota, with the rescued passengers and crew members, reached here at 10:20 p. m. Capt. E. E. Curry of the Comanche is suffering from a badly sprained leg.

According to the description of the fire, it started about 7:30 in hold No. 2 forward, and despite the efforts of the crew the blaze soon spread beyond control. The Reaper, which was not far away when it heard the S O S call, sent two lifeboats to the scene. The Comanche sent out two lifeboats, one to the Reaper and one to the Mota.

Rescues Captain.

J. J. Gaudet, the chief engineer of the Comanche, was the hero of the disaster, survivors say, rescuing Capt. Curry and nine others from one of the Comanche lifeboats which had been swamped. One of the Reaper's lifeboats returning from Comanche was crushed as it was dashed against the side of the tanker.

There was no panic among the passengers, according to the survivors.

Edward Lawler of Hartford, Conn., one of the first passengers to land, said that the rescue work was handled in admirable fashion. He said that despite a heavy sea the passengers were quickly taken from the sea and open boats.

"Deck a Mass of Flames."

"I left the vessel on the second or third boat," Lawler said, "but in that time I saw two boys jump overboard and drown. The fire spread quickly. As our boats laid by I saw one boat lowered improperly and four women thrown into the sea. I never saw them recovered and feel sure that they were lost."

Capt. Edward Singleton of the pilot ship was praised by the survivors for his efficient handling of his boat during the rescue work.

The known injured are: John Busch, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., dislocated shoulder; Adolph Franklin, Hamburg, 21, burns about the face; two other passengers, severely burned; Joe Jacobus, Arleigh, N. J., hip fractured; Mrs. Barbara Lord, Burlington, Vt.; Mrs. A. M. Hull, Melrose, Mass.; Mrs. Elizabeth Milligan, 106 Washington place, N. Y.

Capt. Curry of the Comanche said all members of the crew had been accounted for.

Three unidentified survivors were taken to Jacksonville on board the Motorship Ajax.

Sailed From Jacksonville.

The Comanche sailed from Jacksonville shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon, bound for New York via Charleston. It had reached Jacksonville yesterday and had discharged 156 passengers.

The vessel was built in Philadelphia in 1895 and was of 3856 gross tonnage, 2477 net tonnage, measuring 348.5 in length, 46 feet in breadth and drawing 18.9 feet.

The boat was driven by reciprocating engines of quadruple expansion. The boat carried four boilers, with 200-pound pressure.

The Reaper left Jacksonville for Port Arthur, Tex., soon after the Comanche departed, and was the first to pick up the radio calls for assistance.

It was the second vessel of the company to catch on fire in recent months. The freighter Mohican, bound from Jacksonville to Miami,

GANGSTER'S SPITE ENDS NEW YORK CRIME SYNDICATE

WITNESSES NAME THEM IN 27 HOLDUPS

They Maintain Own Shooting Gallery and Had "Specialist" to Fix Weapons and Disguise Autos.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Even Frank ("Cowboy") Tessler could make a mistake. In the underworld he was considered an invincible leader, but he left Murray Markule in the "stir" too long, according to Murray, who "squealed."

Yesterday the spite of a gangster, who believed he had been deserted by the leader whose orders he had followed in his career of crime, had delivered into the hands of the police what they consider one of the boldest, most resourceful and highly organized crime syndicates in New York's annals. The net had included the "Cowboy."

Nine men and a woman spent last night in the Tombs. During the day they had been identified as the perpetrators of 27 holdups since June. The police say they have linked them to 64 major crimes, including murder. Hourly grows the list of crimes with which they are to be charged. The police expect the number will reach at least 100.

More Arrests Likely.

One of the men, the police say, is an escaped convict. Nearly all have been arrested before, including the woman.

Three more arrests will follow, the police promised tonight. One of the men sought is said to be the inventor of a silencer with which the revolvers carried by the band were equipped. The police say it is the most effective silencer for small arms they have seen.

The crime syndicate was composed of specialists. One man, for instance, was the armorer, who cared for the guns and fitted them with silencers. He it was, too, who disguised the automobiles stolen by the gang.

A shooting gallery for practice was maintained at 79 Fourth avenue, in a loft. Here the police found the walls pitted with revolver bullets and punctured tin cans. Although this place was used for conferences it was not the headquarters. The police are looking for the "office" from which "Cowboy" Tessler is said to have directed the operations of his gang in the vicinity of Seventy-seventh street and Second avenue.

Woman Is Held.

The alleged "Gun Moll"—in the parlance of the underworld, the woman who carries the guns for a holdup man, hiding them under her dresses—is Helen Rose Hammerlin. She was one of the first arrested, and according to the police, two pistols were found on her.

Details of the operations of the syndicate made public by the police and District Attorney Banton indicated that holdups, truck robberies and automobile thefts were included in its scope.

Tonight the police had recovered 20 automobiles said to have been stolen by the gunmen and used in the holdups. According to the police, six of these were found in a garage in the Bronx.

The identifications were made when Assistant District Attorney Murphy this morning gathered 85 victims of recent holdups.

As the prisoners were led past, one after another of the victims would cry out, "That's the man who shot me," or "He took my money." Twenty-seven identified one or more of the prisoners as victims of recent holdups.

The coolest and most collected one of the 10 was the girl.

While photographers arranged their cameras to snap her photograph she busied herself repairing her makeup. She is slender and dark, with bobbed hair, cut with bangs.

MAIL FOR AMERICA BURNED IN A TRAIN FIRE IN FRANCE

Million Dollars in $50 Bills Saved, Contents of Pouches Destroyed Not Known.

By the Associated Press.

ROUEN, France, Oct. 17.—One hundred sacks of mail bound for the United States were destroyed today in a fire which burned the mail car in which they were being conveyed from Havre to Cherbourg.

Fifty other sacks were taken from the debris. From these $1,000,000 in $50 bills was saved. A quantity of other bills and checks, more or less damaged by fire and water, also was found in the debris.

It is believed that the contents of the 100 sacks destroyed embraced money and valuables of various kinds worth several million francs.

The mail car had been rerouted from Havre to Cherbourg following the delay of the steamer France in sailing because of a strike of her stewards.

62 HURT IN COLLAPSE OF FOOTBALL STANDS

Stamping of 1500 W. and J.-Carnegie Tech. Fans Wrecks Bleachers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 17.—Sixty-two spectators were injured, several seriously, when the east bleachers at College Field collapsed today during the Washington and Jefferson-Carnegie Tech football game.

Fifteen hundred spectators, enthused by the scoreless tie at the half-way mark in the gridiron struggle, stamped their feet as the third period opened. The vibration caused the bleachers to collapse, precipitating men, women and children into Catfish Creek, over which the stands had been erected.

A panic ensued. Football was forgotten. Frenzied spectators from the other stands rushed to the scene, intent upon rescuing relatives or friends. Several hundred of the bleacher occupants were thrown into the water under the mass of debris.

State troopers, present at the game, took charge of rescue work. Fashionably-dressed men and women worked frantically with the officers, assisting in dragging the injured from the creek. Ambulances were summoned, and within a short time most of those who had suffered hurts were en route to Washington Hosiptal.

Those seriously injured included Mrs. Juniata Parcell Martin and Mrs. D. W. Young, both of Donora. Mrs. Martin, wife of a high school professor and sister of Malcolm Parcell, the artist, suffered severe injuries to her back.

Virtually all those hurt are residents of Washington, Pa., and Pittsburg. The list of injured, however, included several from other cities, among them, William F. Dimelow, New York City, and Miss Mary Knox, Claysville, Va.

On Oct. 14, 1922, one boy was injured and hundreds of others escaped when wooden stands, erected to accommodate boys who had been admitted to witness the Carnegie Tech-Washington-Jefferson game free, collapsed.

The accident today occurred as the second period closed, and the game was called off, with the score 0-0.

STATE AUDITOR CRITICISES GOV. BAKER'S TAX PROPOSAL

L. D. Thompson Objects to Levy on Mineral Resources of Missouri as Executive Suggested.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—Opposition to the proposed State tax of one per cent on minerals mined in Missouri, which is incorporated in Gov. Baker's proposed constitutional amendment, providing separate taxation sources for support of public schools and State educational institutions, was expressed here late today by State Auditor L. D. Thompson.

Thompson declared he favored the object of the Governor's amendment, but was opposed to a tax on natural resources.

This is the first opposition that has developed to any of the proposed tax measures in the Governor's amendment.

The State Auditor pointed out that in 1924 the receipts in the State general revenue fund totaled $10,741,656. One-third of this was set aside for apportionment to the public schools, leaving $7,161,104 in general revenue. The amount transferred to the schools just equaled collections from the inheritance and property taxes, he said. Thompson urged that not more than these two tax items be transferred to the proposed school fund, and that some other new tax measure be devised as a substitute for the proposed tax on minerals.

CORNERSTONE LAYING AT SETTLEMENT HOUSE

Ceremony at Nineteenth and Wash Streets Preceded by Parade of Children.

The laying of the cornerstone for the new Neighborhood House at Nineteenth and Wash streets yesterday, marked the opening of a new era in the life of a social institution that has been in St. Louis for more than three decades. The building will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks, and St. Louis will have, for the first time, a nationally recognized Settlement.

The laying of the cornerstone, presided over by Mrs. Charles D. Ashcroft, president of the Board of Directors of the Neighborhood Association, was preceded by a parade of the children members, led by the combined bands of Soldan High School, Shepard School and the 62nd Troop Boy Scouts Bugle Band.

J. Lionberger Davis, former chairman of the board of directors of the organization, introduced the speakers, the first of whom was Prof. Frank J. Bruno, of Washington University. He declared that a community house was an ideal meeting place for the people of different nations, and was a greater factor in spiritual welfare than many churches.

Saving of Souls.

Percival Chubb, the leader of the Ethical Society, in a short address, said:

"Children's souls are not saved through their work, but through their play, and the Neighborhood House provides the proper type of play for the child in the mobile age."

Other speakers on the program were The Rev. Father Strich, S. J., of St. Louis University, Harry S. Salisbury, Director of the Department of Public Welfare, and former Senator Xenophon Wilfley, who spoke briefly, praising the work of the Neighborhood Association.

Records in Copper Box.

Mrs. Ashcroft, in placing the cornerstone, put with it a sealed copper box, containing records of the organization for many years, and also a congratulatory letter from Secretary of War Dwight Davis, who had been active in the settlement work a number of years ago. Chancellor Herbert S. Hadley of Washington University was expected to speak, but was unable to attend owing to a slight illness.

After the ceremony, a symbolic pageant, "The Spirit of the Neighborhood," was portrayed by the children, songs were sung, a group of the young members presented folk dances, and the festivities ended with a patriotic tableau and singing of "America."

PERSHING DENIES WARNING CHILE AND PERU OF DELAYS

Dispatches Sent From New York Had Said He Was Losing Patience.

By the Associated Press.

ARICA, Chile, Oct. 17.—Announcement has been made at Gen. Pershing's headquarters that he has made no intimation to the Chilean and Peruvian authorities that the American delegation would withdraw from the Tacna-Arica plebiscite proceedings unless they composed the differences that have been delaying the holding of the plebiscite.

The statement was prompted by dispatches from New York stating that Gen. Pershing had nearly reached the limit of his patience with delays. It was pointed out that the purpose of the delegation was to resolve the points of difference and proceed to carry out the arbitrator's award.

EVERY HYPOCRITE IS DOOMED, IS WARNING FROM EVANGELIST

"No Excuse for Not Accepting Christ," Near Capacity Tabernacle Crowd Is Told.

"Every hypocrite will go to hell," Howard S. Williams, evangelist, declared in a sermon at his tabernacle at 5940 Delmar boulevard last night, "and the way to get away from the hypocrites in eternity is is to put up with them here on earth."

A near-capacity crowd was in the tabernacle to listen to Williams' sermon on "Excuses and Excused," based on the parable of the feast as related by St. Luke, and heard him criticise those who excuse themselves for not being Christians.

"There is no excuse for not accepting Christ that will get you past the throne of God on judgment day," he declared. "God will accept no explanation for your rejection of His Son."

Williams will speak tonight on "Room for Jesus." He will also deliver a sermon at 11 a. m. today at Central Presbyterian Church, 5568 Delmar boulevard.

CLIMBS POLE TO "SHOW OFF," THROWN 35 FEET TO GROUND

Henry Noyas, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Noyas of Donnellson, Ill., wished to demonstrate his bravery to boy friends, so he climbed a high tension pole near the Elm Point School house.

He climbed through two high tension circuits to the top of the pole and was doing gymnastics on the crossarm when his foot struck one of the heavily charged wires.

He was seriously burned and hurled 35 feet to the ground. Physicians say he has little chance to recover.

'WIDOW' FAINTS AFTER VIEWING FUGITIVE MINER

"Why Did You Do This to Me?" She Asks Husband She Believed Had Been Killed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Margaret M. Turner of Trenton, N. J., today recognized a prisoner here as her husband, William H. Turner, mine foreman, whose supposed death in a Kentucky coal mine explosion brought $85,000 in insurance to various relatives.

Until today's dramatic meeting in the rooms of the police bomb squad, Mrs. Turner had insisted that Turner, who returned from Germany this week, was dead and that the man calling himself her husband, was an impostor.

As she entered the room, Mrs. Turner uttered a loud scream. "Why did you do this to me?" she cried. "We had a nice happy home and our children were happy." A moment later she fainted.

Turner paid no attention to her.

Mrs. Turner, who was quoted last night by the police as having said that she herself saw the supposed body of her husband after the explosion, admitted today that she had not seen the body, according to detectives.

"I did not see the body," she told the detectives, "but I had every reason to believe my husband was dead. The undertaker told me the body was too badly mangled to view."

Mrs. Turner has been living in Trenton with her five children since she considered herself a widow. Her husband is accused of murdering two miners by a deliberate explosion and of defrauding insurance companies. She collected $25,000 of the insurance.

In Miami, Fla., it develops, a woman recently appeared at police headquarters and said she was Turner's sister, Mrs. F. F. Farley, and that she was ready to return the $60,000 insurance she received after his "death." The police there hadn't heard about the case and dismissed her as a crank. Now they are looking for her.

Turner, in his prison cell, blames relatives for the whole affair. He and his father-in-law, Joe Jacks, went to Austria together via Norway after the mine explosion, Turner says, and Jacks is still there.

Turner was placed in the custody of Sheriff Johnson and Deputy Sheriff Hatfield of Pike County and will be taken to Kentucky late today. He signed the necessary waivers for extradition after he had been discharged from the jurisdiction of New York as a fugitive from justice.

Effort Made to Establish Identity of Second Body.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Oct. 17.—The identity of a man killed in the mine of the Auburn Coal Co. last January and identified as that of William Turner, mine superintendent has not been established since the return of Turner to this country from Germany. Coroner Jackson of Pike County, Ky., started an investigation to try to fix the identity. It now is said that the man identified as Turner was a foreigner. Officials today said that both miners were murdered outside the mine and the bodies were taken inside and powder exploded.

Race Is On to See Who Can Cut Taxes Most of dollars greater than anticipated under the changes made by that act, it would seem that we can safely figure on reducing taxes to the extent of $400,000,000, in the new revenue bill.

Suggested Changes.

"To take up this reduction I shall advocate the following changes in the present revenue law:

"Increase by $1000 the exemptions now allowed to single and married persons, making the exemption for a single person $2000 and for a married person $3500. Extend the age limit for dependent children to 21 years instead of 18; this change is suggested for the reason that children between those ages are usually completing their education and are therefore a greater expense to their parents than in their earlier years.

"The normal tax on the first $4000, above such exemptions, to be 1 per cent.

"The normal tax on the second $4000 above such exemptions to be 2 per cent.

"The normal tax of the third $4000 above such exemptions to be 4 per cent.

"The normal tax on all incomes above $12,000 to be 6 per cent.

"Surtax to begin on incomes of $15,000 and the maximum rate to be 20 per cent.

Policy on Exemptions.

"I am opposed to the proposition of exempting all incomes up to $5000. I believe it makes one take a greater interest in their Government if he or she has to pay some Federal tax, and under the rate and with the exemptions suggested above, the amount of tax on incomes up to $5000 would be very small and would not be a burden or hardship to anyone.

"Repeal the tax on club dues, the tax on admissions to apply only above $1.50.

"Repeal all the excise taxes carried in Title VI of the act 1924, such as the tax on automobiles and parts, jewelry, firearms and ammunition, cameras and lenses, cigar holders and pipes, etc.

"Estates tax to begin at $100,000, with a maximum rate of 20 per cent, and the same with the gift tax.

"Corporation tax to be reduced to at least 10 per cent.

"I favor the repeal of the publicity feature of the present law, and I would also favor the entire repeal of the estates and gift taxes if it were possible to accomplish; it may be that it could be done in the House, but I doubt very much that it could be put through the Senate."

SUMMARY OF REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PLANS FOR MORE TAX REDUCTION

THE salient features of the various plans for Federal tax reduction follow:

Representative Bacharach, Republican, of New Jersey, who is believed to represent the administration's policy, favors a reduction of $400,000,000. He would effect this by increasing exemptions by $1000, by raising the age limit of dependent children from 18 to 21, and by cutting the normal tax to 1 per cent on a $4000 income, 2 per cent on the second $4,000 and 4 per cent on the third $4,000, and by fixing the normal tax on all incomes over $12,000 at 6 per cent, the surtax beginning at $15,000 and running up to 20 per cent.

THE Democrats, led by Representative Garner of Texas, wants a reduction of $450,000,000 or more. Garner would make this possible by trimming the amounts paid annually on the national debt. He would exempt all married persons up to the amount of $5000, with $3,500 for single persons. He further urges a maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent.

Secretary of the Areasury Mellon will recommend the revision downward of the estate taxes and the levy on gifts as well as other miscellaneous items. He also wants the publicity feature of the present law to be abolished or at least modified.

WAYS COMMITTEE TO OPEN HEARINGS ON ACT TOMORROW

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democratic member of the Ways and Means Committee. Garner is for a tax cut of upwards of $450,000,000, as compared with the expected treasury recommendation of about $250,000,000.

To make such a reduction possible, Garner advocates smaller annual payments on the national debt, so that it would be retired in 62 years—the period covered by the British debt-funding agreement—instead of 25 years, as contemplated by the treasury.

25 Per Cent Maximum Surtax.

Garner wants a maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent. He would relieve about 3,000,000 taxpayers of all taxes by raising the exemption for married persons to $5000 and for single persons to $3500.

JOPLIN POLICE HOLD MAN AS SURVIVOR OF LIQUOR FIGHT

Notify Kansas City on Suspicion Wounded Prisoner Aided Slain "Runner."

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 17.—Police are holding under guard at a local hospital Charles Mayes, self-styled rum-runner, who was wounded in a gun fight Oct. 5, near Lawrence, Kan. Kansas City police have been notified and a warrant had been issued there charging him with felonious assault with intent to kill a Kansas City motor cycle officer.

Mayes was wounded in a gun fight in which J. M. Coker, also an alleged rum-runner, was slain, on Victory Highway, near Lawrence. Mayes, police here said, was brought to the hospital here Thursday. When they learned of his presence, a guard was posted and Kansas City authorities notified.

ERMANS EXPRESS DOUBT OF QUICK APPROVAL OF PACT

uther and Stresemann Leave for Berlin to Face Task of Explaining Their Work at Locarno.

RIAND PLANNING TO HELP THEM

ill Develop Idea in Speech of Unity Among European Nations — Final Signing in London.

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT,

opyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

LOCARNO, Oct. 17.—Chancellor uther and Foreign Minister tresemann of the German delegaon were the only ones to leave ere expressing doubts that they ould get rapid ratification for the eaties made. They left this aftrnoon for Berlin to face a week of plaining to the German people hat the treaties will prove benecial.

Stresemann seemed to be the ptimistic of the two. He is more onfident of convincing the Geran people than Luther is. Luther peared to be frankly worried bease he was unable to get anyng in writing to prove Rhined occupation alleviation or the terpretation of Article XVI of league pact which would pert Germany to keep out of a gue war.

Knowing this, Foreign Minister riand is planning as soon as posle to put on record an elaboran of the short speech he made on the signing of the Rhine ct yesterday. In his speech, Brid developed the idea of unity ong European States, emphasizg that this was the first step ward construction of the United ates of Europe.

Assurances by Briand.

Briand will have an opportunity o aid the ratification by Germany s soon as the French Chamber of Deputies meets. Among Germans here is no doubt that Briand will keep the promise he made to tresemann during the exciting eeting of Thursday night, when Luther threatened not to sign the act unless he received written assurances.

It is believed that the British arantee of neutrality in the hine is a political accomplishnt which permits Briand to mise anything he sees fit conning the evacuation of the ine by France.

The general disarmament promd in the pact, which is as yet erally unknown, will also tend alleviate German sentiment on count of their own disarmament.

Effects of Pact.

The immediate effects of the cts initialed is expected to inude a reduction of the Rhinend occupation to a minimum visle only to headquarters at Conz, the signing of commercial aties to facilitate trade, the pening of the American money arket, the capitulation of soviet ussia diplomatically before a ore united Europe. Finally, it eans the first move toward Eupean disarmament.

The treaties and conventions at rno will all bear the date of ct. 16. The various parliaments st ratify or reject them as they nd. The final signing will take ce in London.

If the Locarno agreements are ly ratified by the Parliaments, every one seems to expect, the pecific results of the conference will be somewhat as follows:

Germany will enter the League of Nations at a special meeting of the League assembly in the near future and the League will thereby greatly strengthened.

A network of compulsory co-ortion treaties, compelling the -operation of the League, will ake war almost impossible.

The resultant feeling of security will open the way for the long deed disarmament conference.

Immediate amelioration of the Franco-German and Franco-Polish relations will enable the League to all an international economic conerence.

Rhineland Evacuation.

Evacuation of the Rhineland will hastened and Germany will forally renounce the idea of regaing Alsace Lorraine.

Peaceful readjustments of certain details of Germany's eastern frontiers will be rendered easier.

The French system of alliances, while theoretically maintained, will brought definitely under the control of the League council and will doubtless gradually disappear.

As for Soviet Russia, which is the only power still seeking disturb the general peace, it will isolated. Within the next coue of years it will have to deare itself definitely for peace or war.

At the same time, there is a condent feeling that American financial and economic co-operation with Europe will be stimulated and at American political co-operation with the League will be rendered easier and more continuous.

By Radio to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1925.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Already the effect created by the signing of the treaties on the stock exchanges is striking. Beginning yesterday, the German banks began receiving orders for German stocks from buyers in America, England and Switzerland. This marks a new phase, as for months German industries have been the subject of deep suspicion. Now it is hoped that the neediest industries will obtain loans and credits of which they are so much in need.

The political feeling is glorious. Even the surly nationalists have to admit their evil predictions have not been realized.

President of Reichstag Hopes for United States of Europe.

DETROIT, Oct. 17.—The security pact adopted by Germany, Poland, France and other European Powers at Locarno, Switzerland, Friday, means the redemption of Germany and the ultimate formation of a United States of Europe, with boundaries obliterated, Paul Loebe, president of the German Reichstag and member of the Socialist party, said today. Herr Loebe and other German statesmen and parliamentarians, delegates to the Interparliamentary Union conference just ended in Washington, are guests here over Sunday.

At the time all three were returning from the air races at Mitchel Field, where they had "covered" the event for the Dayton Herald and Journal. A coroner's jury exonerated the army air service of responsibility, blaming engine trouble for the crash.

Comparison Made of Figures for Third Quarter of 1925 With Same Period Last Year.

A decrease of 12,880 passengers a day in the third quarter of 1925, as compared with the same quarter of 1924, is shown in the quarterly report of the United Railways Co. for the period from July 1 to Sept. 30, inclusive, filed with the City Register yesterday.

The comparative figures are: Total passengers, third quarter of 1925, 62,097,861; same quarter of 1924, 63,282,885; trips, 1,458,776; same quarter last year, 1,486,480; average daily number of cars, 1182; same quarter last year, 1178; mileage, 9,526,054.4; same quarter last year, 9,703,619.13.

The street car company attributes the loss of business in large part to motorbus competition and to the increasing number of private automobiles.

PARK GOLFERS CAN INSPECT RUINS TODAY

Lindell Pavilion to Be Thrown Open to Locker Owners at 9 O'Clock.

That morgue of blasted golf hopes, the Forest Park pavilion, which was gutted by fire early Friday morning, will be thrown open once more today to the sorrowing locker owners who, until yesterday afternoon, were prevented from entering the ruins by policemen placed on guard by the park department.

Which will it be—the collection of summers unharmed or Pandora's box? Shiny steel blades in intact bags or ashes? These are questions which 1200 locker owners have been asking for two days. Some 200 took advantage of an inside tip yesterday and, rushing to the scene, found they were permitted to gaze into the blackened metal containers.

The contents of some of the lockers on the extreme west end of the room were found to be practically unharmed except for clothing which suffered from smoke.

From the rest little could be salvaged but club heads. Sixty large wooden dressing rooms were a total loss with the exception of one which somehow escaped almost unscathed.

The lines will be lifted this morning at 9 o'clock and locker owners with their certificates will be permitted to stumble about the ashes. E. H. Duwe, professional of the Forest Park Golf Club, estimates the loss to golfers at $20,000. Parks Superintendent Ernest Strehle says the building can be replaced for $30,000 but glosses over the loss which wrings the hearts of more than a thousand followers of the sport.

Dr. John J. Connor, with offices in the Metropolitan Building, brought suit against the city yesterday in Justice of the Peace Moore's Court for $100, the value he places upon his clubs and golf apparel destroyed. He set out in his petition the fact that he paid the city $5 annually for a locker, making it a contracting party required to exercise ordinary care in the protection of the clubs. This the city employes failed to do, he alleges.

POET PROPOSES FORMATION OF SCANDINAVIAN REPUBLIC

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 17.—Gunnar Gunnarsson, considered the greatest living Icelandic poet, an ardent champion of close co-operation among the Scandinavian peoples, outlined at a public meeting today a scheme for a Scandinavian republic, which would include Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Iceland, joined on lines similar to the union of the United States. Gunnarsson proposed that this republic be headed by a president elected by popular vote.

The speech made a sensation here. Gunnarsson intimates that his idea is supported by prominent men in all the countries mentioned and announced that a series of public propaganda meetings will be held in Copenhagen, Oslo, Stockholm and Helsingfors.

The poet firmly believes that his idea will materialize within five years.

He is in a serious condition at city hospital.

TECHNICAL COURT RULINGS DEPLORED BY STATE EDITORS

Legal Procedure Declared to Have Become Absurd, in Resolution Adopted at Closing Session.

THE POST-DISPATCH POLICY INDORSED

Ed H. Winter of Warrenton "Banner" Named President and Other Officers Are Chosen.

The Missouri Press Association, concluding its sixtieth annual convention, at Hotel Chase, yesterday, adopted a resolution setting forth that "our legal procedure has become so absurdly technical by judicial decisions, that the law, as often interpreted by our courts, has ceased to be the true expression of the common conscience and common judgment of the people."

"We commend the newspapers of Missouri for their effort to make of law an instrument of human needs," the resolution read, "and especially do we commend the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for its virile editorials on this subject. A newspaper should give voice to community purpose and community ideals. We urge the retention of a strong editorial page and deplore any attempt to write editorial opinion into news."

E. H. Winter New President.

The convention closed its three-day sessions with the election of officers: Ed H. Winter, editor of the Warrenton "Banner," president; George S. Johns, editor of the editorial page of the Post-Dispatch, vice president; Miss Pearl Winters of the Monett "Times," secretary, and Mrs. Frances J. O'Meara, editor of the Martinsburg "Monitor," treasurer. Eugene B. Roach, editor of the Carthage "Democrat," retiring president, and E. E. Swain, editor of the Kirksville "Express," were named as directors for three years.

The resolutions were presented as the fruit of the convention's discussions of newspaper problems, particularly as they affect country daily and weekly newspaper circulation, advertising revenue and community prestige.

"We urge the press of this State," the resolutions continued, "to unite for the common benefit of our craft, and for the promotion of the people of Missouri. Since agriculture is the basis upon which all industry rests, and whereas, the large majority of our members are dependent upon farm prosperity for success, and whereas, farmers are not receiving adequate recompense for their service to society, we respectfully commend to the farmers of Missouri a co-operative plan of marketing which will give them a more adequate return for their labor and investment.

Government Printing Opposed.

"Taxes are used to cover unprofitable Government business, and it is unfair to taxpayers to have to pay for such losses in the interest of special purchasers or consumers. We condemn Government competition with private industry in the printing of envelopes as unfair and unjust, since tax funds are used to cover the Government loss in this activity.

"In justice to our readers, we urge the editors of Missouri to scrutinize propaganda with the greatest care, that the public may not be imposed upon by advertising matter masquerading as news.

"Recognizing the newspaper as a public institution, we urge that the press of Missouri do not permit its news or editorial columns to be influenced by its advertising space, and that statements of public policies by candidates for public office, as differentiated from personal propaganda, be given the widest possible publicity, regardless of whether the candidate advertises or not, that the voters may be the better able to render an intelligent judgment."

Thanks for Courtesies.

The resolutions also expressed thanks for entertainment and courtesies extended by the Associated Industries, host at a luncheon Thursday; the Globe-Democrat and the Post-Dispatch, which entertained the editors and wives at dinners Thursday and Friday evenings; the Fairmount Jockey Club, where the visitors were guests Friday afternoon, and Washington University, host at the Washington University - Oklahoma "Aggies" football game, yesterday afternoon.

Preceding the business session, James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary, American Association of Advertising Agencies, New York, described efforts he is making to "sell" the country newspaper to the national advertiser, and Mrs. P. M. Christian, editor of the Monroe City News, related her 17 years' experience, ranging from reporter to owner of her publication.

INQUIRIES ABOUT CHICAGO ELOPER POUR IN ON POLICE

New York and Toronto Also Request That John V. Wiedemeier, Out on Bond, Be Held.

HE FAILS TO APPEAR IN LOCAL COURT

Prison Identification Bureau at Albany Thinks He May Be Man Who Violated Parole.

The last six days have been "not so good" for John V. Wiedemeier, known by many other names and now believed by the St. Louis police to be a swindler with an international crime record.

Things—untoward things—began happening to him last Monday, when he stepped from a Chicago train with Mrs. Leonard H. Hoffman, pretty young wife of a Chicago fur dealer, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Towns of 3816 McRee avenue.

The young woman's husband had followed the pair here, and Wiedemeier was arrested for the Federal authorities on a charge of violating the Mann act. Before he could get out on $5000 bond, he was photographed, measured, and his fingerprints taken, and these were sent to the principal cities.

Chicago Police Want Him.

The Chicago police were the first to reply. They wired Tuesday asking that Wiedemeier be re-arrested and stating that he was believed to be Arthur F. Brooks, or Karl Edwards, wanted there for swindling a couple out of $13,000.

He was rearrested, and before he gave another $5000 bond, the St. Louis police, having in mind the protection of the swindle victims in Chicago, impounded $15,293 of the $17,000 roll of bills that Wiedemeier carried. When first arrested, he had more than $25,000.

The Chicago police were sure, after study and comparison with their records, that the man was the one they were seeking. They started extradition proceedings, to take him back to Illinois.

Appeal From New York.

New York has followed upon Illinois, with a notification that Wiedemeier is believed to be the man wanted there, as Karl Edwards, for violation of a prison parole.

Canada appears also to want the eloper, for a telegram came yesterday from the superintendant of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, at Toronto, inquiring whether Wiedemeier was in custody. In the New York inquiry, it is indicated that he is wanted also in Washington, D. C., and is sought by police authorities in England, France and Belgium.

Three women, two charging that Wiedemeier had married and abandoned them, and the third complaining only of a swindle at his hands, have appeared in the case.

Complaints By Women.

Esther Wexler, 20-year-old Chicago actress, says she recognizes Wiedemeier's photograph as that of Arthur F. Brooks, who married her last November, and who, it is charged, perpetrated the $13,500 swindle on her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Fischer. She has not been divorced.

Miss Carrie Hyman of 6415 Wydown boulevard, identified a similar photograph as being that of the man known to her as Rudolph Wollney, who married and abandoned her last spring, but who failed in an attempt to get money and jewelry from her. She has obtained a divorce at Clayton.

Mrs. Rose Burken of 128 West One Hundred and Eleventh street, New York, is a possible accuser, though it does not appear to be clearly established that the middle-aged Wiedemeier is identical with the "lounge lizard" who, she says, disappeared with her jewelry and mink coat, valued at $90,000, after she had intrusted them to him last May. He was known as Robert Whiteman.

Fails to Appear in Court.

Wiedemeier failed to appear in the Court of Criminal Correction yesterday, when his bond was returnable, and Judge Calvin Miller granted a week's continuance. Miss Hyman was in court, awaiting for his possible appearance.

His lawyers talked as if Wiedemeier might come into court if so many policemen were not waiting to arrest him. Judge Miller did not know how to prevent the police from watching for anyone whom they wanted.

The lawyers notified the police first verbally, then in a formal letter to Chief of Detectives Kaiser, not to release the impounded $15,293 without Wiedemeyer's order. The letter was signed with Wiedemeier's name, typewritten, and the name of six lawyer—Igoe, Carroll, Higgs & Keefe, and Harvey & Baer.

If Wiedemeyer doer not appear next Saturday, and his bond is declared forfeited, his bondsmen may claim reimbursement from the impounded money, and an issue of priority may arise between their claims and that of the victims of the Chicago swindle.

Sought as Parole Violator.

The Bureau of Identification of the New York State Prisons, with office at Albany, has sent this message to the police here:

"We identify Wiedemeier as Karl Edwards, alias Dr. Karl von Edwards, sent to Sing Sing prison Nov. 30, 1917, on two convictions, one of grand larceny and confidence game, and one of larceny of jewelry and money from a woman. He was transferred to Clinton prison in June, 1920, and was paroled in August, 1921, but was declared delinquent on his parole, and is now wanted for violating it."

Other names by which the man was known, the bureau says, were Siegfried von Elder and Siegfried Wallace. Under the latter name, it says, he was arrested on a white-slaving charge, but was acquitted.

TWO MEN FOUND DEAD IN A GAS-FILLED ROOM

Mrs. Mary Scott, Landlady, Reports Finding of Bodies—No Identification.

Two unidentified men, apparently overcome by gas, were found dead in the room one of them had engaged at 1203 Chambers street at 8:30 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Mary Scott, proprietor, who made the discovery, reported to police. She said one of the men, about 65 years old, who said he was employed as a coal hauler, had rented the room Friday, paying her $1. Yesterday morning, he appeared in company with a man about 30 years old, whom, he remarked, he had engaged as a helper.

Mrs. Scott said the odor of gas led her to investigate. By aid of a flashlight, looking through an outside window, she saw the two men, apparently asleep in bed. She summoned neighbors and forced the door.

Police reported finding two empty bottles which smelled of whisky alongside the bed, and a pint bottle almost filled with whisky.

The open jet, apparently for illumination, was a fixture overhead, and indications were that the light was extinguished accidentally. The two men possessed nothing by way of identification, although the proprietor of the rooming house said the elder man had roomed there before.

The bodies were sent to the city morgue.

FIRE CAUSES LOSS OF $7500 IN STORAGE BUILDING

Two-Story Brick Structure at 2712-14 Olive Street Contained Old Lumber.

Fire of undetermined origin, which broke out on the first floor of a two-story brick building used for storage purposes at 2712-14 Olive street, caused damage to structure and contents estimated at $7500 about 12:15 a. m. today.

The building is the property of Frank Yawitz, tailor, second-hand automobile dealer and real estate operator, and was used for storage of old lumber and window and door sashes. Two engine companies, which responded to alarms, had the blaze under control half an hour later.

AIR BOARD TO REPORT TO COOLIDGE NOV. 20

Other Findings on Service Will Be Submitted Direct to Congress.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The airplane, junior weapon in the armament of nations, promises to overshadow in the debate in the next Congress its grizzled contemporaries—the infantry and the battleship.

Twice in the last nine months its activities and potentialities have been passed upon by investigating bodies and the reports of these two inquiries will furnish the basis of discussion.

One, by the President's air board, which closed open hearings yesterday, will be given directly to President Coolidge, but the other, by the House aircraft committee, will be turned over to Congress itself.

The President's air board met in executive session today to go over preliminary plans for the drafting of its report, which probably will be given to the President about Nov. 20.

Throughout its inquiry the board held to a policy adopted at its first meeting to seek facts and information only and, as far as possible, remain aloof from personalities.

In its four weeks of work it examined virtually all Government officials charged with the conduct of aviation, many aviators, representatives of the aircraft manufacturing industry and others connected with the commercial uses of the airplane.

JUDGES SUED FOR $267,000

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. — Three Federal Judges, A. C. Cliffe, J. H. Wilkerson and G. A. Carpenter, have been sued for $267,000 damages by the Charles McAdam Co. of Chicago, which alleges its industrial chemical business has been seriously damaged by illegal bankruptcy proceedings.

The defendants are the Judges of the District Court of Northern Illinois, in which a receiver for the company was appointed by Judge Cliffe and also in which involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were filed. Attorney Charles McAdam, representing the company, alleged that the receivership petition was not properly prepared, in the action filed yesterday.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

FOUR PERSONS DIE FROM INJURIES IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Frederick Widmann, 66, Wealthy Architect, One of the Victims, Was Struck Week Ago.

Dead.

Frederick Widmann, 66 years old, 3545 Longfellow place.

Gustave Wangerine, 81, of 5134 Ridge avenue.

Jacob M. Lashly Jr., 5 years old, 20 Windermere place.

Mrs. Mary Bobbitt, 70, a widow, 4331 Page boulevard.

The funeral of Frederick Widmann, 66 years old, of 3545 Longfellow place, wealthy architect, who died yesterday of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile a week ago last night, will be held from the residence to Bellefontaine Cemetery at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

The driver of the automobile, Albert Thornton, 22, of 3647A Arkansas avenue, a store helper, who was charged with felonious wounding and released on bond, was ordered to appear at the inquest.

Widmann had stepped from the northeast corner of Grand boulevard and Flad avenue, about 8:15 p. m., to cross to the west side of Grand, when he was knocked down. Thornton stopped and conviyed him to his home in Longfellow place and later accompanied him to St. Mary's Hospital in an ambulance. There it was found Widmann was sufferng from fracture of the left leg and severe shock.

Widmann was a member of the American Institute of Architects and was president of the St. Louis War Relief Association. His wife died in 1918. Mrs. Fred Wehmiller, 3909 Flora place, a daughter, and Mrs. Pauline Widmann Roberts, a sister, survive.

Man, 81, Hit By Auto Oct. 10 Dies of His Injuries.

Gustave Wangerine, 81 years old, of 5134 Ridge avenue, died at City Hospital at 6:35 p. m. yesterday of injuries suffered on the afternoon of Oct. 10 when he was knocked down by an automobile while crossing Easton avenue at Academy avenue.

The machine was being driven west in Easton by Gus C. Corzine, 44, of 5590 Maple avenue. Corzine took the injured man to the hospital where he was found to have suffered a fractured skull, several fractured ribs and a fractured right leg. The driver was arrested on charges of felonious wounding and careless driving.

Kindergarten Pupil Fatally Hurt At Unguarded Crossing.

Jacob M. Lashly Jr., 5 years old, of 20 Windermere place, died at St. Luke's Hospital early yesterday from concussion of the brain, suffered Friday afternoon when struck by a truck on Union boulevard, as he was crossing at Cates avenue, on his way home from the Clark School kindergarten. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob M. Lashly, his father being an attorney in the Central National Bank Building.

Capt. Martin O'Brien, investigating the absence of a policeman from the crossing at Union Boulevard and Cates avenue when the child was killed, learned that Patrolman Schultz, detailed there, had arrested a motorist who demolished a lamp post at Vernon avenue and Hodiamont tracks at 2:45 p. m. and was in the Page boulevard station with the prisoner when the child was struck.

Schultz's report cited the fact that Robert Prendergast, 6147 Wagner place, the automobilist was released when his brother, owner of the machine, promised to pay the cost of replacing the lamp post. Schultz said that he again started for the crossing at 3:25 p. m., 40 minutes after he had arrested Prendergast. Two of three other officers who might have been available for such duty were testifying in court when the accident occurred, Capt. O'Brien said.

A statement from the Safety Council yesterday pointed out that 16 school children have been killed by automobiles here this year, compared with 24 in the same period last year. The decrease is attributed to the efforts of school authorities to impress children with safety ideas.

70-Year-Old Woman Dies of Auto Injuries.

Mrs. Mary Bobbitt, 70 years old, a widow, residing at 4331 Page boulevard, died at Missouri Baptist Sanitarium yesterday of internal injuries and a fracture of the thigh suffered at 8 p. m. Friday, when she was struck, at Page boulevard and Pentdleton avenue, by an automobile driven by Benjamin Rabe, 37, of 1430 North Union boulevard.

13-Year-Old Girl Injured When Struck by Truck.

Genevieve Lux, 13 years old, of 1440 Chambers street, suffered a fracture of the skull when she was struck by a truck driven by Harry Cruvand, 27, of 2341 Hebert street, in front of 1421 North Twentieth street, at 3:30 p. m. yesterday.

Cruvand, who took the child to City Hospital, said she jumped from a wagon on which she was riding, directly in the path of his truck. He was held, charged with careless driving.

The Registering Piano

THERE'S no cut-and-dried sameness to the music you can coax from the Gulbransen. It's wonderfully delicate controls enable you to vary each rendition according to your mood. You need no technique. You do not touch the keys. Yet you can color and shade the music with all the expressiveness of an accomplished pianist.

Come and try it. A few minutes' playing of the Gulbransen will be a revelation to you.

Gulbransens are nationally priced, standard the country over. You can have one for as little as $450

MAN UNDER ROBBERY CHARGES ADMITTED TO BAIL

James Michaels Was Arrested in East St. Louis for Alleged Part in Two Holdups.

James Michaels, who was arrested in East St. Louis a week ago under warrants charging him with a part in the murder of Dan Hannefin, a watchman, in an attempted robbery at the Home Ice Cream Co., East St. Louis, July 5, and in the $2900 holdup of the Illinois Central freight office last Saturday, was admitted to bail in Circuit Court at Belleville yesterday.

Assistant State's Attorney Curt Lindauer agreed to this action because he said the evidence of identification against Michaels was the same as that of another defendant in the case, who had been released on bond previously. Michaels expects to furnish a total bond of $20,000.

Caesar Cipriano of 815 Wash street, who is under the same charges as is Michaels, will be admitted to bail also if his attorneys take him to Belleville from St. Louis, where he has been arrested, without extradition. They expect to do so.

TO THE DEAF—FREE PROOF THAT GOOD HEARING CAN AGAIN BE YOURS

Marvelous new invention has brought joy to many thousands. Make the Free Test.

Are you deaf? Then now, thanks to science, you can hear a whisper—hear the ticking of a clock—hear the softest strains of your favorite song—hear every word of every conversation.

The amazing invention of a group of New York scientists now makes all of this possible. A tiny, miracle-working device which they call the Acousticon restores good hearing to even the poorest ears—thousands now testify that this is true. Results are immediate—no waiting—no danger—no discomfort. The inventors are so positive as to just what this device will do for you that they offer to send it postpaid for a ten-day Free Test. No strings to the offer—no deposit—no C. O. D.—no obligation.

Your name and address on a postcard and—Presto—you hear again—hear distinctly—clearly. Commonsense must tell you that we couldn't send the Acousticon on a ten-day Free Test unless we had every confidence in its proven merit . . . its comfort. It's only because of its record of success among the thousands of men and women who have been restored to natural hearing that this surprising offer can be made.

It simply must have merit. It simply must do what we claim. The Free Test will prove it. You yourself make the test—you judge—you decide—and the only cost to you is a postcard. So send your name and address now to The Dictograph Products Corporation, Department 1341, 220 West 42d Street, New York City.

RECEIVERSHIPS OF FIVE CLUB FIRMS ARE VACATED

Same Judges Who Issued Temporary Orders Against Tailoring and Jewelry Concerns Dismiss Them.

Temporary receiverships for five tailoring and jewelry firms, ordered last Monday by Circuit Judges Falkenhainer and Miller on application of State Finance Commissioner French, who alleged the firms were conducting "club" lotteries, were vacated yesterday by the same Judges.

The firms are the Fisher Jewelry Co. and the Meyer, Schemme, Ferd Warner and Jacob Goldstein tailoring companies, all of which denied the allegations made by Commissioner French, on material gathered by the St. Louis Better Business Bureau.

Temporary receiverships for the Globe and Union tailoring companies and the Home Mercantile Co. were continued until such time as these firms file answers to Commissioner French's allegations, after which they probably will be vacated.

Five Days to Show Cause.

The defendant firms now have five days in which to show cause why the Commissioner's request for permanent receiverships should not be granted. From statements made by the Judges yesterday in vacating the temporary receiverships, it is expected the permanent receiverships will be denied. Henry Davis, attorney for the Finance Department, will take advantage of the five days' respite to confer with Commissioner French and Attorney-General Otto as to his future course of action.

In his applications for receiverships, Commissioner French alleged the defendant companies were operated illegally as co-operative companies and lotteries. He charged they issued contracts obligating customers to make periodical payments at the end of which they were to obtain a suit, jewelry or other merchandise. He contended the companies were required to post a $25,000 bond with the State to transact such business, and had neglected to do so.

Charges Against Concerns.

It was also alleged the companies promised contract holders a chance on getting the merchandise before making all payments. Some firms were alleged to base the awards on weather temperatures as published in the newspapers, and others were said to have selected arbitrarily the lucky persons.

Defense arguments were presented chiefly by William L. Igoe, attorney for the Ferd Warner Co. He contended the temporary receiverships were improperly granted as the statute under which the suits were filed does not apply to the business of the defendant companies. He said the suits were brought solely on information and belief, without evidence in support.

The Warner Co., for one, Igoe continued, merely contracted to furnish a $50 suit of clothes to be paid for at $1 a week. He said the company had a right to give away an article of merchandise if it so desired, and added, "This may not be ethical in the eyes of rival business men, but it is not unlawful. If the courts can step in and appoint a receiver for a business like this, then there is nothing to prevent the courts taking charge of any business."

Statements of Counsels.

Igoe declared the appointment of Commissioner French as temporary receiver of the firms a few minutes after he had filed his application, was done without notice being served on the defendants, and said there was no extraordinary situation to justify such extraordinary action.

Attorney Davis for Commissioner French argued the courts had jurisdiction and stated the Attorney-General had looked up the law and found the Finance Commissioner had a right to sue for receiverships. Davis started to read the opinion of the Attorney-General, but Judge Falkenhainer halted him, saying the opinion was not binding on the court.

Harry Blodgett, attorney for the Fisher Jewelry Co., argued that the present cases have no precedent in the Maulding Furniture Co. which was sued last year as a "furniture club" lottery, as that firm was insolvent, whereas those sued last week are solvent.

Receiverships Vacated.

After a conference in chambers, Judge Falkenhainer dismissed the temporary receiverships, with Judge Miller concurring. Judge Falkenhainer said the Finance Commissioner had not shown the courts had jurisdiction, had not given notice to the defendants and had not charged insolvency. He added that "business people should be allowed some latitude."

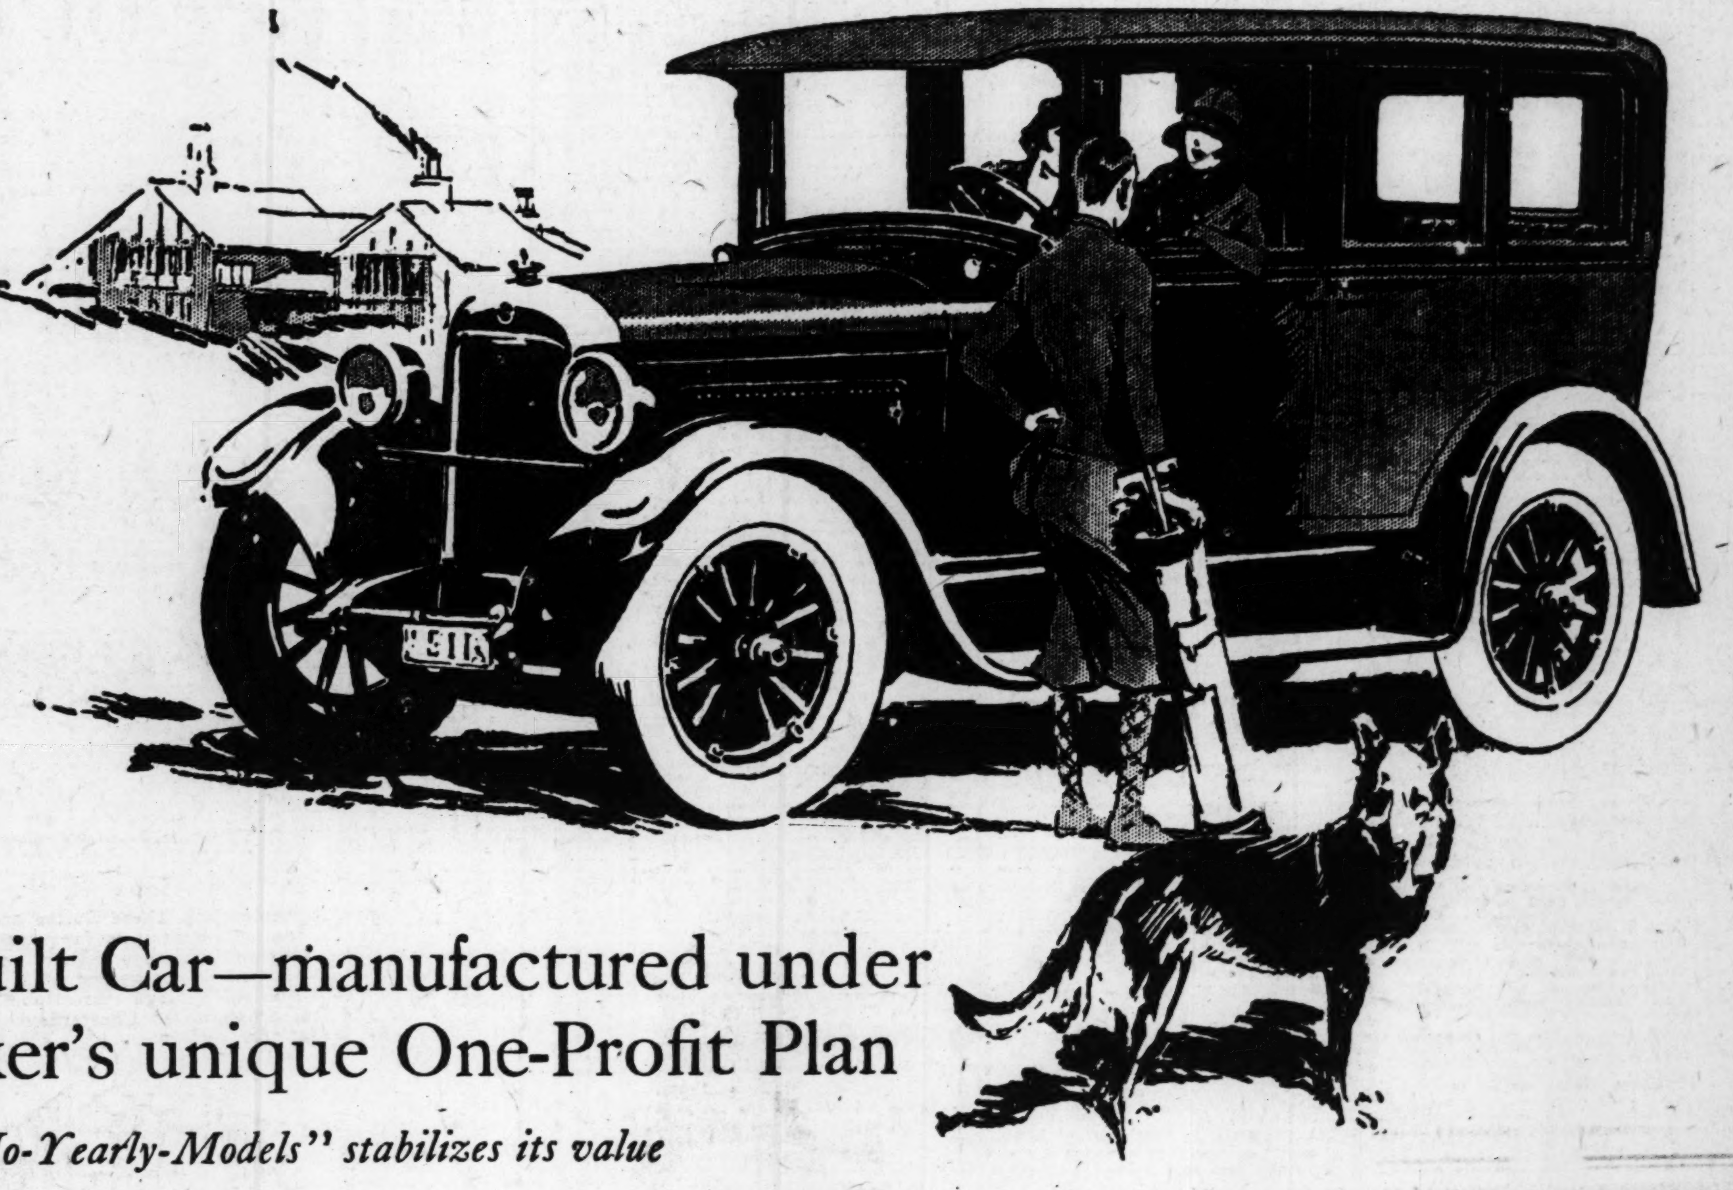
STUDEBAKER

Facilities Alone Make Possible

This Sedan of fine quality for only $1645 delivered in St. Louis



A Unit-Built Car—manufactured under Studebaker's unique One-Profit Plan

"No-Yearly-Models" stabilizes its value

($1645—the lowest price at which Studebaker has ever sold a Sedan in St. Louis)

THERE was a time when the purchaser of an automobile seeking the greatest value for his dollar was justified in considering a car of second grade—a car of inferior quality which was reasonably satisfying from the standpoint of transportation alone.

But this is no longer true.

For with the advent of Studebaker's One-Profit manufacturing policy, cars of the finest quality, such as the Standard Six Sedan illustrated above, are now only slightly higher in price than those of second grade.

Considered purely from a dollars-and-cents standpoint, this small difference in price is practically nothing in comparison to the vast difference in materials and workmanship—in comparison to the increased pride of ownership, the extra service and the added satisfaction that a Studebaker gives.

Under this One-Profit system we build in our own plants the vital parts for Studebaker cars. We manufacture all bodies, all engines, all clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One-Profit manufacture eliminates extra profits and overhead that all other manufacturers (except Ford) must pay to outside parts and body makers and include in the purchase price to you.

And because we have the facilities for One-Profit manufacture—for the complete production of vital parts in Studebaker plants—we are able to design, engineer and manufacture each Studebaker car as a complete, harmonious unit. Being Unit-Built, it functions as a unit—with all of the advantages of unit over assembled construction.

This results in years longer life—scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation—greater riding comfort, minimum repair costs—and, finally, much higher resale value.

Studebaker's lowest priced Sedan—but all quality

THE fine Studebaker Standard Six Sedan illustrated at left is upholstered in genuine wool cloth. Carpets are wool. Windows are real plate glass. Four wide doors.

The equipment includes a clock, gasoline gauge, ash receiver, rear-vision mirror, stop light, dome light, safety lighting control on steering wheel, automatic windshield cleaner, coincidental lock to steering gear and ignition controlled by same key operating door and spare-tire locks, and full-size balloon tires. All instruments are grouped under glass on a silver-faced dial set in a beautiful walnut finished panel.

But the most important superiorities of this Sedan cannot be seen. They are concealed within the framework of the body and in the chassis.

Body pillars, for instance, are of fine northern white ash, cross-members of hard maple. We pay a premium for steels of extra toughness.

Slam the door and the sound says "quality." Swing on the door. Run one wheel up on the curb and note how the doors still open and close—how the motor still runs smoothly. Sit on the firm, heavy fenders. Try the steering gear. See how easily it handles the full-size balloon tires. Test the comfort of the deep rear seat.

Run the engine—the most powerful in any car of its size and weight, according to the rating of the N. A. C. C. and the Society of Automotive Engineers. Its crankshaft is full machined on all surfaces to eliminate vibration—a practice almost unheard of in cars of this price. The motor is not built for excessive speed, but rather for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour. It is built for a long, quiet life—not for spectacular stunts.

Go to any of the Studebaker dealers listed below and let them demonstrate this Standard Six Sedan. Test its performance on the road. Note the power, the splendid riding comfort; then realize that you can buy it for the lowest price Studebaker ever placed on a Sedan.

POST-DISPATCH WANTS supply CAPABLE and EXPERIENCED WORKERS for the OFFICE, STORE, MILL, FACTORY, WAREHOUSE or HOME.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

M. K. — "The Miracle" will be presented at the Coliseum from Dec. 24 to Jan. 20.

W. F. H.—The history of the Laclede Gas Light Co. building was published in connection with accounts of the accident.

M. B. — Both "altogether" and "all together" are given in the dictionary and the former is quite commonly and generally used.

V. F. W.—You can take courses in art at the public night schools or at the evening classes of Washington University.

A. J. S. — In a rarefied atmosphere, such as exists in the west, it is quite possible to clearly see mountains or other objects 75 miles in the distance, or even farther distant, with the naked eye.

R.—The Jew is a member of the Hebraic division of the Semitic race. Modern representatives of the stock call themselves Hebrews in race, Israelites in religion and Jews in both senses.

P.-D. READER. — To clean the bricks in the fireplace which have become smoke-stained, moisten the bricks with water and rub them with a rag which has been dipped in wood ashes.

READER.—Write to the Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C., to find out if the name has already been copyrighted; if this has not been done you can use the name and copyright it.

T. M. G.—Write to the Stout Metal Airplane Co. at Dearborn, Mich., regarding their airplanes, and consult the army authorieles at Scott Field regarding army planes. Also consult books at the Public Library on airplane construction.

YOUR READER. — From your description we should say that the coin is either a nickel 3-cent piece of the year 1868, which, if it is the proof coin, is worth 5c to 15c; or it might be the silver 3-cent piece coined in 1868, which is worth 20c to 60c.

WORRIED. — Fleas will thrive any place where there is a lot of debris about, and if such a condition exists there is small hope of eradicating them. Dogs and cats also carry fleas. Perhaps if you will thoroughly clean the basement, then sprinkle it profusely with a reliable disinfectant and with flea powder, you may be successful in your efforts.

MRS. B. R. — The steel wool which can be purchased at any of the stores is excellent for cleaning and polishing aluminum kettles. Aluminum may also be brightened in potash lye but care must be taken not to have the lye too strong. The steel wool which is particularly suitable for this purpose is prepared or combined with a cleansing soap and after the wool is wet this soapy solution is excellent for removing all grease and stains.

NINNY. — Following are the pronunciations of the characters which you mention, all of whom are in "The Three Musketeers:" D'Artagnan, pronounced dar-ta-nyan, the three a's being broad, as in "art," and the primary accent on the last syllable; Aramis, pronounced a-ra-mis, broad a's, i like e, primary accent on last syllable; Porthos, por-tos, long o's, accent on last syllable; Athos, Athos, short a and short o, accent on the first syllable.

L. T.—"Chevon" is the name for goat meat, which was selected in a national contest which was won by Mrs. E. W. Hardgrave of Sanderson, Tex., and was adopted by the associated goat raisers of the United States. The old Missouri law which required a special branding process of each piece of goat meat in Missouri packing houses and wholesale meat markets worked materially against the goat-raising industry in former years. But the goat was legally and officially vindicated by Missouir in the enactment of Senate Bill 150 by Senator Phil Bennett, amending Section 5683 of the Revised Statutes of 1919, which takes goat meat out of the horse meat and mule meat class, thus putting it where it belongs, alongside of beef, pork and mutton.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

G. H. S.—Consult a lawyer regarding the will and the signing of the deeds.

ANXIOUS READER. — The daughter can rent a house for the family and can refuse to permit the father to enter it, under the circumstances described. If he makes any trouble, call the police.

DUMB. — If the town permits you to sell the articles without a license, that will not conflict with the laws of Illinois. You will be safe in selling without a license.

MRS. B. M. W.—You can find out what income tax your husband paid by inquiring at the office of the Collector of Internal Revenue, Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

INTERESTED. — Even though you own no real estate or property you will have to pay taxes on your furniture and on anything else which you own.

C. C. C.—The payment on the personal note must be made by the debtor or by someone for him, in order to keep the note in force. A small payment by the wife will not keep it in force.

A. S.—A man can write his own will, but it has no legal effect unless it is signed by two attesting witnesses, in his presence and in the presence of each other. It is much wiser to have a lawyer draw the will and see that it is properly signed and witnessed.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

CARROLL.—Place yourself under the care of a competent obstetrician.

HOPEFUL.—Your letter is too indefinite. Write again, giving your case a little more in detail.

NOVICE.—The normal weight of a woman 5 feet 6 inches in height and 26 years of age is 142 pounds.

THANK YOU.—We hardly think it worth while to reply to persons making inquiry about reducing pins and love powders.

FRANCIS G.—If you are convinced that you are suffering with chronic interstitial nephritis, or have good grounds to believe that you are, by all means do not attempt self-treatment but immediately get under the care of a competent physician. This is Brights Disease and a dangerous malady.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

COLDS

Break a Cold Right Up with "Pape's Cold Compound"

Take two tablets every three hours until three doses are taken. The first dose always gives relief. The second and third doses completely break up the cold. Pleasant and safe to take. Contains no quinine or opiates. Millions use "Pape's Cold Compound." Price, thirty-five cents. Druggists guarantee it.

AIR UNIT COMMANDER

CAPT. C. RAY WASSALL.

C. R. WASSALL HEADS AIR UNIT OF MILITIA

Chosen Commander of 110th Observation Squadron for Second Time.

Capt. C. Ray Wassall, 31 years old, was elected commander of the 110th Observation Squadron, National Guard Air Unit, for the second time since the unit was organized here two years ago, at a meeting of officers of the squadron held last week.

Capt. Wassall succeeds Capt. William Leininger, former overseas flyer, who resigned the command because of press of business. Capt. Wassall's first term as commander of the air unit was for a brief period last year following the resignation of Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Corp., the original commander of the unit. Capt. Wassall was succeeded by Capt. Leitninger, whom he now succeeds. Capt. Leininger will remain with the unit and retain his present rank.

Flying Boyhood Ambition.

Flying was a boyhood ambition with Capt. Wassall, made possible of attainment through the medium of the World War. During a conversation with a reporter for the Post-Dispatch at the National Guard encampment at Nevada, Mo., last August, Capt. Wassall related how he spent many after-school hours as a boy at the old Kinloch Park, where Hoxey, Johnson and other pioneer pilots sometimes induced their queerly constructed planes to leave the ground.

With the entrance of America into the World War, Wassall enlisted in the army air service and learned to fly. He failed to get overseas and, following his discharge from the army, engaged in commercial flying at county fairs throughout the Northwest for several years. Returning to St. Louis, Wassall continued to fly, first at Forest Park Field and later at Bridgeton. He is one of the original officers of the 110th Squadron, being among the first to apply when the unit was organized.

Demonstrated His Coolness.

At the National Guard Encampment at Nevada in 1924 Capt. Wassall demonstrated his coolness in an emergency. On the last day of the encampment, Capt. Wassall took aloft Sergt. Douglas an enlisted member of the squadron, who had volunteered to perform aerial gymnastics for the entertainment of Governor Hyde, visitor at the camp. Douglas became exhausted while swinging at the end of a rope attached to the landing gear of the plane and was unable to draw himself back to the plane. He tied the rope about his body and Capt. Wassall flew over the camp site for more than an hour, finally steering a course over a reservoir three miles distant, where Douglas cut the rope with a knife passed to him by a man on the wing of another plane. Douglas was pulled uninjured from the reservoir.

The 110th Observation Squadron has a personnel of 90 enlisted men and 10 officers. Regulations allow for 5 additional officers and Capt. Wassall has announced his intention of finding former army or navy pilots capable of meeting requirements.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery, with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

ELY-WALKER IS ACTIVE STOCK ON EXCHANGE

Volume of Business on St. Louis Board During Week Shows Increase—Larger Trade in United Railway Fours.

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Oct. 17.—The volume of trading on the local market during the past week was moderately larger than that of preceding period, resulting partly, probably from listing of another stock at the start of the week and partly from the sentiment aroused by the activities on the New York Exchange.

While the newly list St. Louis Amusement Co. stock naturally received attention, the most active issue during the week was Ely-Walker common, which showed a net gain for the period of more than 3 points on a turnover of only a little less than 2000 shares. The top reached was 33¾. Skouras stock showed a net gain for the week which brought it to a new high mark.

Some attention was given to Hamilton-Brown, the stock rising to 66¼. Boyd-Welsh was another fairly active shoe issue, moving over an irregular course. A net upturn for the week, however, was shown.

Wagner Electric common was lower as a result of the week's trading.

In the bond section the feature was the revival of interest in United Railways 4 per cent bonds. There was a turnover of $70,000 of these securities.

IRREGULAR PRICE MOVEMENTS MARK EXCHANGE MARKET

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"Many irregular movements marked the week, which was shortened by the observance of Columbus day on Monday. Most importance was attached to French exchange, which on Tuesday yielded 7 points to 4.33¼ and continued under pressure until yesterday, when checks on Paris sold as low as 4.42½, a new low for the year. After this decline government support appeared in the shape of bids for 500,000 franc lots, causing a quick rally of about 5 points. Italian was heavy in the first few days, lira checks dropping 10 points to 3.91½, but this loss was more than recovered before the end of the week following the strengthening of government position. Wide movement occurred in Norwegian exchange, it first falling to 19.96 and then rallying to 20.45. Danish, after yielding to 24.42, moved up to above 25.00. Greek exchange was without nearby demand and sustained a further loss of 10 points to 1.28.

"Sterling exchange occupied its own place in the market all through the week, the rate being well maintained at close to $4.84⅛ for cables, but it was a matter of general understanding that the buying market consisted of accumulation in connection with the gold movement from London to New York. The supply of cotton bills, however, increased to a material extent day by day and caused a recession from what had been looked on as the desirable level.

"Exchange on Japan held strong, being governed largely by the operations in connection with gold imports. After selling at 40.75 yen checks rallied to 41.00. Chinese exchanges moved up in line with the advance in silver early in the week, Hongkong and Shanghai both being strong.

"South American exchanges apparently had reached their peak on recent movements and were in supply at concessions. Argentine, which had sold as high as high as 41.50 in the preceding week, dropped to 41.00. Brazilian was down from 15.10 to 14.37. Canadian exchange was in increased demand, being ⅛ premium bid with some substantial amounts changing hands at above that rate.

"The foreign exchange market Saturday was free from the speculative influences which kept securities higher. The volume of business was confined to the usual half-holiday settling of accounts, and fluctuations were comparatively narrow. Sterling held steady, but showed no signs of recovery despite the heavy shipments of gold to this country. Selling again came into French francs and depressed the rate on Paris somewhat Belgian francs and lire sagged slightly. Scandinavian exchanges were lower.

HIGHER PRICES RULE ON COTTON MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Early advances were followed by reactions in the cotton market today, but the close was steady at net gains of 1 to 12 points. December sold up to 21.65c on predictions of frost in the belt tonight, but eased off to 21.47c and closed at 21.53c, compared with 21.49c at the close the day before.

The opening was steady at an advance of 5 to 10 points and the market sold about 13 to 20 points net higher in early trading on relatively steady Liverpool cables, better trade advices from Manchester and forecasts for frost tonight in Oklahoma, Arkansas and the Texas Panhandle and at a few points in the northeastern part of the belt. A good deal of covering and some trade buying was supplied on the upturn to 20.95c for January and the market later eased off.

Local traders appeared to feel that temperatures were not likely to reach the killing point over any important section of the belt tonight and that warmer weather was in prospect after the cold snap. This view of the weather outlook probably promoted some of the selling on the early advance but offerings were not particularly heavy and after reacting to 20.78c for January and 21.05c for March, the market rallied several points from the lowest on renewed covering.

There were rumors that about 2000 bales of cotton were en route here from the South for delivery on October, and that some cotton soon would be starting in this direction for December tender. These rumors were accompanied by further switching from near to later months, but there was very little change in differences, with December closing 69 points over January compared with 70 points at the close of the previous day.

Private cables said trade buying and covering had absorbed hedge selling in Liverpool and there was a better tone in Manchester with prospects for increased business.

BRITISH FINANCIAL, TRADE AND INDUSTRIAL REVIEWS

Special wireless to New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in review, says:

"In spite of the increased shipments of gold to the United States, indications are not wanting here of a gradual return to more normal conditions. As a result of the improvement, it is believed that before the end of the year the embargo on foreign loans will be removed. Moreover, with the close of the year the regulation requiring a license to export gold will expire, furthering the return to normal conditions. Whether or not these developments will necessitate a higher bank rate, however, remains to be seen, because it is pretty clear that New York and other financial centers are easily able to absorb enormous amounts of gold without materially affecting exchange rates.

"The situation is complicated, of course, by the unsatisfactory state of our export trade. Unfortunately, however, although conditions favor a moderate improvement, our hope for a recovery in foreign trade arises from developments abroad, such as your more abundant cotton crop and the better position of Eastern markets.

Want Loan Emrago Off.

"The preponderance of opinion favors the advisability of removing the embargo on foreign loans.

"The Economist estimates that we have fully £126,000,000 available annually for foreign investment, after providing about £300,000,000 for home investment.

"The desire for removal of the embargo is prompted by the idea that trade can be quickly stimulated, but such stimulation probably will be slow, because Great Britain seldom stipulates, when lending, that the proceeds of a loan must be used in this country, trusting rather to the final effects from prosperity of other nations.

"Thus it will be seen that the task of the Bank of England is difficult. If the embargo is not removed the Government bank will be accused of blocking trade progress, while if, as a result of the removal of the embargo, adverse exchanges and large gold withdrawals should necessitate a higher bank rate the criticism will be equally strong.

"Some anxiety is expressed over the French financial position and the fall of the franc justifies the fears of those who believe that no recovery of French credit and finances can be expected until a satisfactory settlement of the French external debt has been effected.

"As soon as the embargo on foreign loans is lifted it is believed Belgium will likely be the first borrower.

"London, especially in financial circles, is keenly interested in the cabled report from Washington that your Government is likely to take some independent action in a revision of its commercial treaty arrangements with China. The Times and the other papers are inclined to doubt this is probable, in view of the general agreement reached at the Washington conference, as it is believed the consequences might be far reaching.

"American purchases of stocks in British iron and steel concerns are believed to have reached large proportions recently and it is hinted here that important financial deals are pending.

Rubber Shares React.

"Rubber shares continue their reaction on fears of a great expansion of output. Such apprehensions, of course, are exaggerated and premature, but the market is undoubtedly overbought for the time being.

"In view of the extensive new financing that is being arranged it is considered likely that money rates will harden moderately, while a continuance of activity in securities is expected, especially in industrials and some speculative descriptions.

"The growth of national expenditures excites concern, and the Federation of British industries in presenting a further letter to the Prime Minister calling for drastic economies points out that although expenditures have decreased about 30 per cent, as compared with five years ago, the decrease is illusory, because in the meantime the purchasing value of the pound sterling measured in commodities has increased more than 30 per cent.

"A conversion loan this year is now considered unlikely in the absence of drastic reductions in expenditures.

Bond Market Review

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — Today's bond market was still centered on the foreign group. Under buying attracted by the favorable developments at the Locarno conference the price of Polish 8s was carried up above 89, higher than at any time this week and some 2 points up from where they were selling 10 days ago. The German 7s, which were so strong Friday, held their gains today. French bonds, however, were not greatly changed. Hungarian 7½s, too, had a point reaction after the record high of the day before.

In the domestic list there was a good deal of irregularity. Rogers Brown Iron 7s continued their erratic fluctuations. International Mercantile Marine 6s were heavy. Missouri Pacific 6s and St. Louis-San Francisco prior lien A 4s were fairly strong. There was a special demand for New York Steam 6s.

Some of the Libertys were higher. Illinois Steel 4½s were favorites among the gilt-edged industrials.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Cotton goods markets were steadier today with more interest shown by buyers in offers of late contract deliveries at lower prices. Finished goods continued moving freely on past orders. Cables from Manchester report cotton goods sales improving and prices tending firmer. Raw silk was unchanged. Spring silk goods attracted attention with silk goods on order sought for quick delivery. Linens improved in primary markets but competition for business has kept prices low. A consensus of national jobbing houses opinion is that the trade outlook for the balance of the year is good and that the third quarter was eminently satisfactory. Burlap shipments from Calcutta this month have been larger than in September.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The raw sugar market was unchanged today. No sales were reported, although sugars were offered at last paid prices of 3.83 for Cuban, duty paid.

There was not much activity in raw sugar futures, and closing prices were 1 to 2 points net lower under commission house liquidation. December closed 2.07; March 2.21; May 2.30; July 2.41.

Refined sugar was quiet and unchanged at 5.05 to 5.20 for fine granulated.

FRUIT MARKET

Apples Firm on Good Hard Ben Davis—Cranberries Higher.

PRODUCE MARKET, Oct. 17.—Street jobbing sales in apples were light, owing to week-end. Sales, however, included 75 bushel baskets Colorado jonathans at $1.70 del and part car Idaho bulk jonathan at $5.50 per barrel measure del. Sales on track were: 1 car Colorado bu baskets at $1.82 for jonathan, $1.87 for roman beauty and $2.47 for delicious and 1 car barreled ben davis at $3. Home-grown boxed apples selling at 50c to $1 per bu box loose, according to quality.

One boat yesterday afternoon brought 2600 barrels of Calhoun apples and another today 200 barrels. The rain yesterday did not stop levee trading. A good demand on storing and shipping account resulted in firm prices on good hard ben davis under competitive bidding and the cargoes of two boatloads were pretty well cleaned up. Extreme range of sales of ben davis were $2.25 to $3.35, only one lot at the top price and most sales (orchard run) between $2.40 and $3. Purchases of two buyers totaled 1035 barrels at $2.50 to $3.25.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	38,471	41,456	39,891
Hogs	66,793	74,655	90,815
Sheep	16,687	17,234	13,844
Horses and mules	2,008	2,662	1,621
Totals	123,959	136,007	146,171

Under moderate receipts, the market for cattle, sheep and lambs closed lower at the St. Louis National Stockyards last week. Hogs finished about in line with a week ago and horses and mules were steady to $5 to $15 per head off. Combined receipts were 123,959 head, against 136,007 the previous week. Cattle and calves alone figured 38,471 head and slow, declining markets characterized the trade in this department. Quality of arrivals was an average, grading common, medium and fair. Declines of 25c to 50c were forced in the market for all classes of killing steers, light steers and heifers and beef cows. Stocker and feeder steers and canner and cutter cows dropped 25c on an average and the best veal calves slumped 50c. Killing steers from native territory bulked at $8 to $12 per cwt. and best droves scored upward to $14, the top, this price going for both light and weighty consignments. Common beeves graduated down to $6 and under.

The range country of Kansas and Oklahoma marketed approximately 100 cars of cattle. Steers ranged in price from $5 to $8.25; cows made $3.75 to $4.65, and heifers $5.50. Native light yearling steers and heifers of the better kind reached $10.50 and $11.50, although the greater part of the run in this department consisted of common, medium and fair droves, sales of which were largely at $4 to $8. Beef cows closed at $4 to $5 for most, best reaching $6 and $7. Cutter cows passed the scales late in the week at $3.25 to $3.75 and canners at $2.50 to $3. Bologna bulls were included in a spread of $4 to $4.75 and weighty beef animals made $5 to $5.50. Canner and cutter bulls graduated down to $3.25. Rains again restricted the business in stocker and feeder alleys. Steers declined 25 cents and she-stock proved weak to 25 cents lower. Most of the steers changed hands at $4.75 to $6.80 and best feeders scored upward to $7.75. From $12.50 to $13 at the week's opening, best handy-weight veal calves dropped to $12 on the close. The plainer grades of calves were barely steady with recent declines and Southern canner yearlings depreciated to a $4 to $4.50 basis.

Hog Receipts Lighter.

Receipts of hogs fell off materially the past week both locally and at other Western markets, the 11-market total showing a decrease of 20,935 from the previous week's aggregate and a drop of 85,955 from the corresponding six-day period last year. Light hogs and underweight stuff continued to form a large proportion of arrivals, quality for the week grading fair to good, nevertheless. In spite of the decreased runs, buyers continued to press prices and succeeded in forcing the top at one time in the week to $11.85, the lowest recorded on this market since February of this year. On Feb. 23 the hog top stood at $11.75, having been on the upward trend the greater part of the time since that day. A rally late in the week, however, was sufficient to recover practically all of the declines since last Saturday and closing prices show about steady with a week ago today. Top is identical at $12.20, paid for light hogs and pigs, with the general run of light and medium weight butcher hogs from 160 to 210 pound average clearing at $12.10 to $12.15. Mediumweight and butcher hogs from 210 to 260 pound average at $11.80 to $12.10 are also about steady. Pigs maintained a relatively steady market throughout the week, prices experiencing some fluctuations toward the latter sessions. Closing deals, however, are practically steady with a week ago at $11.75 to $12.20 for all weights, some trashy kinds occasionally going lower. There was a good inquiry throughout for both killing and stocker grades, the latter named class selling at $13.50 to $13.75 when vaccinated. Packer sows and stags show the only material losses of the week, these two grades ranging from 50c to 75c lower. Good sows are selling mainly at $10 to $10.25, the latter price paid sparingly for light smooth kinds. Stags are quotable at $9 to $10, bulk going at $9 to $9.50. Quotations for the week are as follows: Good medium and weighty butchers, 210 pounds and up, $11.80 to $12.10; light and handy weight butchers, 160 to 210 pounds, $12.10 to $12.20. Pigs, all weights, 80 to 150 pounds, $11.75 to $12.20; sows, $10 to $10.25; stags, $9 to $10.

Lamb Prices Down.

Receipts of sheep and lambs continued of modest proportions both locally and at other markets, the 11 market total running somewhat lighter than the previous week and also a year ago. Quality as a whole graded slightly under recent periods previously, a larger number of southwest lambs included among arrivals, especially toward the latter part of the week. Lower prices prevailed throughout the six sessions with closing deals figuring 50c to 75c lower on best lambs and generally 50c lower on cull and common grades. Top for the week was established in the first sessions by butchers, these operators paying up to $15.25 for some sorted lambs. With this outlet closed the latter part of the week packers were in full control and lowered the peak to $14.75, taking some of the southwest kinds at $13.75 and $14. Culls sold generally at $10 to $11, bulking somewhat lower than the previous week. Buyers effected the first change in aged sheep prices since early in August, lowering the top on best ewes to $7. The break was effected too late in the week to exert any radical change over the six-day bulk, $6 to $7 catching the big end of the offerings. Plainer grades such as choppers, canners and bucks showed no change, selling in a spread of $1 to $6 according to weight and quality. There was a generous run of goats the past week at the local yards and some difficulty was experienced in moving this class late in the week. Good fat goats sold mainly at $3 to $3.25 with choice kinds quotable up to $3.50. Fat kids bulked at $4 to $6 with best kinds occasionally up to $7. Thin and common goats ranged from $1.50 to $2.50 largely.

Good to choice lambs quotable at $14.25 to $14.75, medium to good $13.25 to $14.25 and plain to medium $12.25 to $13.25. Cull and common lambs $10 to $12, skips $6 to $9. Good to choice mutton ewes $6 to $7, medium to good $5 to $6 and plain to medium $4 to $5. Choppers and bucks $2 to $6, canners $1 to $2. Fat kids $4 to $7, fat goats $3 to $3.50, thin and common goats $1 to $2.50.

Horses and Mules.

Horses and mules ruled steady to $15 per head lower during the week, declines being attributed to recent liberal runs here and to excessive rainfall in the South. Arrivals during the six-day period just ended were 2000 head, following a heavy supply of 2662 the previous week, making nearly 5000 in two weeks.

Top Southern horses, big horses and work horses, also fat cotton mules 15 hands and over generally held their own under an active demand. Declines, however, occurred in the general run of Southern horses, medium mules and plain mules. Trading was moderately active throughout the general market and the clearance was satisfactory.

Practically all of the run the past week was native stock. Both native and Western sales are scheduled this week.

New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Coffee futures opened today at an advance of 18 to 20 points and held generally steady on covering and trade buying, accompanied by reports of a firmer tone in the cost and freight market. March sold up to 16.50c and the general market closed at net advances of 19 to 25 points. Sales were estimated at 35,000. Closing quotations: October, 18.80c; December, 17.95c; January, 17c; March, 16.52c; May, 15.77c; July, 15.17c; September, 14.65c.

Spot coffee steady; Rio 7s, 19c to 19¼c; Santos 4s, 22⅝c to 22⅞c. While there were reports of a firmer tone in the cost and freight market, the only offer quoted was Bourbon 4s at 21c to 22c, prompt shipment.

WHEAT SHOWS GAIN IN TRADE FOR WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Local sentiment was bullish today in wheat and this was responsible for the rally at lower opening. The close was 1⅝@2⅝c up for the day and 1⅝@2⅝c higher for the week. New December $1.47¼@⅜; old $1.46½@¾; May $1.44½@⅝; old $1.43⅝@1.43¾.

Lower Liverpool cables led to selling at the outset and a sharp decline in prices. Foreigners were good sellers. The strength in Winnipeg, however, attracted local attention and this soon brought in enough buying to absorb the surplus offerings. Influential commission houses had wheat for sale on the bulges. Spreaders bought wheat here and sold in Winnipeg. Weather in the Canadian West continues to restrict threshing operations in parts. Canadian farmers marketed 1,250,000 bushels of wheat yesterday and country elevators loaded about 1263 cars. Seaboard reported 160,000 bushels amber durum wheat worked for export via Montreal and also wheat business yesterday was larger than reported. More rains were reported over Australia improving the crop outlook and crop reports from India and Argentina were more favorable.

Trade in corn was largely local in character and the trend of prices was influenced by the action of wheat. At the close prices were ¼@½c up for the week and ⅝@¾c up for the week: December 76¼@½; May 80¾@⅞c. Country sold a little corn to arrive over night. The wet weather was unfavorable for husking. Cash interests called attention to the fact that the new corn received on this market to date had been light in weight. Shipping demand was better.

Oats showed little change and prices moved within a narrow range. The strength in wheat was a stablizing influence. Closing prices were unchanged to ¼c up for the day and ⅛ to ⅜c lower for the week. December 39⅝@¾c. May 44⅛c. Shipping demand was better.

Provisions were in sympathy with grain and hogs. A feature was the buying of October lard by packers. Lard closed 2½@15c higher; ribs 25c off and bellies 12½c lower.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 17.—Wheat closed higher after an irregular course and corn higher to lower. Strength of Winnipeg and report of Canadian weather in west restricting threshing were influences. Corn was influenced by wheat to extent.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was steady, there being limited milling demand. Hard wheat was scarce and firm on urgent mill demand. Corn was 1c lower. Demand was good. Oats were steady to ½c lower. Demand was good.

Decrease in wheat stocks at Minneapolis and scarcity domestic receipts were other factors. There was a report of Canadian wheat growers' pool having 50,000,000 bushels sold abroad so far. Forecast of unsettled weather over part of the corn belt was an influence in that market.

Wheat futures opened fractionally lower, ruling between that basis and fractionally higher in the forepart of day. Corn showed fractional decline. Liverpool wheat closed 1⅛d to 1½d lower. Winnipeg early was up ½c to ⅝c.

December wheat opened at $1.51⅝. May wheat $1.47⅛. December corn 74⅝c and May corn 79½c.

The three northwestern markets combined had 1701 cars of wheat, compared with 2270 last year. Minneapolis received [illegible] 255 cars. Duluth 60 and Winnipeg [illegible]

Local wheat receipts, which were 67,[illegible] bushels compared with 32,200 a week ago and 179,400 last year, included 42 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts, which were 37,800 bushels, compared with 21,000 a week ago and 107,800 last year, included 23 cars local and 4 through. RICH MEN'S DEALS MAKE BIG MARKET

Public Has Not Yet Taken Control — Largest Bull Session in History During Week — Motor Share Transactions in Lead.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Following an announcement of Secretary Mellon's recommendation to reduce the surtax rate to a maximum of 20 per cent and to lower the total of Federal taxes by $250,000,000, Wall street on Friday staged the biggest bull market in its history. Total sales reached 2,302,000 shares, or a larger volume than for any session since Dec. 22, 1916, when stocks were crumbling in a war market. Prices this week attained new peaks in the history of the exchange and the number of issues dealt in yesterday, 577, indicated that never before had trading been so broad as it is now. Even on the curb, which now must be reckoned with, a new high total of 711 issues exchanged hands. Nobody would want to say that the Mellon proposals offered the basis for the fresh upward swing in the market, but it was the drop of oil that inflamed a market only too eager to be incited.

Strong Arms Raised Stocks.

"That strong arms have raised stocks to present levels is perfectly plain, but that the large operators and pools all are now unloading or distributing their holdings is easier to say than to prove. Large blocks of stocks purchased at lower levels have been sold this week and certain pools have disbanded, but simultaneously other issues have been accumulated and new pools formed. Even in the boiling sessions of Thursday and Friday the market retained a poise that does not appear when the general public comes in to take control. Rich individuals for months have held most of the stock and the flurries still are to be found primarily in issues that offer an appeal to wealthy speculators. In so far as these wealthy individuals are passing out their holdings now they are unloading upon other wealthy individuals quite as much as upon the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker. In the last stages of a bull market there comes a time when the public itself takes the bit in its teeth and, so to speak, walks away with the market, but to that stage we have not come in the present instance.

No Tax Loss Selling.

"It does not follow, of course, that the market does not present dangers or that current prices are justified on the basis of business at hand. Indeed, quotations in many cases have discounted boom times in 1926, whereas the present outlook is not for a wave of great prosperity next year but for a period of sustained good business. The very moderateness in the pace of business improvement has, by helping to prolong the relative ease in money rates, stimulated stock prices. Another thing favors the bull party and which too many have overlooked. Sales by wealthy individuals to record tax losses in 1925 have been conspicuous by their absence this autumn, and it is no secret that many small operators have paper profits so large that they will not sell, at least, until after the turn of the year.

Big September Imports.

"No more pleasing evidence of the trend of business here appeared during the week than the report of extraordinarily large merchandise imports in September. At this season of the year we expect exports to rise, but it is unusual for imports to reach, as they did in this instance, the biggest total of the year, except for March, when the sensational peak came. The figures are encouraging since most of our imports are raw materials and heavy importations can mean only one thing. They mean that our industries are expecting a sustained demand for manufactured goods.

Locarno Influence.

"From a broad international standpoint, however, nothing that happened on this side of the water this week equals in importance the agreement that was reached by the delegates at Locarno. Apparently France and Germany agree not to fight each other and two other powerful European countries, Great Britain and Italy, agree to spring to the military aid of the one that is attacked. The great victory is, of course, that Europe has virtually agreed to maintain peace at almost any price."

Motors Erratic Saturday.

"No sign of slackening in the sensational speculative trading in securities was apparent in today's short session of the stock market, and prices continued to advance at a record-breaking pace. Motor stocks outstripped mercantile issues in the rapid advance, new tops for the year being established in profusion. Hudson Motor opened with a gain of 2 points at a record high and other favorite speculative mediums recorded sharp gains at the start. Just before the close heavy profit-taking sales came into the market and many early advances melted in the twinkling of an eye. General Motors broke swiftly as traders sought to realize profits and close commitments over the week-end. Despite this movement, however, the general tone was steady to strong at the close.

Heavy Trading in Motor Stocks.

"A furious trading pace, seldom if ever equaled in the annals of stock speculation on the New York Stock Exchange, was maintained through the two-hour session, demand for motor stocks being without precedent. New high records were recorded with great rapidity as enormous blocks of securities

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 17.—Wheat closed higher after an irregular course and corn higher to lower. Strength of Winnipeg and report of Canadian weather in west restricting threshing were influences. Corn was influenced by wheat to extent.

In the local cash grain market soft wheat was steady, there being limited milling demand. Hard wheat was scarce and firm on urgent mill demand. Corn was 1c lower. Demand was good. Oats were steady to ½c lower. Demand was good.

Decrease in wheat stocks at Minneapolis and scarcity domestic receipts were other factors. There was a report of Canadian wheat growers' pool having 50,000,000 bushels sold abroad so far. Forecast of unsettled weather over part of the corn belt was an influence in that market.

Wheat futures opened fractionally lower, ruling between that basis and fractionally higher in the forepart of day. Corn showed fractional decline. Liverpool wheat closed 1¼d to 1½d lower. Winnipeg early was up ½c to ⅞c.

December wheat opened at $1.51⅝, May wheat $1.47¼, December corn 74¾c and May corn 79½c.

The three northwestern markets combined had 1701 cars of wheat, compared with 2270 last year, Minneapolis receiving 255 cars, Duluth 66 and Winnipeg 1380.

Local wheat receipts, which were 67,200 bushels, compared with 32,200 a week ago and 179,400 last year, included 42 cars local and 6 through. Corn receipts, which were 37,800 bushels, compared with 21,000 a week ago and 107,800 last year, included 23 cars local and 4 through. Oats receipts, which were 66,000 bushels, compared with 60,000 a week ago and 124,000 last year, included 20 cars local and 13 through. Hay receipts were 35 cars local and 10 through.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,167,000 bushels, compared with 974,000 a week ago and 2,866,000 last year. Corn receipts were 418,000 bushels, compared with 236,000 a week ago and 752,000 last year. Oats receipts were 588,000 bushels, compared with 544,000 a week ago and 1,191,000 last year. Wheat shipments were 952,000 bushels, compared with 561,000 a week ago and 1,492,000 last year. Corn shipments were 209,000 bushels, compared with 210,000 a week ago and 475,000 last year. Oats shipments were 350,000 bushels, compared with 446,000 a week ago and 527,000 last year.

Heavy Trading in Motor Stocks.

"A furious trading pace, seldom if ever equaled in the annals of stock speculation on the New York Stock Exchange, was maintained through the two-hour session, demand for motor stocks being without precedent. New high records were recorded with great rapidity as enormous blocks of securities were accumulated by public and professional operators. In the first hour nearly 750,000 shares of stock changed hands, which was at the rate of more than 3,700,000 shares for a full five-hour session, exceeding the record established in the panicky market of the Northern Pacific corner in 1910. At the rate dealings were handled in the first hour a new high total of sales for a Saturday session was in prospect, exceeding the figure of 1,474,000 established in January this year. Excitement at the General Motors post and in the White Motors crowd has seldom been duplicated. Huge blocks of stock came out as prices swirled upward. General Motors crossed 135, while White Motors got above 102 and Yellow Truck extended its gain more than 5 points, all new high records. Jordan and Studebaker were other prominent favorites.

Specialties Rise in Broad Market.

"Specialties, mercantile shares and rails were not neglected in the broad trading. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, International Business Machine, Postum Cereal, American Safety Razor, Cushman Bakery and others were strong. U. S. Steel again set the pace in the steel and equipment group, crossing 128 to within about a point of its best price this year. Commission house followers were anticipating a new high and talking of 140 or better for Steel in the current movement. Commercial reviews pointed to business expansion and a continued bright outlook for heavy retail sales in the next several weeks as holiday business increases. These views contributed to the excess of speculative enthusiasm, while expectations of extra dividends at important meetings late this month and in November added to the demand for stocks.

Exchange Market Mixed.

"The commodity and foreign exchange markets were free from the speculative influences which kept securities higher. The volume of business in these centers was confined to the usual half-holiday settling of accounts, and fluctuations were comparatively narrow. Sterling held steady, but showed no signs of recovery despite the heavy shipments of gold to this country. Selling again came into French francs and depressed the rate on Paris somewhat. Belgian francs and lire sagged slightly. Scandinavian exchanges were lower. Cotton prices were rather steady and rallied somewhat in response to improved demand from abroad. Grain prices, however, showed a tendency to sag.

Clearing House Reports.

"The Clearing House statement for the week reflected the heavier demand for funds for trading purposes, the surplus falling $10,024,840, leaving an excess reserve of $10,429,950. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $31,873,000."

WEEK ON CURB MUCH LIKE TRADE ON BIG BOARD

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Buying of stocks was renewed with increased vigor on the curb market today and many quotations were lifted to new high levels early in the session. Ticker facilities were unable to record the dealings as the sales were consummated. Lehigh Power securities reported an early gain of 8 points but later lost half of this advance.

The features in the oil division were noted in early strength in Vacuum oil and Mountain Producers.

In the last hour there was a marked reversal in tone and urgent selling had an unsettling effect in a large number of the more prominent issues. This selling made its appearance first in the petroleum group in which sharp declines of 1 or more points were sustained particularly in the Standard oil stocks.

Bullish activities gained increased force and broadened to a considerable extent during the week. Many issues made new high records and a large number of important stocks fluctuated over a wide range, some showing violent reactions after high levels were established. The high priced stocks in the industrial list again became prominent. Ford Motor of Canada moved up 90 points to 690 and National Tea rose 49 points to 600. Both those issues, however, were in supply in the past two days at material recessions. Victor Talking Machine which sold as high as 117 in the first half of the week dropped to 97. Libbey Owens Sheet Glass ranged from 192 to 209⅝. Bordens Milk made a new high record in a sharp upward movement yesterday. Goodyear Tire also made a new high record on an advance of nearly five points to 48½. Curtiss Aero was among the record breakers being in special demand.

Public utilities quieted down for a time during the week but later became strong. American Light and Traction made a new high record and there was a sharp advance in Carolina Power from 405 to 419. Mississippi River Power made a high record on an advance from 107 to 114¾. Nevada California Electric moved up over 20 points to 58 but lost a good part of its gain on profit taking.

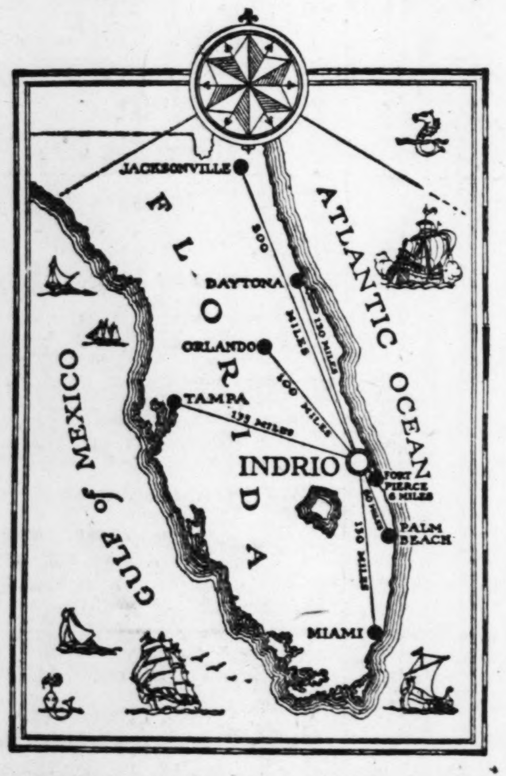
Proposed plaza on the Dixie Highway, which in Indrio will be a magnificent boulevard 150 feet in width. Set with tropical foliage and dripping fountains, this spacious plaza will be but one of many similar beauty spots in lovely Indrio.

Rigid Restrictions to Protect INDRIO

Assuring a community of beautiful homes and desirable citizens



Florida's Finest Townsite

Indrio lies 60 miles north of Palm Beach on the Dixie Highway and Florida East Coast Railway. It is superbly situated on the Indian River, a stretch of shimmering sea water separated from the Atlantic only by a narrow strip of tropical jungle land.

Game fish abound in these nearby waters and wild fowl are plentiful in season. Sandy beaches and a rolling surf invite the bather. In summer cool breezes sweep in from the sea, while winter days are made balmy by the genial Gulf Stream. 72 degrees is the average annual temperature.

Surrounding Indrio is the richest fruit raising and truck farming land in all Florida. 80% of Florida's citrus fruit is grown within a radius of 150 miles. Adjoining the town are Fort Pierce Farms, famous for their productive, profitable groves.

THE planners of Indrio have visioned a town of alluring beauty, peopled by congenial citizens and set with enchanting homes. To insure the fulfillment of this dream, three very necessary restrictions have been decided upon.

First, that architectural harmony shall prevail throughout. This has been assured by the adoption of the very appropriate Mediterranean style of architecture as standard, and the fact that every home and business building must have the approval of the city planners before erection.

Second, that the entire town shall be carefully zoned, making it impossible for business structures to encroach on residences. Thus certain portions of Indrio will be sacred to homes, while others will be devoted solely to business.

Third, that no lot shall be sold to other than a member of the Caucasian race, and that care shall be exercised to sell only to those of refinement.

These restrictions are insisted upon for your protection. They are your assurance that your home will be surrounded by others of equal charm, and that your neighbors will be persons with whom you will delight to associate.

RAMACCIOTTI SCORES AFTER 67-YARD RUN

O'Reilly Also Plays Brilliantly, Directing Team's Attack and Running 55 Yards for Touchdown.

By John H. Alexander

Under ordinary conditions the 33-to-7 victory of St. Louis Uni- ersity over Drury yesterday would ave looked impressive, as the Bil- ikens showed plenty of driving ower and a stonewall defense; but, laced alongside the Army's tan- ing of Notre Dame, the first riumph of the season for the blue d white appears ordinary. Next aturday St. Louis plays Army at est Point Stadium.

The Panthers were no mean foe, eing exceptionally heavy; but hey were outclassed from all ngles by Savage's men. Their of- ense was completely checkmated nd two first downs was all they ained by rushing, while St. Louis made fifteen. Defensively, they ere ineffective except for two nstances when they held the locals or downs within the shadow of he goal.

There was never any doubt as o the outcome of the game. Capt. Ramacciotti, inside of five minutes, hrew a scare into the visitors by eeling off a 67-yard run around nd for the first touchdown. He d good interference at the start the dash but made the bulk of e run unaided, straight-arming lf a dozen tacklers with his old ime adeptness.

O'Reilly Stars at Quarter.

O'Reilly, playing a fine game at uarter, started off the second pe- riod with a 55-yard run for the econd touchdown, after receiving Mehrle's punt. It was the high ight of one of the best days in he diminutive back's career.

O'Reilly directed the team with cellent judgment for the entire me and did more than his share f ground gaining. In view of his 155 pounds, his many successful plunges through center, in the course of the contest, were espe- cially noteworthy. In addition to hese duties, he held down the kicking and passing assignments, etting fine distance on his punts n spite of a muddy ball, and com- pleting several long forward passes.

Jordan, a first year man, played at halfback and looked like a coming star. He is understudying O'Reilly at quarter and will no doubt succeed to this berth next season.

Particularly pleasing to Coach Savage was the offensive and de- fensive work of the green material in the line. Ryan, Torres, Stampfli, Blum and McCarthy were the new en, filling the vacancies left by he loss of Joe Higi and the trans- fer of Crecelius to the backfield. On these men will fall the burden of stopping the plunges of the Ar- my backs next week.

Forward Passes Yield Touchdowns

Following the long runs for scores by Ramacciotti and O'Reilly, the Billikens scored again in the third quarter when Dow fumbled O'Reilly's punt at midfield. Ram- acciotti gained 20 yards through ackle and then received a long s from O'Reilly on the 10-yard ne from where he sprinted over the goal line.

Before the half ended Kapl and O'Reilly advanced the ball to with- in 12 yards of the goal posts, but were held for downs.

The third quarter was marked by a fine exhibition of straight foot- ball on the part of the Billikens, who, after an extended punting duel, started on their 35-yard line and, by a series of plunges by Jordan, O'Reilly and Ramacciotti, again put the ball on Drury's 12-yard line at the end of the period. On the initial play of the fourth quarter, O'Reilly heaved a pass over the goal line to Kahle for the fourth touchdown.

Drury's only score came in this period, when O'Reilly, juggling a bad snapback behind his goal line, punted badly, the visitors recover- ing on the four-yard line. It took only two plunges for Mehrle to ore.

RAMACCIOTTI SCORES AFTER 67-YARD RUN

O'Reilly Also Plays Brilliantly, Directing Team's Attack and Running 55 Yards for Touchdown.

By John H. Alexander

Under ordinary conditions the 5-to-7 victory of St. Louis University over Drury yesterday would ave looked impressive, as the Billikens showed plenty of driving ower and a stonewall defense; but, laced alongside the Army's tanning of Notre Dame, the first iumph of the season for the blue d white appears ordinary. Next aturday St. Louis plays Army at West Point Stadium.

The Panthers were no mean foe, being exceptionally heavy; but they were outclassed from all angles by Savage's men. Their offense was completely checkmated and two first downs was all they gained by rushing, while St. Louis made fifteen. Defensively, they were ineffective except for two instances when they held the locals for downs within the shadow of the goal.

There was never any doubt as to the outcome of the game. Capt. Ramacciotti, inside of five minutes, threw a scare into the visitors by eeling off a 67-yard run around d for the first touchdown. He d good interference at the start the dash but made the bulk of run unaided, straight-arming lf a dozen tacklers with his old ne adeptness.

Curley Boots Two in Third Period of Game With Northwestern.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 17.—Chicago defeated Northwestern 6 to 0 today before a crowd of 35,000 that saw Robert Curley, diminutive Maroon quarterback boot two field goals from the 22 and 37-yard lines in the third period.

Chicago barely missed a touchdown in the final period when McCarty took the ball to the one-foot line as the contest ended.

"Moon" Baker, Northwestern ace was injured in the first period and assisted from the field. The Purple could not penetrate the Chicago line and most of their passes were incomplete.

Oklahoma and Kansas Aggies Win Missouri Valley Games

Sooners Upset Drake, 7—0, Scoring Only Touchdown in First Period—Blocked Punts Enable Manhattan Eleven to Down Kansas, 14 to 7.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 17.—The Oklahoma Sooners downed the invading Drake Bulldogs by a score of 7 to 0 here this afternoon, taking the lead early in the first quarter after they had marched down the field from their 40-yard line for a touchdown. The Owen tribe was never in danger.

Oklahoma's only touchdown was made by Lamb, fullback, on a 20-yard plunge over right tackle, Captain Brockman adding the extra point.

Drake's heralded forward passing combination was paralyzed by the Sooner backs, five of the Bulldog flips being intercepted. Two Drake passes were completed for a gain of 60 yards. Cook, in the last quarter, passed to Spears for 54 yards, the most sensational gain of the battle. Oklahoma attempted only five forward passes, four of them being completed for a gain of 12 yards.

The Sooners made seven first downs in scrimmage to six by Drake.

FUMBLES HELP AGGIES DEFEAT KANSAS, 14 TO 7

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 17. —The Kansas Aggies took their second straight victory in two years over the University of Kansas football team this afternoon, 14 to 7. Prior to last year the Aggies had not beaten Kansas except back in 1906.

The Wildcats blocked two Jayhawker punts which had much bearing on the Aggie rush to touchdowns in the first and third quarters.

Statistics show Kansas made 10 first downs to the Aggies' six, but the Aggies held a slight margin in yards gained from scrimmage.

After five minutes of play, Cochrane punted to Hamilton on the Kansas 4-yard line. The Kansas quarterback fumbled and Captain McGee of the Aggies recovered. Holsinger plunged over on the first play and McGee kicked goal.

That was all the scoring until the third quarter. Again the Aggies blocked Wellman's punt and recovered the ball on the Kansas 44-yard line. Two attempts at the line netted nothing and then Holsinger flipped a forward pass of 20 yards to Price and he outraced two Kansas men for the remaining 24 yards to the goal line. McGee again kicked goal.

The Kansas score came with but two minutes left to play in the fourth period. Cloud, who had substituted at center for Davidson of K. U. intercepted an Aggie forward pass on the Kansas 47-yard line and raced to the Aggie 15-yard line before caught. Mackie, K. U. fullback, punched the line four times and carried it to a first down on the 4-yard line. Wall plunged over and kicked goal.

Army Runs Over Notre Dame Eleven, Winning, 27 to 0; Wilson and Hewitt Shine

Victory for West Point Is First Over Rockne's Men Since 1916—65,000 Persons See National Champions of 1924 Go Down to Defeat.

By Knute Rockne,
Coach of Notre Dame.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The best Army football team I have seen since the world war met the greenest and youngest of all Notre Dame teams and the result was an overwhelming 27 to 0 defeat for us at the Yankee stadium before 65,000 persons this afternoon.

Following on the heels of Notre Dame's unbeaten varsity of 1924, the boys who faced West Point today looked weak and helpless by comparison. But those lads are not discouraged and neither is their coach. Before the game, I was interviewed and stated that our chances against West Point were slim. Because we had easily romped away from our early season rivals, my advance comment on the Notre Dame-Army game was taken with reservations. Some of the folks figured I was putting out a "gloom screen." Today's score proves I was not.

There was no gloom before the game and there is no gloom now. The boys gave everything they had —but they lacked the prime essential for victory—and that's experience.

They were simply outclassed.

Army Has Great Team.

But let me say this—I am perfectly well satisfied with their work. What they learned will do them more good than all I teach them on the South Bend campus. The trouble with beginners in football is that they forget what they learn during practice. But what they learn in a tough contest, like the West Point game, they never forget.

West Point is entitled to boast of a hard-charging, alert and well coached eleven. They took advantage of every mistake made by Notre Dame. That's where breaks count. The team that makes the most of the other fellow's blunders is the team that gets the "breaks" —and it deserves them.

We had several opportunities to score when the boys got loose with splendid passes. A more confident team would have continued the march, but my youngsters were unable to follow up the advantage. I cannot help but admit that Army outplayed Notre Dame from whistle to whistle. Our boys battled just as hard and just as long as West Point, but they made too many mistakes. They learned a lot of football before the sun went down.

Showed Versatile Attack.

Veterans like Wilson, Hewitt and Sprague knew too much about the grand old game for my beginners. And what they showed was something to admire. Baxter, Army's captain, is a whale of an end, and smashed everything that came his way. The center trio in the Army line is a very strong combination, and Harding at quarterback used excellent judgment throughout the game.

I saw the most versatile attack ever uncovered by a West Point team, and that answers the question put by a newspaper man, "What was Army's strongest weapon?" The play that seemed most effective against us was an off-tackle smash by Hewlitt and a cutback by Wilson. Their only weakness was against certain kinds of forward passing.

We lost by two more touchdowns than I expected before game time, but we were thoroughly outplayed and there is not an alibi in the world. We used 30 players, and, with the exception of Edwards, quarterback, all came through in good shape. Edwards received a

BOTH TEAMS STOPPED BY HEAVY FIELD

Numerous Opportunities to Score Lost Because of Muddy Ball — Neither Team Has Punch in Pinch

By J. Walter Goldstein

When two evenly matched, fighting football elevens mix, there isn't likely to be much scoring. And when the contention of such a struggle is a heavy, mud-jacketed football on a soggy, water-logged gridiron, there's not likely to be any scoring at all. That is just what happened yesterday afternoon on Francis Field when the Washington University and Oklahoma A. and M. teams battled, but without avail.

The game, although unattended by any scoring was a colorful one, with frequent brilliant plays and a number of scoring opportunities. However, neither eleven was able to assemble enough of a punch to offset the combination of stiff opposition and discouraging playing conditions.

Probably the most impressive feature of the gruelling contest was the thorough, workmanlike manner in which the players executed their plays with a tricky ball and on insecure footing. Fumbles were few, the kicking was always adequate and Washington, especially, showed an ability to flip forward passes adeptly.

Visiting Backs Powerful.

It was this passing attack that really kept the Pikers in the running, because the visitors certainly showed greater strength in ramming their way through the line. End running, of course, was pretty much out of the question. The Aggies smashed their way through the local forward defense for 101 yards and were able to make seven of their eight first downs through this medium. Higgins' men, on the other hand, gained just half of this yardage on running attack and can thank the aerial route for 66 yards and four of their six first downs.

The difference in the results of straight football attack was due more to a difference in backfields than in line play. The two sets of forwards battled pretty evenly. Both were charging low and fiercely, blocking in the best accepted manner and tackling with precision. However, the Piker backs seemed to lack power. The average weight of the new Green backfield is less than 160 pounds, and these striplings just didn't have the power to crash their way through the mountain of men before them. The Aggie ball carriers, however, seemed to charge into the mass and rip their way through. The impotency of the Washington thrust was so obvious in the first half that Capt. Levy, who was transferred from fullback to the line only a week ago, was sent back to his former position to lend some much needed beef.

Aggies Nearly Score.

The closest either eleven came to a score was during the final period. The Aggies had just completed their only successful pass, a heave from Perry to Bowman, that had carried the ball from Washington's 40-yard to its 16-yard line. Here two line efforts and a pass failed. Then Halfback McCoy dropped back for an attempted place kick. The pass was true, McCoy studied a moment and then sent his right foot crashing into the ball. On it went, looking for all the world like three tale-telling points and giving 4000 Piker rooters a chill; but it crossed the goal line just about two feet to the left of the standards, although cross-bar high.

The rural visitors kept play in the Green territory the remainder of the game, but never closer than the 40-yard mark. Three times they essayed aerial invasions, but the locals were wary enough to bat them down and each time the trusty toe of Charley Levy sent the ball scurrying back out of danger land.

Washington Line Holds.

YALE AND HARVARD BEATEN, PRINCETON HELD TO A TI

Penn's Early Lead Causes Eli's First Defeat in 3 Years

Blue's Final Rush Fails to Overcome Handicap — Holy Cross Beats Crimson, 7-6— Navy 10, Tigers 10.

Yale, Harvard and Princeton, the "Big Three" of football, suffered one of their worst days in their history yesterday, with two of the big elevens suffering defeat and the other being held to a tie. Pennsylvania trounced Yale, 16 to 13, Holy Cross nosed out Harvard, 7 to 6, and Princeton, the only Big Three team to escape defeat, was held to a 10 to 10 tie by the Navy.

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 17.—After 32 years Pennsylvania and Yale returned to an old feud today and Pennsylvania won 16 to 13. It was a brilliant victory over a team that had been unbeaten in three seasons. Al Kruez, Pennsylvania's left-toe marvel, proved himself to be one of the East's most dangerous backs.

Pennsylvania was the first to score, gaining the ball in the first period through a penalty on its own 36-yard line. Kruez smashed down the Yale right tackle to carry over him for seven yards. Immediately Clarence Fields picked up the attack and turned his way to Yale's 26-yard line. Twice Kruez shot into the mass of Blue and the ball was six yards from the Yale posts.

Yale's linemen hurtled into the next play to halt Rogers, but Kruez struggled along three yards more from which point Leith crossed the line.

Kruez Scores Again.

Yale braced and taking its ball on the 20-yard line after a touchback, obtained a first down in three plunges. Jerry Wadsworth raced 35 yards, but here the offensive ended and Wadsworth failed at a drop kick from his 40-yard line.

In the second period, with a clear field ahead, Bunnell of Yale muffed a forward pass and Noble kicked out of trouble only to have Rogers dodge his way down the field far into Yale territory. A forward pass, Rogers to Leith, put the ball on Yale's 10-yard line and again the Bull Dog was at bay. Kruez in two plays covered eight yards and scored the second touchdown, Rogers sandwiching a 3-yard gain.

Early in the third period Yale attacked fiercely, Bunnell being spilled at his 28-yard line after the kick off. Cutler dove at the center of the line and fumbled. Pike, Penn tackle, recovering the ball. Yale held, but after two plays Kruez kicked an easy field goal from 36 yards away.

The Yale spirit, however, survived. After an exchange of punts the Blue found itself with the ball at Pennsylvania's 38-yard line and Cottle, running hard and low, gained 18 yards. But at last it was fourth down with six yards to go. Bunnell passed to Cottle and made the distance. Two smashes took Cutler over. Butterworth missed the goal.

Allen Goes Over.

Pass after pass came from the Yale backs as the game neared its end. It was a desperate effort, but finally Noble shot to Fishwick, a quarterback, who had replaced Bunnell, and he raced to within two yards of a score to have Allen drive over on the next play. Allen kicked the goal, but it was too late for further endeavors.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 17.—Although outplayed by its powerful opponent during most of the game, Princeton playsed the Navy to a 10-10 tie before 50,000 spectators in the huge Baltimore stadium today. A stubborn defense in the shadow of its own goal line was all that saved the sons of Old Nassau from feeling the hooks of the Navy anchor.

The Tiger held the upper hand during most of the game, however, the navy tying the count in the last five minutes of play on a short forward pass from Hamilton which Shapley carried 35 yards for a touchdown.

The Tiger punctured the scoring column early. After having its offense stopped almost to a standstill on the opening charge, Ewing, the Tiger field general, stepped back to the 42-yard line and booted a field goal which struck the crossbar and bounded over the goal, giving the Tigers a lead in the first five minutes of play. But this lead was soon diminished by the Middies when Hamilton executed a similar goal from the 26-yard line later in the quarter.

Then the break went against the Navy. With the ball on the Princeton 24-yard line and two minutes to play in the second period, Hamilton attempted a pass. Shapley almost got his hands on it but it caromed off his fingers into the waiting arms of Caulkins, who dashed up the field 88 yards to the Navy two-yard line before he was dropped from behind. Bridges carried it over the line on the first charge and the Princeton scoring terminated for the day. Just previous to this play Slagle ran 13 yards for a touchdown, but an overzealous Princeton lineman had started ahead of the ball and it was called back and the Tiger penalized five yards for off-side play. This was the only break of the game which went against Princeton.

Shapley and Hamilton carried the major burden of the Navy offense, while Ewing and Slagle were the outstanding performers for the Tiger.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 17.—Harvard's plunging backfield was ineffective against a stone wall purple line today and Holy Cross defeated the Crimson 7 to 6. Each team scored in the second period and the winning margin was Crowley's successful kick for the extra point. A passing machine which failed to work kept Harvard from scoring in the final period.

Missouri Trims Miners, 32 to 0

Regulars Score Two Touchdowns and Substitutes Add Three More to Total.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 17.—After the regulars had spent a trifle over a quarter of the game in scoring two touchdowns on the Missouri Miners here this afternoon Coach Gwynn Henry sent in a flock of University of Missouri substitutes to account for three more touchdowns to bring the point score to 32 to 0 in favor of the Tigers. The game was played upon a rain soaked field, but with the skies fair. The heavy condition of the turf, however, did not stop the fleet Bengal backfield, Clark, Grantello, Flammank and Windle piling up a total of 244 yards in scrimmage.

Doss Richerson and Bill Windle, doing the Missouri punting in the absence of Studebaker, also acquitted themselves well, their boots averaging well over 30 yards, despite the weight of a muddy ball and the slippery footing.

The game which was given over mainly to the Bengal substitutes, uncovered some able backfield material in Flammank, Windle and Grantello. The first two named were in 'varsity competition for the first time, while Grantell had played but one down against Tulane.

bad blow in an opening play and wasn't right at any time after that.

Has a Good Team.

If there are any Notre Dame friends around the country, who are inclined to be forlorn—just put this in your notebook: "Notre Dame has a good team and will prove it in the next few weeks." By the end of the present season Notre Dame will improve a hundred per cent!

Army got under way in the second period. After a poor punt had given the eleven possession of the ball on the Notre Dame 37-yard line, Wilson and Hewitt smashed to first down. Hewitt then plunged 16 yards to the 8-yard line and Wilson went over and kicked the extra point from placement. Another drive started following an intercepted pass, and it did not end until after Army had scored, a forward pass Harding to Baxter, netting the touchdown.

In the final period, Saunders blocked a Notre Dame punt and raced to the 2-yard line. Hewitt went over on the first plunge and Wilson kicked for the extra point. Sprague, tackle, intercepted a forward pass and raced 35 yards for the final touchdown. Schleiffer drop kicked the extra point.

eleven came to a score, aside from this thrust, was in the second quarter, when a series of delayed bucks, most of them between tackles and ends, advanced the ball 28 yards to Washington's 24-yard line. Here, however, the Hilltoppers braced and took the ball on downs. Oklahoma made several other imposing marches, but all of them were far enough from scoring territory to lack real consequence. The outstanding force of these invasions was a chap named Ranson Bowman, playing his first year as halfback on the eleven. Ranson is half Pawnee Indian, but to the 11 Pikers who tried to stop him, he appeared to be a whole tribe of Comanches out looking for scalps. It usually took two or three to stop him and if his gains yarded were figured it would probably be half of the Aggies' total.

Bowman's running was rather reminiscent of Johnny Maulbetsch, his coach, who sat on the sidelines, probably smiling approval of his charge's ability. Maulbetsch is the former Michigan star, terror of the West a dozen years ago, who used to ramble through opposing lines while running with one hand touching the ground. It is said that Johnny became adept at low running by practicing his runs under tables. Bowman seems to have the same idea, even if his practice methods are not as picturesque.

Pikers' Best Chances.

Whereas the Aggies had but two scoring opportunities the Pikers had three golden chances to break the deadlock. The first advance came in the second period, just before its close. The red-jerseyed men had been forced to kick from behind their goal line after a 25-yard penalty for clipping had put their backs to the wall. Hayes, who received the punt, was downed on the 14-yard line. Then came a two-yard buck, followed by a 13-yard pass, Levy to Mahan. This pass was a beauty and caught the opposition flat-footed. Mahan dashed through the line and then cut over to the sideline, with hardly an Aggie in calling distance. The pass was in his arms, but a secondary defense man cut him down before he could get farther than the nine-yard line.

The next play was a pass, but it fell into the waiting arms of an Aggie behind the goal. Many spectators thought that this meant a safety for Washington, since an opponent had been tackled behind his line in possession of the ball; but it was only a touchback, and the Oklahomans played out from their 20-yard line.

Levy Has a Chance.

In the next quarter, Levy, now moved from tackle to full, intercepted a pass on his 35-yard line and rambled downfield for 23 yards. It looked for a while like Charley was off for a touchdown, and he might have had one had he run his course differently. Three Pikers were quick to form a triangle guard for him, but he cut into the field rather than out, lost his interferers and an Aggie stopped his progress.

The play put real snap into the Green gridders and they started smashing the visiting forward wall for telling gains. Six bucks, with Levy and Mahan featuring, ripped through for 20 yards and a new offense was initiated just 21 yards from the promised land. Here a tackle play and a pass went awry and Levy dropped back for a place kick trial. His effort was feeble and that scoring chance became but a memory.

The final opening came at the start of the fourth session. Play began with Washington in possession on the Aggie 34-yard line. A pass from Mahan zipped across the line of scrimmage, Hennessy came in on a run, dived and caught it; but then the ball slipped from his clutching fingers. He had held the pass momentarily, so it was ruled as a completed one. An Aggie recovered the fumble and with his recovery, Washington as an attacking force was through for the day. The visitors then started activities which culminated in the unsuccessful place kick and the frenzied but faulty efforts to gain through the air.

Hayes Shines at Quarter.

There were several outstanding Pikers on the field yesterday. Levy, of course, was always in the thick of the melee and the "25" on his jersey stood out prominently at all times. In Hayes, Higgins seems to have found the best all-round quarterback that has graced Francis Field since the days of Conzelman. This lad is a flying dervish on punt returns, shows a heady generalship and knows what to do when running in the advance guard. Both Miller and Sturbois were crashing through from their tackle positions time and again. Miller's showing was especially pleasing, since he had heretofore been an understudy. He was finally taken from the game, because of a tendency to be off side. That, however, is a natural reaction to over-anxiety when under fire for the first time.

It has been often said that Washington will not show its running attack power until it gets an opportunity to play on a dry field. The principle of its offense is split plays with multiple handling of the ball and quick cut-ins, close to the line. Anyone acquainted with football tactics would know that yesterday's game and the two preceding ones did not offer the local players opportunity to exploit such a type of play.

Rice Beats Arkansas.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 17.—Flashing its much-vaunted aerial attack in the third and fourth periods of today's football game, Rice Institute emerged victorious over the Arkansas University Razorbacks with the long end of a 13-to-9 score. Rice was forced to fight uphill until the last three minutes of play, when the forward passing game brought them their second touchdown of the half.

OWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 17.—Out e the West begins a new star n a gridiron career today that led Iowa to vanquish Illinois, 10, in a dramatic finish that r has been equaled in Western ference football history.

Grange Breaks Loose.

n the first 10 seconds of play, "Red" Grange of Illinois, hing the form that made him nation's outstanding football in 1924, scooped up the ball on opening kick-off and raced 80 for a touchdown before the founded spectators knew what happened. Kutsch a Real Threat.

he game revealed that Grange is the Grange of old, despite showing in the Nebraska con- two weeks ago. He played of the greatest games of his tional career, both defensive- and offensively.

he famous red-head carried the ll 31 times for a total of 258 ds, once breaking away for 25 ds and two runs of 20 yards h, in addition to his 80-yard h. He hurled two passes for a al of 24 yards and figured in perate tackling in stopping utsch and Fry, the swift-charg- fullback.

utsch, regarded by Iowa admir- as a rival of Grange, revealed elf as one of the outstanding s of the game. The Sioux City ster, built along the lines of k Dempsey, but much shorter, able to do most anything ded on the football field.

"Cowboy Nick" himself achieved of Iowa's points, booting two d goals, both at difficult angles, m the 25-yard line and scoring only touchdown for his team.

addition he did practically all the passing for the Hawkeyes, owing three that netted a total 50 yards. He carried the ball times for an aggregate of 113 rds and was thrown for losses 13 yards.

llinois for two periods was just ordinary football team and was charged and was outplayed by Hawkeyes.

At the start of the third period, Illini became the "fighting" with Grange leading the at- k and set a whirlwind pace that ingly put the game on ice. rushed the ball twice to with- striking distance of the Iowa l, enabling Britton to make two mpts at field goals, once from 47-yard line and another from 31-yard mark. Both failed, ver, but he managed to score the aerial route at the start of fourth period. He sent the l sailing between the uprights m the 31-yard line, giving Illinois the edge with the score 10 to 6 in its favor.

Penalty Hurts Illinois.

The break resulting in Illinois' defeat came a few seconds after Britton scored his field goal. The Hawkeyes, realizing that they were near defeat, surrendered the ball when Graham punted to Illinois' 34-yard line. The ball was called back and Illinois penalized 15 yards for roughing the kicker. This gave Iowa a first down, filled the team with renewed energy and with Fry and Kutsch slashing through the line swept on to the touchdown that gave them the victory.

Three-Cushion League to Open Season Oct. 26

Layton and Allen Hall in Competition—Schaefer- Horemans Dates Announced.

Young Jake Schaefer of Chicago, world's 18.2 balkline champion, will defend his title against Edouard Horemans, the Belgian star, in a 1500-point match, in the Windy City, Nov. 30, Dec. 1 and 2. This will be the first activity of the season in the 18.2 game. It will be the first title match for Schaefer since he dethroned Willie Hoppe in the tournament held last winter.

Schaefer is not taking his engagement with Horemans lightly. Schaefer is already practicing, being on an exhibition tour with Willie Hoppe as his partner. That should help him get into top condition for the championship match. Schaefer and Hoppe are booked to give exhibitions in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan for the remainder of the month.

Horemans also is on an exhibition tour. His partner is Marcel Van Leemput, a recent arrival in this country. Van Leemput, who comes from Antwerp, is but 19 years of age, but has shown promise as a balkline player. Recently at the Hoppe parlor in New York he had a high run of 264, no mean feat. Horemans, who is responsible for his coming to America, predicts a bright future for the young Belgian.

Angle League Stars.

The National Three-Cushion League is scheduled to start its season with matches Oct. 26. Last season 12 players were in the circuit, but this year there will be but six. Two angle stars formerly of St. Louis will compete. They are Allen Hall, former local amateur champion and later holder of the Western amateur title. Hall finished last season on place of Pierre Maupome, representing Chicago, and will again play for the Windy City.

The other is Johnny Layton, who until the middle of last year, represented St. Louis in the circuit. Layton will play for Milwaukee.

The other entrants are Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia; Pierre Maupome, Cleveland; Gus Copulos, Detroit, and Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago.

Bob Cannefax, present holder of the world's title, is not eligible, having been suspended by the powers that be in billiards following the episode in his last special match with Hoppe, in which he ripped the cloth of the table with his pocket-knife.

Correct Bowling Start Made 12 Feet From the Foul Line

NO. 4 — HOW TO BOWL.

By Jimmy Smith,
World's Greatest Bowler.

IN my last article I gave you valuable pointers gained from long experience about selecting a bowling ball suitable to your requirements, and the equally important matter of footwear. I hope you have adopted these suggestions.

Today, we take preliminary steps in starting to bowl—position, delivery of the ball and use of the hands and feet. These are the most essential features to good bowling: Perfect co-ordination of feet and hands with the brain.

Now, taking the ball from the rack, the proper place to stand is not over 12 feet from the foul line and with the right foot in line with the righthand gutter. Face the alley squarely, feet together. Hold the ball in the right hand in front of the body and steady it with the left. The shoulders should be stooped slightly forward and the arms at nearly full length which will bring the ball at a point slightly below the waist.

You are now ready for the swing and advance. Be very sure you remember to start with the left foot; never under any conditions with the right. This is one of the hardest things to impress upon the mind of the beginner. Take four steps forward or rather, three, the fourth being more of a short slide with right foot which serves to check your momentum at the foul line. I have seen many bowlers who start as though this was to be a hundred yard dash. Cut out the dance steps and don't fox-trot to the foul line.

All ready, now! As you start forward in almost a direct line with the right gutter, lift the ball forward and up, at the same time advancing your left foot and balancing yourself with your left arm extended to the left of the body. As you start your second step forward let the ball, which has now reached to the top of its swing in front, drop downward and backward, using your arm like a pendulum.

As you start your next step the ball will be reaching the top of its swing at the back and as you finish the advance with your left foot forward (the right acting as a brake at the back) let the ball swing down and forward and leave your hand at the foul line. This, of course, is all done in a smooth continuous movement which you will acquire with practice and do unconsciously.

Never swing the ball above your head. Shoulder high in front and behind is plenty and at your start and finish at the foul line your shoulders will be stooped and bent forward. If you have ever seen me on the alleys you will have noticed I have a very low crouch. This helps to steady me and aids in control of the muscles.

Pick Spot on Alley.

When I first began to bowl I swung the ball high above my head, thinking I needed a terrific swing to get proper speed. Such is not the case and furthermore in these days of highly polished, well-kept alleys, speed is passe. I shall deal with this feature in a special article later.

To proceed. As you stop at the foul line, your left foot, under normal conditions, should be about eight inches from the foul line and right hand gutter, so that the ball can easily be started on its course from a spot about four inches from the edge of the alley. Sometimes, if the alley is fast or slow, it may be necessary to move in toward the center or closer to the edge.

An alley bed is made up of 40 odd strips of maple laid edge to edge. These strips vary in color, some being lighter than others. In bowling it is a good plan to notice these strips closely and when you have found the one on which you are going to start your ball to obtain the best results remember it. All good bowlers do this and it helps them wonderfully.

All I am going to ask you to do today is to study and practice faithfully these directions. It will take plenty of practice, lots of patience and good nature.

In the next article I will give the good points of bowlers I have met.

K. OF C. SCRATCH TOURNEY WILL BE HELD NEXT MONTH

At a meeting held last week at the Knights of Columbus Hall, arrangements were completed for the holding of the first city tournament of the St. Louis Knights of Columbus Bowling Association on the Washington Alleys, Nov. 22, 28 and 29.

In announcing the affair, President Thomas P. Carroll states that it will be a scratch tournament, with the competition limited to five-man teams. The entry fee will be $5 a team, entries closing Nov 14. All prize money will be distributed under the Good-Fellowship plan, the same as prevailed in the national K. of C. tournaye held here last season, and which gives lower-average teams an equal chance to win along with the more experienced bowlers.

President Carroll and other tournament officials, Secretary Eddie Held and Treasurer Lou Hoffman, want all local councils to enter.

There are 110 teams rolling in league play among the different councils.

Roosevelt High Swamps Sparta Score, 34 to 0

South Side Eleven Appears Powerful Candidate for City School Title.

The experienced Roosevelt eleven swamped Sparta (Ill.) High School, 34 to 0, in a practice football game at Cleveland High yesterday. Three touchdowns by Robert Bodge, Roosevelt half, all in the third quarter, was the feature of the contest. The South Siders showed a powerful team, one that will make a strong try for the City School championship.

The Illinois team was completely outclassed from the start of the game. Early in the play Roosevelt put the ball in a scoring position, but the team could not penetrate the Sparta line until the third attempt, when Willmarth slipped off end for the first points. Bodge failed to kick goal. Playing a purely defensive game, Sparta made its only first down late in the last period, when the East Siders were opposed by the Roosevelt subs.

The open field running by Jarrett, Roosevelt half, was excellent, the little player frequently eluding would-be tacklers for long gains. Capt. Willmarth proved a consistent ground gainer, although the stellar quarterback was not long in the fray.

The lineups and summary:

Roosevelt.	Position.	Sparta.

Ratican's Club Faces Real Test In Game Today

Vespers Hard to Stop—Millers to Show Stronger Lineup.

The Ben Miller team will take on something of the semblance of a champion eleven when it lines up against the Wellstons this afternoon in the St. Louis Soccer League double-header. George "Beno" Bollam, Syl Curran and Bennie Nash, all forwards, have signed with Manager Foley and will get into the game today. They had been numbered among the holdouts, players dissatisfied with the provisions of the new contract.

Tom Erbe and the Dunn brothers, Jimmy and Ebbie, have not yet signed. Leo "Pewee" Fitzgerald, who has retired from soccer to save his legs for more profitable employment as a baseball player, and Tommy White, halfback, whose leg was broken in the final game with Boston last season, are still missing from Foley's squad.

Harry Ratican's club, victors over the Wellstons in the opening game of the season, last Sunday, come back today against the Vespers. The question provided here is whether the Ratican fullbacks can withstand the Vesper attack, which is potent, not because of superlative forwards, but because of the persistent feeding by the halfbacks, who keep the forwards always in possession of the ball. La Beaume, who starred at goal for Ratican last Sunday, will get a real test today.

Robert "Ribby" Murphy will be the referee today. John Cradock, who officiated last Sunday, will serve as linesman with Charlie Carey. The first game is scheduled to start at 2:15.

Place Kick by Cameron Wins For Central 3-0

Only Points in Game With Principia Come in Third Period.

A place kick by Fullback Cameron from the 12-yard line in the third period, enabled Central High School to defeat Principia, 3 to 0, at Principia Field yesterday. The lone points came after two forward passes had put Central within scoring distance. Just previous to this spurt, Cameron had missed a place kick from the 35-yard mark.

Principia carried the ball to the Central 5-yard line in the opening period, but a forward pass from Dailey to Deal, failed. In the second, after Central had worked the ball to the 8-yard mark, a forward pass was intercepted by Green.

The lineups and summary:

WRAY'S COLUMN

They Never Learn.

AT Forbes Field, Pittsburg, 6000 temporary seats were added to the seating capacity for the world's series. Their intrusion on the playing field almost ruined the series. They certainly marred the play in many respects and cast a doubt as to what the result might have been had the fielders been able to roam freely.

Year after year this happens, outside of New York, where the stands are sufficiently large. Yet magnates and the "high commissioner" seem not to profit by the experience.

Championship baseball should at all times be played under championship conditions. This goes for the regular season's games as well as for the world's series. At no time should bleachers or spectators be permitted to encroach on the field and hamper the players, or necessitate ground rules.

The public pays its money and should receive in return baseball played under championship conditions. Anything less is short-changing the fans.

Time to Come Down.

AGAIN the world's series turned out to be a "million-dollar" affair. That's because the prices have been gradually growing as well as the seating capacities of the parks. The total is swelled by an increasing number of box and high-priced seats.

The big pot is being cut up in many ways and large sums come out for each party. Players who figure no closer to the world's series than fourth place share in the "divvy." The players, despite the fact that eight teams share in a portion of the pot, are paid so much money that there is a difference of $2000 per man when a Peckinpaugh makes an error that loses a deciding game.

Isn't it about time that the PUBLIC be declared in on this pot by a reduction of prices?

The Old Gag.

NOW comes J. W. B. and inquires about the old one: How can six safeties be made by a team in one inning without a run scoring? As we recall the old gag, it works thus:

First man—Singles.

Second man—Singles.

Third man—Singles. First man is thrown out at the plate.

Fourth man—Singles and No. 2 is thrown out at the plate.

Fifth man—Lays down a safe bunt.

Sixth man—Hits runner with batted ball, being credited with a hit, as the man struck is out under the rules.

The Spending Season.

IN the long run the early money-spending birds cop the choice tidbits among the baseball players. That's why Owner Wrigley of the Cubs is shaking a million dollars under the noses of minor and major league clubs. It also explains the announcement that the Pirates have just bought two minor league stars for $100,000.

Such announcements have been foreign to St. Louis, where clubs have pursued the theory that most of the big money spent for ballplayers never brings returns, and that good baseball judgment frequently assembles winners at small cost.

So far as the casual splurge in baseball is concerned, the local magnates are right. Also many gigantic "busts" have resulted from high-priced baseball purchases. The $75,000 Jimmy O'Connell, Paul Strand, Lefty Groves and others, who have failed or only partly justified the formidable sums paid for them, might be mentioned.

But the steady expenditure of big money for baseball timber, sooner or later bears fruit, as witness the case of the Yankees, the Giants and other teams.

The Big Chance.

FOR the St. Louis club owners to buy stars at any cost seems logical at this time. Each club is just below pennant class. The right strength added to either team would make it a pennant factor. This, of course, would mean not only investment returned in full, but a profit with it.

At the present time the Browns are contemplating reconstructing the park into a big league plant. It might be as well at this time to complete the job by giving us a big league pennant winner.

The combination would entail a considerable outlay, but the past has appeared to prove the expenditure justified.

SUMNER HIGH TROUNCES ST. CHARLES, 45 TO 0

The Sumner High School eleven crushed the football machine of St. Charles, 45 to 0, yesterday at the Sumner High field. Brown, a first year man, played a stellar game at halfback. In the first quarter Sumner scored three touchdowns, at the end of the half the score stood at 33 to 0, with the ball in St. Charles territory. Two more touchdowns were added in the third and fourth quarters.

Mudlark Titan Beats Senalado And Silver Fox

Son of Jim Gaffney Leads All the Way in New Rochelle Handicap.

BY G. F. T. Ryall,
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Frank Brown's Titan, a mud-running son of Jim Gaffney, with 103 pounds on his back, beat Senalado, winner of the Potomac and Havre de Grace Handicaps, in the new Rochelle Handicap at one and one-sixteenth miles at the Empire City track this afternoon.

Going to the front at the rise of the barrier, he led all the way to win in a mild drive by a length.

Eight lengths behind Senalado trailed Silver Fox, the gray colt from the Rancocas stable, which at one time during the summer was a rival for the honors of American Flag. These were the only starters.

As a race, the new Rochelle Handicap was rather more of a procession. Senalado, in spite of the fact that he was conceding 21 pounds to Titan, was favorite at odds-on, though Frank Brown's colt was strongly supported. The Rancocas stable was not sanguine over the chances of their horse because of his known dislike for a muddy track and his impost of 127 pounds.

At that, Silver Fox furnished about the only thrill of the race, when, after following the pace for six furlongs, he moved up menacingly rounding the turn off the back stretch. But he was through in a sixteenth. Senalado made a game bid in the run through the stretch, and though Maiben plied his whip, Richards only hand-rode the winner.

Titan, like all sons of Jim Gaffney, always is at his best in the heavy going and he stepped a fast mile and a sixteenth, the time being 1:46 4-5. The fractional times were :24 2-5, :47 4-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40, 1:46 4-5.

The race, which had an added value of $4000, was worth $2590 to the winner.

The Log Cabin Stud started off the afternoon's sport by running one, two with Deviner and Priceman in a conditions affair for 2-year-olds over the short six-furlong course.

The pair were hot favorites at odds-on and they ran that way. Sarapion, from the Rancocas Stable, flattered for a while but Sand Hills, which forced the pace, outlasted him at the end.

Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinard, who arrived in New York on Wednesday, took time off from business to renew old friendships among horsemen at Empire City yesterday afternoon.

SYRACUSE DEFEATS INDIANA, 14 TO 0, ON A MUDDY FIELD

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 17.—Syracuse University defeated Indiana here today, 14 to 0, on a muddy field, scoring both touchdowns in the second period. A fumble by Capt. Marks and a bad pass by Kelso at center paved the way for the Orange counters.

Indiana showed little in offensive, but presented a powerful defense both against straight and aerial attacks.

SETH'S ALIBI RACES TO VICTORY IN ST. LOUIS HANDICA

Gets Up in Last Jump To Win

Firetoma Is Second With Ocean Current Third—Captain Seth Also Wins—9000 Persons Attend.

By Dent McSkimming.

The Seth horses had a party at Fairmount yesterday. Captain Seth, the finest 2-year-old racing at the new East side track, romped away in masterly fashion in the third race, beating a small, but good field and Seth's Alibi came through to win the feature event, the St. Louis Handicap, nosing out two dangerous rivals in the most thrilling finish of the entire meeting.

While the horses ran true to form in most of the seven races composing the excellent program, some spice was furnished in the seventh, when Mrs. G. M. Anderson's Hyanpom hung on through a gruelling mile and a quarter gallop and rushed past Soldier II and others to win, paying $31.50 for a $2 "donation."

The crowd of 9000, apparently unmindful of the raw weather, displayed every evidence of keen excitement when five horses raced head and head as they passed the last sixteenth pole in the St. Louis Handicap. The handicappers had performed a neat job, for of the seven horses in the race, five had a good chance of getting into the money in the last 50 yards.

Ocean Current Shows Speed.

Seth's Alibi got off to a comfortable lead at the start and as they made the first turn, George Groom was the only one near. Firetoma was next to challenge and he remained in third position until they reached the stretch. George Groom fell back as they made the last turn. Ocean Current came up with surprising speed and the three raced head and head.

Less than 50 yards from the goal Seth's Alibi faltered and the other two had their noses in front, but Jockey Geving made one last appeal. Alibi shot out in the last jump and carried away first place by the narrowest margin.

Firetoma's margin over Ocean Current in the duel for second place was nothing more than a nose.

It was not a smooth journey Capt. Seth traversed to victory in the third race. He was blocked off and cut out of it on the far turn, but Jockey Charley Gross handled the situation neatly. He checked his mount's pace, took him to the outside and in spite of the fact that he had the long route, he raced into a commanding position as they entered the stretch and won going away. Virginity was second and Fast Time third.

Idle Seth Fails to Last.

The first surprise of the day came in the opening event when Settee, almost entirely overlooked by the bettors, captured third place, while Old Top, Capt. Kinnarney, Hidden Jewel and others, rated far superior, went unplaced. Kinsman was the winner and he has to come through the big field from a bad seventh to accomplish his purpose. Colen showed good judgment in picking his way. Zorro was second.

The second was almost entirely to Idle Seth, but this third Seth youngster could not hang on at the finish. He led through three-quarters of the six furlong distance and then slowed up to a whisper, finishing fourth as Maximac went to the front with Lubeck second and Huon Pine third.

For the first time in the last five starts, Sequel failed to finish in the money when Talequa, Donna Santa and Turnberry finished one, two, three in the fourth, at one mile and seventy yards. Sequel threatened for the greater part of the way, holding the lead until they neared the stretch turn when both Talequa and Donna Santa marched past. Rock and Rye was never in it.

Stonewall Jackson, reliable mud runner, registered his third conquest in six starts at Fairmount when Geving rode him to victory in the sixth race. He was never worse than third and looked very much his race from the start. Pocket Mouse was second and Marionette third. This was Geving's second winning mount. He shared riding honors for the day with J. Colen who brought in Kinsman and Maximac.

Hyanpom was a bad last as the horses got away from the barrier in the last race of the day. Jockey Vernon Wallis maneuvered for an opening and finally found it at the far turn. Then he sent his mount through to victory. It was a killing drive and Soldier II was not equal to the demands of the heavy going when the last quarter was reached. Kent L. was a good second and Herby Coles third.

Deeming Easily Wins 2 1-4 Mile Latonia Feature

Race Run in Deep Mud is 19 Seconds Slower Than Last Year's Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 17. — The Latonia Cup, concluding fixture of the autumn racing season at Latonia, went to C. B. Dailey, whose good mare Deeming by Spanish Prince II-Pin Feather, established as one of the greatest distance horses in this part when, with the aid of a good ride on the part of practically an unknown jockey, before some 20,000 patrons she defeated by two lengths Drowsy Waters, Georgie, Chittagong, Wrack Ray and By Gosh over a track that was deep in mud.

The winner, under restraint most of the journey, was set down to an even stride after going three quarters of a mile and she simply raced the others into exhaustion. Her margin victory could have been as great as her rider pleased, as she was going easily at the end and had plenty in reserve to go farther if she had been asked to.

The race was worth $7280 to the winning owner. Fractional time for the journey was as follows: quarter: 24 4-5; half, :50, three-quarters, 1:18 2-5; mile, 1:45 2-5; mile and a quarter, 2:13; mile and half, 2:40 1-5; two miles, 3:10 2-5, two miles and quarter, 4:08. The time is 19 seconds slower than last year's cup race.

How the Race Was Run.

The half dozen horses lined up at the start and without much delay were sent on their way. Deeming made the pace followed by Wrack Ray, Georgie, By Gosh and the others following close up. At the mile post Deeming was still in front by half length, Drowsy Waters second, Wrack Ray third and Georgie and Chittagong six lengths off the leaders.

At the mile and a half post Deeming opened up a seven-lengths lead, By Gosh moved into second place and Georgie up to third. Chittagong moved back when Georgie made his rush and at the two-mile post Deeming was two lengths in front. Drowsy Waters by this time was past the tiring Georgie and Chittagong and the two came down the stretch when it appeared that Drowsy Waters might win it. But Deeming showed her reserve when called upon and opened up again when Drowsy Waters and his rider gave it up for a bad job, finishing two lengths behind and holding the place 25 lengths in front of Georgie, which was barely moving, but took the show, 12 lengths in front of Chittagong, which quit to a walk.

The others were so far back that the judges marked time until they wended their way past the stand. The race last year was won by Altawood, which defeated My Play and Wild Life over a fast track in 3:49. The winner paid $15.10 for $2.

Wray Brown, St. Louisan, Placed 9th

Champion Is Placed First With Johnston and Richards Next; Alonzo Is Named Fourth.

By William T. Tilden II.

SOME weeks ago, before the national singles and Davis cup challenge round, I made a few guesses about the first 10 tennis players of the world and of the United States.

Now the big events are over and probably I know very little more, but I think I do, so I am offering (without explanation or justification) by revised and final selections.

The First Ten of America.

1. The champion.
2. William M. Johnston.
3. Vincent Richards.
4. Manuel Alonso.
5. R. N. Williams II.
6. Howard Kinsey.
7. Cranston Holmes.
8. Brian I. C. Norton.
9. Wray Brown.
10. Alfred H. Chapin Jr.

Alternates for 9 and 10: George King, George Lott, Arnold Jones, Lucian Williams.

The World First Ten.

1. The American champion.
2. William M. Johnston.
3. Vincent Richards.
4. Manuel Alonso.
5. R. N. Williams II.
6. Rene Lacoste.
7. Jean Borotra.
8. Gerald Paterson.
9. J. O. Anderson.
10. Howard Kinsey.

Alternates: T. Harada (excellent Davis cup season but poor tournament record), Edward Flaquer and J. B. Hawkes.

Doubles Rankings.

I am also giving a few doubles teams of the world, very badly selected.

1. Richards and Williams.
2. Lacoste and Borotra.
3. Patterson and Hawkes.
4. Johnston and Griffin.
5. Tilden and Wiener.
6. Alonso and Flaquer.
7. Shimizu and Harada.
8. Snodgrass and Westbrook.
9. Kinsey and Kinsey.
10. White and Thalheimer.

The placement of Lacoste, Borotra, Patterson, Anderson and Harada is complicated so badly that I feel it is hard to do justice to it.

Lacoste won at Wimbledon, beating Borotra and Anderson, but he lost to Patterson, Richards, Johnston and me in the Davis Cup. Borotra lost to Lacoste several times, but beat Patterson and Anderson. Harada, after a very bad year in tournament play, beat Patterson and Manuel Alonso in Davis Cup matches. J. O. Anderson beat Harada but lost to Borotra and Lacoste, to say nothing of Wallace Johnson in the national championship. There is no way of really selecting the placement of these men.

Personally, I consider Patterson and Lacoste superior tennis players to Anderson, Harada and Borotra yet records show Borotra at least equal if not superior.

I question whether Williams, if he met all these men in a long series of matches, would outrank them, but he beat Borotra when they met in the American championship, and he must take precedence over them. So it goes. Norton's great five-set match with Lacoste in the singles championship gives him a claim for consideration among the first 10 in the world, yet his record all year, like Harada's, hardly brings him into the charmed circle.

Every year the ranking list grows harder to do justice to players. The competition grows keener, the number of upsets increases with the number of rising stars, so that today, if a player gets into all the tournaments he is almost certain to be spilled at least once on an off day by a man who is not quite in his class.

EACH PIRATE PLAYER RECEIVES $5700 OF WORLD SERIES SPOIL

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 17. — The battle o'er, the victory won, the Pirates have turned their attention to the dividing of the spoils.

Each member of the new champions, receiving a full share, will become $5700 the richer. Each Senator received $3800.

Members of the Pirates who were with the club all year voted to give Secretary Sam Watters and coach of pitchers Jack Onslow a full share. Three other members of the club, late comers, will have to be content with a portion of a share. The exact amount of portion has not been announced. The players thus affected are "Red" Ooldham, who pitched the last inning of the final game; Fresco Thompson, infielder, and George Haas, outfielder.

The second, third and fourth-place clubs of each league receive a portion of the players' receipts and as a result the Giants and the Athletics, runners-up in the National and American Leagues, respectively, will each divide $51,000. The third-place Reds and Browns will split $34,000 each and the Tigers and Cardinals, who finished in fourth place, will each be rewarded with $17,000.

The division of the moneys will have to receive the O. K. of Commissioner Landis before the checks can be drawn and distributed.

THE HUNTING - - CALL - -

By ALEX MERMOD

WELL! Duck season opened a month since and as usual shooters have been disappointed by small bags or none at all. All of us are keen to go on the opening day even though we know from past experience that there has been no flight, not even of Blue Wing, still we go each year. HOPING.

MERMOD.

Owing to the summer drouth most of the club lakes are dry or nearly so; again, we have had no severe weather in the North to drive the ducks down.

Hunters at the upper end of King's Lake report few teal, plenty of coot and snipe numerous.

Marais Temp Claire reports no water, teal scarce and snipe in fair numbers.

Duplex Club at the upper end of Marais Temp Claire reports the same conditions.

Pumps Save Busch Preserve.

August A. Busch, with his pumping system, should have plenty of water at his splendid preserve at Belleau Swamp, which in days gone by was the best snipe ground in Missouri.

A few years ago we thought duck shooting around here was doomed, owing to the constant draining of the natural lakes, for duck "use" when there is plenty of water either in one large body or in smaller lakes close together; but now that members of the various clubs are installing pumping systems, our lakes will have water when needed.

The rice planting is going to help the sportsmen more than anything else, for it will be the means of furnishing both food and water.

Lungstras Buys Kampville Grounds.

Robert Lungstras has acquired the George Zimmerer property near Kampsville, and as this property is close to the Baldwin farm, which has been turned into a nice plantation, he will have splendid shooting in another year.

Henry Laumeier also has a good proposition and when the flight is on he will have excellent shooting.

The Willow Club on the Dr. Merideth place has one of the best sites in St. Charles County for both snipe and duck.

Gus Kloeper of Apex Club tells a hard luck story. Last Sunday, while he was killing two teal, his cousin was out on a dike in the river fishing. Thinking he might get a shot at ducks he had his gun with him. He happened to look up the river and saw a bunch of duck floating down stream. After about half an hour they came within range and he bagged five. Instead of ducks they proved to be brant, the first he had ever killed.

While he was still on the dike two sportsmen (?) came by in a motor boat and offered him $7.50 apiece for his brant. He didn't sell.

Quail and Rabbit Plentiful.

We hope that, by next week we will have good news for the readers of this column. In the meantime, don't lose your nerve or give your gun away, for Nov. 10th is not far off and the quail crop has not been as promising in many a year. Rabbits are also with us in great numbers.

Safety Hints.

THE old saying that a "gun is dangeorus without lock, stock or barrel" is so nearly true that one cannot be too careful in handling a gun, for, with very few exceptions the deplorable accidents are caused by rank carelessness.

When you pick up a shotgun, rifle or pistol, do so with the belief that it is LOADED and handle it accordingly.

Here are a few "Dont's" that may help:

DON'T point your gun at any person at any time.

Don't think that because the gun is "at safe" it cannot be discharged. The safety catch on a hammerless gun locks the triggers but it is possible for the gun to be jarred off by a fall or a severe jolt.

Don't stand your gun against a tree or lay it on the ground while resting, until you have removed the loaded shells.

Don't get into a boat or vehicle of any kind until you have unloaded it, and then look the second time to make sure.

Don't climb over or crawl through a fence leaving your gun on this side to be pulled through with muzzle pointing towards you. The "Fool Killer" has caught many a victim by this method. Unload your gun, then if you have a companion, let him hold the guns while you crawl through, then let him hand them OVER to you. Always remembering to handle them as if you knew they were loaded. By following this rule you may lose 15 minutes compared to an uncertain eternity.

Don't lean on your gun with the muzzle covered by your hand or arms; many a person has lost part of themselves while doing this.

Don't fire until your game is in plain sight. Many a hunter has killed or injured a man or dog or stock belonging to the friendly farmer, just because he shot into a moving bush or grass.

Don't fire at game unless you know the location of your companion. It's much better to have lost a shot than to be regretting something the rest of your life.

Remember — Safety FIRST, LAST and ALWAYS.

Maplewood High Beats Normandy

Intercepted Pass and Forward Pass Give Victors the Game, 13 to 6.

Maplewood High defeated Normandy, 13 to 6, in a county league football game yesterday at Normandy. Both of Maplewood's touchdowns resulted from spectacular plays.

In the final period Normandy had the ball on the third down on Maplewood's 25-yard line, when Mutschler intercepted a pass and ran through a scattered field for the team's winning touchdown.

Normandy scored in the first quarter. After a series of off-tackle plays Capt. "Flipper" Dammerman, star quarterback, slipped around end for a touchdown. He failed to add the extra point. Dammerman dislocated his collar-bone shortly after and was forced to leave the game.

Maplewood started the third quarter with a rush, Capt. MacClanahan breaking through for a 40-yard run. The flashy quarterback, however, was kicked in the head on the play and was unable to finish the game. Bruno, who replaced him, shot a pass to Kimmell, who tied the score when he raced 30 yards for a touchdown. Mutschler's perfect placekick put the Blue and White one point ahead.

Mutschler's Play Saves the Day.

Normandy came back with combination of line plunges and successful passes and put Pitt Green's charges in a scoring position. At this point Mutschler saved the day when Normandy, attempting to complete another pass, was caught unawares. The fleet Maplewood half found an open field after intercepting the pass and scored, as told above.

The score by quarters:

Maplewood	0	0	7	6	—13
Normandy	6	0	0	0	— 6

Touchdowns—Dammerman (Normandy); Kimmel and Mutschler (Maplewood). Point after touchdown—By place kick, Mutschler (Maplewood).

Taylor, Obtained by Cardinals, Batted .360 for Memphis Club

Although a Regular Third Sacker, Tommy Also Showed Well at Second, Short and in the Outfield for Chicks During 1925 Campaign.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 17.—When the St. Louis Cardinals obtained Tommy Taylor, third baseman of the Memphis club, in the draft net for the price of $4000, they got the best bargain concerning a Southern Association player in a long time. The drafting of Taylor was not a surprise. The fact that he was not sold during the season for a bigger price was the surprise.

TAYLOR.

During these days and times of the high prices of baseball players, an athlete who has not yet reached his thirtieth year and who can hit consistently an entire season around .360, is certainly worth the measly sum of $4000—as sums go in baseball.

Taylor rounded out his fourth season of .300 in the Southern the past campaign with the most respectable mark of .360 in 125 games. In 77 games with Memphis in 1924 he batted .339. He came to Memphis during midseason of 1923 from Birmingham and that season batted .315 in 138 games. The previous season with Birmingham he batted well over the select figures.

Was With Senators.

Major league scenery will not be new to Taylor. However, he only saw a glimpse of it in 1924, when he was sent to Washington. About a month before the world's series he sustained an injured hand, but even then took part in the series.

Taylor, who started upon his baseball career in the Texas League in 1920, is about 29 years of age. He lives in Texas.

While a third baseman by choice of profession Taylor displayed his versatility by playing three infield positions—third, second and short, and also in the outfield for the Memphis club last season. Account of numerous injuries to the Memphis players, necessitating day in and day out changes, it was a guess where Taylor would play until the line-up was announced before the game.

He is Good Outfielder.

Taylor looks like a better outfielder than infielder. He has a faulty throw from third base and one that most likely worked against him at Washington. While possessing a strong and accurate arm, Taylor invariably has the fault of taking an extra step before throwing. However once on its way the ball has plenty of speed behind it. Taylor has an ideal throwing arm for an outfielder.

Indeed it seems that the Cardinals got more than they paid for when they planked down only $4,000 for Tommy Taylor.

HUSKERS AND HUSKIES BATTLE TO A DRAW

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 17. — The University of Washington Huskies and Nebraska fought a 6 to 6 tie in their intersectional football clash here this afternoon. Both teams displayed a powerful offense.

Another "Bull" Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

A lot of our big writers are paid so much a word for their writings. Now when you are paid so much a word you have to make one idea cover a terrible lot of words. Now just suppose that I was one of the big Authors and was paid by the word. I would dig me up a lot of adjectives and everything I would describe I would go way around. I wouldn't tell you what it was right off the reel. I would describe the weather and the sunset, and the crackling, roaring, blazing, brilliant fire, as all of them sit arouhd. Some of them sit around in different places; some of them sit around in the same place; some even go so far as to stand. Yet they are all enjoying the pleasure, the delight, the fragrance, the complete satisfaction, the unalloyed happiness, the restfulness that only can come when you are smoking "BULL" DURHAM.

P. S. Now you see that is what you call writing by the word. I haven't said a thing but that "Bull" Durham is the world's best tobacco, all of which I could have said in seven words, if I had not been getting paid by the word.

P. P. S. There is going to be another piece in this paper soon. Look for it.

LETTERS TO DR. BAKER

Mentho-Laxene Best for Cough

RIVERSIDE, R. I.—Mrs. Emma Duquette, 38 Silver Spring Ave., writes: "I received your Health and Beauty book and was very pleased with it as it tells of many things that will help. I have been using Mentho-Laxene cough medicine and salve and find them the best I have ever used. I am ever so grateful and thank you very much."

Pleased With Advice

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Joseph A. White, 1811 East 24th St., writes: "How can I express my thanks to you? I feel indeed very thankful that there is such a doctor as you to help and advise trustworthy medicines to the community. I think Casca Royal Pills (for constipation) are wonderful and the plain yellow Minyol has brought my hair back to its natural healthy condition. I remain, etc."

No More Indigestion

FREEDUN, PA.—Martin L. Howell, 399 5th Ave., writes: "For the benefit of thousands of stomach sufferers and those who have bowel trouble I think that a letter to you may be of benefit. I had been suffering for years with my stomach and bowels and had taken hundreds of dollars' worth of different medicines, until I had given up all hope. I am aged 47 years, and have worked on Railroad for 17 years as brakeman and conductor. I have taken only one box of Triopeptine tablets and a half box of the Casca Royal Pills. I can now eat anything and no more indigestion or bowel trouble. Respectfully."

Advice Proved Blessing

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—"A word to let you know that the Casca Royal Pills for constipation, and Balmwort tablets for kidney and bladder trouble—and Vilane Powder for perspiring, tender feet, all of which I am using, have proven a Godsend to me and I certainly do thank you for helping me. Am feeling almost like a different person. Also thank you for the Health and Beauty book. It is great! You can use my letter if you wish. Truly," (Signed) P. A. Vanarsdall, 334 W. 4th St.

Mentho-Laxene Salve Did It

GOWEN, OKLA.—E. W. Ratcliffe, R. R. No. 1, Box 157, writes: "I have been troubled with small blisters between my toes, so bad that I could hardly walk. For two years I had tried everything I could get. Then I used Mentho-Laxene Salve for ten days, after bathing my feet in warm water, morning and night, and now my feet are sound and well. I can't praise this product too much, etc."

Recommends Cadomene Tonic

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Mrs. A. C. Couts, 324 S. N. Jersey St., writes: "Four years ago I suffered a nervous break-down. I tried different remedies and doctors and received little benefit. I was all run down, weak, had headache in back of head, also backache; stomach was weak, heart would beat so fast; had spots before my eyes and my hands would swell till my fingers were stiff. Two years ago I bought Cadomene tablets, took them as directed, and began to improve, till now I feel like a different person. I can recommend Cadomene for such trouble, etc."

Gained Weight Quickly

E. E. PITTSBURG, PA.—A. Martia, 571 Brushton Ave., writes: "I want to tell you that Hypo-Nuclane tablets are the real goods' for putting on flesh. I had tried many remedies, and now I know that Hypo-Nuclane tablets are the best of all as I have gained four pounds in two weeks. Sincerely, etc."

Best for Constipation

TOLEDO, OHIO.—Mrs. C. W. Jewell, 315 Ohio St., writes: "Some time ago I sent for your Health and Beauty book. It's a wonderful book! I have used Balmwort tablets and Casca Royal Pills for some time. Have been troubled with constipation for years and found Casca Royal Pills more beneficial than anything I've tried. Thanking you kindly."

Su-thol Tablets for Pain

NEWARK, N. J.—Nicholas M. Dan, 7 Newark St., writes: "I contracted a cold this winter that developed into neuralgia, headache, toothache and nasal catarrh. It made me so miserable I could not sleep. Then I read your adv. in Newark Star and found that Su-thol tablets just fitted my case. Have also tried Sulpherb tablets and found them more gentle as a laxative than any ever taken. Respect., etc."

Cough Stopped Quickly

MATHESON, COLO.—Mrs. Orena Kashner, writes: "I am 66 years old. I had a severe cough for two months. Could get no relief from anything I tried, until I got a bottle of Mentho-Laxene. After taking about two-thirds of it, my cough stopped. I do not think there is anything to equal it. Also we have been using Yellow Minyol for dandruff and itching scalp and falling hair. It is the only sure remedy I have ever found. Sincerely."

WHY WISCONSIN IS NOT LEVYING STATE PROPERTY TAXES

No Collection for Year Will Be Made Because of Surplus and New Income Tax Measure.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 17.—For the first time since the organization of the State there will be no State property tax levied this year in Wisconsin. As has been told in dispatches this week, this is made possible by a surplus in the general fund and the new income tax bill passed at the last session of the Legislature.

The administration naturally claims that economy makes this possible. A long study would be necessary to substantiate this claim. Nevertheless, the remission means a material tax reduction for the bulk of Wisconsin's population in 1926.

The action means that, while the State will receive nothing from property taxes for the support of State Government, university, normal schools, common schools and graded schools, the entire property tax revenue will go to county demands and the demands of municipalities.

State Levy for 1925.

The State levy for State purposes for 1925, including the seven-tenths mill tax for the common schools, is estimated at $6,922,153.05. The State's share of the proceeds of the income tax law passed at the last session is estimated at $4,414,673.20. Deducting proceeds of the income tax left a balance of the State levy for the common schools of $2,507,479.85.

The emergency board applied out of the surplus in the general fund in the State treasury, the $2,507,479.85 toward the State tax levy for the common schools, and thus wiped out all State levy for the year 1925.

Three things have been done which have made it possible to lessen the cost of state government on the general property owners.

First, by repealing a law which permitted an income tax payer to offset taxes paid on personal property by his income tax, an additional amount of nearly $3,000,000 will be collected in income taxes. This burden falls heaviest on owners of automobiles, most of whom were able to offset any property tax on their car against their incomes. The new law requires them to pay both an income and a property tax on their automobile.

Inheritance Tax Adjustment.

Second, there has been an adjustment of the inheritance tax law, practically all revenue from this law turned into the State treasury. This accumulation of inheritance taxes is used to pay the cost of state government and to relieve the general property owner.

Third, all direct State taxes for building highways have been repealed and a two-cent gasoline tax has been substituted, the revenues of which are used to build roads.

The Wisconsin income tax law, on the books since 1911, as now revised, provides for a tax of from one to seven per cent on corporation earnings. The rate increases progressively from one per cent on the first $1000 of net taxable incomes to 7 per cent on corporation incomes in excess of $12,000. These taxes are collected through the agency of the state tax commission.

The tax bill and administration economy wipe out the entire State taxes, including the seven-tenths mill tax for the common schools, and save the farmer, the home owner and the business man an aggregate property tax of nearly $7,000,000 within a year after the bill was passed.

Relief for Individuals.

In addition to the relief from property taxes for State purposes, individuals in the State will have a reduction in their income taxes.

Under the new income tax law, exemptions for heads of families are increased from $1200 to $1600 with exemptions increased for each child from $200 to $300. This means that a head of a family with three children will pay no state income tax unless there is an income of more than $2500 a year.

Among the people who will have taxable incomes and property there will be a reduction in taxes in both quarters in most cases. The announcement of Gov. Blaine that there will be no property tax for State purposes next year means that there should be a tax reduction in all localities to the extent of one and one-fourth mills. The only tax that will be assessed on property will be county and local and the remission of all State taxes will mean a decrease in the tax rate unless counties and cities decide to boost their own demands.

Home owners and farmers especially will benefit under the taxation system as it now stands.

State tax experts have figured out the results of the income tax law and the remission of taxes jointly as it will affect typical cases, and in most cases it was found that people would have a tax reduction in all forms, even though the personal property offset under the income tax law has been wiped out.

Married men without children, having no home of their own and not owning an automobile will be paying less income taxes if they have taxable incomes. Their exemption is increased by $400. Widows and widowers who are heads of families under the old income tax law were classed as single persons and paid a tax on all incomes over $800. Now they are given a married status with an exemption of $1600.

A man owning his $10,000 home, having an income of $3500 a year and driving a car valued at $800 would have a $2.75 reduction in taxes if he had three children.

SIXTH OF ARRESTS IN YEAR FOR CARD AND DICE PLAYING

9555 Cases Out of 54,885 Based on Those Charges Police Board's Annual Report Shows.

FEW WOMEN TAKEN UNDER AUTO LAWS

Robbery Chief Cause of Taking of Prisoners, 13,873 Men and 612 Women Listed in Group.

About one-sixth of the arrests for alleged violation of city ordinances made by the police during the fiscal year which ended March 31 last were for playing cards and dice, it is shown in the Police Board's annual report, just published.

The present Police Commissioners, under whom there has been a determined campaign against bootlegging and all forms of public gambling, took office only a short time before the expiration of that fiscal year. About one-twelfth of the arrests in that fiscal year for alleged violation of State laws were for State prohibition infractions.

Figures in the report are: Total arrests under city ordinances, 54,885; arrests for playing cards and dice, 9555; total arrests under State laws, 34,128; arrests for prohibition violation, 2988. The number of women in each classification was negligible. There were only 861 police arrests for Volstead act violation.

Disturbing the peace, with fewer than 7000 arrests, wasn't in it that year as a popular pastime, compared with traffic violations. The traffic figures are interesting as showing that comparatively few women were arrested for such offenses. The report does not show how many women, if any, escaped receiving tickets by the judicious exercise of smiles. The figures: Careless driving—men, 7459, and women, 318; speeding—men, 3995, and women, 64; violating traffic ordinance—men, 8187, and women, 187; driving without lights—men, 2416, and women, 69.

13,873 Arrests for Robbery.

Robbery was the chief cause of arrest in State cases, 13,873 men and 612 women being listed under this charge, but the number was great because of the numerous arrests on suspicion where no evidence materialized.

In the whole year there were 89,013 arrests, compared with 71,855 in the previous fiscal year. Of the 80,072 men taken into custody, 32,589 gave their occupation as laborers. Locksmiths and beggars would seem to be well-behaved, for only one of each was listed. There were arrested also 16 Constables, 26 policemen, 147 soldiers, 20 sailors, 46 preachers, 606 bartenders, 1227 school boys, 2297 who claimed no occupation, and 49 thieves. Really, the police caught more thieves than that, but only 49 were classified as such.

Women of about two dozen general occupations were arrested. Housewives numbered 3162; women of the streets, 2546, and 1847 were without occupation.

Some of Their Odd Jobs.

Policemen have a lot to do besides preserving the peace and twirling their nightsticks. The report lists 82,270 miscellaneous duties performed, which includes 19,554 accidents attended to and 19,464 matters which were too miscellaneous even to classify. From "abandoned infants found" to "waste of water reported" this list runs, and in between are reports of broken street lamps, cruelty to animals, fires, garbage complaints, leaking gas pipes, nuisances, unsprinkled streets, broken mail boxes and uncut weeds; furthermore, policemen took care of dog-bite cases, killed injured horses, handled incorrigible children and insane persons, kept stranded travelers over night and cared for sick persons. Outside of that there is a special table covering reports on 33,929 removals of household property.

The Bertillon Bureau was shown to have 91,335 photographs and records of criminals on file, as well as 33,532 finger print records. The Automobile Theft Bureau was shown to have recovered 3102 out of 3689 automobiles stolen.

Heavy Traffic Duty.

The number of policemen available for traffic duty is inadequate, the report declares. Of this branch of the service, the document says:

"Practically the entire time and energy of these officers, while on duty, is devoted to directing traffic at busy intersections and maintaining traffic discipline on the highways, in order that the public may use them with safety. Inasmuch as the reputation of the department for good service is largely in the keeping of these officers, the department tries to select them for their alertness, efficiency and courtesy to the public, with whom they are constantly in contact. They are given special instructions in this class of duty, so that they may satisfactorily meet and handle emergencies. They are also impressed with the fact that the public is human, and that autocracy on their part will not be tolerated."

AWARDED $5000 DAMAGES FOR SHOCK IN TRICK CHAIR

A practical joke alleged to have been played by an employe of the Demoulin Bros., & Co., at Greenville, Ill., resulted in a verdict yesterday of $5,000 damages against that concern, which manufactures lodge paraphernalia.

The plaintiff was David H. Zbinden, truck driver for the American Railways Express Co. He claimed he went to the shipping office of the company to get packages for the express office, and having collected them sat down at a table to make out the bills.

The chair, which he occupied was a trick chair, made for secret societies. It was electrically charged and Zbinden testified he was knocked unconscious and knew nothing more until he found a doctor bending over him. He alleged permanent injuries to his spine and shoulder.

It was testified that among other supplies for fraternal use the company makes about 50 of these chairs a year.

DIETZ ADVISES PURCHASE OF GERMAN FIRE TOWER

Purchase of a Magirus fire tower, which was demonstrated in St. Louis last week, was recommended to Director of Public Safety Brod and Comptroller Nolte yesterday by Supply Commissioner Dietz. This apparatus, manufactured in Ulm, Germany, has a ladder which can be raised 100 feet in 30 seconds or stretched out horizontally as a bridge, and the ladder carries a fire hose. The tower now in St. Louis can be purchased for $19,500, which would leave $300 in the $36,000 fund for motorized equipment recently provided.

Commissioner Dietz also recommended that when another appropriation of $186,000 for motorized equipment becomes available, two more of these towers be purchased, and that one of the pumpers to be purchased then be a Stutz. The Stutz company was the low bidder for pumpers on the last letting, but Mayor Miller ordered the purchase of American-La France pumpers because others used by the Fire Department are of that make.

Bus Is Upset Hitting a Bull.

NACOGDOCHES, Tex.,—A 1000-pound Holstein bull was run into by one of the sixteen-passenger busses of the Nunnalee Line on Kingshighway two miles east of Alto the other day. The bull arose and walked down the road, leaving the bus lying on its side in a ditch.

Bond Issue to Pay City Debts.

By the Associated Press.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Oct. 17.—The City Council last night adopted an ordinance for a bond issue of $113,000 for payment of debts to banks and interest and judgments rendered in the Jackson County Circuit Court. The Council also adopted an ordinance increasing the city tax rate from $1.33⅓ to $1.75. The Councilmen retrenched by reducing the fire and police departments one man each. Mayor C. D. Joplin cut his salary of $100 a month in half.

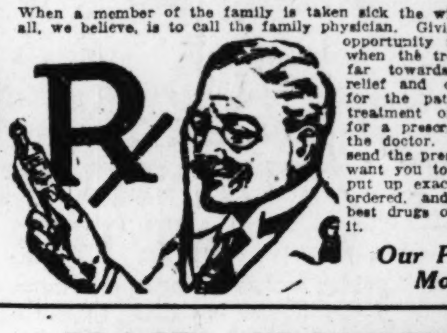
In Business for Your Health

Don't Wait, Call Your Doctor!



When a member of the family is taken sick the wise move, first of all, we believe, is to call the family physician. Giving the doctor the opportunity to use his skill when the trouble starts goes far towards insuring quick relief and complete recovery for the patient. Often the treatment of the sick calls for a prescription written by the doctor. If you bring or send the prescription to us we want you to know that it is put up exactly as the doctor ordered, and that the very best drugs obtainable go into it.

Open Every Night Till 9 P.M.

The time to take advantage of this "once-in-a-lifetime" golden money-saving opportunity is now. This huge insurance adjuster's stock is still complete, and if you come here quickly you'll find medium and highest quality Furniture, Rugs and Stoves in such a wide variety and at prices so low that you will buy for all your present and future needs. If you contemplate buying furniture now or within the next twelve months, it's a duty you owe yourself to investigate these offers. Come Monday and see for yourself. The fire which occurred at the National House Furnishing Co., Granite City, Ill., damaged their $175,000 stock principally by smoke and water. In order to adjust the loss the insurance companies ordered the stock removed from the damaged National Building, and, there being no building large enough in Granite City, it was removed to its present location in St. Louis. You can reap the benefit of the insurance company's tremendous loss by quick action, for we are forcing the selling at still greater price concessions, as we must vacate this temporary location quickly. Remember that the biggest portion of this stock is but slightly damaged, in fact so little that in most instances the damage is not noticeable. Remember, every sale must be final—no exchanges, no refunds and all goods sold "as is."

It is however a curious fact that the industry which has the strongest case for higher tariff protection is suffering not because of imports from the United States, but because of imports chiefly from the British Isles. This is the woolen industry. There is no doubt that if a Conservative Government comes into power, one of the first things it will do will be to revise upward the existing schedules on woolen products. This will curtail trade, not with the United States, the bete noir of the politician, but with mother England.

Mackenzie King

The grievance of the Canadian woolen manufacturer dates from 1897 when Sir Wilfred Laurier, first introduced the "British preference." In a manifesto just issued by the Canadian Woolen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association it is declared that the inauguration of the preference in 1897 resulted in the closing down of 88 Canadian mills. Further increases in preference, some within the last two or three years, have resulted in further crippling of the Canadian industry.

Effect on Sheep Industry.

One effect is observable in the sheep industry. There are in Canada today only about 2,500,000 sheep, practically the same number as in 1897. In Great Britain they maintain 24,000,000 sheep.

Canada produces only 15,000,000 pounds of wool and woolen manufacturers declare that there is no reason why we should not grow at least 50,000,000 pounds of the 70,000,000 pounds of wool consumed annually by the people of Canada.

More than $150,000,000 worth of textile products are imported into Canada every year according to the manifesto already quoted. If these goods were made in Canada there would be work for 50,000 Canadian women.

The argument of the low tariff propagandists on the woolen schedules is that in a country like Canada where woolen apparel is so universally necessary it is an economic fallacy to increase by protective duties prices to the consumer for the purpose of building up home industry even if in other departments such a policy is justified. Protectionists retort that the textile industry is a great basic industry which Canada must develop and that it is a great tragedy to see mill after mill boarding up its windows or falling into hands of the receiver.

Industry Effects Small Towns.

It is an industry which owing to labor conditions particularly effects small towns. There are 272 woolen and knit mills in Canada. Sixty per cent of these mills are in towns under 10,000 population. This gives the industry a widespread influence, politically.

Advocates for the industry scoff at claims that there are any climatic, physical or technical reasons why textiles cannot be made as successfully in Canada as in England and Scotland.

Alfred A. Barker, professor of textile industries in Leeds University, is quoted as saying: "Upon the whole the Canadian wool mills come up to the best Yorkshire mills—some few Yorkshire mills are better, many are worse. The hosiery mills of the United States," he goes on, "are possibly

Campaign Orators in Canada Picturing the United States as Country's Great Economic Enemy

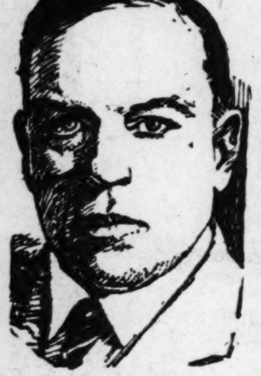
Protectionists Assert America Is Flooding Their Markets With Cheap Goods and Strangling Local Industries.

By JOHN R. BONE.

TORONTO, Oct. 17.

ON the platform Protectionist orators in the current Canadian election campaign direct their guns chiefly against their next door neighbor. The United States is pictured as the great economic enemy, flooding Canada's markets with cheap goods and strangling local industries. This is regarded as effective politics.

It is however a curious fact that the industry which has the strongest case for higher tariff protection is suffering not because of imports from the United States, but because of imports chiefly from the British Isles. This is the woolen industry. There is no doubt that if a Conservative Government comes into power, one of the first things it will do will be to revise upward the existing schedules on woolen products. This will curtail trade, not with the United States, the bete noir of the politician, but with mother England.



Mackenzie King

The grievance of the Canadian woolen manufacturer dates from 1897, when Sir Wilfred Laurier, first introduced the "British preference." In a manifesto just issued by the Canadian Woolen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association it is declared that the inauguration of the preference in 1897 resulted in the closing down of 88 Canadian mills. Further increases in preference, some within the last two or three years, have resulted in further crippling of the Canadian industry.

Effect on Sheep Industry.

One effect is observable in the sheep industry. There are in Canada today only about 2,500,000 sheep, practically the same number as in 1897. In Great Britain they maintain 24,000,000 sheep.

Canada produces only 15,000,000 pounds of wool and woolen manufacturers declare that there is no reason why we should not grow at least 50,000,000 pounds of the 70,000,000 pounds of wool consumed annually by the people of Canada.

More than $150,000,000 worth of textile products are imported into Canada every year according to the manifesto already quoted. If these goods were made in Canada there would be work for [illegible],000 Canadian women.

The argument of the low tariff propagandists on the woolen schedules is that in a country like Canada where woolen apparel is so universally necessary it is an economic fallacy to increase by protective duties prices to the consumer for the purpose of building up home industry even if in other departments such a policy is justified. Protectionists retort that the textile industry is a great basic industry which Canada must develop and that it is a great tragedy to see mill after mill boarding up its windows or falling into hands of the receiver.

Industry Effects Small Towns.

It is an industry which owing to labor conditions particularly effects small towns. There are 272 woolen and knit mills in Canada. Sixty per cent of these mills are in towns under 10,000 population. This gives the industry a widespread influence, politically.

Advocates for the industry scoff at claims that there are any climatic, physical or technical reasons why textiles cannot be made as successfully in Canada as in England and Scotland.

Alfred A. Barker, professor of textile industries in Leeds University, is quoted as saying: "Upon the whole the Canadian wool mills come up to the best Yorkshire mills—some few Yorkshire mills are better, many are worse. The hosiery mills of the United States," he goes on, "are possibly behind the hosiery mills of Canada."

Devastating competition comes from Great Britain and the Continent, where, it is claimed, the rate of wages paid is only from one-quarter to one-half the rates of wages in Canada.

Personalities are not a dominating factor in the election campaign in Canada, as in the days for example of Wilfred Laurier, when the battle surged around the leader's "white plume." This contest will be decided on prosaic economic issues and therefore loses something of picturesqueness. Nevertheless the personalities of the leaders and some of their lieutenants are full of interest.

The Premier, Mackenzie King, was found by so vivacious an observer as Margot, now Lady Oxford, to be a man "after my own heart, shrewd, straight, modest, cultured." This was after he had asked her to autograph his copy of her autobiography and had presented her with a copy of his memoir on "Heroism" written in honor of a young friend who had given his life in a futile attempt to save two companions who had gone through the ice.

Mackenzie King is an example of the scholar in politics. He bears a certain resemblance to Woodrow Wilson. His speeches invariably carry the marks of careful preparation. Among some of his associates it is a matter of complaint that he spends too much time in preparing his addresses. Before an important set occasion he frequently goes into retirement for a day or two denying himself even to urgent callers.

Nevertheless his speeches are usually successful. On the platform he is always master of the situation. He knows his text thoroughly and his manner exudes confidence. His material is generally as expository as a professor's but he so successfully impresses his audiences with his security and his earnestness that he never fails to hold interest to the end. He gesticulates freely, his countenance beams, his eyes sparkle, and while his auditors will wait long for a relieving flash of humor they are carried along by his dominating vitality and enthusiasm. While he lacks the rapier thrust of repartee of a Lloyd George he does thrive on interruptions which emphasize his poise and at times help to reveal some of the spirit which made his "rebel" grandfather, William Lyon McKenzie, famous as Canada's greatest agitator.

King's Effect on Hearers.

His hearers depart feeling they have listened to a great oration. And when they read the text in the papers they still regard it as a great speech, though it lacks the profundity of his economic books, the most notable of which is a large volume on "Industry and Humanity," widely used as a sociological textbook.

It was as a police reporter on the Toronto Globe that Mackenzie King acquired his first taste for sociology. Then he went to Chicago and fell under the influence of Jane Addams' work. Presently he became Canada's first Deputy Minister of Labor and was picked out by Laurier for a career on a wider stage. In his progress from Police Court reporter to Premier, there are evidences of the guiding hand of destiny, though hard work and industry doubtless had something to do with it. He is one of the few public men in Canada who have been officially trained for public service. Although only 51 years old, he has been Premier four years and has been in public life for more than a quarter of a century.

The Premier does not carry the air of the scholar or pedant into his relations with the public. While he does not forget the dignity required of a Premier and never fails to rise to an occasion, he can relax and even exhibit the carefree exuberance of a school boy. In former days, when there was only a horse-drawn bus from the railway station to his cottage at Kingsmere, where he summers, up the Gatineau, he used to delight his neighbors by taking the reins and giving an exhibition of Jehu. Recently he was timidly invited to a barn-dance and surprised everyone by accepting and enthusiastically going through the energetic and complicated evolutions, "swinging his partner" with the best of them.

Evidences of Sentiment.

Though a bachelor and scholar and busy statesman, there are evidences of sentiment to be found in his library. Here is the kind, sweet face of his mother, Isabel Grace Mackenzie, daughter of the "little rebel" of '37; and here in a little gilt box, a lock of her white hair and her wedding ring. Here, too, is the last pen used by Laurier; and the goosequill pen used by Gladstone to sign his last official paper. He also has collected mementos of Carlyle and Sir William Scott and other great figures.

The Premier's physical characteristics tone in with his mental

SHATTERING THE "NORDIC MAN" MYTH AND THE PET THEORIES OF EUGENICS

No Such Thing as Superior or Inferior Races, Except in the Mind of the Grader, Says John Langdon Davies, and Mankind the World Over Shows Less Variation Than Horses and Donkeys.

History Packed With Examples Where Eugenic Interference Would Have Impoverished the World—A Terrific Jolt for Those Who Cite the Case of Johnathan Edwards as Proof of Value of Breeding.

EUGENICS

BELIEVERS in eugenics define their faith as the science of heredity and their aim the improvement of the race through selection of individuals worthy to propagate each succeeding generation. "Like begets like," is their text. Thus they have advocated laws which would regulate marriages and the birth of children. The radical element among proponents of the eugenic theory urge that individuals be forced to undergo mental and physical tests before marriage. Failing to pass the tests, the candidates for marriage would either be forbidden to marry or be rendered sterile so they could not have children. Eugenists argue that by restricting reproduction to superior individuals superior children will result.

"NORDIC MAN"

IN a search for what they consider the finest type of man, disciples of the eugenic theory seem to have agreed on the Nordic Man. The Nordic Man is supposed to be the product of the Germanic races of Northern Europe and is characterized by fair hair, blond complexion, blue eyes and strong physique. Admirers of the Nordic Man have asserted that the United States by immigration barriers should exclude all other types. This arbitrary proposal has brought much derision upon the heads of the eugenists.

By Rowland Thomas

IN the course of the last decade, thanks to the brains and pens of Madison Grant. Lothrop Stoddard, Albert Edward Wiggam and others, we had at last got our bearings. Under their tutelage we had recognized ourselves as the last surviving substantial group of Nordics with all that estate implies—the trusteeship of practically everything precious in civilization.

We had marked the rising tide of color which threatened to submerge our racial culture and had set about the safeguarding of that priceless heritage. By—belated, alas!—modification of or immigration laws we had built dykes against further encroachments. And by the adoption in principle of "eugenics" we had begun, theoretically at least, to lift our heads above the inundation and restore our birthright by deliberate upbreeding.

He Denies The Nordic.

And now comes young Mr. Langdon-Davies—to call him young has no invidious implications, since he still lacks two years of thirty—and declares that Messrs. Stoddard, Wiggam, Grant et al, are false prophets.

They have led us off on a false trail. If we continue to follow their guidance we shall flounder into confusion worse confounded. They are quacks, he says, and "quack science is every whit as dangerous as quack medicine; it invites disaster by false diagnosis"

There ain't, young Mr. Langdon-Davies affirms emphatically, no such animals as Nordics. For that matter, there really ain't no such thing as "races" in the true sense. By and large the normal human being is inately about the same stuff the whole world over. Alpine, Nordic and Mediterranean, brachy—and dolichocephalic—those are only convenient labels pasted on the skins of type specimens who, under the epidermis, are quite as like as the traditional peas in a pod.

Furthermore—the Langdon-Davies iconoclasm knows no limits—so-called eugenics is a pipe dream. Man cannot hope to breed himself as he breeds milch cattle or prodigious dahlias. His stock is too completely mongrelized. His "independent unit characters" are too numerous and too mixed, good with bad. The offspring of some chance amour is just as likely to prove a superman as is the product of the most carefully selective mating.

These are the brickbats young Mr. Langdon-Davies bounces off the beans of his opponents. It must be admitted that in the bombardment he shows control and speed which should recommend him to any big thought league magnate who is shy a dependable controversalist.

Race classification is purely artificial, a convenient means of assorting certain types and groups for ready reference. Physically, the differences are the superficial ones of skin color, hair texture and skull shape. The extremist types do not begin to be as far apart as horses and donkeys. All can interbreed, and most have done so.

Knocks Down "House of Cards."

Phychologically, too, such differences as exist are negligible, according to Mr. Langdon-Davies. Science can find no evidence whatever that one race is inherently less intelligent than another, less "moral" or more "primitive" and "animal."

The gradation of humanity into superior and inferior races is a matter of the personal equation of the grader. All peoples regard their own prevailing characteristics as the normal ones, and look upon folk who do not happen to possess them as strange and even repulsive.

So, with vigor and thoroughness, young Mr. Langdon-Davies knocks down our house of cards, with a single whiff of his breath destroys our Nordic supremacy and wafts our eugenic babies into Limbo before they are even born.

Most annoying thing of all, young Mr. Langdon-Davies happens to be an Englishman, born in Zululand and educated—if one can call it that—at Oxford. Yet he comes here and tells us our revised immigration laws are based on fallacies and our eugenistic yearnings are poppycock. He even has the impudence to suggest that Negroes and Polish Jews are regular folks like us, biologically, and that, the real difference between a Sicilian feudist, an Armenian rug seller and the President of our Rotary Club—a real heman with solid business sense is one of environment.

All these ideas are presented in "The New Age of Faith," just published by the Viking Press of New York.

Of course Mr. Langdon-Davies is by no means the pioneer sceptic in this field. Less than a month ago, for instance, in the September issue of "American Medicine" Dr. Ira S. Wile examined with destructive results the Wiggam dictum that "birth control is the most momentous fact in the history of mankind."

Regarding The Edwardses.

Before attempting to increase our superior and decrease our inferior specimens by selective breeding, Dr. Wile pointed out, we must establish precise and trustworthy standards of superiority and inferiority, and for the present at least "facts are unavailable" for the scientific enumeration of hereditable factors and their relative values in promoting the welfare of future generations.

No such blandness marks the Langdon-Davies attitude and its expression. He sets out by describing his opponent as a "typical heredity field" and proceeds to tear to shreds the Wiggam pronouncement that "we already have enough science right at hand to bring the world into an earthly paradise" by the application of eugenic wisdom.

Three of his right crosses are exceptionally vicious, and Mr. Wiggan will do well, if he is controversially ring-wise, to roll his head with the punches.

The first of them has to do with that Elizabeth Tuthill who was grandmother of Jonathan Edwards, who in turn was the ancestor of 12 college Presidents, 265 college graduates, 65 college professors, 60 physicians, 100 clergymen, 75 army officers, 60 prominent authors, 100 lawyers, 30 Judges, 80 public officials, 3 Congressmen, 2 United States Senators and 1 Vice President of the United States.

"Here," writes Mr. Langdon-Davies, "is Mr. Wiggan's prize example of the virtues of good heredity. It is to be regretted he entirely forgets to mention all the facts about Elizabeth. Why does our heredity field not tell us she was afterward divorced on the grounds of adultery and other immoralities, that the evil trait was in the blood, for one of her sisters murdered her own son and a brother murdered his own sister, and that Elizabeth herself was in fact afflicted with an extraordinary deficiency in moral sense."

Would any eugenical board of examiners have permitted Elizabeth Tuthill to marry, and hand down such tainted germ plasm, Mr. Langdon-Davies asks, and answers his own question with a nemphatic No.

Without Benefit. of Eugenics.

He gets to the Wiggan jaw again with a reminder that Byron, Keats, Darwin, Julius Caesar, St. Paul and Dostoievski were all invalids and the last three epileptics to boot, while Calvin, Newton, Heine, Voltaire, Herbert Spencer and Robert Louis Stevenson were all such unpromising babies that the ancient Spartan eugenists would have marked them for exposure and death at birth.

"In other words," he sums his point up, "history is packed with examples where eugenic interference would have impoverished the world beyond repair."

He lands his third hard jolt with the brief list of such human peculiarities as are positively known to follow the Mendelian laws of heredity. Eye color is the only normal trait among them, brown eyes being dominant to blue. The rest are all minor abnormalities of no sociological significance—such defects or peculiarities as brachydactyly, or unusual stumpiness of figure, tylosis palmaris, or thickened skin on the palms; epidermolysis pollosa, a tendency of the skin to blister easily; premature infantile baldness, enlarged spleen, night blindness, dropping of the upper lip, haemophila, or easy bleeding, and color blindness.

"Mendel's laws," observes Mr. Langdon-Davies, "tell us all we know about the proportions in which certain characters of parents appear in offspring. Is his knowledge valuable from the point of view of human social problems?"

"As for the inheritance of mental traits—the only human characteristic of real social significance—he goes on, the very clever and the insane are the only persons about whose children heredity and genetics have anything at all to tell us, and as such persons represent only two out of each 1,000 of the population, it is a 500 to 1 bet that eugenics will have no great meaning in any particular case.

Why Eugenics Goes So Strong.

"An ordinary man," he says, "has in him thousands of traits, some good, some bad, and in so far as they are heritable at all the likelihood of each trait appearing in the child is irrespective of what happens to all the other traits . . . The elemental of chance for the eugenist would be as great as that appertaining to ordinary uncontrolled mating."

Why then, young Mr. Langdon-Davies imagines himself asked, has the eugenistic ballyhoo appeared so strongly to a section of the American public."

Because, he answers, it gives its adherents a "synthetic fig leaf" of pseudo-scientific respectability with which to cover the nakedness of their class prejudices. It flatters their self-approval to be singled out as the superior element of the population, and urged to propagate their kind instead of letting their inferiors breed with vigor and "wreck the race."

In the same way, he declares, such "race fiends" as Madison Grant and Lothrop Stoddard have pandered to another set of prejudices for which there is no scientific or biological foundation, but only a psychological one. Negroes and "Polish Jews" and "Southern Europeans" are "branded with inferiority not in their germ plasm, but in the minds of those of us who look down on them as inferior, disagreeable or undesirable beings.

Lloyd George Hopes America Is in 'Exalted Mood' to Help Save China From Bolsheviki

U. S. Has Started on Right Basis, He Observes, But European Nations Have Forgotten Orient in Concern Over Locarno Meeting.

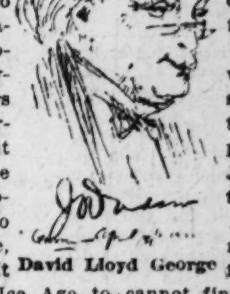
By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE,
War-Time Premier of Great Britain.

LONDON, Oct. 17 (By Cable).

THE collective mind of Western and Central Europe is concentrating on the important proceedings just concluded on the banks of a Swiss lake at Locarno. It is too early to pronounce any opinion on the actual terms of agreements arrived at.

Will arbitration cover all possible, or even probable, disputes regarding the eastern and western frontiers of Germany? If disputable issues likely to arise under the Treaty of Versailles are excluded, the Locarno treaty will lose four-fifths its value and force as a pact for peace. Those who are cognizant of the real difficulties of establishing a durable peace in Europe will scan the stipulations for any agreement with anxious care, with a view to discovering whether all dangers are provided against.

Apart, however, from all questions as to details of the pact, the atmosphere and setting of the Locarno conference will help to establish a European peace. There has been a friendliness amounting almost to cordiality in their relations between the representatives of the powers. It is but six years since the Treaty of Versailles was signed, but the journey from the Paris of 1919 to the Locarno of 1925 is not to be measured by time, but by temperature. It is a flight from the Ice Age to the genial warmth of a trans-Alpine valley.



David Lloyd George

Attitude of 1919.

In 1919 nothing would induce that dour old French statesman, M. Clemenceau, to meet the German delegates on equal terms. When he met them, I doubt whether he extended to them his hand in formal welcome. He had, of course, the excuse that discussions around a table on every detail of so gigantic a treaty would postpone peace for at least a year and would involve the maintenance by France and Britain of huge armies on the Rhine at a crushing cost until the Germans' signature was secured.

It took a year to persuade French statesmen to consent to appear at a conference with German delegates.

The first experiment was made at Spa in the summer of 1920. The French Premier, M. Millerand, at that conference looked like a good boy who had been tempted by his friends much against his will to enter bad company. He was bashful and uneasy and made frequent efforts to break away.

M. Briand is a less rigid and more adaptable person than his predecessor. He has also another advantage over him in the possession of a rich sense of humor. Conferences with German multiplied under his regime, and the temper of each successive conference improved.

There was a touch of spring at the Cannes conversations in January, 1922. Then came the Poincare blizzard, and all geniality froze. With the disappearance of M. Poincare a thaw set in. The Dawes report was the first rose of that summer. And now comes Locarno, and it is "Roses All the Way."

Change of Mind.

Smiles, handshakes, excursions on the lake—and best sign of all, the pleasant interchange of little jokes. Such men make poor hypocrites. This change of manner must therefore betoken a change of mind. It is rather early to expect a change of heart.

Whilst European countries are primarily concerned about negotiations over a pact which affects their own frontiers, they appear for the moment to have entirely overlooked their interests in the Far East, which are being seriously implicated by events in China.

The other day I received from the Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Republic of China—the nationalist Government at Canton—a revealing communication which may be of interest. The Minister had evidently done me the honor of reading an article written by me some weeks ago on the Chinese situation, hence this letter:

"I take the liberty of writing you in reply to some remarks you made through the American press in an article on June 29 last regarding the Chinese crisis.

"From your statement I learn with satisfaction that the British cannot find fault with China for wishing to realize her nationalist ideals, Britain being herself, you contend, the traditional upholder of national sentiment.

Allays His Fears.

"You remind the world that Great Britain and America should be just to China's cause. What you say of the movement in China, as being one towards national freedom and self-respect, and that the conditions of workers in China have in fact aroused the sympathy of workers in other lands, indicates your profound knowledge of Chinese affairs.

"As to your fears of a new peril arising in the East, and of Chinese hatred of foreigners, you will permit me to assure you that no new peril is likely to arise if equitable relations with China are established. The presumption of our hatred for foreigners is groundless, by reason of the fact that we receive and treat in a very friendly spirit the nationals whose governments have abolished all unequal treaties and replaced these by new ones based on justice, equality and mutual respect.

"As a civilized nation we demand the cancellation of unequal treaties, the rendition of concessions and the abolition of other unjust agreements wrung from the effete Manchu dynasty which ruled over this country until is was thrown over in 1911.

"I am at a loss to follow your trend of thought when you say that the American Boxer indemnity funds devoted to education have helped to swell discontent, unless it is meant that the Chinese should not be roused from the state of servitude which the unequal treaties and the policy of extermination by imperialist powers forced upon this country during the past hundred years.

Kuo Min Tang Aims.

"The Kuo Min Tang party admits its leadership in the nationalist movement of China, and in the work of arousing the peoples' nationalist sentiments.

"What we Chinese do expect and will be satisfied with is, as you have said, justice from the Christian nations, and we heartily echo with you the advice you give to the imperialist powers, to 'Be just and fear not,' for only righteousness exalteth a nation.

"In conclusion, permit me, sir, to express my heartiest thanks to you for your courageous statement, which the people of China

Undermining the Constitution.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

YOU are to be congratulated for upholding the rights of the people as against the unwarranted aggressions of Government in exceeding its authority in the enforcement of its pet laws. The Declaration of Independence recites as one of our grievances against the British King that "he has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance, because they declare themselves (the British Government) invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever." In 1761 James Otis denounced the practise of the British Government of issuing writs of assistance (general search warrants) commanding its officers to search anyone anywhere whom they suspected of smuggling contraband goods into our country, so that we may rightly say that unlawful search and seizure was one of the great causes of the revolution.

The fact is that the Constitution of the United States was written for and is dedicated to the great cause of human liberty and personal rights; the eighteenth amendment destroys human liberty and personal rights; the amendment therefore is an enemy of the Constitution, and a dangerous enemy because it has invaded the Constitution itself, and will finally destroy it—oil and water do not mix. Need we be surprised therefore, if, in order to enforce the eighteenth amendment the officers of the law find it necessary to violate other parts of the Constitution such as the fourth and fifth amendments relating to search and seizure? One need but listen to the testimony of the police officers in Judge Gayer's Court with reference to arrest and searches in liquor cases to become convinced that the officers of the law are themselves trampling the Constitution under foot. I do not blame them, because they are ordered to do so. Prohibition cannot be enforced without violating the Constitution. The Federal officers, to my own knowledge, rush into places without announcing who they are or what they intend and browbeat both proprietors of places and spectators, and, by attempting to inject fear into their hearts, proceed to make unlawful raids in violation of the Constitution.

Parking All Night.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WILL somebody explain why the police permit so many automobiles to remain out all night standing on the streets? They certainly are additional hiding places for holdups, as they obstruct not only the view but also fire apparatus, ambulances, etc. CITIZEN.

Failure to Vote.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

AFTER reading the article in full, signed by Jeff Mackay, I will state my opinion just why honest-to-goodness voters are failing to vote, as they used to do, years ago. The voting proposition is now so corruptive, so complicated and so politically inclined, that an honest vote at the polls, is only considered a nuisance and a misdemeanor, by political crooks.

Take for instance, the passing of the eighteenth amendment. The voice of the people was consulted for their opinion, and the eighteenth amendment was considered as beaten by the people. It was then dragged into Congress, and there, by a vote between the Senators and Representatives of the House, it finally became a law.

Also, take for instance the last presidential election. Many of the working classes were for La Follette, and they would, eventually, have voted for him—but because they were working for some large firm or corporation which was politically inclined for Republicanism, and opposed to Progressive ideals, those corporation managers talked of shutting down their plants, laying off some of their employes, and did all they could to intimidate and scare the workers into submission, as they only wished. I have been a registered voter for about 10 years now, but I will never fall for any of that intimidation stuff—and hope, the law of the land will curb this crookedness and corruption that exists within the ranks of capitalism and labor.

The Matter With the Movies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE London Times sent its representative to America to find out a solution to the oft repeated query of "What's Wrong With the Movies." Every independent producer, exhibitor and distributor in this country not affiliated with the trust can tell him in five minutes. It is up to the Federal Trade Commission to bring in its findings in the complaints registered with that body in 1919 against Adolph Zukor, Jesse Lasky and associates for alleged restraint in trade. It is up to the New York World and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to give it nationwide publicity and it is up to John Garibaldi Sargent to act. OBSERVER.

POLICE TYRANNY ENDED.

The decision handed down by the Supreme Court a few days ago, upholding the fourth amendment to the Constitution and declaring that "the search of a private dwelling without a warrant is in itself unreasonable and abhorrent to our laws" will undoubtedly make more difficult the enforcement of many of our sumptuary laws.

That is a fact we must frankly face. Without mincing words we all know that in order to enforce the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act many of our constitutional guarantees have been trampled down, and personal rights and security which were inviolable under our theory of government have been ruthlessly flouted.

This condition is not confined to any locality or section. It prevails everywhere in greater or less degree. And everywhere the officials and agents charged with enforcing these sumptuary laws attempt to justify their lawlessness with the same plea. They acknowledge that they cannot enforce these laws without breaking other laws. They say, in effect, though not in so many words, that they cannot enforce the eighteenth amendment without violating the fourth amendment.

The courts have gone far in acquiescing in these unlawful and dangerous practices, and the law enforcement officers have gone farther than even the courts permit, when the matter is called to their attention, in invading homes, arresting, searching and seizing without warrant.

The tyranny of this official lawlessness had become intolerable in many places. Now that tyranny has been curbed by the highest court in the land. This decision once more makes a man's home his castle, which no officer may enter except with a warrant. The officer who attempts such entry without a warrant is a law-breaker by the ruling of the Supreme Court, and the citizen is wholly within his legal and constitutional rights in resisting such an officer by whatever violence may be necessary.

But this situation of armed neutrality between citizens and the police or the special constabulary created to enforce an offensive, impracticable, sumptuary law clearly cannot go on. A solution must be found. This prohibition fanatic who sees nothing in the Constitution but the eighteenth amendment, who does not care a rap how many laws are broken so long as his pet law is enforced, has got to retract, or he has got to go all the way through. By going all the way through we mean that he has got to secure the repeal of the fourth amendment in the manner provided by law, for that amendment is not going to become a dead letter by default. By retraction we mean that the prohibition fanatic must accept the limitations placed upon the police power by the fourth amendment, no matter how much it obstructs the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. That, of course, would be an unsatisfactory compromise. The sensible solution of the problem forced upon the country by prohibition is a modification of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act in conformity with public sentiment and therefore legally enforceable.

Anyhow, enforcement of law by official lawlessness is ended. The Supreme Court has rung the death knell of that demoralizing, un-American tyranny.

CORD WOOD ON SUBSCRIPTION.

Editor Naeter of Cape Girardeau finds food for pleasant reflection in the discovery that cord wood is no longer taken as payment for subscriptions by country newspapers. The reason for his gladness is not clear.

The Salem Monitor (weekly, now extinct) used to have a subscription rate of $1 a year. Cord wood was $1 a cord. Dollars were few and wood was plentiful, so the delivery of a cord of wood and the setting up a notch of the deliverer's subscription was a happy interchange, satisfactory to all, and duly reported among the locals.

Nowadays the average country weekly has advanced its rate to $2 per year, more or less, while cord wood has advanced to anywhere from $6 to $18 a cord. The editor must be a rosy-cheeked optimist who can find something to please him in that situation.

THE PRESIDENTIAL PRESS CONFERENCE.

Twice a week the President meets Washington newspaper correspondents to answer questions about the public affairs of the nation. These questions are typed and handed in a few moments before the time of the conference. In an article entitled "Trials of the White House Spokesman" Samuel McCoy, in The Independent, makes much of this part of the President's job. Of the conference itself Mr. McCoy says:

> It is the hardest school in the world. Talk about the "little red schoolhouse"! This big white-painted schoolhouse, with just this one "pupil" in it, is inconceivably more difficult! Here are 50 or 60 sharp-thinking examiners—the newspaper men—and every one of them is firing his questions direct at this one man who faces the crowd! It is an ordeal without parallel in any school, university or political post in the entire world.

Mr. McCoy has let enthusiasm for his subject carry him away. There are many other ordeals more trying than the news conference. To mention but one, when the Prime Minister of England goes into the House of Commons to expound a policy he is subject to interpellation from the keenest political minds of the country, a process infinitely more trying than the press conference of the President.

The fact is the press conference, especially under Coolidge, is a very tame affair. Mr. McCoy makes much of the fact that the President was asked 1582 questions in a single year. But he does not place equal emphasis on the fact that a very small number of these questions were answered.

The President reserves the power of life or death over questions submitted, and most of them receive the latter penalty. He answers only those which suit his convenience, and then frequently in such very general and platitudinous terms that only the most ingenious news skill makes of the answers a readable story.

As a matter of fact, instead of being an ordeal, the news conference is a convenience for the President. It is obviously necessary for him to keep in touch with the public, and the press conference is the most efficient way to do it. There are no oral questions at all, except on subjects which the President chooses to discuss, and these are made with the greatest deference, of course. To picture the President as being under a fire of sharp questions is to exaggerate and misstate the case.

AN UNWRITTEN AMERICAN EPIC.

Magic of romance inheres in the history of the Old Santa Fe Trail, pioneer pathway from Missouri to New Mexico. Recently at Council Grove, Kan., was celebrated the centenary of a treaty with Indians which opened to white travel the trail, already ancient, to the Wild Southwest. Nobody knows how old is that historic highway. Indians whose tribal names have perished along with themselves first traversed it. Along its unpeopled way trekked the Spanish conquerors of the Aztecs of Mexico. Wearily over the tortuous route toiled Coronado's command seeking the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola. Up the Santa Fe Trail came to defeat and decimation the formidable expedition sent by Spain to wrest the Father of Waters from French control.

Beginning in 1825, trappers and traders from Missouri and many other points in the settled sections pierced—with redskin permission of a sort—the wild Southwestern wastelands which today are domains of law and order but have not attained as yet more than a negligible fraction of their manifest destiny. In 1846 Col. Alexander W. Doniphan led his stalwart Missourians down the old trail upon an expedition which by comparison made a celebrated exploit chronicled by Xenophon look something like a mild Sunday school story going begging for readers.

For decade after decade the prairie schooner sailed, by no means serenely, along that route to Santa Fe. Upon the same road the Overland Mail and the Pony Express had their beginnings. Indians, despite treaties and "treats"—including paleface firewater—compelled the United States Army to become protective constabulary to the trail's traversers. Incidentals in that service were Buffalo Bill, Jim Bridger, Kit Carson and other illustrious scouts whose biographies provide genuine thrills for the millions.

At last the ancient trail found its first historian, the late Col. Henry Inman of Kansas City, who had served with the army along the romantic route and who, in childhood, had sat upon the knees of Edgar Allan Poe in the home of his father, the first Henry Inman, a famous American painter.

Thus, in a way of speaking, poetry and painting were linked with pioneering. But the Old Santa Fe Trail has yet to find its poet who can put into epic song a tale which, rendered with adequate spiritual insight, would make a combined American Iliad and Odyssey such as perhaps no mass of raw material in our national history suggests to genius.

This high assignment is suggested to John G. Neihardt, the Illinois-born Nebraska bard, now sequestered in the Missouri Ozarks, at Branson, where he is completing his epic of American Indian life which began with "The Song of Hugh Glass" some years ago—a poem of indubitable merit. Mr. Neihardt should epicize the Old Santa Fe Trail for posterity.

HO HUM!

St. Louis newspapers described the history of a little patch of California land, known as Section 36, as a fabulous romance. Section 36 is located in the Kern River oil district, near the famous Elk Hills field. 'Way back yonder in 1907 it was owned by Alice J. Miller, who paid for it the sum of $160. When the State attempted to collect on it $3.28 in taxes the land went begging. Later it fell into the hands of Francis J. Carman, who, sensing the treasures that lay beneath the scrubby surface, sold it to the Standard Oil Co. for $100,000. The value of Section 36 is now estimated at more than a billion dollars.

This is fabulous enough, but we fail to see in it anything of the romantic. It is true Francis J. Carman got a handsome profit, but what about Alice J. Miller? Besides, from a comparative standpoint, Carman was cheated, while the Standard Oil Co., already rich beyond the dreams of Midas, is a billion richer.

No, the story of Section 36 is stupidly humdrum. If it were only reversed! If only the rich and grasping Standard Oil Co. had refused to pay a tax bill of $3.28 on Section 36 and a poor widow named Alice J. Miller had put up that mite so that she might have a place to rear children and grow chickens! As it is, the Standard Oil Co. simply adds another row of figures to its bank account. Ho hum!

THE VOICE OF YOUTH.

An age-old controversy over forms of baptism occupied much of the time of the International Convention of Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) at Oklahoma City last week. If it seems a pity that men should quibble over forms and symbols, rather than further the broad principles of religion, the controversy was not without its hopeful phases. It was something that many leaders saw fit to question the need of immersion in an organization long a stickler for that rite. It is more that many turned from this petty bickering to voice a clearer insight into the program needed for world betterment, recognizing the folly of bigotry and the need of accepting the good of other peoples' cultures, civilizations and even religions, while granting them the right of choice and opinion.

More hopeful even than tolerance among leaders of the church, perhaps, was the warning voice of youth that sounded ere the convention closed. A student told the graybeards something they should hear, when Dorothea Gray, a student at Phillips University, a Christian college at Enid, Ok., said:

> It seems to us the church does not attack the race problem and other social problems fearlessly enough. It will not demand that its members carry their Christianity to their business offices. A great deal of the time and energy of the church are spent in theological discussions, church quarrels and the like. How unimportant, how insignificant these things seem to us young people, compared to the task of applying Christianity to our social and economic problems.

There is food for thought in that for all churchmen who feel the church is losing its hold on the youth of the land. There is a warning in it for all who see in dogma and ceremony the sacredness of religion and forget the greater purposes. There is the hope that youth sees more clearly now than in the past and that their vision holds the key to broader understanding that shall help the peoples of the world to dwell in amity.

PANETELA.

Yes, Luella,
Things are popping.
Though you wouldn't Think it quite;
Take the prospect
As to taxes,
Changing almost Over night.
Yesterday
It was so rosy,
And such promises
Were made
That the reader
Could imagine
All the war bills
Had been paid.

More than hopefully
Attractive
Was what Mr.
Garner said:
Uncle Sam,
The way we're going,
Comes out
Terribly ahead.
Something like
To half a billion
Simply lies
Out in the wet
After all
The obligations
Of the Government
Are met.

For the first time
Everybody
Is agreed
That rich or poor
There is not
The least occasion
For extortion
Any more.
Even that
Dread opposition
Which upset
The Mellon plan
On the last
Hard-fought occasion
All but joins him
To a man.

So it seems,
My little girlie,
More than
Hopefully implied
That the bumptious
Cost of living
Might in good
Due course subside.
Such a thing
Seems scarcely likely,
But if all
These merry men
Keep their promises
We might well
Get our dollar
Back again.

Just imagine
How through all
The dread alarms,
We at last
Would quite abandon Us to one
Another's arms.
Maybe neither
Just exactly
As we were
Within the past,
But at any Rate united
And the war
Done for at last.

A ST. LOUISAN ABROAD.

FRANCE.

English and French characteristics are sharply contrasted on the trip from Southampton to Cherbourg. At the English end the embarkation is systematic, quick and calm; on the French side there is confusion, delay and excitement. We fall in with a throng of new French-speaking American tourists rushing madly about in an effort to straighten out the mass of baggage and get aboard their train for Paris. Somehow things iron themselves out and the trains get under way, leaving us to pursue our leisurely program, which includes a visit to the extensive, well kept and comfortable emigrant clearing station. Men and women from Russia, Poland, Hungary, Lithuania, and many other parts of Europe are assembled here, examined, and cleared to the labor-hungry sections of the New World. We are shown through by a Russian orphan, a sad looking youngster of 14, on his way to Argentine. He shows the spirit of New Russia by refusing our proffered tip, patting his pocket confidently to indicate that he has sufficient for his needs.

Our first stop in Normandy is Caen, where William the Conqueror and his wife Mathilde built two magnificent churches in the grim, rugged, fortress-like Romanesque style of the eleventh century. Nothing built in the eight centuries since then surpasses "La Trinite" and "St. Etienne" in point of perfect balance and proportion. * * * The Norman heritage of the people in these parts is evident in the prevalence of blue eyes and blonde hair. Women do most of the heavy work, men supervise, sit in the cafes, sip their wine, smoke cigarettes and look important. A heavy cart drawn by a woman and a dog goes by. Sunday is barely observed; most of the shops are open until noon.

We go to Bayeux, just a few miles away, to see the famous tapestry, said to have been made by Mathilde's own hands, at any rate, in her time. It is rather thrilling to read the chronicle of William's achievements in this series of pictures woven more than 400 years before the discovery of America. The colors, still bright, testify to the quality of medieval craftsmanship. In the same museum a document signed by William with "his mark," indicates that this great figure in history could not write.

A MAPLE IN OCTOBER.

I love the caprice of that man-child October.
Culling with delicate finger my leaves—
See, at my feet in a circle of amber,
See what a marvelous carpet he weaves?

Alas, he is brute again (or, is he petulant?)
Shrilling, and shaking my head in the cold—
Yet see what this does to my carpet of amber,
Now thicker and softer with lavish of gold!

"THE EAGLE OF THE SEAS."

From the Rocky Mountain News.

THE anniversary of the victory of the United States frigate Constitution over the British frigate Guerriere occurred a short time ago. Old Ironsides today is moored alongside a wharf in a Massachu- setts harbor. Four times rebuilt, the old ship is once more in need of rebuilding if she is to be saved from the scrap heap. Congress will be asked to make an appro- priation to save a ship that nearly a cen- tury ago brought from Oliver Wendell Holmes that poem of salvation, "Aye, Tear Her Tattered Ensign Down."

A quarter of a century ago the Constitu- tion was in the state of decay that it is today. Congress was not inclined to vote any further money for the rehabilitation of a man-of-war that had made history. One day there came to Congress a petition in behalf of Old Ironsides signed by 100,000 American citizens. Congress was impressed and once more the ship was saved.

President Coolidge visited the Constitu- tion this summer. No man ever saw the ship without getting a thrill. Undoubtedly the President will ask Congress for an ap- propriation to save this "Eagle of the Seas" for future generations of Americans. If Congress shall refuse the request it is much better that the alternative suggestion of Oliver Wendell Holmes should be heeded and that Old Ironsides should be given "to the God of storms, the lightning and the gale."

HOW FAST DO CATFISH GROW?

From a Kansas Fish Bulletin.

MUCH uncertainty exists relative to the rate of growth of the Spotted Channel catfish. A study of this question at the Kansas Hatchery and in Kansas streams has revealed that there is a wide difference in the rate of growth in different waters. Conditions which govern are food, depth, quantity and quality of water and the fish population of waters. Under ideal conditions (that is, in deep streams with an abundance of food supply, which means a stream fairly free from pollution and where the fish population is not dense), a Spotted Channel catfish will grow fully a half pound a year and in instances specimens have been found that exceeded this growth. Our observations lead us to believe that the rate of growth the second and third years is greater than during the first year. While specimens of the Spotted Channel catfish may spawn the second year, it is not until the third year after hatched that they can be depended upon to spawn. If kept in favorable surroundings, they will then have attained a size of between two and three pounds. The span of life of the Channel probably exceeds that of most scale fishes although this is but a guess. There are Channel catfish in the Kansas Hatchery that have been there for 10 years and still appear to be in good condition and good for many more years. It is not unreasonable to conclude that a 25-pound Channel catfish is at least 25 years old.

WHEN I got back to Chicago the situation, so far as my prospects were concerned, had not perceptibly improved, and I found that my first fight would be to get my delegation seated, it having been shut out of the temporary organization by action of the National Committee, in which the gold men had a considerable majority.

The possibility of my nomination led me to urge Mrs. Bryan to attend the convention, a precaution of which I was afterward glad when the convention resulted as it did. We took rooms at the Clifton House, where my delegation had headquarters. My reason for selecting the Clifton House was that it was just across the street from the Palmer House. Our National Committeeman, a gold man, had engaged rooms for the gold delegates at the Palmer House, and as it was the center of the political activity at that time, I thought it wise to be as near the Palmer House as possible.

Thrift in Politics.

After my nomination it was quite customary for the papers to give a sensational color to convention reports by representing me as being housed at a small hotel. As I have explained, my delegation would have been housed at the Palmer House but for the reasons given.

I may add, however, that as the rates were lower at the Clifton House, I can point to a less pretentious hotel bill than I would have had at the Palmer House. I took $100 with me, and after paying the hotel bill of Mrs. Bryan and myself during the convention week, I had about $40 left—an expenditure probably as small as anyone has spent in securing a presidential nomination. It did not, of course, include my share of the expenses of the delegates or the expenses of the preliminary contest in which the delegates were selected, but even this sum was inconsiderable, as no money whatever was spent in entertaining delegations or delegates.

Steam Roller at Work.

The exclusion of my delegates was a good illustration of machine politics. As has been shown elsewhere, there was not the slightest ground for the opposing delegates. There was no irregularity in our convention, and it represented more than nineteen-twentieths of the party vote in Nebraska. But the gold and corporation faction had control of the old national committee, and the other delegation was seated, making us the contesting delegation before the credentials committee of the convention.

The delegates desired me to lead the fight before the committee, and this kept me from attending the sessions of the Committee on Resolutions, for which I was selected by our delegates.

Hon. C. J. Smyth took an active part in presenting our side, a fact which I remember with peculiar satisfaction, because his law partner, Hon. T. J. Mahoney, was head of the gold delegation and presented their side. It is not often that a law firm is thus divided, two members opposing each other on an issue so clearly drawn as that, but they were both men of such high character and breadth that the political contest did not disturb their professional and personal relations.

His Delegates Seated.

The contest before the Credentials Committee of the convention was one sided, the opposition bringing in no minority report. Our bi-metallist delegates were seated. I was more exultant over the seating of our delegation than I was over my nomination. In the former case I could rejoice with the boys; in the latter case my rejoicing was sobered by a sense of responsibility.

As soon as my delegation was seated, I went to the Resolutions Committee and took the place vacated by the representative of the gold delegation.

When I entered the committee room I asked for a copy of the platform as drafted and examined the money plank. I found that it had been accepted exactly as I had written it two weeks before, and without the other members of the committee knowing that I was the author of the plank.

While attending the Republican convention I had called on C. H. Jones, editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He was a very able man,

How Accidents of Fate, Giving Leadership In Democratic Convention Debate of 1896, Found Him Prepared to Take Nomination

After Nebraska's Free Silver Delegation Had Been Barred, Contest Seated Them — Expenses for Himself and Mrs. Bryan During Chicago Meeting Only $60—Explains Bi-Metallism Theory.

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN,
Edited and Corrected by Mary Baird Bryan.

WHEN I got back to Chicago the situation, so far as my prospects were concerned, had not perceptibly improved, and I found that my first fight would be to get my delegation seated, it having been shut out of the temporary organization by action of the National Committee, in which the gold men had a considerable majority.

The possibility of my nomination led me to urge Mrs. Bryan to attend the convention, a precaution of which I was afterward glad when the convention resulted as it did. We took rooms at the Clifton House, where my delegation had headquarters. My reason for selecting the Clifton House was that it was just across the street from the Palmer House. Our National Committeeman, a gold man, had engaged rooms for the gold delegates at the Palmer House, and as it was the center of the political activity at that time, I thought it wise to be as near the Palmer House as possible.

Thrift in Politics.

After my nomination it was quite customary for the papers to give a sensational color to convention reports by representing me as being housed at a small hotel. As I have explained, my delegation would have been housed at the Palmer House but for the reasons given.

I may add, however, that as the rates were lower at the Clifton House, I can point to a less pretentious hotel bill than I would have had at the Palmer House. I took $100 with me, and after paying the hotel bill of Mrs. Bryan and myself during the convention week, I had about $40 left—an expenditure probably as small as anyone has spent in securing a presidential nomination. It did not, of course, include my share of the expenses of the delegates or the expenses of the preliminary contest in which the delegates were selected, but even this sum was inconsiderable, as no money whatever was spent in entertaining delegations or delegates.

Steam Roller at Work.

The exclusion of my delegates was a good illustration of machine politics. As has been shown elsewhere, there was not the slightest ground for the opposing delegates. There was no irregularity in our convention, and it represented more than nineteen-twentieths of the party vote in Nebraska. But the gold and corporation faction had control of the old national committee, and the other delegation was seated, making us the contesting delegation before the credentials committee of the convention.

The delegates desired me to lead the fight before the committee, and this kept me from attending the sessions of the Committee on Resolutions, for which I was selected by our delegates.

Hon. C. J. Smyth took an active part in presenting our side, a fact which I remember with peculiar satisfaction, because his law partner, Hon. T. J. Mahoney, was head of the gold delegation and presented their side. It is not often that a law firm is thus divided, two members opposing each other on an issue so clearly drawn as that, but they were both men of such high character and breadth that the political contest did not disturb their professional and personal relations.

His Delegates Seated.

The contest before the Credentials Committee of the convention was one sided, the opposition bringing in no minority report. Our bi-metallist delegates were seated. I was more exultant over the seating of our delegation than I was over my nomination. In the former case I could rejoice with the boys; in the latter case my rejoicing was sobered by a sense of responsibility.

As soon as my delegation was seated, I went to the Resolutions Committee and took the place vacated by the representative of the gold delegation.

When I entered the committee room I asked for a copy of the platform as drafted and examined the money plank. I found that it had been accepted exactly as I had written it two weeks before, and without the other members of the committee knowing that I was the author of the plank.

While attending the Republican convention I had called on C. H. Jones, editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. He was a very able man, entirely in sympathy with the progressive ideas of the party, and had had previous experience in writing platforms. Some of the leaders on our side had asked him to prepare a draft of the platform. He showed me the planks that he had written and I volunteered to submit a money plank to him. As I knew him personally, and had been associated with him in the convention contests, he gladly accepted my offer and incorporated my plank just as it was written.

Chosen to Lead Debate.

There were two planks which, according to my recollection, I added to the paltform after I joined the committee. Someone suggested that we had no plank on arbitration, and if my memory serves me right, I wrote that plank and it was accepted. And then someone suggested that there was no plank on the Venezuela question, and I wrote that.

It will be seen, therefore, that I had very little to do with writing the Chicago platform, although since the convention I have been given credit for writing it.

And now we come to another unexpected stroke of luck. Senator Jones, chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, sent for me. I at once responded to the summons, and he said, in a matter of fact way, "Mr. Bryan, I wish you would take charge of this debate."

No summons to distinction ever came to one more unexpectedly. I asked him if he did not want to conduct the debate himself, and he replied in the negative.

I digress for a moment to remind the readers that this was a position to which I aspired in the beginning, but which I was not willing to be a candidate for after I heard of Senator Jones' aspirations. Then I had seen my chance of temporary chairmanship disappear, and then the chance for the permanent chairmanship—which afterward had become impossible because the possibility of my nomination made the other candidates hostile to the suggestion. And now, having passed through the circle of disappointment, I found myself in the very position for which I had at first longed.

A Step to His Ambition.

Before continuing the narrative, the reader may be interested, as I was, to know why this good fortune befell me. After the convention was over and Senator Jones had been made chairman of the National Committee at my request, I asked him how he happened to turn the defense of the platform over to me. I know that it was not with any thought of favoring me as a candidate, because he was a supporter of Mr. Bland, and too loyal to him to have knowingly given an opportunity to any possible candidate if there was any likelihood of the opportunity being used to the disadvantage of his choice.

And I myself had no thought of the effect which was later produced by my speech. Although I had, before the convention met, regarded my nomination as a possibility, I had relied upon what I called the logic of the situation, rather than upon the influence of a speech.

The speech that I expected to make was not different from the speeches that I had been making, except in the setting, to which I had not given special consideration. My interest was in the subject, and I felt that I was master of the subject and could give expression to the sentiment of the convention as represented by a little more than two-thirds of its members.

Senator Jones answered my question by saying that I was the only one of the prominent speakers who had not had an opportunity to address the convention. He referred to the speeches made by the temporary and permanent chairmen, and by others who were called out by the convention while I was attending the meeting of the Credentials Committee. He knew of the part I had taken in the organization of the fight, and how I had traveled over the country for a year helping in many states, and said that his invitation to me was due entirely to a sense of fairness, and hence I honored him more for it than I could have done had it been due to partiality for me.

But to resume: I first went to Senator Hill, who had prepared the minority report, and discussed with him the length of time that should be given to the debate. He recognized that the convention was against him, and favored a short debate. We finally agreed upon an hour and fifteen minutes on a side.

Got Last Word.

I then went to Senator Tillman and asked him how much time he wanted. He said he would like to have the closing speech, and would require nearly an hour. I told him that I thought Senator Hill would not be willing to have so long a speech made in conclusion, but as he would require that much time, and seemed to prefer the closing speech, I returned to Senator Hill with his request. Hill objected to it on the ground that the first speech ought to be the long one, and the last speech ought to be the short one, and as he did not like to have the Senator follow him, urged me to keep the closing speech for myself and give the opening speech to Senator Tillman.

That, of course, was my preference. I did not care to speak so long, and I knew that the closing speech gave me a better opportunity for my kind of speaking. I had been speaking long enough to know that, comparing myself with myself, I was more effective in a brief speech in conclusion than a longer speech that simply laid down propositions for another to answer. But, as Senator Tillman was older than I, and much more prominent in the counsels of the party, I felt like giving him the place that he preferred. When I told him of Senator Hill's objection to the long speech being made last, he consented to open with 55 minutes, giving me 20 minutes for the closing speech.

Fortune favored me again. For some reason—I do not now recall what the reason was—the debate on the platform was put over until the next day, and I had time to think over my speech during the night and to arrange my arguments in so far as one can arrange arguments for a closing speech.

I fitted my definition of the business man at the place that I thought best, and kept my "cross of gold and crown of thorns" for the conclusion.

When it became known that I was to have charge of the debate, my delegation was quite buoyant. They had known of debates in Nebraska, and they were confident that my closing speech would make an impression on the convention.

When the convention was called to order I felt as I always do just before a speech of unusual importance. I usually have a feeling of weakness at the pit of my stomach—a suggestion of faintness. I want to lie down. But this being impossible in the convention, I got a sandwich and a cup of coffee and devoted myself to those as I waited for the debate to begin.

Tillman Fell Short.

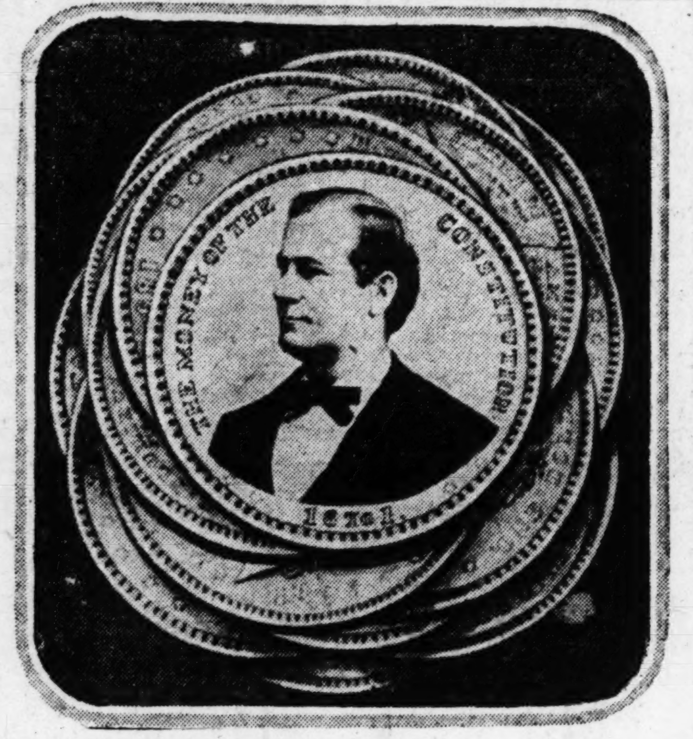
During the moments of suspense, Clarke Howell, new editor of the Atlanta Constitution, with whom I had become acquainted in 1893, and whose father was one of the leaders of the silver movement, sent me a note scribbled on an envelope. It read:

"This is a great opportunity."

I wrote under it the words:

"You will not be disappointed," and sent the envelope back to him.

A Bryan "Free Silver" Badge of 1896



Opportunity for Which He Had Hoped and Worked Came After It Seemed Lost—Delighted to Get Last Word—Brushed Up "Cross of Gold and Crown of Thorns.

Senator Tillman's speech did not present our side to the satisfaction of the friends of bi-metallism. It was a strong speech—he could not make any other kind—but it presented the subject as a sectional issue between the South on one side and the West and Northeast states on the other.

While that division was very clearly represented in the convention, we did not regard it as a necessary division. We believed that the restoration of bi-metallism would be beneficial to the nations everywhere, not only to this country, but all over the world.

When Senator Tillman was through, Senator Jones took the platform and announced to the convention that the committee did not indorse the sectional argument of Senator Tillman. This increased my responsibility, because it threw the whole burden on my closing speech.

Gained More Time.

Senator Hill led the opposition and made the principal speech. He was at his best, and presented the arguments on his side with consummate skill and adroitness. The effect upon the audience was apparent, and the nervousness of our delegation increased as he proceeded. He was followed by Senator Vilas of Wisconsin, a man of high standing in the party, of large experience in politics and great ability as a lawyer. He pounded the advocates of free coinage without mercy.

Near the close of his speech, Gov. Russell of Massachusetts, who was the third and last man on the gold side, came back to Senator's Hill's seat with evident excitement and protested that Senator Vilas was not going to leave him any time. My seat was so near that I could hear Senator Hill. I immediately stepped across the aisle and suggested to him that I was willing to have the time extended and give Gov. Russell the time he wanted, the same period to be added to my time. Gov. Russell was very appreciative of the suggestion, and Senator Hill at once agreed to it.

I cannot say that it was entirely unselfish on my side, but I think I would have made the suggestion if the extension of time had fallen to someone else, but as it was, it added about 10 minutes to my time, and I needed it, for the speech I made, which was 30 or 35 minutes in length. This was another unexpected bit of good fortune.

All Set for Masterpiece.

There never was such a setting for a political speech in my own experience, and so far as I know, there never was such a setting for any other political speech ever made in this country. And it must be remembered that the setting has a great deal to do with a speech.

Webster says that the essentials for a successful speech are eloquence, the subject and the occasion. I felt that I had at least two-thirds of the requirements. I had a subject of transcendent importance.

The demonetization of silver in 1893 had so decreased the world's supply of standard money as to bring about a shrinkage in values that covered a period of more than 20 years. This shrinkage in prices caused by the increase in the purchasing power of the dollar had led to three international conferences in which the leading nations had sought in vain for a remedy.

Many of the leading Republicans were on record as in favor of remonetization as the only means of fighting for the restoration of the parity between money and property. The Republican convention had declared for the maintenance of gold only until it was possible to restore international bi-metallism by agreement and the platform pledged the party to an effort to secure international bi-metallism.

The cause was great enough to bring about a revolt in the Democratic party against those in control—a fight won by the rank and file against all the power of the administration, and of the power of the big corporations and the metropolitan press.

Monastery in Japan Burned.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17. — The Trappist monastery at Hakodate, one of the most important Catholic missionary institutions in Japan, was destroyed by fire early today, according to a cablegram received by the national office of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. This is the second time in the last 10 years the buildings of the monastery have been burned. Hakodate, at the southern end of Japan's northern island of Hokkaido, is the principal port and city of that island. It has been a center of Catholic missionary effort almost since the opening of Japan to Christian workers 60 years ago.

qualities. He gives the impression of energy and solidity. He is heavily built, slightly under medium height. He likes to ride horseback and to grub around in the bush—even indulging in the Gladstonian pastime of tree-felling—around his summer camp at Kingsmere.

Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party, tells this story on himself. After a luncheon in his honor they sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." In the near silence at the conclusion he overheard a low voice say, "Well, maybe he is, but he does not look it."

And shortly before the opening of the present campaign at a public banquet he related that his general organizer, freshly returned from a trip across the country, said to him: "Mr. Meighen, the greatest obstacle you have to overcome is the impression that you are vice president of the Undertakers' Association."

Meighen, in contrast with the rotund jocoseness of the Premier, has the lean and hungry look of Cassius.

In the present campaign his gloomy mien has seemed to be accentuated by his tale of desolated industry and forecast of disaster if the country does not overturn the policies of his opponents. His critics have dubbed him the "Apostle of Gloom." But if Meighen was as gloomy as he looks, he would not be joking about vice president of the undertakers.

One of Meighen's outstanding attributes is a capacity for inspiring in those who come in closest contact with him deep loyalty and affection. He is known in Parliament and on the hustings for his caustic satire; he is often solemn and cold and conveys an impression of weariness or boredom. But behind this unpromising exterior there is a whimsicality and a simplicity and impulses that bind his friends to him with bonds of steel.

He makes enemies, too. His personal relations with the Premier are more acrimonious than have usually existed between opposing leaders. Nor are his enmities confined to his political adversaries. A feud between him and Lord Atholstan, proprietor of the Montreal Star and a power in the Conservative party, affected the result of the 1921 election, has menaced Meighen's leadership in the interval, and still casts a shadow over his future.

Meighen, the Tory, is infinitely less conventional than King the Radical. The Premier would not think of appearing on the golf links anywhere without plus fours and other appropriate habiliments. It is related of Meighen that while attending an imperial conference in London he appeared on a fashionable course wearing a stiff white shirt, collar removed revealing the yellow buttons, long trousers and suspenders!

Were Fellow Students.

Meighen and King were fellow-undergraduates at the University of Toronto. They are the same age. But Meighen had to fight harder than King for advancement, though, even so, he beat King to the premiership. Meighen reached Parliament by way of a country law office, away out on the plains of Portage La Prairie, Manitoba. During his first term his party was in opposition, broken and dispirited. Meighen was unknown, a back-bencher in a back-bench, party. In a skirmish in the House, Laurier and able lieutenants in the seats of the mighty made sport of their disheartened opponents. A back-bencher took the floor. Aggressive, defiant, confident, with a tone and temper that at once arrested attention, he delivered a speech of biting insolence and invective. It was not a great speech. It had no "cross of gold" dramatics. But it put new heart into the opposition and made Arthur Meighen's political future. Within three years the party was in power and Meighen was headed for the Cabinet.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier chose King as his successor, it is probable also true that Sir Robert Borden chose Meighen as his, long before the official decision had to be made. In a sense Laurier also chose Meighen. Many years before he became a leader Laurier spoke of him as the "brightest mind Canadian Conservatism has produced."

Meighen is the most dexterous parliamentarian in Canada today. He has the logic, the lucidity and dispassionateness of the skilled debater and develops his theme in pure language and with an amazing restraint. He will deliver a speech without a change of expression and with few gestures. Like the Premier he convinces every hearer of his sincerity and earnestness. He is quite fearless either in debate or anywhere else. Cautious, analytical, cold, he relieves the tension periodically with a satire that is merciless. When he reached the premiership in 1920 it was said he had reached the top by the "divine right of intellect." In stature he is frail with the face of an ascetic and cold blue eyes. One wonders whence he derives his endurance.

Among lieutenants of the leaders most interest centers in the personalities of two newcomers in the field, Hon. Vincent Massey, the young millionaire scholar and artist, who has joined King's Cabinet, and Hon. E. L. Patenaude, the young French-Canadian leader, who is making an assault on the solid Liberal "bloc' of 65 members in the Province of Quebec. It is said he has a campaign fund of $1,000,000 supplied by Montreal backers.

In the West a new figure in Federal politics in the person of Hon. Charles Dunning, the youthful Premier of Saskatchewan. Twenty years ago he was an English immigrant working as a hired man on a farm, but he has revealed abilities that make him a marked personality. He is not a candidate in the present contest but he is actively supporting Premier King, who has announced that in the event of success Dunning will be taken into the Cabinet.

On the success of the movements represented by these three men, Massey, the low tariff manufacturer in protectionist Ontario; Patenaude, the French-Canadian Conservative in Liberal Quebec; Dunning, the orthodox Liberal in the Agrarian West, will depend the outcome of the election.

"French Briar" Exports Shrinking.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—French manufacturers of briar pipes have become so alarmed over increasing competition from the United States, Italy, England and even Belgium and Austria that they have called upon the Ministers of Commerce and Agriculture to do something about it. There was a time when the French briar was supreme throughout the world and the factories at St. Claude worked day and night to supply the demand. Then began the exportation from France of the "Bruyer" or briar root, and foreign makers learned they could compete on even terms with the French. Imitations and new "bruyers" appeared, and the St. Claude industry found its exports declining to almost negligible proportions. Government officials are considering what measures can be taken to restore the original French briar to its place in the sun.

Page's Impatience With America's Delay Found Relief in Wilson's Order to Arm Ships

Hitherto Unpublished Writings of U. S. Envoy to London

President's Inaugural Address Characterized as "Tame and Vague" in Envoy's Private Memorandum Book—Saw That Unless Germany Modified Submarine Plan U. S. Would Enter Conflict—British Suspicious of Peace Moves.

Today's installment of the series of unpublished letters written by Walter Hines Page, ambassador to Great Britain under President Wilson, brings the record of events up to the very eve of America's entry into the world war. The editor of the letters, Mr. Hendrick, includes besides letters to the President, private notes by Mr. Page, together with explanations of the course of affairs gained by consultation with various leaders, political and diplomatic.

Edited by BURTON J. HENDRICK

13 March, 1917 (Tuesday.)

IT'S well to be patient in judgment, surely. Hard on the President's tame and vague inaugural and his apparent wandering off into the by-way of a controversy with the Senate—hard on these came a few days ago a definite announcement that American ships will be armed fore and aft and that other ships, armed, will be admitted to our ports! And an Extra Session of Congress is called for April. Now that's the stuff!

Meantime, not only the Zimmermann Note to the German Minister in Mexico has done its work on public opinion, but there have come to light various German intrigues, for example, to get Colombia and Nicaragua to get into a row with the United States. Look out for the Canal! Then the practical certainty looms on the horizon of submarine bases somewhere in Central America.

Hence a complete reversal of the Government's position about admitting armed merchantmen. Hence a complete (almost complete) cessation of trade quarrels with Great Britain, such as filled the whole sky when I was in Washington last autumn! Even the President was full of indignation at the British Government for those atrocious crimes. Nobody saw or would believe that the Germans stirred up all this, then!

Curious coincidence: Bernstorff reached land in Norway on the very day Gerard reached Havana!

Bagdall fell on Sunday—the end of the German Eastern dream, for the English are not likely to give that up.

Today I spoke at the unveiling (in St. Paul's) of a tablet to the memory of E. A. Abbey, H. R. H. the Princess Louise pulling the string. I took Mrs. Abbey to and from the Cathedral.

Sees Approach of War.

March 13, 1917.

Unless Germany modifies her submarine plan and exempts all American ships, we shall now soon have war—unless peace come by an almost sudden collapse, which hardly seems likely. Well, we must go in, when we go in, "with both feet."

At Colefax's at dinner last night, Colefax and Sir George Askwith et al. speculated on whether Lloyd George will last as Premier till the war ends. The underhand intrigue that almost every group and party indulge in—Good Lord! deliver us! The Dardanelles Report was published (as the Asquith old Cabinet think) in order to discredit them. It has discredited them, whether that were the purpose or not.

"People Stirred."

20th March, 1917.

The Russian Revolution holds the attention, engages the speculation, and fills the newspapers.

As for American things — the three American ships, news of whose sinking came on Saturday, seem really to have stirred the people to a mood that may possibly cause them to run the President. Everybody is now fearful lest, if we "get into the war," we'll get in with only one foot—will go submarine chasing, and when the British Navy has driven the submarine home, we'll quit war—a la Vera Cruz, and the expedition to catch Villa. That, however, can hardly be if Germany declares war on us—which she may not do, because of this very hope.

We haven't broken with Austria yet.—Peace?

The Washington business of the Chancery has fallen off much. The State Department is engaged with other things.

On April 2d President Wilson asked Congress to declare that a State of war existed between the United States and Germany. On April 6th thetwo nations were at war.

WHEN Ambassador Page wished to comment Lloyd George to the views of President Wilson concerning the advisability of trying to make separate peace with Austria, he made up a dinner party, among which were Viscount and Viscountess Jellicoe (above) and Premier Lloyd George and Mrs. George (right).

Talks With King.

TO THE PRESIDENT.
London, April 17, 1917.
Secretary of State,
Washington, D. C.
6018, April 17, 3 p. m. Confidential, for the President.

THE King summoned me to Windsor Castle to spend last night and gave me a private audience of more than an hour, and talked with me again at some length after dinner. He is most appreciative of our help which he very frankly confessed is much needed. He hoped the naval, military and technical men of both countries will so fully and frankly confer as to prevent our repeating British mistakes. The most serious submarine situation, the dire need of ships, and the fear lest Russia make a separate peace were his chief topics. He expressed high appreciation of Admiral Sims' visit and spoke of Mr. Balfour's mission, (1) for which I thanked him. He remarked: "I do not know how Balfour can now be spared, but nothing else is so important as giving your Government all the information we have." He feels content with the present military situation in France, but he is much concerned, as everybody here is, who knows the facts, about the submarine warfare. He spoke with the greatest appreciation of your last speech in Congress and of your leadership.

He added: "People are talking much about absolute monarchs: there is no monarch, thank God, in Europe who has the power of the President."

His conversation throughout was full of appreciation.

Separate Peace Attempted.

Why did President Wilson let two months elapse between dismissal of Bernstorff and the declaration of war against Germany? One reason for the President's delay appears in an important letter written Mr. Wilson on Feb. 22d. The President was attempting to detach Austria-Hungary from the Germanic Alliance and cause that empire to make peace. The United States did not sever diplomatic relations with Austria-Hungary when it sent Count Bernstorff home; and, in fact the United States did not declare war against the Dual Monarchy until December, 1917.

Just what the effect would have been had Austria-Hungary separated from Germany in February, following the American break, is conjectural; it might have been extremely important; in fact, there was a possibility that such a development in itself might have brought the European war to an end. One possible outcome would have been the shifting of the Italian Army long-cherished dreams of a Germanic empire extending from the North Sea to the Persian Gulf.

Lloyd George Objects.

The separation of Austria-Hungary from Germany, could it have been accomplished at that time, would have been a great achievement, and the plan naturally enlisted the hearty cooperation of Page. There was, of course, practically no chance that it could succeed. Italy was an irreparable obstacle. The terms she would demand of Austria would be terms that Austria, desperate as was her condition at that time, could hardly be expected to grant. But the incident has great interest, if for nothing else for the light which it sheds upon the methods and the temperament of Mr. Lloyd George.

The proposal at first was not to the western front—though this is indeed doubtful; at least it would have made unnecessary British and French activities in Italy, and the energies of the British Navy in the Mediterranean waters could have been transferred to the area south and west of Ireland. This in itself would have been a great gain. The elimination of Austria would have meant the speedy collapse of Bulgaria and Turkey, for these nations, their communications with Germany severed, would have ben helpless and a speedy prey to the allies. This would have ended the favorite Pan-German "Mittel-Europa scheme, and destroyed cordially received by the Prime Minister. Page has left this record of his first conversation on the subject:

He demurred at once. No; if Austria-Hungary make peace that will open blockade on the South; we shall have to grant her more than we wish to grant, etc.; etc.—all rapidly, like a machine-gun. And he asked me for the present not to mention the subject to any one, not even to any member of his Cabinet.

Lloyd George's Swearing.

TO THE PRESIDENT.
American Embassy, London.
22 February, 1917.

Dear Mr. President:

I TELEGRAPHED so fully about my interviews with Lloyd George concerning a possible Austrian peace proposal that I need write only certain minor illuminative incidents. At my first interview I expressed my astonishment at his conclusion—that Austria was a greater hindrance to Germany as an ally than she would be as a neutral. To my arguments he simply repeated his conclusion—with amazing rapidity. The most hopeful thing that I could then induce him to say was that he would take some of his associates into his confidence and tell when there was anything more to say. But on top of this he forbade me to mention the subject to any members of the Government "for the present." That for the time being balked me. It was as if an Ambassador at Washington had taken up a subject with you, had got your answer, and had asked leave to discuss it with members of your Cabinet. If you had said "No," he would of course have been silenced on the penalty of forfeiting your confidence, if he had gone further. It occurred to me, then, that perhaps I had made a mistake in going to him first. Yet any other course would have been discourteous to him after his request that I should take up with him informal subjects of high importance; for he is practically dictator. All that was left me to do was to pursue him relentlessly since I could pursue nobody else—or to give it up; and I had no idea of resting with the answer he had given me.

The very next day I had what seemed a piece of good luck. I was invited by a member of the Government to dinner a few evenings later—"the Prime Minister will come." After dinner I talked again with Lloyd George. "Nothing to further yet," he said. "I haven't had a chance to go over the subject with the men I had in mind." Then I got up a little dinner myself for him, to which I invited the Jellicoes, the Bryces, and several other couples of high degree. Again I asked him, "What news?" He shook his head. I took him aside and remarked on the ease with which great men and great Governments made mistakes. Lloyd George is perhaps the easiest man to talk with (not necessarily to convince) of all men that hold high places. He has little dignity: He has no presence, except as an orator. He swears familiarly on easy occasion. But he has as quick a mind and as ready speech as any man that I ever encountered. It is impossible to realize that his casual deliverances are the voice of the British empire. After more talk, in which he had injected an oath or two, I made bold to say "Good God! Prime Minister, have you forgotten that the whole object of the war is to reduce Europe to peace, and here may be peace that you are rejecting—how do you know?" But I got no satisfactory response. This was my third interview.

Jellicoe Reserved.

I still refused to believe that this was to be the end of the matter. Now, queer accidents happen when you keep steadily on one quest and see many people and hear much talk; and by an accident I found out that Curzon was opposed to discussing peace with anybody and had talked with the Prime Minister, and that Jellicoe was eager for peace with Austria and had not been able to talk with the Prime Minister on the subject. That very night I dined with Lord Salisbury. Lady Curzon was there—without Lord Curzon. Lady Curzon, married just a month, began life as an Alabama girl, and you can yet distinguish the Alabama intonations in her speech as you now and then hear the oboe in an orchestra.

"Where's your husband?" I asked her.

"He had to spend the evening with the Prime Minister." That sounded somewhat discouraging.

The next day was Sunday. I recalled that Admiral Jellicoe left his ceaseless watch at the Admiralty every Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock and went home to meet his friends at tea. At 5 o'clock, therefore, Mrs. Page and I were there to pay our respects. I could not yet mention the subject to the Admiral, but I gave him a chance to mention it to me. Not a word did he say about it. He told me only that fishing (for submarines) was pretty good—that's all.

Premier's View Changed

A full week had passed and I had got no further than I had got at my first interview. I resolved to go and see the Prime Minister again at his office. I rehearsed my arguments, which seemed to me irrefutable, and I was determined to fight to the last ditch. To my surprise, he yielded at once—gracefully, easily, almost unbidden. He had somewhat modified his views, he said—provided—provided the greatest secrecy could be maintained. By this emphasis he gave me the cue to his thought and mood.

The German proposal of a peace conference a little while ago, which, because no terms were named, was regarded by the British as a trick, steeled the nation and the Government in particular against all peace talk till the spring campaign and the submarine war decide something. The very word "peace" was banished from the English vocabulary. Lloyd George himself in several speeches had declared that there could yet be no peace—no thought of peace. This was his state of mind when I first brought up the subject and the state of mind of the nation. Peace men had been hooted in the House of Commons and suspected peace meetings had been dispersed by the police. His emphasis on secrecy his fear plain. No doubt, could announce Austria's sur that would be a great stroke. if it got abroad that he "dickering" with Austria or any else about peace, he would his Dictatorship overnight. He afraid of the subject. But discussed this particular possi of eliminating Austria, with of his colleagues, he "had some changed his view."

ADAPTO SHOES for STOUT WOMEN

It's hard to believe, we know, that a specialized shoe, designed exclusively for well-dressed stout women can also be supremely comfortable to wear. Too long we've been accustomed to seeing frumpy looking, so-called "health shoes" to believe that a truly well-designed shoe can heed, at once, the dictates of our tastes and the cry-for-comfort of our feet.

But it's true! ADAPTO shoes have no ugly inside contrivances to give freakish lines to their outward appearance. They may be had in all the lovely models of the new Fall mode.

Yet, strict adherence to a few fundamental principles of construction provides the average stout woman with a greater degree of true foot comfort than it is possible to obtain in any other shoe she may select. And the sizes range from AAA to EEE, and up to 11.

If you suffer from any manner of foot ailment, visit our Foot Service Department for a free consultation. This completely equipped department is the only one of its kind in this city and is under constant supervision of our foot specialist. Our service also includes the professional supervision of shoe-fittings free upon request.

HOW TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Makes One Look Younger.

Men and women who used to be called Grandpa and Grandma are now setting the styles by darkening their gray hair at home.

For instance, J. A. McCrea, a well-known Californian, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture in five minutes, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. Merely take a half-pint of water, add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at trifling cost. Apply to the hair twice weekly with a comb. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

BOARD HESITANT THIS TIME ABOUT POLICE CIRCUS

Commissioners, Mindful of Criticism of Ticket Sales in Past, Reserve Decision on Plea for Permit.

Whether that hardy perennial, the police circus, is to blossom again or to fade out of existence, is a matter now on the laps of the Police commissioners.

In past years policemen in uniform have made a house-to-house canvas, offering dollar tickets for sale. The sight of a policeman at one's front door is always exciting, and sales were large. Nor did business downtown and in outlying sections escape the sales arm of the law. Where the housewife might take one or two, the merchant probably would take a block, even though he had conquered his craving for circuses. Many an office boy went to see the elephants and acrobats on a ticket bought by his boss.

A committee from the Police Relief Association, which sponsors the shows, appeared Friday before the Police Board with the customary request for authorization to give a circus at the Coliseum. Other boards have not hesitated to say yes, but this board reserved its answer until next week. If permission is granted, it is expected past practices of selling tickets and soliciting program advertisements will be modified, as complaints have been made that the practices approached coercion.

The Police Relief Association pays sick benefits to policemen and insurance benefits to their families. The annual circus nets $75,000 to $100,000 and is the chief reliance of the organization, whose other sources of income are donations and $2 monthly dues paid by members of the association.

LLOYD GEORGE HOPES AMERICA IS IN "EXALTED MOOD"

consider as a censure of your Tory Government.

(Signed) "Hu Han Min."

In view of the statements in this letter, it is interesting to note that while the British Government and other Governments concerned appear to be daily in respect to Chinese matters and have taken no step forward since the crisis in early summer, the Government of the United States appears to be setting us a good example in its eagerness to arrive at a just settlement with the Chinese.

So convinced are they of the necessity for coming to a complete understanding in the near future, that if Britain and the other powers concerned are not prepared to come together at once to discuss matters, the United States, we are told, will ease their conscience on the point of relations with China and for their part will make their position vis-a-vis China clear and unequivocal.

They recognize, apparently, the justice of the Chinese claim regarding a revision of the commercial treaties, and are willing to concede liberally upon this, as well as upon the question of extra-territorial rights.

Good Effect Certain.

A policy of this kind cannot fail to have a good effect upon the Chinese, who have had but too much reason for believing in the desire of the West to exploit them, and that in doing so they hold the national self-respect of the Chinese in contempt.

I trust that America is now in one of those exalted moods which she has displayed more than once in world affairs, when business must take secondary place to justice and fair dealing. If the other nations concerned will but follow the lead she has given, the position of China may in all probability be straightened out, and peace may once more reign in China as a result of good will there towards the nations of the West

If the governments of that West do not strive with all their might to bring this about, there is no knowing in what direction China will travel. Russia is there, working and watching with all her knowledge of East and of West. China is stretching out to realize herself.

Who is going to be her "guide, philosopher and friend"—Russia or ourselves?

That hackneyed phrase, "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet," is out of date.

It is typical of the wrong thinking and tactlessness which the West has employed in dealing with the peoples of the East. East and West must eventually clasp hands, and the question at the moment is—which hand will be grasped?

CORNERSTONE OF ART SCHOOL TO BE LAID

Ceremony Tomorrow at $250,000 Structure Given by W. K. Bixby to Washington U.

The cornerstone of Bixby Hall, Washington University's School of Fine Arts Building, will be laid at 10 a. m. tomorrow. The stone will be set in place by W. K. Bixby, capitalist and member of the University Corporation, who presented the university with more than $250,000 for the express purpose of erecting a fine arts building.

The ceremony will be open to the public and to all fine arts students and will have as honorary guests the Artist Guild and the Art Alliance. Chancellor Hadley will preside.

The services will include addresses by W. K. Bixby, the donor; Clark McAdams of the Artist Guild, A. Blair Redington of the Art Alliance, and E. H. Wuerpel, director of the School of Fine Arts.

Of English Renaissance Design.

Funds for Bixby Hall were given to the university in 1921, but building was delayed until the spring of 1925 by the excessive costs of building. The structure will be completed within the next six months. Unlike the other buildings on the university campus, which are Tudor-Gothic architecture, the new building is of English Renaissance design. It will be finished in Indiana limestone. The edifice is one of the few that is not included as part of the quadrangle arrangement of the campus. It faces Forsythe avenue and is on the extreme southeast corner of the grounds, near Skinker road.

The site is south of the old Fine Arts Building, which was used as the British pavilion during the World's Fair. The length from east to west is 204 feet and the width 60 feet. The old building will be allowed to stand for a few years at least.

Fine Decorations to Be Moved.

Fine interior woodwork and decorative plaster work from the old arts building will be removed to rooms of the new structure. Thus embellishments now in the lofty east room of the pavilion will be moved to the antique drawing room on the first floor, north of the hall; Elizabethan paneling and plastering will be transferred to the new directors' room; the old Adam room will be the new business office.

Offices of the new hall will be on the south side of the first floor. Classes in drawing from the antique, commercial art, interior decoration design, weaving, basketry, ceramics and modeling will be on the same floor. The second floor will have three rooms for life classes, with northern skylights, studios for still-life studies and the library.

AUTO OWNER FIRED ON BY MAN HE FOUND IN HIS CAR

A stranger sat in Herbert Mackey's automobile at the rear of Mackey's home, 2345 Lafayette avenue, late Friday afternoon. He was having trouble getting the car started.

"I'm going to get some whisky," the stranger replied.

Mackey protested, whereupon the stranger drew a revolver and after hitting the car owner on the head with the weapon, fired a shot at him.

William Ruechoff of Affton, Mo., went to Mackey's rescue. A shot greeted him.

When police appeared on the scene the intruder fled. On his way he dropped his revolver, which police recovered in a lot at 2350 Whittemore place after they had captured the man. He gave his name as Richard Morrissey and an address on Rutger street. He is held on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

BAKER SEEKS CURB ON RAUPP'S EXPENSES

Governor Orders Military Council to Submit Expenses Before Traveling.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—Gov. Baker today made a move to curb the control exercised by the State Military Council over expenditures of the Missouri National Guard, when he issued an order that no member of the National Guard could incur traveling expenses, chargeable against State funds, without first obtaining an order from the Governor authorizing such travel.

This order usurps an authority over expenses that the council has held. Heretofore the council had had full control over expenditures of the guard, and a majority of its members contend the State law vests such power exclusively in the Military Council, comprising Brigadier-General W. A. Raupp, who is commanding General of the State troops; Adjutant-General Frank Rumbold, and the five Colonels commanding guard regiments.

Gov. Baker and Rumbold think otherwise, and the order issued today probably will result in a test of authority in administration of the National Guard.

Directed at Raupp.

Differences of opinion over the administrative authority in the National Guard have existed between Baker and Rumbold on one side and Raupp and a majority of the military council on the other. Thus far Raupp and the military council have held control. These differences arise, it is said, from friction between Raupp and Humbold.

Raupp, formerly Adjutant-General under Hyde, was not reappointed by Gov. Baker, who instead appointed Rumbold. Raupp, through seniority in rank as a Brigadier-General, retained command of the Guard troops and remained president and executive officer of the military council.

The order issued today is directed chiefly at Raupp, it is understood. As commanding General, Raupp has traveled extensively over the State and his expense accounts, approved by the military council, have not been viewed favorably by the administration, it is said.

Appropriation Cut $50,000.

Baker recently called a conference here of the military council and suggested economy in expense, and a reduction in the $300 a month salary of Raupp as executive officer of the council. No action was taken by the council.

The legislature appropriated $250,000 for the National Guard in 1925 and 1926, but Gov. Baker held up $50,000, leaving $100,000 a year available. The present rate of expenditure will exceed $100,000 available for this year by about $10,006.

There is no provision in the law for holding up of appropriations, and in the past the Governors have done this by personal agreement with department heads. Baker's agreement on the National Guard was made with Rumbold, it is said, and not with the military council, which includes six members in addition to Rumbold.

Capital's Missouri Colony Is Proud of Its Cabinet Member

Davis Wedding Anniversary Occurs Within a Few Days of Those of the Coolidges and Other Notables.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.

THE Missouri colony in Washington is celebrating the fact that it has a Cabinet member in its ranks in Dwight F. Davis, the new Secretary of War, who, as predicted in this letter months ago, succeeded former Secretary Weeks when he finally left on account of illness.

The Davis household is an interesting little group. He is the youngest member of the Cabinet, a tennis enthusiast and donor of the famous International Davis tennis trophy. He met Mrs. Davis, who was Miss Helen Brooks of Boston, at Geneva, Switzerland, during a tennis tournament, and a romance began. On Nov. 15, the Secretary and Mrs. Davis will celebrate their china wedding, having been married 20 years.

President and Mrs. Coolidge have just celebrated the twentieth anniversary of their wedding, and on Tuesday the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Jardine will observe theirs.

The Davises still maintain their fine old home in Portland place, St. Louis. They have four children, Dwight Filley, Jr., who is preparing for Harvard at Saint Marks school, and three daughters, Alice Brooks, Cynthia and Helen, the eldest of whom is 16 and will be a debutante during her father's term as Secretary.

The Secretary and Mrs. Davis are living in a quaint colonial home on the Rockville Pike, but they will take a town house Dec. 1.

President and Mrs. Coolidge once more took in the world series, when they attended the last game, played in Washington. With them were Attorney-General Sargent, and Frank W. Stearns of Boston, both of whom are guests att he White House.

Another interesting social event of the week in which the Coolidges participated was the dinner given by Associate Justice and Mrs. Harlan F. Stone to start the drive for a new edifice for the First Congregational Church, the President's home church.

MISS LAURA MELSHEIMER Announcement of her engagement to Dewey John Schmoll was made yesterday. —Sid Whiting.

Three Interesting St. Louis Engagements Announced During the Week

THE engagement of Miss Dorothy Virginia Monroe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Monroe of Hotel Chase, to Charles John Zimmerer, was announced yesterday at a tea given by Mr. Zimmerer's mother, Mrs. Emily Regel Zimmerer, for her daughter, Miss Emily, and Miss Monroe, at her home, 5220 Washington boulevard.

The autumn shades prevailed in the decorations, and those serving at the chrysanthemum-bedecked tea table included Mrs. Marion Lambert, who was Miss Mary Carmen Ryan before her marriage; Mrs. Henry Garcia Isaacs, Miss Marie Clarkson and Miss Henrietta Hadley. About 80 guests called and were presented with corsages of tiny yellow chrysanthemums with cards attached engraved with the names of the couple.

Miss Monroe came to St. Louis with her parents from Chicago only two years ago, but in that time has gathered a large coterie of friends about her, and has been popular in the social world. She is a graduate of the Ogontz School in Philadelphia, and made her debut in Chicago a year before she came here. She was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball last year.

Mr. Zimmerer is a graduate of Cornell, where he became a member of Chi Psi, and belongs to the Bellerive, University, Cornell and Sunset Hill Country Clubs of St. Louis.

The wedding will take place Feb. 3 at St. Peter's Episcopal Church and will be followed by a reception at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

Miss Zimmerer was graduated in June from Vassar College and is making her debut informally this year. She served as a maid at the Veiled Prophet ball a fortnight ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Melsheimer of 59 Aberdeen place have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Laura Anita, and Dewey John Schmoll, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Schmoll of 3626 Utah place. The news was told to a group of their friends last evening at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Melsheimer at the opening ball of the Century Boat Club. Miss Melsheimer attended Washington University and was introduced to social circles at a dance two years ago. She is a member of the Tau Phi Gamma sorority. Mr. Schmoll also was educated at Washington University and is a member of Kappa Sigma and the Century Boat Club. The wedding will take place in the early spring.

Formal announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Ely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Ely of 5881 Enright avenue, formerly of 5273 Westminster place, and Donald Scott Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bonne Van Horne Johnson of 5504 Chamberlain avenue. The news was told to some of Miss Ely's friends at a luncheon given Tuesday by Mrs. Wimans Lubbock of 5536 Vernon avenue.

The prospective bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended the School of Fine Arts at Washington University and the Pennsylvania School of Fine Arts in Philadelphia. Mr. Johnson attended the University of Missouri and art schools in Chicago, Philadelphia and Paris. The wedding will take place quietly at the Ely home, Nov. 11.

One of the largest parties at the St. Louis Country Club last night was a dinner dance for Miss Marion Stoner, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stoner, given by her aunt, Mrs. Robert Holland of 2 Hortense place. There were 56 guests. Miss Stoner will make her bow to society at a dinner dance to be given at the same club by her parents, Nov. 27.

CAPITAL'S MISSOURI COLONY PROUD OF CABINET MEMBERS

Mrs. Dawes. however, at the last moment decided to remain in Washington until his return, in order to oversee changes in the home on Sixteenth street N. W., which they rented Wednesday and in which they will pass the winter. They will come to Washington Nov. 1, and with them will come their adopted children, Virginia and Rufus.

Miss Bessie McKeldin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Palmer, is the latest recruit to the debutantes polo team, organized by Miss Natalie Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond.

The polo team is due to a chance remark by the Prince of Wales to a leading debutante when he was in Washington. She asked him how he was enjoying Long Island polo, and he told her "topping," especially the playing of some of the fair members of the colony.

Miss Helen Marye, the California heiress, is another member of the team. It is expected to play the War Department polo team, of which Gen. Pershing is honorary president, before long.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago, who came to Washington to attend the wedding of the Princess Bertha Cantacuzene to Bruce Smith of Louisville, entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham Wednesday. They returned to Chicago after the luncheon.

The Prince and Princess Michael Cantacuzene, parents of the bride, have returned to their home in Florida, for the winter.

A distinguished guest of the week in Washington was Prince Otto Bismarck, grandson of the Iron Chancellor, who is a member of the German Reichstag. Prince Bismarck was a guest of Baron Maltzan, the Ambassador from Germany.

RECENT WEDDINGS AND ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Eunice Hooberry, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hooberry of 5102 Page boulevard, and F. Arthur Driemeyer, which took place last night at the Mount Calvary Lutheran Church. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Driemeyer, 5410 Vernon avenue. Miss Catherine J. Taylor was maid of honor; Miss Adele Driemeyer, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Mary Don Sprinkle, bridesmaids; Bob Smith of Denver, best man; John P. Anderson, Sylvester L. Fisher, groomsmen, and George Driemeyer, Jack Byrnes and Raymond Jahns, ushers.

One of the home weddings of the week took place last night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. John Holmes Crenshaw of 5953 Enright avenue, when their daughter, Miss Margaret, became the bride of Harry Bennyhoff of Vandalia, Ill. Dr. Russell H. Stafford of the Pilgrim Congregational church performed the ceremony before 75 guests. The wedding took place in front of a window in the dining room, which was covered with a lattice work entwined with Southern smilax and white chrysanthemums. Miss Gladys Bamberger accompanied by Miss Reba Gardner, sang "I Love You," and "At Dawning," while stringed instruments played "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" throughout the ceremony. Miss Margaret Keitel was maid-of-honor and John Early Bardwell was best man, while Master Charles Baker, III, the bride's little cousin, served as ring bearer.

Miss Keitel was gowned in orchid chiffon made with close fitting basque and full circular skirt. A huge orchid velvet bow across the back was the only adornment, and she carried yellow chrysanthemums tied with orchid velvet ribbon.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in ivory satin made simply, her tulle veil was in the bridal blush shade, with a close-fitting cap held to her hair by a narrow band of pearls. Her long satin train was lined with sea foam green chiffon and silver leaves appliqued down the center gave an unusual effect through the tulle train. The bride wore as her sole ornament a diamond and platinum bar pin, the gift of her father.

The couple left shortly after the reception for a motor trip to Miami, Fla., and will be at home after Nov. 15, with the brides' parents, 5953 Enright avenue.

Announcement made last Saturday by Col. Theodore Schultz of Fort Shafter of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Mary C. Schultz, to Lieut. E. Carl Englehart, Fifty-fifth Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Ruger, Honolulu. Miss Schultz, who went to Honolulu a few months ago, was born in St. Louis, and her father at that time serving with the Fourteenth Cavalry. Before going to Honolulu, Col. Schultz was on duty in Washington, D. C., where Miss Schultz studied art under Felix Mahoney and later under the supervision of the Art League of Washington. She is a graduate of Monticello Seminary, while Lieut. Engleheart is a member of the class of 1920, United States Military Academy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Englehart of Richmond Hill, N. Y.

HOOK TO GLIDER BOAT TO LIVEN THE DANUBE

Two Americans, Brothers, Trying Out New Scheme for Passenger Traffic.

Special correspondence to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1925.)

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 23.—Viennese on the shores of the Danube the other day saw a strange craft speed along.

It was neither airplane, automobile nor boat, yet it was all three. Persons on the shore could see the blur of two huge air propellers. They could see one man in a conning tower guiding the craft as one controls an automobile on land. They saw the object slip along on the water at great speed against a swift current. Also they could see passengers looking out between fluttering curtains.

This craft is named the Progress. It is the product of two brothers from Atlanta, Ga.—Charles B. McDaniel Jr., and Ray Pearce McDaniel. They came to Europe because of the war, and after the close of the war penetrated Central Europe. They entered into business in France, Austria and Jugo-Slavia, and in the two latter countries they have been identified with reconstruction more than any other American except Herbert Hoover.

In Jugo-Slavia the two Americans have several projects under way. One of them is a plan to supply Belgrade with an adequate traction and electric light system. This plan, already under way, calls for straightening and paving most of the streets, torn up by Austrian shells and neglected during the occupation.

Speeding Up the Jugo-Slavs.

In several cities the McDaniel brothers are operating traction systems according to American ideas They have set a fast pace for the Jugo-Slavs. Their example has done much to stimulate business. They have prospered, and near Deutsch-Altenburg, Austria, they have a beautiful estate. Their home is a popular week-end rendezvous for American diplomatic representatives and business men from Vienna and Belgrade.

While shipping Jugo-Slav produce down the Danube the two McDaniels saw the need for faster passenger transportation on the river. But the Danube is so variable, its water depth changing so frequently that regular passenger steamers cannot run during the greater part of the year and do not touch at cities where the water is shallow.

So the McDaniels decided to experiment with a glider, a glide-boat, or sea sled, as it is variously named. If the craft is a success they hope to make the run from Vienna to Budapest in less than three hours. The passenger steamers take 12 hours.

How the Progress Glides.

There are other glide boats in existence, but the Progress is thought to be the largest. It will seat 35 passengers comfortably and carry enough fuel for a day. Its two Maybach motors, similar to the type used in the Shenandoah, develop 300 horse-power each. The bottom of the Progress is built in the form of steps. As the craft gains speed it rises until it glides along the surface. That is done when the greatest speed is attained.

Teeth Like Pearls

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My teeth, as countless women know, glisten like a row of pearls.

This tells you why. I use a new-type tooth paste which combines all helps in one. The ablest authorities I consult told me to employ it.

The name is Quindent, meaning five in one. It is made by Quindent Laboratories. It contains an olive oil cleanser of the highest order. Two harmless polishers which beautify the teeth. Four antiseptics and iodine, to combat germ attacks on gums. Magnesia and other antacids, to neutralize acids that cause tooth decay. And breath deodorants.

I have used all these helps—always. But I had to use several tooth pastes, then a mouth wash, then magnesia, then deodorants. I spent a half-hour daily on my teeth.

Now Quindent is presented, combining all in one. Four great organizations collaborated on it. It typifies the utmost in a modern dentifrice. The 16 ingredients do everything required. Now I use it exclusively, and use nothing else.

The makers supply me samples—enough for 20 uses. They are for women who wish to use what I use—who follow my advice. Let me send you one. It will bring you new conceptions of a tooth paste. It will show you what modern authorities advise. Don't hesitate. This is the dentifrice of today.

ALWAYS TRUSTED POOR CUSTOMERS, DIED RICH

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 17.—Treasured in many a humble adobe house in the mountains of Rio Arriba County, New Mexico, is a little soiled and wrinkled slip of paper.

On it appears in Spanish:

"Juan Sanchez (or whatever the name may be) to Felix Garcia, Dr." Then an itemized list of purchases of chile, coffee, sugar, flour, beans and at the bottom the indorsement: "Paid in full by God."

It is the tale of the country merchant who died a rich man, despite the fact that he never pressed a debtor for payment, crossed the obligations of poor people off his books and left among his papers bills receivable and promissory notes amounting to $100,000.

Nominated for Governor.

Garcia, once a nominee of the Democratic party for the governorship of New Mexico, died from a bullet accidentally discharged. Few men in New Mexico were more widely or sincerely mourned. The esteem in which he was held was based entirely on his honesty and humanity. He was not a brilliant man, but was gifted with sound business judgment.

Garcia started a typical small Spanish-American merchandise store. He made a little money and acquired a number of small ranch properties. But the poor people did not contribute to his increasing fortune.

Had Two Stores.

If a customer fell sick or had bad luck on his little mountain farm, or was out of work, Garcia promptly dug out his account and sent him the bill marked "Paid in full by God."

He ran two stores in the little village of Lumberton; one a cash store, the other a "credit store," where he let his needy customers run accounts as long as they wished. It is not of record that his generosity was often taken advantage of by those able to pay and the bulk of the $100,000 left unpaid on his books really represented charity to the poor.

HOW LAUNDRIES BREAK BUTTONS

British Government Spends $63,000 Annually to Learn Cause.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The mystery of why collars are frayed and buttons broken when the laundry comes home has claimed the attention of the serious-minded British Government. The Government, moreover, is spending a considerable amount of money in seeking a solution of the riddle, but admits that the quest thus far has been unsuccessful.

This became known through the announcement by the Government Department for Scientific and Industrial Research that for a four-year period it has contributed to the British Launderers' Research Association the sum of £12,605 (about $63,000) to further the attempt to find means for preventing fraying of collars and the destruction of buttons. Nevertheless, collars still come home with saw-tooth edges and shirts return buttonless.

Quick Ways to Beauty

By MADAM MAREE

Summer pleasures exact their toll. Golf, motor rides, swimming and the summer out-of-doors bring a healthy tan and a natural skin glow—but—that is typically a summer complexion. Winter, with its round of gay parties, its dances and fireside tete-a-tetes, under the merciless artificial lights, makes necessary an entirely new skin tone.

The skin needs bleaching, not to a ghostly white, but just enough to enable the cheeks to show some of its natural pink. I know of nothing quite so effective as zintone, a powder that you can get at almost any drug store. Just an ounce. Mix it with two tablespoons of glycerine. It then looks like cream, but is not sticky, pasty or greasy.

By rubbing it into the face, neck, arms and hands, it bleaches the brown pigment and the skin returns to its natural pinkish hue. At the same time, your freckles disappear and it removes the muddy, oily condition. It whitens the hands, made red and rough by housework.

A host of women show care, anxiety and ill health in a wrinkled, spotted complexion. Every such woman should massage into the skin, night and morning, a thin coating of eptol. The effect is startling, magical.

It gives the skin a youthful appearance, smooth to the touch. The wrinkles or crowsfeet melt into the skin and the face lights up with a new expression. You can get the eptol in any drug store.

Mix two ounces of it with a tablespoonful of glycerine. It jells quickly and makes enough creamy application to last you for many weeks, at a trifling cost.

Spread a thin coating around the eyes, temples, forehead, cheeks; rub until absorbed. Instantly it begins work on the pores, tightens them, the outer dead skin disappears, new skin comes at once, the lines, crowsfeet, wrinkles fade out, the cheeks become smooth; look plump with the appearance of real, girlish health. Eptol is certainly the daintiest of skin beautifiers.

Answers to Letters

Mrs. H.—For blackheads use [illegible] powder. Get an ounce in any drug store. Sprinkle it on a cloth dipped in hot water. Rub it back and forth over the face and it will immediately dissolve all the blackheads.

Addie—Your hair will certainly get thin if you don't remove the dandruff. The best shampoo I know of is [illegible]. You can get it at any drug store. Twenty-five cents will pay for a dozen shampoos. Dissolve the crystals in half a teacup of hot water. With a small brush dip the mixture until the scalp is saturated; then work it into a cloud of foam; rinse. This will give you a perfectly clean scalp.

Miss W. R.—Your hair will undoubtedly grow in again after a while. It usually does following sickness. But guard against possible reflexes that retard and stunt its growth; I suggest an ounce of beta quinol, which you can get at any drug store, and mix it with half a pint of rubbing alcohol.

Rub it into the scalp with the fingers and you will soon notice a wonderful improvement in hair growth as well as its texture.

No definite date has been set for the wedding.

A recent wedding in Kirkwood was that of Miss Lucile Schulze, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jules F. Schulze of North Kirkwood road, and Virgil Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lamb of St. Louis, which took place at 3 p. m., Oct. 10, at St. Peter's Church. The Rev. J. Steck performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage. The bride was preceded to the altar by her sister, Miss Irene Schulze, as maid of honor, and Miss Cora Wise, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, who were gowned in rainbow chiffon and lace made over silver cloth, with large black velvet hats, and carried orchid and yellow chrysanthemums. The bride wore white satin made bouffant with garnitures of point lace and embroidered in rhinestones, crystals and pearls. The court train was attached to the shoulders with pearl rhinestone ornaments and was also embroidered in rhinestones and crystals. The point lace veil was held in place of orange blossoms and fell the length of her train. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and wore a diamond and platinum pin, the gift of the bridegroom.

George Holmes served as best man and George A. Miller as groomsman. Thomas Battts, Karl Kenworthy, Joseph Wise Jr., and George Schulze served as ushers. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride. Out of town guests were Miss Loretta A. Callahan of Greenville, Tex.; Mrs. George A. Callahan of Hot Springs, Ark.; Mrs. Lucinda Krebs and Miss Celeste Nadler of Okawville, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Schulze of Jefferson City, Mo.

The bride was educated at Washington University and Mr. Lamb at St. Louis University. After an extended wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Lamb will reside in St. Louis.

Miss Annette Graul, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Graul of 3557 Sidney street, has chosen Oct. 24 as the date of her wedding to Wilson Henry Wohler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wohler of 3538 Crittenden street. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. William F. Wilkes at the Messiah Evangelical Church at 5:30 o'clock. Misses Beremice Frauenthal and Katherine Sharp will attend the bride, and Robert Wohler will be his brother's best man, while Raymond Garland will be groomsman. Because of the recent death of the bride's sister, guests will be limited to relatives and a few friends. Dinner will follow at the Graul home. After a wedding trip in the East, the couple will maek their home at 3557 Sidney street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hugh Long of Jacksonville, Fla., formerly of St. Louis, have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Frances Maxine, and Walter Charles Hellinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Hellinger of 4228 Arsenal street, St. Louis. The wedding will take place tomorrow at the Long home in Avondale. Miss Long is a graduate of the John B. Stetson University and a member of Delta Delta Delta. Mr. Hellinger is a graduate of Washington University and a member of Alpha Tau Omega. The couple will come to St. Louis after the ceremony to visit the bridegroom's parents for several weeks. They will make their home in Jacksonville.

Miss Myrtle Elizabeth Gorder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gorder of 1276 Hamilton avenue, was married Oct. 7 at the Pilgrim Congregational Church to George H. Hansen, son of Mrs. Ellen Han-

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

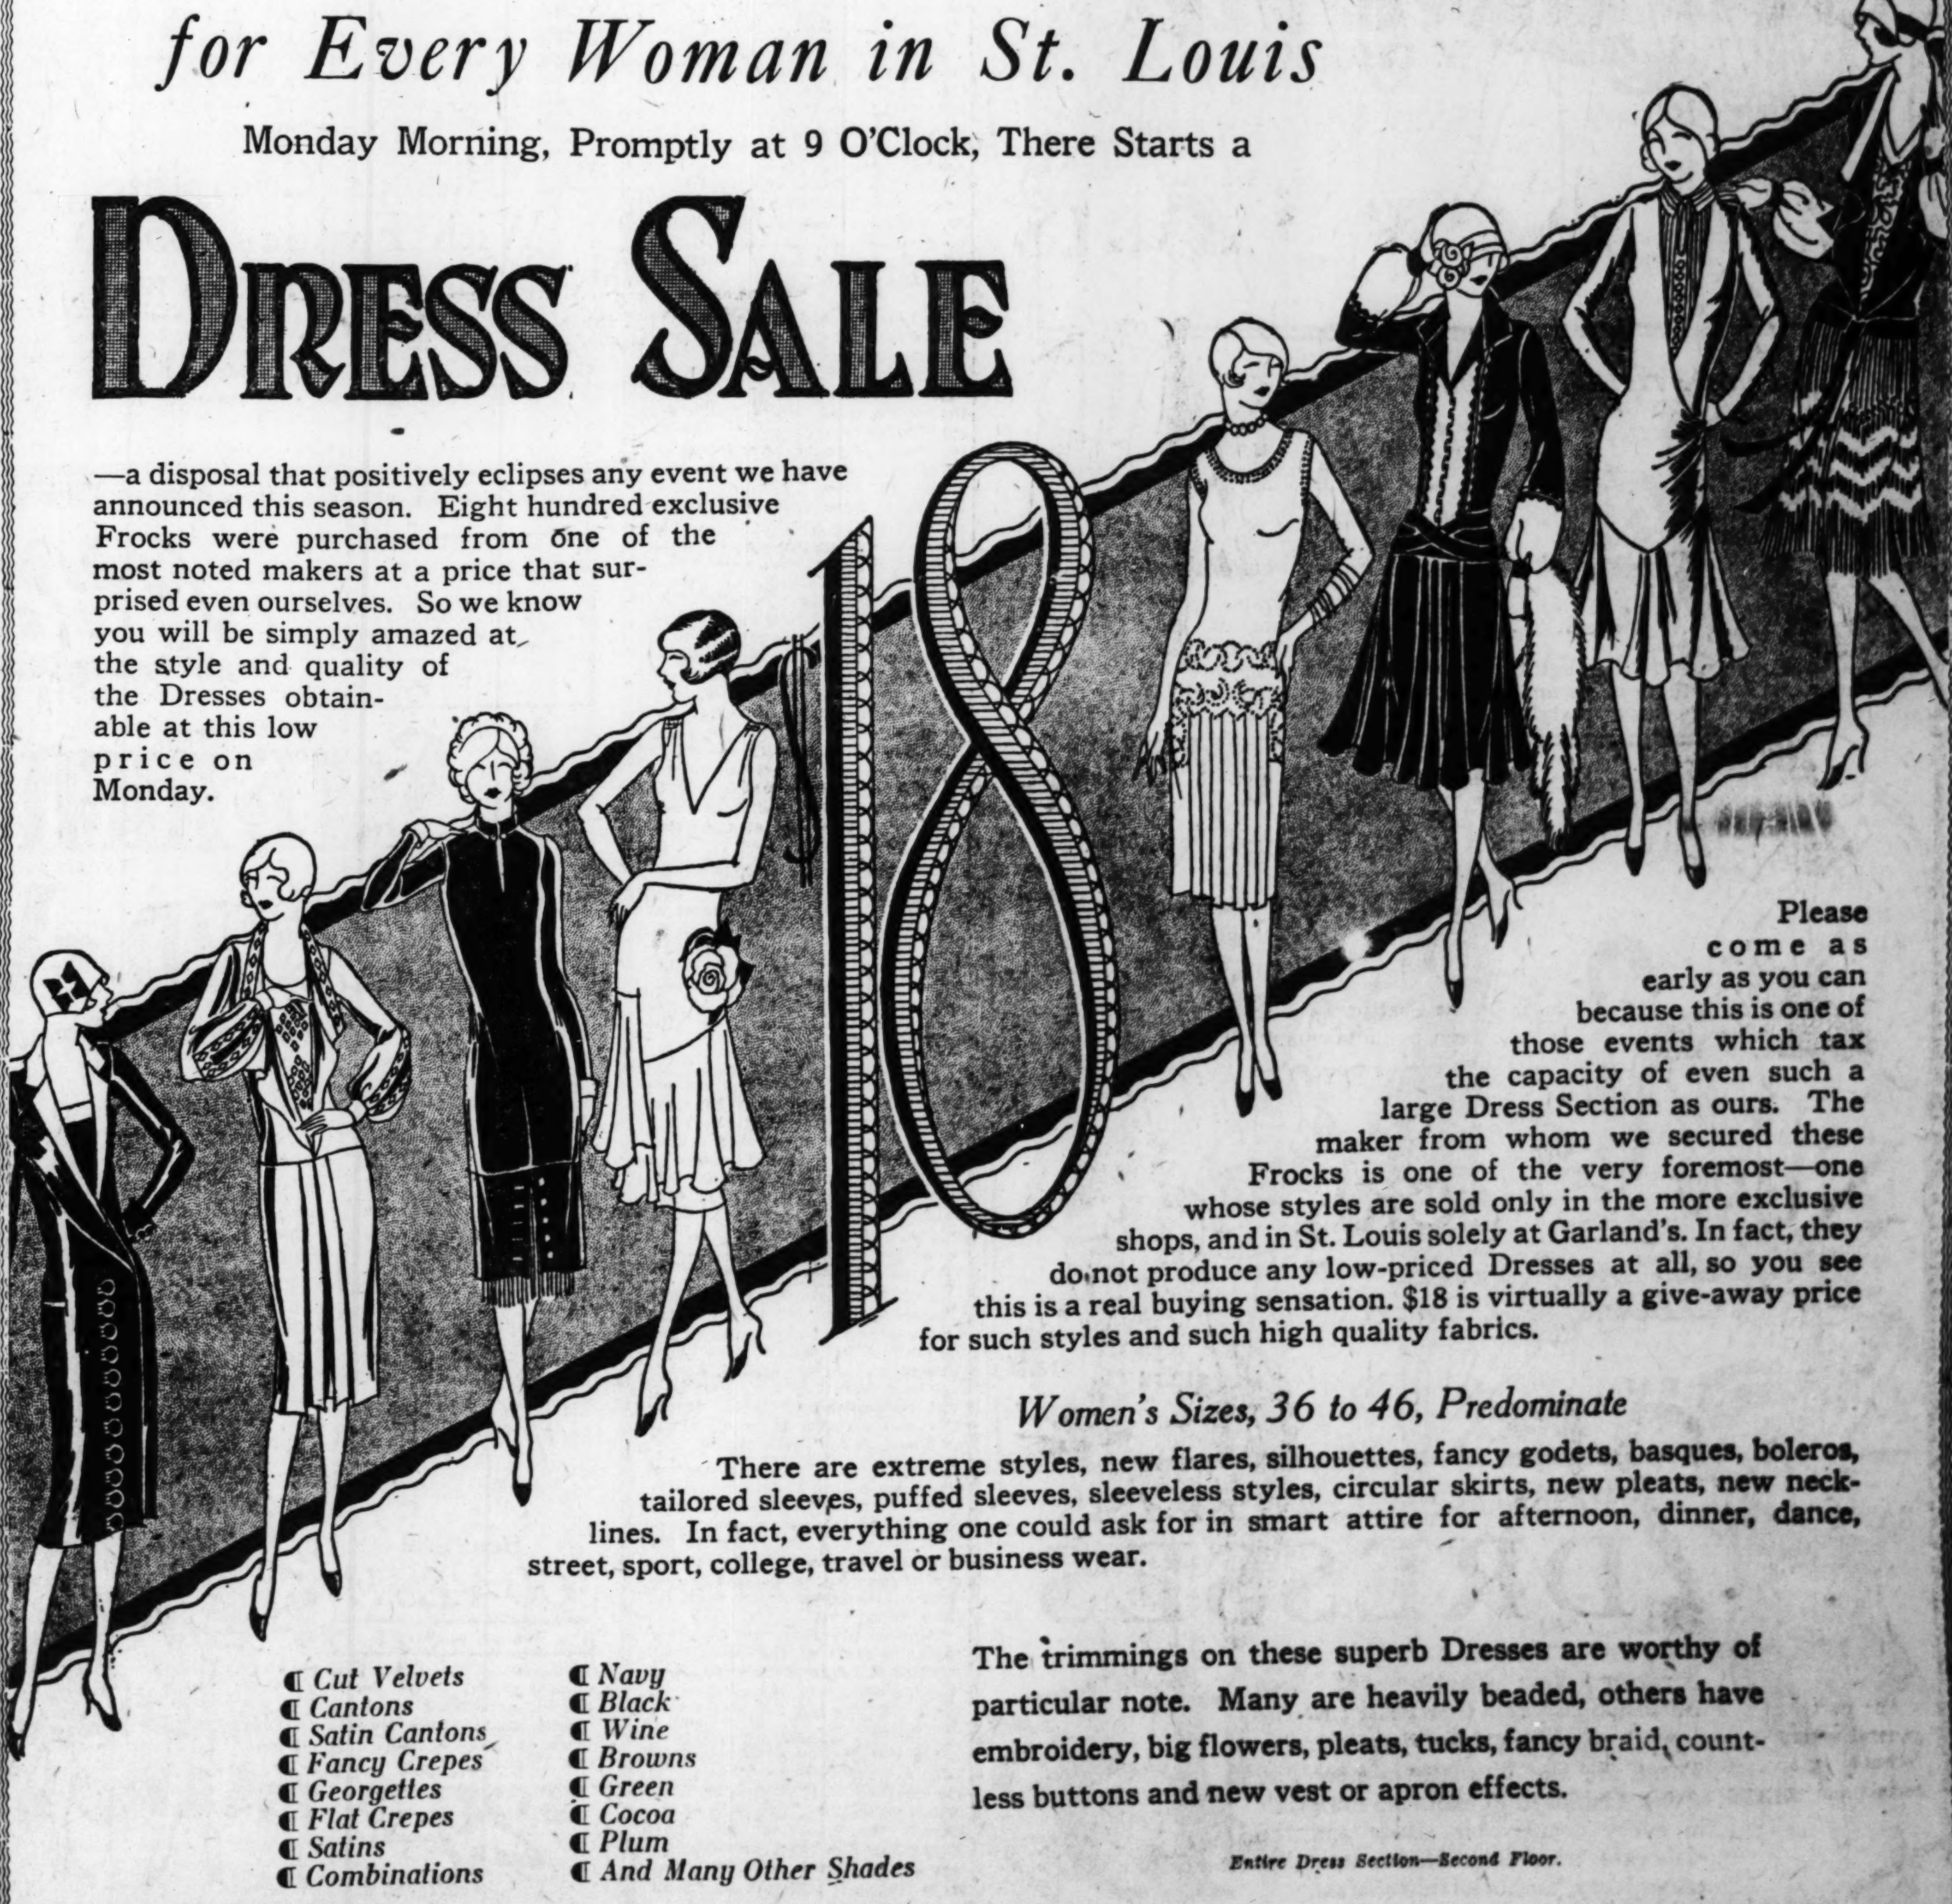
So we know you will be simply amazed at the style and quality of the Dresses obtainable at this low price on Monday.



Please come as early as you can because this is one of those events which tax the capacity of even such a large Dress Section as ours. The maker from whom we secured these Frocks is one of the very foremost—one whose styles are sold only in the more exclusive shops, and in St. Louis solely at Garland's. In fact, they do not produce any low-priced Dresses at all, so you see this is a real buying sensation. $18 is virtually a give-away price for such styles and such high quality fabrics.

There are extreme styles, new flares, silhouettes, fancy godets, basques, boleros, tailored sleeves, puffed sleeves, sleeveless styles, circular skirts, new pleats, new necklines. New Method Eradicates Wrinkles Like Magic

It has been found that a simple tarkroot mixture, spread over the entire face, acts almost magically upon even the deepest wrinkles and crowsfeet. It produces the natural rejuvenating effect of massage, only to a more marked degree. The danger of loosening the skin or muscles, as in unscientific or too frequent massaging, is eliminated, no rubbing being necessary. On the other hand, the skin and underlying tissues are so invigorated they become much firmer, and the skin's texture is so changed it again assumes its original clear, smooth, velvety appearance.

If you will procure a package of powdered tarkroot from your druggist, mix a spoonful with a spoonful of lemon juice, apply with the fingers, and sit down before your mirror, you will see the wrinkles and sags disappear, in less than 15 minutes! You will be amazed, to say the least. Tarkroot of course is perfectly harmless. And certainly it is inexpensive; a treatment costs less than three cents!

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 478 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads—that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

Recruiting Actor Chief Worry No Staging Shaksp

Hard to Find Players Who Can English, Says Mantell, and They Take Trouble to Learn Fenci

By RICHARD L. STOKES,
Music and Drama Critic of the Post-Disp

AT the American Theater, one evening last wee leyed his familiar and not too grammatical chal Macduff, and damn'd be him that first cries, The broadswords engaged, but no sparks flew and th clang of steel upon steel. The effort, in fact, wa even the usual theatrical combat. A friend murmure that hereafter he should let himself be killed offs ease of the lively Father William, was it right at his ing duels before the footlights?

For reply, the septuagenarian mime seized a single-stick from the wall of his dressing room and brandished it with swashbuckling prowess. "When I was young," he shouted between strokes, "I practiced the broadsword with the best men in England! I spent six months and all my money working with the foils, in preparation for the duel scene in 'The Two Orphans.' Will boys do that nowadays? They will not! And that's the chief trouble with Shakspeare today!"

Nearly Half-Century An Actor.

THE tragedian was later asked to enlarge upon this indignant outburst, in view of the fact that he is about to retire from the stage after 49 years as an actor and four decades as a star. With the motion picture, musical comedy, revue and similar illiterate enterprises at the height of their vogue, it was suggested that he and his band of classical adventurers rather take on the seeming of visitors from another world.

He confessed that the times are different from the days of his youth, when Booth, Barrett, McCullough, Mary Anderson, Adelaide Neilson, Tom King, Walker Whiteside, Richard Mansfield and many others were all playing Shakspeare, more or less at the same time. Probably they enjoyed a more intelligent public, he said, as its taste had not then been debauched by a flood of half-witted productions. Most of all, they know nothing of the terrific "opposition" which the legitimate theater meets at present in the movies, jazz dance halls, radio and, worst of all, the automobile.

Lost Money Only One Season.

THE actor hastened to add that he himself had no grievance. "During all my career," he declared, "I never lost money on Shakspeare except during one season. That was last year, and I blamed, not the Bard or the public, but bad booking and the presidential campaign. I opened here Monday to the largest first-night receipts I'd had in St. Louis for 15 years; and the next night, instead of falling off, as usual, the seats sales were still larger.

"The thing which makes a Shakspearean manager old before his time is the difficulty of recruiting competent companies, particularly in the case of young men. You send to the New York agencies for players, and you get an assortment of youths who have the gall to demand—and get—from $75 to $125 a week, and who ought really to pay you for teaching them to pronounce the plain, simple English language.

"I had such a young fellow who was getting $125 a week. One day he came to the word 'ague' in one of his speeches. How do you think he pronounced it. 'A-YOU-gy!' It's an honest fact! Another one insisted on saying 'incor-RIG-ible.' I gave him the correct accent, and after the rehearsal he said: 'The old man's damned particular this morning!'

"They won't take the trouble to learn to fence. I try to teach them every day, but they don't take any interest. I even get Macduff in my dressing room before the duel, and try to warm him up with a bout at single-sticks. But it's no use. And people think I'm getting too old for fencing when the fact is I'm busy protecting my face against wild opponents who don't know anything about swordplay."

Opens School of Acting.

IN disgust and despair, Mr. Mantell last season opened a school of acting in a barn on his estate in Atlantic Highlands. There were 15 students, from half a dozen different states. The course of instruction consisted of daily rehearsals, such as the actor-manager gives his professional company. The young woman who played Regan in "Macbeth" here was one of these pupils. The results were so encouraging that Mantell plans next year to turn the barn into a theater and continue the school on a larger scale.

"No," continued he, "Shakspeare is in no danger—that is, unless someone comes who can write better plays. This contingency seems at present remote. His dramas will be quite as alive as ever when all the horde of ephemeral works now so popular have been totally forgotten. And actors will arise to play them, too. You can't be

Most of all, they know nothing of the terrific "opposition" which the legitimate theater meets at present in the movies, jazz dance halls, radio and, worst of all, the automobile.

Lost Money Only One Season.

THE actor hastened to add that he himself had no grievance. "During all my career," he declared, "I never lost money on Shakspeare except during one season. That was last year, and I blamed, not the Bard or the public, but bad booking and the presidential campaign. I opened here Monday to the largest first-night receipts I'd had in St. Louis for 15 years; and the next night, instead of falling off, as usual, the seats sales were still larger.

"The thing which makes a Shakspearean manager old before his time is the difficulty of recruiting competent companies, particularly in the case of young men. You send to the New York agencies for players, and you get an assortment of youths who have the gall to demand—and get—from $75 to $125 a week, and who ought really to pay you for teaching them to pronounce the plain, simple English language.

"I had such a young fellow who was getting $125 a week. One day he came to the word 'ague' in one of his speeches. How do you think he pronounced it. 'A-YOU-gy!' It's an honest fact! Another one insisted on saying 'incor-RIG-ible.' I gave him the correct accent, and after the rehearsal he said: 'The old man's damned particular this morning!'

"They won't take the trouble to learn to fence. I try to teach them every day, but they don't take any interest. I even get Macduff in my dressing room before the duel, and try to warm him up with a bout at single-sticks. But it's no use. And people think I'm getting too old for fencing when the fact is I'm busy protecting my face against wild opponents who don't know anything about swordplay."

Opens School of Acting.

IN disgust and despair, Mr. Mantell last season opened a school of acting in a barn on his estate in Atlantic Highlands. There were 25 students, from half a dozen different states. The course of instruction consisted of daily rehearsals, such as the actor-manager gives his professional company. The young woman who played Regan in "Macbeth" here was one of these pupils. The results were so encouraging that Mantell plans next year to turn the barn into a theater and continue the school on a larger scale.

"No," continued he, "Shakspeare is in no danger—that is, unless someone comes who can write better plays. This contingency seems at present remote. His dramas will be quite as alive as ever when all the horde of ephemeral works now so popular have been totally forgotten. And actors will arise to play them, too. You can't be sure just now where they'll come from, but they will come!"

"Outraged" When Project of Modern "Hamlet" Was Broached.

IT was rather in spite of himself that Mr. Mantell accomplished one of the exploits of his career, in presenting "Hamlet" Thursday night at the American in twentieth-century attire, for the first time in this country. He confessed to old-fashioned ideas regarding Shakspearean production, and frankly regards as freakish and unintelligent such a performance as John Barrymore's—"a 'Hamlet' with only one set and no ghost" — or another one, "with Juliet sitting aloft in a soup-bowl, and hangings pendent from the rim." He dislikes even the use of draperies, such as Sothern and Marlowe employ.

So, when the experiment with "Hamlet" was first suggested, he was aghast, and says he thought: "Next thing they'll be doing the Passion Play with the Savior on the cross in B. V. D.'s!" It was Mrs. Mantell who pointed out that this might prove an opportunity to do a bit of missionary work for the Swan of Avon, by attracting people to the theater who otherwise would not attend. She was vindicated by an unusually large and interested audience.

Speaking of historic accuracy, are the costumes traditionally employed in 'Hamlet" much more correct than the dinner jackets, evening gowns and overalls displayed Thursday night? According to the record, Hamlet, Prince of Jutland, flourished in the second century B. C. A stickler for exact veracity would probably insist upon the garb of Norse Vikings.

"Rose-Marie" Is a New Departure in Musical Shows.

A CAST in some respects unpardonable and many deadly literary faults should not blind us to the fact that "Rose-Marie," which forsook the Shubert-Jefferson last night after a prosperous visit of three weeks, marks a new departure in the production of musical shows. In the first place, it rejoices in an extraordinarily literate and brilliantly orchestrated score by Herbert Stothart, with incidental melodies by Rudolf Friml.

Instead of the stereotyped three acts, there are two acts of 10 scenes, so arranged that interludes take place within draperies at the front of the stage while new sets are being erected in the back. The murder scene in Black Eagle's cabin is done in pantomime, with only the orchestra speaking. The orchestra almost habitually accompanies the dialogue, with the effect of recitative, except that the text is spoken and not chanted. The "Totem Pole" number is no less than an inspiration, and it seemed that for the first time in years a stage manager had found something original for a chorus to do.

Moreover, this musical work has a coherent and rather interesting plot—melodrama, to be sure, but no more so than, say, "Tiger Rose." The site, in Western Canada, affords scope for costumes of an unhackneyed species. In short, this work, for its kind, embodies more invention than we re-

Noel Coward Denies He's Male Cinderella

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.

IT IS a little difficult to get a clear view of Noel Coward, obscured as his actual outline has become by the smoke screen of romantic journalism that has been laid down between him and the world outside. That this should happen is inevitable: the truth is seldom known about any person who becomes legendary, and Noel Coward is already the hero of a legend. The favorite legend of all time—the Cinderella one.

All the ingredients are there. The slim, impecunious youth, wandering unrecognized and lonely, perhaps even a little hungry, through the streets of London (and New York), gazing wistfully at the lighted show shops of Piccadilly (and Broadway).

And, scarcely more than a year later, the same youth, still slim, but now opulent, and just about as unrecognized as the Prince of Wales riding triumphantly down Piccadilly (and Broadway) in a Hispano-Suiza, gazing with happy and bewildered eyes at his own name twinkling down at him from half the theaters on both sides of the Atlantic. Being, of course, delightfully whimsical and modest about it all.

There you have the Noel Coward legend, as fashioned by some of our more sentimental journalists and accepted with gurgles of joy by their more susceptible readers.

Neither Wistful Nor Modest.

A PRETTY legend. But completely inaccurate, as legends are likely to be. Once the smoke screen has been penetrated a quite different Noel Coward emerges from its rosy clouds, a young man happily devoid of the irritating qualities of wistfulness and whimsicality. And modesty, too, for that matter, if by modesty is meant that horrible and utterly unconvincing air of self-deprecation so many newly arrived successes feel it necessary to assume.

Noel Coward is a forthright, keen, entirely cerebral person, without an ounce of conscious picturesqueness about him. It is hard to imagine that he has ever had a moment's wistfulness in his life. There does not seem to have been any particular occasion for it. True, he did not always have a lot of money. And equally true he did not always have three plays running in London and two in New York simultaneously, with an avalanche more on the way.

That "Nice English Type."

BUT there is no background of "The Wind and the Rain" for him. His family, while not wealthy, is socially important. His people

Tom-Tom Rasps on British Nerves in 'Emperor Jones'

LONDON, Oct. 17.

"THE Emperor Jones" has invaded England, and the London papers are in an agreeable state of bewildered agitation. With the serene manner common to the leisurely and uncrowded critics on this side of the water, the reviews involve not only discussion of the performance itself but learned dissertations on West Indian Government, Pullman cars, race prejudice in "the States" and the condition of the negro before the Civil War.

By sternly fixing the columns of these papers with your eye, however, they can be bullied into leaving these byways and giving up unqualified approval of Paul Robeson in the title role and much fainter praise of the eerie play as it unwinds against the mounting crescendo of the tom-toms.

"There is no need to introduce Mr. Eugene O'Neill to English playgoers," writes St. John Ervine, now mercifully restored to the London Observer.

"He is known to be the most original and impressive dramatist in America and we have reached the point where we can discuss his merits without diminishing his virtues.

"A Fantee Shakspeare."

"MR. BERNARD SHAW, who has an uncanny gift for summarizing a man in a sentence, lately described Mr. O'Neill as 'a Fantee Shakspeare who peoples his isles with Calibans.' Mr. O'Neill not only prefers to write about elemental people, but is effective only when he does so. Sophisticated people defeat him. His least impressive plays, 'The First Man' and 'Welded,' are those in which he abandons his Calibans for highbrows. He has force, though not always direction, and a sense of aspiring beauty. He cannot prevent poetry from breaking out of his brutalities.

"But he is the most undisciplined dramatist that ever wrote a play. Marlowe, to whom he might not unprofitably be compared, was a law abider compared to him. . . . Mr. O'Neill abolishes rules altogether and I sometimes imag-

Barrymore Ophelia Is Fair, Slim

The Luminous Ethel Joins Walter Hampden in First of Proposed Series of Shakspeare Productions.

By ALEXANDER WOOLCOTT,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.

THE incandescent names in the play bills of the week are those of Ethel Barrymore, Elsie Ferguson and Chrystal Herne—as they might have been five years ago, 10 years ago, 15 years ago, so slowly, so imperceptibly do the stars swerve in their courses, so seldom does a new one rise in the theatrical heavens.

Miss Barrymore, slim, radiant, incomparable, is playing Ophelia now in the revival of "Hamlet" that is holding the stage of the new Hampden Theater. Some time soon—before Thanksgiving, probably—she will make her first appearance as Portia to confound the excellent Shylock of her new partner in the theater. Next, they say, the play will be "Much Ado About Nothing," a comedy which has been let severely alone ever since Sothern and Marlowe undertook it 21 years ago in the first season of their famous association—except for one hastily reconsidered month in which John Drew played the piece in the fall of 1913.

Followed News of Bobbed Hair.

THE tidings that Ethel Barrymore would join forces this year with Walter Hampden were published a few weeks ago, coming close on the world-shaking news that she had bobbed her hair. It caused almost as much comment and even more speculation. Mr. Hampden's reasons for extending the invitation seemed to me fairly obvious.

Here was a player who, as a Shakspearean actor, had come up in the world since that nervous Friday afternoon one week after the armistice in 1918, when he presented himself as Hamlet at the Plymouth Theater in this city. At that time his name meant little to the playgoers of this country and even less to the managers, every one of whom would have roared with unfeeling laughter had anyone suggested the wild venture of presenting Hampden formally as the Prince of Denmark.

The confetti of the Armistice debauch was still whirling in the November wind when room was finally found for the new "Hamlet" at the Plymouth in some spare hour when the stage would not be needed for "Redemption," the abysmal Tolstoy tragedy wherewith John Barrymore then had possession of the theater.

"Hamlet" Was New to Him.

IT was due to this proximity that Mr. Barrymore, on his way to or from his dressing-room, dropped into a seat to watch the majestical unfolding of a play which, while not precisely new to the world, was none the less new to him. For until that afternoon he had never read nor seen "Hamlet," the play with which a few years later his own name both in America and England was to become inextricably associated.

For some seasons, Hampden led a fly-by-night existence, playing Shakespeare on such stray afternoons and mornings as the managers would grudgingly provide a stage for him. But gradually his reputation accumulated, and when he turned out the light last Saturday night it must have been with a sigh of that half-incredulous relief wherewith a wayfarer celebrates his arrival at the top of a long, long hill. For, on Saturday night, Walter Hampden played "Hamlet" at the Hampden Theater.

The Hampden Theater is our old friend the Colonial, shaped, colored, dressed afresh—a whilom temple of the two-a-day which, of late years, has been given over to the dusky dancers who have been doing breakdowns in the wake of "Shuffle Along."

It stands on Broadway at the corner of Sixty-Second street, just a step from the cavernous Century in the vanguard of the ceaseless uptown march of the theaters.

Sothern Minus a Marlowe.

AND, when, for the first time, Mr. Hampden nervously wrote his name in glowing lamps above his own front door, he must have felt the need of reinforcements. For it is not well for Shakspearean actors to play alone, and for many seasons now Mr. Hampden has been touring lonesomely—an Irving without a Terry, a Sothern without a Marlowe. Wherefore he seized a piece of paper and wrote somewhat as follows:

"Dear Miss Barrymore:

"Will you come and play lots and lots of Shakspeare with me? Cordially and sincerely yours,

"W. HAMPDEN."

Without access to the Hampden files I cannot, of course, do more than surmise that this was the tenor of the correspondence. And what happened next I have not the remotest idea. For it is well known that a Barrymore seldom reads a letter and never writes one.

But I can give a good guess as to why Miss Barrymore accepted the invitation. She was, I imagine, keeping a tryst with her own soul. Before it would be too late, she wanted to be able to say that she, too, had played the great roles and entered into the great tradition which five generations in the English-speaking theater have made her inalienable birthright.

Couldn't Play With Brother.

THE means to such an end were not many. One door was closed to her—the otherwise obvious partnership with one of her own brothers. For, whereas Miss Barrymore makes an Ophelia of magic loveliness, there is one actor to whose Hamlet she cannot play the part. She can never be the Ophelia in her own brother's revival of "Hamlet." The spectacle of John Barrymore hurling Ethel Barrymore from him the while he directs her toward the nearest nunnery is a conjunction of the stars which will be always denied the avid American audience.

For, soundly enough, probably there is a feeling in the theater that that audience will not accept a love scene played by brother and sister. When the Barrymores disported themselves briefly some seasons ago in a play called "Clair de Lune," the sister had to step aside into a secondary role to avoid just that complication. Said a brilliant and devastating actress out in the audience: "That would have been adding incest to injury."

Wherefore, if it was to be Shakspeare, it must either be in association with Mr. Hampden or not at all. And deep within Miss Barrymore's heart there was, I suspect, a voice insisting on Shakspeare. For, only three winters before, through a complication of mishaps with which her own capacity as an actress had had nothing to do, she had come a fearful cropper in "Romeo and Juliet" and, one may guess, nothing would satisfy her until the memory of it was effaced.

An Ample, Matronly Juliet.

WITH an indifferent and hollow Romeo, with a crushing mise-en-scene that suggested nothing in the world except a large, stylish mausoleum, with a troupe vilely directed into a state resembling catalepsy and at a time when she herself was far too ample and matronly in aspect to have ventured forth as the lovesick maiden of Verona, she played Juliet for three embarrassing weeks to paltry audiences. During those weeks, the empty seats on the orchestra floor were conspicuous and blighting. But, as some old meanie said at the time, the balcony was always full.

Now, under different aupices, in a different year, when she herself seems as slim, as lovely and as luminous as ever she did when she played "Carrots" long ago, Miss Barrymore is playing Ophelia and rehearsing Portia. The memory is effaced. There was a very tornado of approval at the first performance from an audience that ranged all the way from Mrs. John Barrymore, who followed the play from the proscenium box, to Brander Matthews, who sat in the front row and thought about Ellen Terry.

Fate of a House-Crazy Dame.

MISS FERGUSON is appearing at the Lyceum in a saucy, naughty comedy from the French called "The Grand Duchess and the Waiter," and Miss Herne is engaged at the Morosco in the new play by the man who wrote "The Show-Off." This latter is "Craig's Wife," a piece about a woman who is house-crazy, a woman who marries a man to get possession of the dwelling he can give her and then renders it arctic to him and his friends in her mania for keeping it spotless, pure, inviolate.

Some 50 years ago in London some such woman—her name was Mrs. Thomas—used to trail her maid from room to room dusting after her, running a suspicious finger over every lintel and every window sill, and growing waspish if a match-end were left on the rug or an ornament found misplaced by so much as a hair's breadth.

One night this maid, whose name was Kate Webster, threw her mistress downstairs and then, following at her leisure, choked the old woman to death. Then she cut her into convenient sizes and boiled several of these and threw them into the Thames. The head was still to be disposed of, and this she tucked into her shopping bag, toting it around with her from shop to shop and actually resting it on the floor beside her while she took a comfortable dish of tea with some unsuspecting friends.

I am aware that Kate had other motives for killing Mrs. Thomas, but I have always believed that the impelling one was her exasperation at an old woman who, too, was house crazy. And I know just how Kate felt. So, seemingly, does the man who wrote "Craig's Wife." And Miss Herne embodies this appalling character with such skill that before the wonderful first act has run its course, each audience is just so many Kate Websters itching to throw her down her beautifully polished stairs.

ine that Prof. Baker, whose pupil he was at Harvard, must occasionally mingle his pride in him with tears. He is a wasteful dramatist and starts his plays clumsily and extravagantly because he is too impatient to work closely on them.

Repetition a Defect.

"WE saw signs of that waste in 'Anna Christie' where he opens the play with a group of pub-loafers who are no way necessary to his purpose. In 'The Emperor Jones' an old native woman is wastefully brought into the first scene. In some of his plays, Mr. O'Neill manifests a morbid interest in disease merely because it is disease. More than once I have stated here that Shakspeare wrote 'Julius Caesar' with no more than an oblique reference to the fact that the Emperor suffered from epilepsy. If Mr. O'Neill were to write a play about Julius Caesar, the Emperor would be throwing fits through five acts.

"But perhaps the most serious defect in Mr. O'Neill's work, the defect glaringly displayed in 'The Emperor Jones,' is his love of repetition. Now, repetition, which can be extraordinarily effective in a novel, is nearly always disastrous in a play. Gogol in 'The Inspector-General' repeated a fine effect two or three time and ruined his play. Mr. O'Neill repeats an effect in this piece five times.

Why Play Failed to Grip.

"IT was, I think, because of the repetitions inherent in the play that it failed to grip the audience as tightly as one imagined it would; but I suspect that the persistent tom-toming which was maintained through the intervals as well as through the scenes had something to do with this failure. The brain was stunned by the drums. Mr. James Light, the producer, did his work extremely well, but he makes a mistake which many modern producers, especially American producers, make; he compels the spectator to become a performer. Mr. Norman Bel-Geddes, I think it was, actually advocates this sort of thing which was first practiced by Reinhardt. It is totally wrong. The tom-tom stunned us as it stunned the Emperor Jones, and if it had not stopped when it did, I should not have been surprised to see some of my less controlled colleagues climbing on to the stage and doing a war dance."

Deeply Absorbing Study.

AFTER which devastating comment, Mr. Ervine adds blandly: "I hope I have made it plain that I regard this play as a remarkable one which must be seen by every intelligent person in London. If it were not a remarkable one, I should not have troubled to treat it in this manner. This study of reversion to type, of swiftly shed civilibation in a forest full of fears, is deeply absorbing.

"Mr. Paul Robeson, a negro actor, gave a fine performance as Jones, though I thought it was too intellectual. This was a Harvard graduate 'letting on,' as we say in Ulster, to be frightened out of his wits. I should have liked a more primitive performance."

"Brutal Attack on Nerves."

THE London Times was also upset by the tom-toms: "The whole thing is one brutal attack on your nerves," writes its critic, "yet, with an inherent nobility, an impression of power in its eponymous hero that redeems it. Paul Robeson, 'a colored man' (how absurd the phrase sounds in these conditions!) gives you a superb performance, a triumph of the uncanny that you fear will haunt you long. But your 'Ah!' of admiration ends in the 'ugh!' of repulsion. The drum beat has stopped but it still hammers on your ears."

"The Emperor Jones, 'sure is' a creepy play," writes the Westminster Gazette. (Note the American vernacular, an extremely chic touch in a British review!) "What would happen if there were nine scenes, I dare not imagine, but a few more taps on Mr. O'Neill's tom-tom would be prejudicial to the health of London."

member seeing in half a hundred musical comedies.

In reply to numerous inquiries, the writer here affirms that, in his opinion, "Rose Marie" is so far superior to "No, No, Nanette" that they should not be mentioned in the same breath. The latter is the slenderest of farces with two tunes—and these are so musically angular and crude, despite a genuine rhythmic vivacity, that they may scarcely be classified as melodies. It was fortunate in a cast expert enough to make more than the most of their sparse material; but the entire vocal resources of the troupe were not to be compared with those of one singer, Miss Maria Shamshon, prima donna of "Rose-Marie"

CONFERENCE TO DIAGNOSE ILLS OF AMERICAN THEATER

Community Playhouses to Be Discussed at Meeting in Pittsburg Nov. 27-28.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 17.—Whether the commercial theater is dying, and whether the American public cares what happens to the commercial theater, are questions which will be discussed at a national conference on the American theater, to be held Nov. 27 and 28 at the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

Assuming that, as indicated by the current decline of road business, the commercial theater in this country is in a somewhat hazardous economic condition, officials of the Pittsburg institution are planning to make a study of the community playhouse the keynote of the conference.

"In recent years," said Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute and author of the plan for the conference, "there has been a rapid development of community theaters throughout the United States in which emphasis is laid on the literary and artistic rather than commercial values of the drama. If American universities, during the last decade, more attention has been paid to the theater than ever before. Acting and play writing are now taught in a number of colleges.

"It is suggested that these developments are partly the result of a widespread feeling that the American theater is not in a healthy condition. At present the movement is somewhat indefinite, and the purpose of the conference is to focus attention on a development which has been carried on almost unperceived by the great body of Americans."

BOOKINGS FOR NOVEMBER AT AMERICAN THEATER

Film to Be Shown Next Week—Shubert-Rialto to Open Nov. 1.

The American Theater's bookings for November include "The Lady Next Door," a comedy; David Belasco's production of "Ladies of the Evening," the Duncan Sisters, in "Topsy and Eva," and Ed Wynn's "The Grab Bag." The playhouse will turn to pictures next week, with H. A. Snow's camera epic, "Hunting Big Game in the Arctic."

The newly christened Shubert-Rialto, on Grand boulevard, which is hereafter to house the Shubert attractions sent to St. Louis, will open Nov. 1 with "Blossom Time," which will play its third engagement here with a cast new to this city.

NOEL COWARD DENIES HE'S CINDERELLA OF STAGE NURSERY TALE

have all been in the navy or the diplomatic service, or something thoroughly correct like that. He is the first of his tribe to turn toward the stage, a freak, a botanical sport. And even he, in appearance, conduct and manner of dress, is precisely that "very nicest type of Englishman" of which his Nicky Lancaster speaks so contemptuously.

"I'd like awfully to oblige with a picturesque past," he said, between telephone conversations—he has a private phone in his dressing room—and sundry other interruptions, such as visiting movie impresarios, eager to wheedle the film rights of his plays from him, night letters inviting him to house parties, and fellow Englishmen dropping in for a word of congratulation, "but I'm afraid I can't in all truth. I really can't remember ever having been within shouting distance of starvation. It's true, I've been on the stage since the age of 10, but I've worked pretty steadily. And I've written songs and sketches for revues for ages. And I've always known amusing people, just the same people I know now, only not quite so many of them, and not so publicly.

Knew It Would Happen So.

"THIS sudden spurt of success is great fun, of course, and I get rather a kick out of riding down Fifth Avenue in a big car when two years ago I rode in the bus, and living in a huge studio apartment when two years ago I lived in a single small room, and having people tremendously nice to me, and being important.

"Success is very glamorous, just as I always dreamed it would be. But it doesn't overwhelm me, and I don't feel in the least like a male Cinderella, because it's all happening just the way I knew it would. It's what I've been working for all my life. I was determined to get it, and now it's here. I could act coy and pretend to be frightfully surprised at what's happened to me this past year, but it would be just about as convincing as 'This is so sudden' from a girl who's been struggling for years to achieve a proposal."

This is one of Coward's most gratifying characterists, this complete absence of kittenishness, especially as he does not substitute for it anything that savors of swank. He is a truly unselfconscious young man, whose attitude toward himself and his unprecedented success is quite impersonal. He can talk about it with the same detachment he would discuss the affairs of a friend. And he just will not bother to feign amazement. It is as if he had just fallen heir to a large fortune which he had always known would one day be his. He is glad that it has come. Life is pleasanter now that it has come, but it's no great shock. And he didn't mind particularly waiting for it.

Appears to Be 35.

NOT that he had to wait very long. He is not yet 26, an established success, a man of strong and versatile talents—some people assert positive genius—at an age when most young men with literary leanings are thinking that it is about time to stop being a promising member of the younger generation and really write that first novel. His years on the stage have added a decade to his calendar age. In point of view, in manner, and in appearance almost, though not quite, he might be in the neighborhood of 35. Yet there is nothing of precocity about him. He could no more be described as precocious than could Eugene Marchbanks, although that is about as far as the resemblance goes.

And his poise is magnificent. It is impossible to imagine any situation that could, to quote one of his characters in "Hay Fever," knock him off his plate." It is not an acquired poise, either. Nobody could acquire that much poise in 25 years. He must have been born that way.

He's a Canny Young Man.

HE is a shrewd young man, too, not alone in the ways of the theater, but in the ways of people. When "The Vortex" and "Hay Fever" were first sold for American production he made definite stipulations that they were not to be heavily exploited in advance.

"Audiences, and critics, too," he said, the fainest suggestion of impishness in a grave face as he spoke, "love to discover plays and people. It tickles their vanity. Haven't you ever noticed how it delights them when a secondary player outshines the star of a piece? They feel they've had a hand in it somewhere. I thought it would be much better to let them discover me than to be overexploited before I arrived. It's frightfully hard to live up to too much heralding, anyway."

"It seems to have worked with you," a visitor commented. "New York has discovered you with a vengeance. It will probably be 10 years before you see England again."

"Oh, no," he replied. "I shan't stay longer than a year. If I go before they get tired of me I'll be able to come back."

Admits His Plays Are Good.

COWARD'S attitude toward his plays, like his attitude toward himself, is without self-consciousness. He knows they are good, and sees no reason for being coy about it. But he finds it infuriating to be thought of as a propagandist.

"I discover all sorts of motives attributed to me," he declared, "when I have no motive in the world except to write good plays. Take 'Fallen Angels,' for instance. All I tried to do was write a French comedy in English, and back home they went on about it as though I had ruined the entire social fabric of the British Empire. 'The Vortex' they said was an attempt to show up English society, and 'Hay Fever,' I heard from some quarters, was an expose of the acting profession. It's utterly maddening."

The Secret Is Out.

SPEAKING of "Hay Fever," it seemed the right moment to ask about that title, even at the risk of being proved hopelessly stupid. So many people have speculated as to its bearing on the play, and so many meanings have been given for it, none very convincing. So Mr. Coward was asked. He laughed.

"It has no bearing on the play," he said, "and it doesn't mean a thing. Originally the play was called 'Still Life,' but just before we opened in London a short story was published under that name, so we had to abandon it. My secretary and I were trying to get something else in a hurry, and somehow we hit on 'Hay Fever.' That's all there is to it."

After all, why not? Shakspeare set the precedent.

MONTHLY GARAGE CHARGE FOR AIRPLANES IN ENGLAND

Haviland Company in London Opens Service Stations for Light Machines.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Simultaneously with the receipt of reports from New York that airplanes have been placed on sale in a leading department store there, the Haviland company in London announced a new departure in ci- flying. This concern has opened several stations for private owners of "June bug" or other light planes. These stations will be operated along the same lines as service stations for automobiles. The airplane garage arrived here some time ago, or about the time the London Light Airplane Club, with headquarters at Staglane, was launched with 15 women members. The "moth," or "June bug" type of machine is given garage quarters at Staglane at an inclusive fee of 15 shillings (about $3.70) a week. The average garage cost for an automobile in London is about half a guinea (about $2.50). The weekly fee for airplane garage service includes ordinary service, such as assistance in bringing the machine out of the hangar, starting the engine and putting in fuel. On monthly contracts the fee is reduced 10 shillings, making the monthly charge 50 shillings (about $12), which is even less than many motorists pay for the keep of their cars.

Ground engineers licensed by the Air Ministry, also are available at Staglane to examine airplane wings and motors for a shillings six pence ($1. the same price the owner can have his pet and span with soap whenever it gets soile dust or other bo'herso the air.

Socialists Answer Ex-Crown Prince.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—The Socialist party, in its political correspondence, takes issue with former Crown Prince Frederick William over his criticism of prohibition in America. Frederick William recently said that the effects of the Volstead law in the United States had been detrimental and that he did not favor prohibition. The Socialist organ counters with a sarcastic rejoinder, stating that the detrimental effects consisted among other things in compelling Massachusetts to close seven jails and to sell two others after prohibition went into effect.

INDIGESTION SPELLS—COULD HARDLY EAT

"I suffered with indigestion for six years," says Mr. H. C. Dove of Chester, S. C., telling of the disorders from which he finally found relief through the use of Thedford's Black-Draught.

"I had gotten to the place where I could hardly eat a thing. Everything hurt. I had smothering spells and fell off twenty pounds. I was in a bad fix.

"I read of Black-Draught, and decided to try it. I took a big dose daily, and in three months' time I saw a big change.

"I had gotten to where I only ate milk and crackers, but, after I began on Black-Draught, I began to eat and gradually got my appetite back. I gained in weight and I felt better. I have not had a bad spell of indigestion in ten months.

"I believe Black-Draught is the best liver medicine made. I cannot say enough for what it has done for me. I have used it in large doses and have taken small doses after meals and find both ways very satisfactory. I am glad to tell others what it did for me. I feel so grateful for what Black-Draught did for me that I want others to know, for it may help them as it helped me."

One of the first things to do in an attack of indigestion is to clear the system of all undigested particles of food. Thedford's Black-Draught will do this very thoroughly and will also stimulate the digestive organs to carry on their normal work, and help in eliminating poisons and impurities from the system.

Black-Draught is composed entirely of pure, medicinal roots and herbs of natural, harmless action. It contains no mineral or other harmful drugs and no sugar syrup, which sometimes disorders the stomach.

The vegetable ingredients of Black-Draught are carefully combined in clean, up-to-date laboratories, in just the proportions that scientific experience has shown to be the best for the purpose.

KEWANEE

The reliable foe of Chills

LOOK IN THE BASEMENT FIRST! That's the way to rent a flat. Look for the Kewanee All-Steel Firebox Boiler. If you don't find it, you can't be sure you are going to be warm all Winter. And if you are not going to be warm, the flat will be a nightmare instead of a pleasant dream.

Your life depends on heat for at least six months of the year. It would be foolish, wouldn't it, to pay fancy rents, then shiver and shake and swear half the time? That isn't Life. It's a whole lot more like death. That's imitating the Eskimos, and who wants to be an Eskimo?

The many thousands who have followed our advice and rented flats because they were heated by Kewanee Boilers, have never cared a picayune how cold old Winter was. They had plenty of heat and steady heat. There were no cracks or leaks to stop the flow of heat. Matter of fact, the all-steel Kewanee Boiler never met Mr. Crack or Mr. Leak.

Location is all right—arrangement of rooms is fine—interior finish is a factor, of course—but the big thing in flat life is the heating boiler—the Kewanee All-Steel Smokeless Firebox Boiler. If you find it, go ahead and sign. If you don't, then you'd better move on.

Ask The Old Man Behind the Boiler why the finest flat and apartment houses in America use the Kewanee Boiler. His answer will save you lots of grief.

CHURCH DELEGATES TO HAVE SPECIAL CARS

St. Louisans and Missourians to Attend Congregational Meeting in Washington.

A number of delegates and visitors from St. Louis will go to Washington for the biennial meeting of the National Council of Congregational Churches, which opens there next Tuesday, and continues through Oct. 28. Most of the St. Louis delegates, with those from points west and southwest, will leave on special cars Monday noon.

President Coolidge is to address the council at its first night meeting, on the 20th. He is honorary moderator of the council and is a member of the First Congregational Church of Washington.

Though the Congregational Church has a history of more than three centuries in this country, being the church of the Pilgrim Fathers of New England, it has not happened before that a President was of that church. The coming meeting at the national capital will be memorable for this reason.

Council Only Advisory.

The Congregational Church is democratically organized, each congregation being independent of any central authority, so that the national council and state organizations are voluntary associations, with advisory rather than legislative power.

This form of organization, and circumstances which limited the development of the Congregational Church largely to the eastern and northern states, have tended to make its numerical growth less than that of some other churches. It is usually ranked as seventh numerically among Protestant denominations in the United States. Statistics of last January show the total membership as 878,995, with 5680 congregations and 5613 ministers.

The Congregational Church has been best known through its activity in education. Yale, Harvard, Amherst, Dartmouth, Williams, Oberlin, Knox, Beloit, Grinnell, Colorado, Carleton, Drury and Washburn are among the universities and colleges of Congregational origin. In missions, Turkey, Armenia and the Near East have been its especial field.

Merger to Be Completed.

At the coming council the merging of the Evangelical Protestant churches into the Congregational body will be completed. These churches, chiefly in Ohio and Pennsylvania, have more than 10,000 members.

Proposals to merge the nine missionary societies of the Congregational Church into two, and to consolidate church publications, will be before the council. The societies which it is proposed to merge have invested funds of more than $50,000,000.

Two important reports to be considered, which are now in the hands of delegates, are those of the commissions on Social Service and Law Enforcement. The former commission has proposed a social creed, bearing on education, industry, agriculture, racial and international relations. The latter has recommended that the churches shall "quit smiling at those who flout the prohibition law," shall "frown unmistakably" upon them, and shall, by "powerfully insistent preaching," call upon public officials and the press for better support of the law."

WHITE HOUSE GLOOMY AS COMPARED WITH THE ELYSEE

French Newspaper Comments on Absence of Ladies and Wine at Dinner Given by Coolidge.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—The White House while President Coolidge lives there is described in French press accounts, appearing in connection with reports of the recent debt negotiations in Washington, as a gloomy place compared with the Elysee Palace, where President Doumergue has his official home. One paper draws a contrast between a dinner given M. Caillaux and his colleagues by the President with similar functions over which M. Doumergue presides.

"M. Doumergue is gay," the story runs; "Mr. Coolidge is morose. At the Elysee there are ladies, and champagne. At the White House all are in black and there is nothing but mineral water—that is perhaps why there are no subjects to bring talk."

The article concludes with the observation that an American presidential dinner is not marked—nor marred—by toasts. "How would you like to drink the health of anyone in a glass of charged water?" the writer asks.

PRESBYTERIAN CLERGYMEN MEET HERE OCT. 28 TO NOV. 1

Among the Speakers Will Be Representatives From Several Eastern Cities.

A convention of Presbyterian ministers is to be held in St. Louis Oct. 28 to Nov. 1.

While it is expected the convention will be attended chiefly by churchmen from St. Louis and the Southwest, speakers will include Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Princeton, N. J.; Drs. James G. Bailey, John McDowell, W. R. King and W. R. Locke, New York; Dr. William C. Covert, Philadelphia, and William F. Weir of Chicago.

Local Presbyterian ministers, deacons and trustees will join the visiting clergy at a banquet at the City Club, Oct. 30.

When You Wake Up Tired—Look Out for Chronic Fatigue

Many a man and woman who is always weak and tired, who goes to bed exhausted, and gets up weary and unrefreshed in the morning—many, yes, thousands of these haggard, nervous, worn-out people are victims of chronic fatigue—and do not know it.

Chronic fatigue is entirely different from the ordinary, "healthy" fatigue you feel after various exercise. Chronic fatigue—the serious kind—comes from within. Your nerves, muscles, organs, etc., have become devitalized and cannot function properly. That is why even sleep doesn't rest you as it should.

To conquer chronic fatigue—with its terrible tired feeling—you must get at its cause—in the blood. For it is the blood that carries nourishment to all your nerves, muscles and tissues. And it is almost invariably when your blood is thin and pale, lacking in sufficient organic iron that your whole system becomes weakened, and you suffer from that continued tired feeling, weakness, nervousness, headache, backache, dizziness, palpitation, poor appetite, etc.

In this condition what you need is to strengthen and invigorate your system by getting more organic iron into your blood. (But don't take the old-fashioned mineral iron medicines which many doctors now say do little good.) Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the organic iron in your blood and like that in spinach and lentils. Unlike ordinary mineral iron, it will not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. Furthermore, it is promptly assimilated and begins at once to revitalize worn-out nerves, muscles and tissues, and give you glorious new strength and endurance.

Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks and you'll be astonished how completely that tired feeling and other miserable symptoms disappear, and you feel stronger and better in every way. Money back if not improved. At all good druggists.

Speak- last week at Inverness, Scot- the former Prime Minister made a scathing reference to large tracts of land in Scotland which, instead of being tilled, are being devoted to one month's pleasure a year for rich strangers.

"These strangers," he said, "are drawn from breeds that never wore tartans and couldn't stand kilts in December without central heating."

It is stated that Lloyd George intends to spend £80,000 (about $400,000) in his land campaign to insure it the widest possible appeal. The new land policy, while promulgated by the Liberal party's Land Committee, still awaits the blessing of the Earl of Asquith and Oxford, the former H. H. SILVER TRINKETS FOUND IN ILLINOIS INDIAN CEMETERY

Miniature Turtles, Token of Kickapoo Tribe, Bear Hallmarks of European Jewelers.

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Ill., Oct. 17.—Small silver trinkets such as turtles—the token of the Kickapoo Indian tribe—thimbles and rings, give evidence of the shrewdness of English and French traders here years ago. The relics on display in the County Courthouse bear the marks of English and French jewelers and manufacturers.

They were disinterred by a road construction gang while engaged in excavating for a new concrete highway about a mile from town. The men found a former Indian burying ground and numerous bones of Indians were brought to light. Nearly a dozen small perfectly shaped turtles of pure silver, each bearing the hallmark of a famous French jeweler were found.

Historians point out the sense of propriety shown by the French traders who evidently had the tokens specially made for the Kickapoo Indians in order to derive better bargains in buying furs and other Indian products.

The silver thimbles were of much the same shape as the modern sewing implement. The Indian punched a hole in the smaller end and wore it like a button, for an ornament. After many years of mouldering, the relics had to be subjected to much polishing and cleaning.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS TO BE SOUGHT FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Record Quota of $1,800,000 Must Be Raised With the Help of Small Contributors.

CHARITY CAMPAIGN WILL OPEN ON NOV. 13

Officers Issue Income Schedules With Corresponding Amounts That Should Be Given.

This year's Community Fund goal, in the campaign to be held Nov. 13 to 23—$1,800,000 — is about 25 per cent more than for the largest of the three previous annual campaigns because of the increased demand for charitable work and the failure of the people to subscribe fully for amounts needed previously.

Many persons who did not contribute in previous campaigns must pledge money in this one, and many past subscribers must increase their pledges, if the goal is to be met, Community Fund officials have announced.

The Fund has worked out a schedule of fitting minimum amounts which the people of St. Louis and St. Louis County should subscribe for the support of the 50 member charities.

Those making $2000 a year should give 1¼ per cent, or $25, while those with $50,000 annual income should give 12¾ per cent, or $6375. The scale covers 21 other incomes between these points, for instance, holding that persons making $4000 a year should contribute $60; $6000, $105; $8000, $180, and $10,000, $275.

124,000 Donors Needed.

About 124,000 contributors must be found, the Fund officials estimate. An ideal distribution of the pledges would be as follows: 296 gifts of $1000 and more each, $875,000; 190 of $500 to $999, $144,500; 286 of $250 to $499, $108,000; 1015 of $100 to $249, $157,500; 1245 of $50 to $99, $87,500; 2450 of $25 to $49, $87,500; 108,300 of less than $25, $340,000.

Thus it will be seen that while only several hundred persons are expected to give large sums aggregating about half of the fund, the other half must come from a great bulk of the people. The contributor of only $1 or a few dollars, therefore, is an important factor.

The goal of $1,800,000 is a minimum and more could be used effectively. A statement yesterday by Daniel K. Catlin, general chairman of the Community Fund, outlining the efficiency achieved in the community's charity work through this organization, said:

"An obvious advantage of the fund campaigns has been the distribution of the burden of giving from the few to the many. Before the fund was organized there were 8000 givers of $5 and more to the separate organizations now members of the fund.

"The Community Fund now has 27,000 givers of this amount and more, and 110,000 givers of all amounts, including those less than $5.

"The fund has meant greatly increased efficiency for the participating organizations. In other words, it has not merely given more cents out of each charitable dollar for actual human service, but also has increased the amount of human service which can be bought for each dollar.

Increasing Service.

"In three campaigns the Community Fund has greatly increased the amount given to the participating organizations; has secured a steadily increasing number of givers, and each year has been shared in by an increasing number of organizations which have seen the advantage of the Community's Fund's plan of federated appealing and giving.

"The Community Fund has, however, kept its standards high and has refused to admit several organizations which it did not believe it could honorably ask the citizens of St. Louis to support. These are unquestionable evidences of the Community Fund's success and permanency as a factor in the philanthropic life of St. Louis.

"Moreover, more than 200 other American cities have adopted the Community Fund plan of giving. No city that has ever tried the plan on such a basis of operation and staff as possessed by St. Louis has abandoned it."

Stylish "Bobs"

Easy to Keep Thick, Wavy, Beautiful!

Girls! Try this! When combing and brushing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can dress your hair immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy, an abundance of gleamy, wavy hair, sparkling with life, incomparably soft, fresh, youthful.

Besides beautifying the hair, a 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" from any drug or toilet counter will do wonders, particularly if the hair is dry, thin, brittle, faded or streaked with gray from constant curling and waving which burn the color, lustre and very life from any woman's hair.

"Danderine" acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, stopping falling hair and helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

"We keep ourselves only half clean"

"Why won't we take the simple extra step that leads directly to beauty?"

WHERE is the woman who would care to acknowledge that it has been months, even years, since she bathed?

The truth is we keep ourselves only half clean if our bathing is merely external.

It is far from a polite subject, but if you could once see what the average body looks like inside, you would understand why internal bathing at regular intervals is so necessary. Those hidden accumulations of waste and poisons are what ruin many a woman's skin despite all the external care she gives it.

Slow-action pills, oils, yeast and other mere cathartics cannot do what internal bathing does. That is why Pluto Water is woman's greatest beauty aid. In the most gentle way, it washes and flushes the intestinal tract quickly (in 30 minutes to two hours) and thereby cleans and clears the skin, brightens the eyes, sweetens the breath, and makes the whole person more attractive.

Try internal baths with Pluto once a week for just one month. Your improved appearance will delight you. Bottled at fashionable French Lick Springs, Pluto Water is prescribed by physicians and sold at drug stores everywhere.

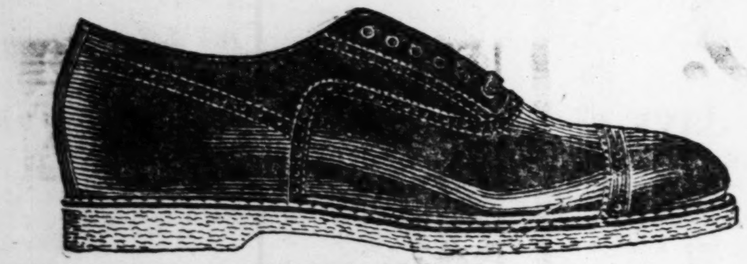
Natural Plantation Finished Crepe Rubber

For Everybody's Everyday Wear



Man's Walking Shoe made by Hanan

A thin 1/8 inch tread for men's—women's—and children's shoes—that gives sport shoe comfort to everyday shoes

EVERYBODY would like sport-shoe comfort in their everyday shoes but everybody does not want to wear sport shoes for everyday use. Your favorite dealer will show you shoes for man—woman—or child—in your favorite styles made by your favorite manufacturer clad with Natural Crepe Rubber Soles. You will agree they are as neat and good looking as any shoes you ever saw. Simply your regular shoes with a thin, firm tread of Natural Crepe Rubber.

This live, unprocessed resilient rubber between the sole of your shoe and the side-walk acts as a shock absorber and at the same time gives full support to the muscles of the feet. The natural tread gives you a firm grip on the pavement and gives you greater distance with less effort for every step you take. And don't forget natural crepe is waterproof.

Even "Peck's Bad Boy" will wear crepe rubber soles three times as long as he ever wore any other type.

Before you buy that next pair of shoes ask your favorite dealer to show you your favorite style in your regular everyday shoe, clad with Natural Crepe Rubber. Buy them—get greater comfort, longer wear—banish shoe repair bills for one year. Last, but not least, they cost no more than shoes soled with ordinary soles.

Rubber Growers' Association, Inc., of London. New York Office: 13th Floor, 244 Madison Ave., New York City.

BLIND AND DEAF BOYS TO GET SCOUT BADGES

234 Troops Will Take Part in Demonstration at Armory Nov. 7.

A troop of blind Boy Scouts, a troop of deaf Scouts and a troop of Polish boys, whose Scout work has been an important Americanization factor among Poles in a congested area of the city, are among the 234 troops which will take part in the monster Boy Scout merit badge demonstration and exhibition at the Armory on Friday evening, Nov. 6, and Saturday afternoon and evening, Nov. 7.

The exhibition will be one of the biggest ever undertaken by any Boy Scout organization, a somewaht similar one having been held in Philadelphia last winter. Thousands of boys will be in the arena events, demonstrating Boy Scout activities, and in 61 booths there will be boys at work at the crafts and trades in which they perfect themselves to win the merit badges.

The Boy Scout Merit Badge exhibition is sponsored by the Rotary Club of St. Louis. W. J. Puffer, educational director of the Boy Scouts, will have charge of the demonstration arrangements.

Sixty-one members of the Rotary Club will serve on the various committees, and each will individually sponsor one merit badge booth, in many cases men having been chosen who are heads of great business concerns, professions and trades in which the Scouts are taking the first steps in their character-building and vocation-finding work for merit badges.

Tableaux, campfires, all the bugle and drum corps of the Boy Scouts of the city, and athletic events will be featured during the exhibition.

ILLINOIS COUNTIES MUST LEVY FOR FULL ROAD TAX

Attorney-General Rules That of Each 75 Cents Levied, 25 Must Go to Highways.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 17.—Counties of Illinois have no alterative in making a tax levy, but must give 25 cents out of every 75 cents collected for improvement of its roads.

Chairman J. F. Lowry of the County Board of Fayette County asked Attorney-General Carlstrom of the possibility of appropriating some of the 25 cents for current county expenses. He said the county was in desperate need. His query was as follows:

"Can the board levy so that in the division of the 75 cents a less sum than 25 cents can be levied for roads, and the difference to make up the 75 cents be levied for county purposes. Thus, say an amount that would take up 15 cents for roads and an amount that would take up 60 cents for county purposes including in said county purposes the amount to pay installments on judgment; or, must the total levy for county purposes, including the installment to pay judgment be embraced in the 50 cents. The county is in desperate need of the full 50 cents for county purposes and desires to levy to pay an installment in addition thereto."

Attorney-General Carlstrom answered that "it is my opinion that a division of the funds raised by taxation (75 cents per each $100 valuation) so as to allow 60 cents for county purposes may not be made, unles sthe judgment against your county, is predicated upon indebtedness incurred for State aid roads. The excess of 50 cents must be applied to State aid road purposes."

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
AT THE AGE OF 83

"Four out of every five men and women past middle age are constantly fighting constipation."
—DR. CALDWELL

If Past Fifty—Listen!

Most elderly men and women must give to the bowels some occasional help, else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting regularity for weeks and often for months—or must you "purge" and physic" every little while to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

One dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will establish natural, healthy bowel movement for weeks at a time, even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement, but, best of all, it is often months before another dose is necessary. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself the difference between this gentle, regulating laxative and the ordinary griping, nauseating "physic."

Never Before such an Enchanting Tour!

Accept this invitation to Hollywood-by-the-Sea, Florida

Two great hotels are already entertaining guests in Hollywood-by-the-Sea—the third and greatest is shown here. This is the New Hollywood, now being built at a cost of $3,000,000, which will be opened to guests early in the coming January.

Live on the shore of the rolling Atlantic! Surf bathing—deep sea fishing—golf and all other sports—beckon you to Florida's new All-Year Wonder Resort City . . .

Below: The bulwark of any community is its schools. This picture shows a few of the pupils in front of the model school at Hollywood.

At noon you are here—two mornings later you can be strolling along the gleaming shore of the Atlantic—thrilled by the fresh salt breeze of a mighty ocean—shaded by the waving fronds of the lofty palms—transplanted as if by magic from the world of humdrum to the world of romance, enchantment, and myriad alluring recreation.

Truly—this is all tours rolled into one. You go by fast all-Pullman special train, through the Cumberland Mountains. You spend your days and nights within sight and sound of the ocean. Bathing, fishing, golf, motoring, all are yours. You are royally entertained as the guest of Hollywood-by-the-Sea—a city which has itself sprung as if by magic into full beauty with every means of entertainment.

And the price—only $150. Believe it if you can—it is true! $150 takes you down and back. The same $150 pays for your living accommodations—including meals and attractive accommodations at the stylish and colorful Beach City. You have the freedom of the golf courses and beaches, the gayety of the three-mile Board Walk, everything, with one small exception of dining car meals. And that is the only exception—there are no other "extras."

The Glory of Hollywood-by-the-Sea in October and November

Now is the season to enjoy Hollywood-by-the-Sea. The prevailing winds are southeast—sweeping across thousands of miles of clean salt water to temper your days and nights with comfort and fill them with enjoyment. Now also is the season of fine fishing. The sailfish and tarpon answer the challenge of your bait—and give battle royal to those who seek them—within sight of Hollywood.

Do not pass by this wonderful opportunity through a mistaken idea that it will be the ordinary "tour." We do not invite you to Hollywood for any direct profit—we simply want you to know and praise Hollywood-by-the-Sea as a wonderful all-year resort city when you come back home. And it is obvious we do not want your money—for common sense will show you that the railroad gets most of that, even at Florida-special rates. The truth is, we want you to know the amazing fact—that Hollywood-by-the-Sea is a complete and beautiful city—an unmatched place to play—a marvelous place to live—sprung into being in four short years. For this reason, you are made this remarkable limited offer—limited in time, but unlimited in possibilities of enjoyment.

No Matter What Your Travel Plans—This One Is Better!

Compare this with any tour or private journey you ever took before. Compare it with any trip you can take this year. You can always go abroad, or to various islands. But to Florida—and Hollywood-by-the-Sea for $150—that is an offer which may never be repeated.

Right at the time when hotel rates are rapidly advancing to take care of the winter season in Florida, we make you this offer. Don't miss this opportunity simply because your plans are made. Don't miss it because of business duties. You can afford to cancel your plans—in order to replace them with this most remarkable journey of all. Compare the attractions—compare the cost—compare the opportunities to see the South—to see the ocean, to know Florida with its mystic old-world charm and its romantic tropical foliage—to enjoy all the charm of this wonder-trip, for very little more than it would cost you to stay at home!

She Was Very Nervous for 12 Years

For 12 years Lela Cook was nervous, due to indigestion and gas on the stomach. Adlerika did her more good than anything she ever tried.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old metabolic poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Just ONE spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can sleep at night without rolling from side to side. Even if your bowels move every day, Adlerika removes much additional poisonous matter which you never thought was in your system, and which caused sour stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, etc. Don't wait any longer, but let Adlerika give your stomach and bowels QUICK relief. ICE FUND BENEFIT AT THEATER TOMORROW

Members of Civic Organizations Take Seats for Performance of "Spooks."

Tomorrow night is "Club Night" at the American Theater, the entire net proceeds of the performance to be given to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice Fund. Members of various civic organizations have arranged to take seats for tomorrow's performance of "Spooks," a mystery play by Robert J. Sherman. Leona La Mar, the girl mind reader and exponent of thought transference, is with the production, which comes direct from three months in Chicago and four months in New York, and will give a demonstration between the acts of "Spooks."

Miss La Mar, known as the girl with 1000 eyes, has recently completed a vaudeville tour, and her appearance with "Spooks" will add to the thrills of the play, credited with more chills and thrills than "The Bat" or "The Cat and the Canary." Robert Conness heads the capable cast of "Spooks."

Boxes for the Monday performance have been purchased by former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, John J. Dowling, R. King Kauffman, C. G. Besch, Maurice Weil and Judge Karl Kimmel, and a number of theater parties have been planned for the occasion.

Last week's additions to the Post-Dispatch Free Ice for Babies' Milk Fund added $33.99 to the fund, bringing it to a total of $5937.44. This is approximately $1600 short of the amount needed to pay the season's ice bills, and it is hoped that the returns from the benefit performance of "Spooks" will make up this deficit.

A carnival at 847 Westgate earned $10.99 for the fund. The children who promoted the affair were: Milford and Stanley Soffer, Stanley Niss, Jane Ausbeck, Irea Himeles, Mildred and Edna Siegel and Melvin Shapiro.

Cash donations received were: $2 from Daniel N. Kirby; $2 from Wallace R. Jr. and $19 from Herman Da Costa, Webster Groves.

'FLY'S EYE VIEW' OF WOMAN EXHIBITED IN PARIS SALON

Work of Paul Burlin of New York. Baseball and Other Sporting Subjects for Paintings.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—"The New York Giants" are introduced into the hallowed artistic precincts of this year's Paris autumn salon, the exhibition of a society which for 40 years has stood for the best and most representative of contemporary art. The Olympic games are there, too, in full force, and the outstanding feature of the exhibition is the number of pictures with athletic and sporting subjects. Last year's Olympiad in Paris took strong hold on the imaginations of French artists.

It is in a painting by Jacques Mauny, French artist who has lived in the United States, that "the New York Giants" appear. It is a group composed of two baseball players, a man with a girl clinging to his arm, a background of billboards advertising a "sale now going on," a brand of ice cream and a New York newspaper. The exhibition also includes five views of lower Manhattan.

Every year the salon has its scandal, and this year it is furnished by Raymond Fauchet, a French painter, whose "Revelry" is attracting large groups. It created a sensation on varnishing day and the crowds still come to view it, fearful lest police order it withdrawn. It pictures a scene in which two nude females and two laborers are drinking together.

Paul Burlin, a New York artist, exhibits an interior which critics say must have been painted by the artist while perched on top of a wardrobe, as it is a "fly's eye view" from the ceiling of a woman more or less in her underwear.

WANTED! 15,000 SUFFERERS FROM DEAFNESS HEAD NOISES Or Nasal Catarrh

DR. W. O. COFFEE, Noted Catarrh and Deafness Specialist

I want the names of 15,000 people who are suffering from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises. I have an original home treatment for these distressing conditions which I want you to try without cost or expense. I suffered for many years with catarrh, deafness and head noises, tried many different treatments. Had two surgical operations all of which failed to give permanent relief. I began experimenting on myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed my catarrh, restored my hearing and stopped the terrible head noises. I want you to try this splendid treatment entirely at my own expense.

15,000 TREATMENTS TO BE GIVEN THIS MONTH FREE!

I am so proud of my treatment and so anxious to help others suffering with deafness, head noises or catarrh that I will have packed and ready for shipment 15,000 demonstration treatments which I will give away in the next 30 days absolutely free. I want to prove that my original home treatment will give relief from catarrhal deafness, head noises or nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing. You feel the difference the first day. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply write and say that you are suffering with deafness or head noises or catarrh I will gladly send the free treatment. It is the best treatment I have ever found in over 40 years daily practice as eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. I want every sufferer with deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or catarrh to try it free.

Don't Neglect Deafness

Catarrhal deafness, head noises and catarrh when neglected gradually grow worse. Authorities claim that 90% of all deafness is caused primarily by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that catarrh causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach and many other diseased conditions.

Try It Free

I don't ask you to send one penny for this treatment. I send it free to you prepaid without cost. I am doing this to quickly introduce my original home treatment to sufferers of catarrhal deafness, head noises or catarrh. I believe I treat more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. I know this treatment is the best I have ever used. Send your name and address today. State whether you have deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so write me at once.

Here Is News of Intense Interest to a Million Homes—Beginning Monday Morning as the Clock Strikes Nine, Our Greatest

AUTUMN JUBILEE

GREATNESS of yesterday gives way to greater achievements tomorrow! Our Diamond Jubilee Sale of last April set a record for distribution of merchandise far beyond any expectations. It gave us a new and larger vision of our opportunities to serve the people of this great community.

That vision has been growing and growing over the intervening months until it looms today on the threshold of a still greater achievement in retail development—Our Autumn Jubilee—the greatest preparation we have ever made.

Throughout the Summer months and early Fall our plans have been developing. All our buying staff has kept faithful vigil in the markets, many of them in many foreign countries, to secure the best in dependable merchandise that could be offered at prices substantially below prevailing market value. Our plans are completed. The largest gathering of extraordinary values that we ever presented are ready for your selection, beginning Monday morning.

These eight pages and the eight pages in the other paper each represent the largest amount of space ever used by any retail institution in St. Louis in any Sunday newspaper to tell the story of merchandise offerings. And still the story is not all told. Hundreds of items will be offered, but not advertised, for lack of space. Page after page throughout the week will tell of additional items.

Read the following eight pages carefully! They present the greatest buying advantages that we have ever offered. Plan now to supply every personal and home requirement and anticipate the coming holiday season, during the greatest value-giving event in our 75 years of service to St. Louis and the Mississippi Valley.

Medical News Service of St. Louis Tuberculosis Society

No. 11—Rest in Treatment of Tuberculosis.

THIS is the eleventh of a series of articles on matters pertaining to tuberculosis which are being prepared by medical experts and distributed among St. Louis physicians by the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis. The others will be sent out every week, and will contain the latest medical information on the subject.

Rest—more than drugs, injections and inhalations—remains the sovereign remedy against tuberculosis. Without sufficient rest, to try to cure the patient with food and fresh air, is like trying to fill a sieve with water.

Healing takes place in tuberculosis through the formation of scar tissue around the diseased area. Nature tries to isolate this area entirely from the body. In its early placement this tissue may be as fine as cobweb and easily torn by the least exercise or strain, hence the importance of rest as the first postulate in beginning treatment. Scar or connective tissue formation is inevitably slow, months or years are required, according to the nature and extent of the lesions in the lungs, before a sufficiently impregnable wall has been built around the diseased part. Until this occurs, pulmonary exercise cannot be taken without great risk.

Rest to the body and rest to the mind greatly lessen the work of the lungs; the flow of blood through them is diminished and the lymph flow falls to nearly zero.

The heart obtains a much needed rest when bed rest is prescribed, and it cannot be emphasized too strongly that solicitude for the heart in tuberculosis is as important as concern for the lungs. In practically every case of tuberculosis coming to the physician, the heart muscle has become impaired by the continued toxemia, it has suffered greater atrophy and loss of tone than have the skeletal muscles.

Rate of Pulse.

In the normal man it takes 20 per cent more effort to sit quietly in a chair than it does to lie quietly in bed, 100 per cent more to walk about, and 300 to 400 per cent more effort to perform strenuous exercise. In health, the person remaining quiet, the pulse rate is 66 the minute when lying down, 71 on sitting up, and 81 when standing. In moderate exercise it increases from 85 to 100, while strenuous exercise raises it to 120, 150 or even more.

The heart in tuberculosis almost always beats faster than normal, 100 the minute is very common, even at rest, while a rate of 120 to 140 is usual when the toxemia or weakness is great. The heart in one day's work, with the pulse at 70, could lift the owner's body 900 feet. Considering this tremendous work done by the heart in a single day, which work is repeated day after day, it is almost impossible to appreciate the overwhelming burden thrown upon the heart by a chronic toxemia like tuberculosis. The obvious treatment for a heart so troubled is not stimulation but rest.

Rest cure should begin at the time the diagnosis is made or as soon as tuberculosis is suspected. In no other way can the temperature and pulse be brought down, the cough and expectoration reduced, the appetite and digestion improved, the strength and weight increased.

Bed Imperative.

The bed is imperative in every case of active tuberculosis because the maximum rest can be obtained only in bed. Avoid all excitement, and restrict the talking. The fewer the visitors the better. Reading should be limited and little writing allowed. Games and fancy work are to be prohibited during periods of strict rest. Forbidding the patient to feed himself or make any motion of the hands may be necessary at times. Postural rest (Webb), lying chiefly on the affected side with a small pillow under this side, will aid in keeping the lung at rest, as will also certain binders or splints. Artificial pneumothorax is mainly a treatment of lung rest. Exercise in any form should not be permitted until the temperature, taken every two hours, has been normal for at least several weeks, and should the pulse remain persistently fast, not even then.

The more complete the rest the shorter is the duration of treatment, the greater the presumption of recovery and the more the probability of permanance of cure. In no other disease accompanied by fever is the patient told to exercise, and more deaths in tuberculosis have been caused by misdirected exercise than by any other one factor.

That patient has a far better change to get well whose doctor tells him to go home, close up all the windows and go to bed, than he whose doctor commands him to get out-doors and climb the hills. Best of all is the physician who counsels the taking of rest and fresh aid at one draught.

$125 Highboy in The Jubilee at $98.75 $10 Cash and $5 a Month

FULFILLING the popular demand in a very complete way, this Highboy containing a genuine Victrola makes its first appearance in the Autumn Jubilee. It is a creation exclusively Vandervoort's in design and manufacture. It embodies that high standard of quality that St. Louisans have learned to expect of Vandervoort merchandise.

An important feature of the cabinet is its ample proportions, being 47 inches high, 37 inches wide and 21 inches deep. Its beauty of design and thoroughness of finish makes it welcome to any home interior.

But it is designed for convenience as well as beauty. Behind the right-hand door is a genuine Victrola with the amplifier underneath. Behind the left-hand door is a radio compartment with record shelves underneath. Below the cabinet is a shelf that slides forward to hold records.

As a piece of furniture alone it is a great value at the Jubilee price, but with a genuine Victrola inside its value is unprecedented.

This great saving will be available only during the Autumn Jubilee. $15 cash payment brings it to your home, the balance in small monthly payments.

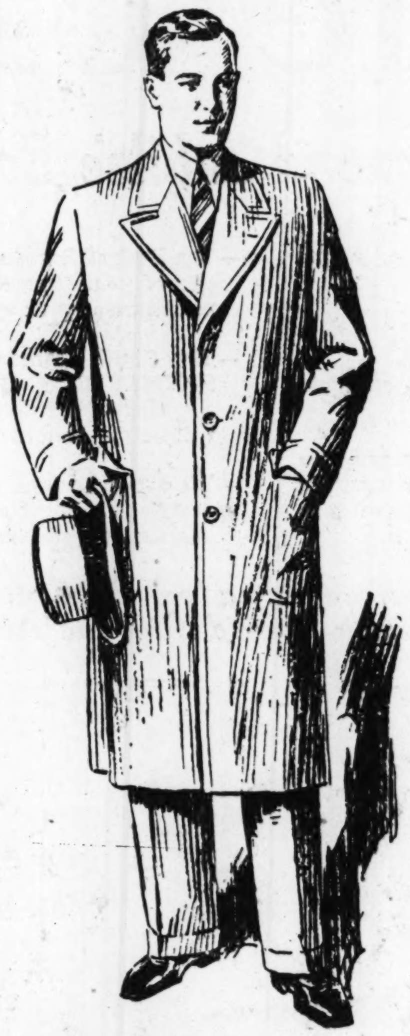
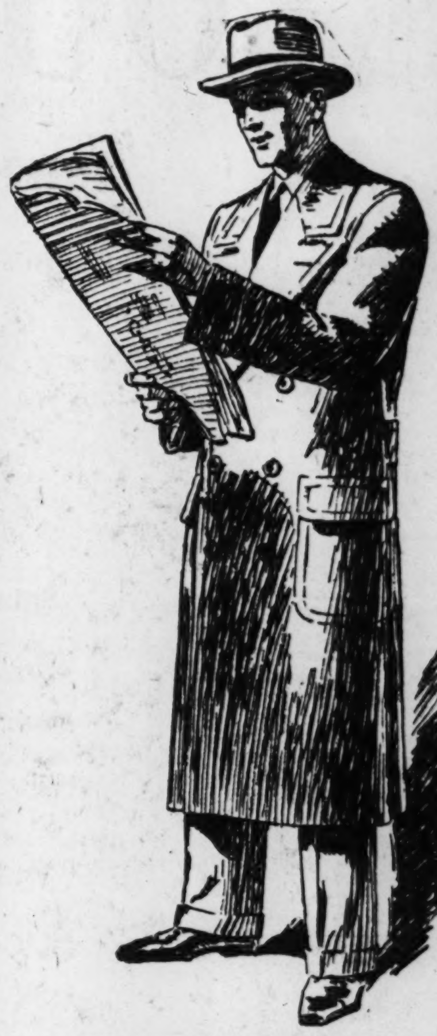
Sale of $40 and $45 Overcoats

All Brand-New—Latest Models



$31.75



An Outstanding Purchase From Several Prominent Makers

By planning far ahead we were able to place orders for these Coats at a time when the manufacturers were willing to make price concessions. As these manufacturers were very anxious to promote their merchandise in our store they have taken their share of the sacrifice, and our combined efforts produce for you the outstanding Overcoat value of the season.

Bought Especially for the Autumn Jubilee

Plans for this sale were started five months ago, and all our efforts were concentrated on securing certain fine qualities that are rarely found in anything but high-priced Overcoats. We got the quality we demanded, and the coats are now ready for your selection.

The demand is likely to exceed the supply when the coats are seen.

We therefore urge our regular customers to give this their prompt attention.

The Materials:

The materials are fine all-wool, fancy-back overcoatings—soft, warm, distinctive colors on the outside, some with overplaids and fancy colorful plaids on the inside. There are grays, browns, blues and greens in an infinite variety of shadings.

AUTO OWNERS TO ASK FOR REPEAL OF EXCISE TAXES

Motorist Prepared to Tell Congress That Levies Are Unecessary, Unjust and Discriminatory.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—After having contributed nearly a billion dollars in excises to the Federal Government, the motorists of the country have determined to wipe out the lingering war impost on automobiles.

The first shot in the fight against what the motorist considers unfair taxation will be fired when he and his representatives appear before the House Ways and Means committee, October 26, to urge upon that body the elimination of the automobile war excise taxes. Automobile, motor accessory and tire manufacturers also attempt to have Congress repeal the excises.

These taxes date back to 1917 when a flat tax of 3 per cent on wholesale value was levied against automobiles and trucks. A year later this tax was increased to 5 per cent and a levy of similar amount placed on tires, parts and accessories. Last year the latter tax was reduced to 2½ per cent and exemption allowed on motor truck chassis having a wholesale value under $1,000 and bodies having a wholesale value under $200.

The cost to the automobile and truck owners on account of these taxes, at the end of the fiscal year 1925, was $863,710,288. Seven years after the war, the motorist who buys a new car having a wholesale value of $1,000 must pay a fifty-dollar tax, the gasoline tax, the registration fee, the personal property tax, the driver's license fee and the other fees, tolls and excises.

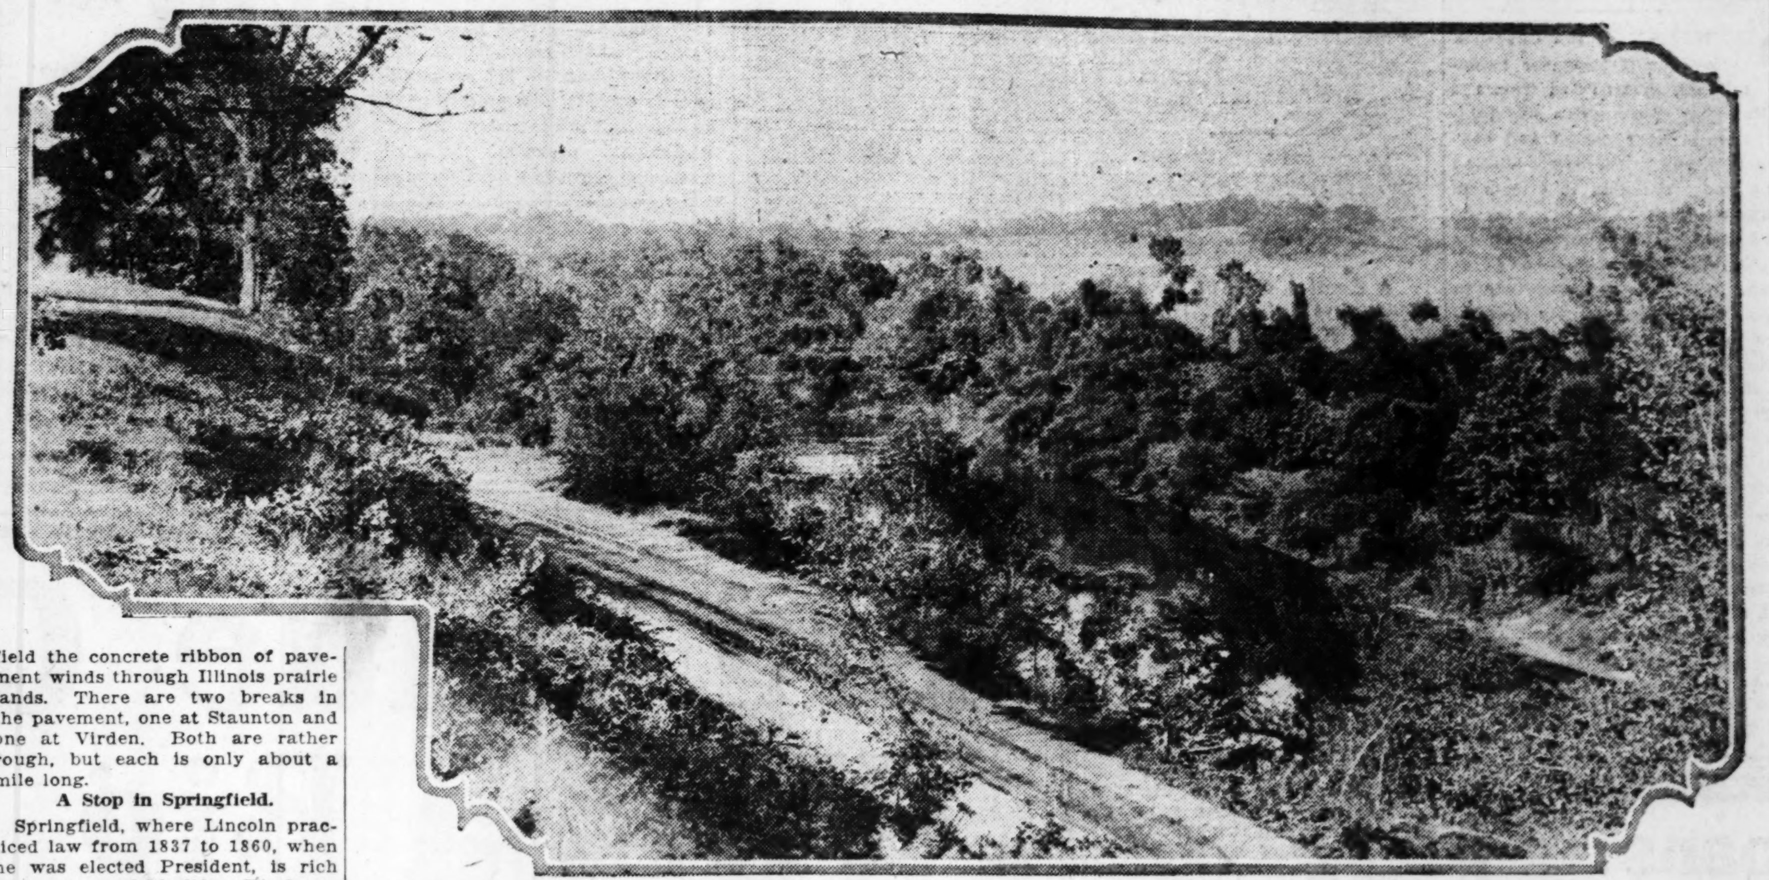
Tour on Paved Roads to Park That Is Lincoln Memorial

Scenes Where Lincoln Lived and Worked for Years Before Moving to Springfield, Ill., Make Interesting Objective for Trip.



MOTORISTS who have a preference for scenes with an historic interest might search long and diligently for a week-end tour more to their liking than one over Illinois concrete roads to Old Salem Memorial Park, 16 miles northwest of Springfield.

For those interested in the life and works of Abraham Lincoln, the tourist without an equal. It includes the scenes where Lincoln ran a grocery store, studied law, began his public career, practiced law for a quarter of a century and where he was buried.

Concrete Entire Distance.

The trip is on concrete roads the entire distance, except four short stretches in small towns. The distance to Old Salem Park is 133 miles from the St. Louis Free Bridge. An average speed of 35 miles an hour easily may be maintained. Those wishing a more leisurely trip can journey to Springfield on Saturday afternoon and complete the trip the next day.

Illinois route No. 4 is followed from the McKinley Bridge. It is well marked at all points. The going will be somewhat rough over brick, concrete and wood block paving through the Tri-Cities of Venice, Madison and Granite City.

Leaving Granite City, Route 4 is paved with brick through Nameoki and on to Mitchell. At Mitchell route 4 swings to the right onto concrete. Avoid the turn to the left at Mitchell onto the brick pavement of route 3, which leads to Alton.

In Edwardsville there is still standing a building formerly housing the Wabash Hotel, where Lincoln spent a night during the course of the Lincoln-Douglas debate.

The building, of brick, has been somewhat remodeled and is used as a tenement. It stands at North Main and Union streets.

From Edwardsville to Springfield the concrete ribbon of pavement winds through Illinois prairie lands. There are two breaks in the pavement, one at Staunton and one at Virden. Both are rather rough, but each is only about a mile long.

A Stop in Springfield.

Springfield, where Lincoln practiced law from 1837 to 1860, when he was elected President, is rich with scenes of his life. His home is standing at Eighth and Jackson streets. His tomb is in Oak Ridge Cemetery. The present county courthouse, in the center of the business district, was the State capitol in Lincoln's time.

Other interesting sights in Springfield are the present State House, Centennial Building, State Arsenal and Supreme Court Building, all in a group on route 4.

Route 4 is left seven miles north of Springfield, and No. 24 followed for 13 miles to a point where it connects with No. 43A. All these connections are plainly marked. Route 43A is concrete and runs seven miles to Petersburg, a thriving little city, which has, however, nothing of particular interest.

From Petersburg another concrete road runs south for two miles to Old Salem Park. This is a State park, created by act of the Legislature and acquired in 1918. The site of the village of New Salem, as it was known in Lincoln's time, is atop a ridge 100 feet above the Sangamon River. The view of the river and its valley from the park is well worth seeing.

Replicas of the buildings standing in New Salem when Lincoln lived there were constructed by the State in 1918. Memory of old inhabitants was relied on for the buildings and their locations. The latter was not difficult, as foundations and depressions which had been cellars were still visible.

Two cabins in the park attract interest. One is the reproduction of Rutledge Inn, where Lincoln boarded from 1832 to 1837. The other is the Lincoln & Berry grocery store.

Lincoln went to New Salem in a canoe down the Sangamon River from the vicinity of Decatur, where his family settled after moving from Southern Indiana the year previous. Lincoln first made a trip on a flatboat to New Orleans for Denton Offutt and on his return managed Offutt's store and mill at New Salem. Later Lincoln embarked in the mercantile business for himself. The business was not successful. Lincoln spent much of his time studying law, and his partner was a heavy drinker.

While living at New Salem Lincoln ran for the Legislature and was defeated, served three months in the Black Hawk War, was elected to the Legislature upon his return and finally decided to practice law, moving to Springfield.

Ann Rutledge Romance.

His romance with Ann Rutledge occured at New Salem while he was a boarder at her father's tavern. While she was trying to decide whether to marry Lincoln or await the return of a man to whom she previously was engaged, she became ill and died.

The State has erected a small white brick museum on the New Salem property which contains many Lincoln relics.

The return trip to St. Louis may be made over the same route, if desired, or there is an alternate route from Springfield, which is about 30 miles longer. This is over Route No. 10 to Jacksonville and thence over Route No. 3 through Alton and back to Mitchell.

REAL ESTATE SALES TO BE AIDED BY BUS.

Operation of a bus line between Chicago and Gulport, Miss., is expected to be begun within the next 30 days primarily for prospective Mississippi real estate buyers, and for passenger service.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY AND TOLL SYSTEM PLAN SUGGESTED

National Control Would Assure Efficient Traffic Management and Good Roads, Engineer Says.

"It never has been and never will be possible to co-ordinate municipal and state authorities into an efficient traffic body capable of producing a smooth and economical flow of national traffic," Lester P. Barlow, Stamford, Conn., engineer, writes in the Oregonian, Portland, Ore. Local politics, petty jealousies, graft and state authority must be swept aside, he says, before a national highway system can be obtained which will meet the requirements of the nation's motor vehicles.

"I propose an efficient Federal motor vehicle highway system, to be built with funds we are now wasting through slovenly operated highways. No evidence other than that given by accident statistics on present day highways is necessary in proving the so-called road and traffic experts now in control are far behind the motor vehicle requirements.

Army Use, Plan.

"I propose a Federal highway toll system to be policed by the regular army. During peace times a great portion of the Federal taxes which are appropriated for the support of the army would support an army of traffic officers which would be trained to direct a continuous and unobstructed national traffic of motor vehicles.

'A Federal highway toll system would pay for itself in 10 years and reduce the expense of all who use it.

If a motorist traveled over the Federal highway toll system he would pay 1 cent per mile of travel, which would be collected by

YEAR'S TRUCK OUTPUT MAY SET NEW RECORD

Production for First 8 Months of 1925 Exceeds 1924 Total, Report Shows.

Truck output for 1925 will approximate 445,000, an increase of 14 per cent over the previous high mark in 1923, if the production ratio for the last four months of the year is the same as in the last three years, according to a report made by Dow, Jones & Co. Production for the first eight months of 1925 equaled last year's entire output of 377,991 trucks.

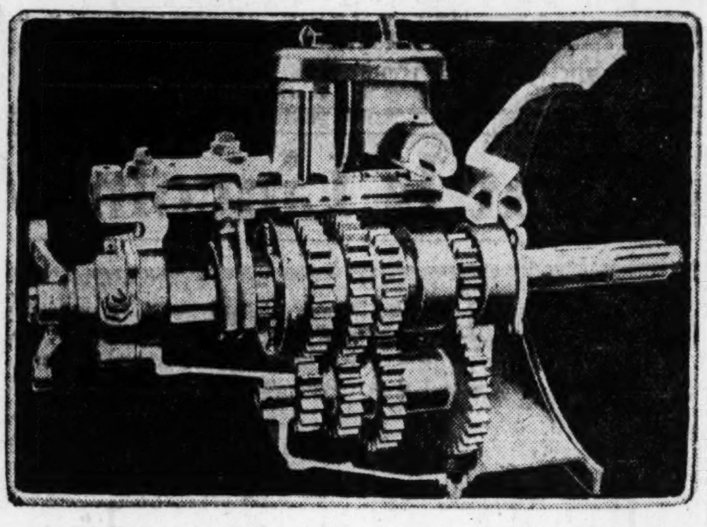
Shipments of 10 leading companies, by whom 80 per cent of the trucks were produced this year, compared for the first half of 1925 and for the full year of 1924, are as follows:

	1925 6 Months	1924 12 Months
Dodge Bros.	22,200	31,100
Chevrolet	18,650	26,900
Graham Brothers	10,750	[illegible]0,800
Harvester	8,900	[illegible],200
Reo	8,450	[illegible],900
White	5,450	[illegible],000
Mack	5,250	[illegible],000
Federal	3,450	4,200
General Motors	2,850	5,300
Willys-Overland	2,350	4,200

As in the passenger car field, the truck industry is said to be narrowing down. During the last three years 18 truck manufacturers have stopped production. There are now 128 exclusive truck manufacturing concerns, 18 combined truck and passenger car manufacturing establishments and 73 exclusive passenger car companies.

Chandler Retains Traffic Transmission

Simplicity, Sturdiness and Economy Feature System Designed to Ease Shifting and Prevent Stalling by Operation of Gear Ratio Changes, and Elimination of Clashing.



A detailed view of the traffic transmission, distinctive of the Chandler car, showing its essential difference from the ordinary sliding-gear system.

DISTINCTIVE of the Chandler motor car it is traffic transmission, that differs from the sliding-gear transmission principally in its simpler design and construction, and in the corresponding ease and sureness it effects in changing gears.

Of no less importance than its simplicity is its sturdiness and durability. In the same manner in which which its simplicity contributes to its sturdiness, its strength makes possible the comparatively simple structure.

The essential differences between the traffic transmission and the sliding-gear transmission are evident from an inspection of the two. In the sliding-gear transmission, change of speed is effected by moving the wheel sidewise so that its teeth may be enabled to mesh with the corresponding gear on the counter-shaft. This necessarily must be done while the gears are turning at different rates of speed. Because of this fact, chashing and and chipping of gears often results.

In the traffic transmission the main shaft gears are so placed that they are constantly in mesh with the corresponding counter-shaft gears. At the same time, the main shaft is free to revolve within the driving gears. This reduces the chances of chashing toa minimum. So carefully has the traffic transmission been worked out that the system is said to "run like clockwork." Its principle is evident to the novice. The simplicity of its construction is considered by factory officials as the strongest point in its favor.

Changes in gear ratio are accomplished by locking the desired gear to the main shaft. This locking action is performed by sturdy sliding pawls which lie in grooves in the main shaft. By moving the change speed lever the pawls are slid and rocked in these grooves. Their action is so quick that there is no possibility of failure.

Though the traffic transmission in some respects is a revolutoinary improvement in car operation, the driver not only has nothing new to learn, but usually finds the system easier to handle. Because it permits gears to be engaged at any time and under any condition, and eases gear changing, the traffic transmission eliminates to a great degree the possibility of "stalling" in traffic, and prevents serious accidents resulting from failure of drivers to shift before beginning a steep descent.

Not the least of the system's advantages is to be found in its long life and ultimate economy. With each gear always running with its mate, they cannot be chipped and the teeth "run in" to a perfect contact of polished steel. Its use on long grades saves brake linings. Strains put upon the chassis by attempts of drivers to make hills in high rather than risk a missed shift, is prevented by use of the lower gear ratios offered by the traffic transmission.

ST. LOUIS TIRE DEALERS PREPARING FOR NATIONAL CONVENTION NEXT MONTH

Program for Annual Session Nov. 17-19 at Chase Hotel Discussed at Meeing Tuesday.

Preliminary plans for the 1925 convention of the National Tire Dealers' Association Nov. 17, 18 and 19, at Hotel Chase, were discussed at the monthly meeting of the Associated Tire Dealers, Inc., of St. Louis last Tuesday night at the Claridge Hotel. Though the detailed program of the convention has not yet been made public, it is understood that the list of speakers is to include men prominent in the American tire industry. An entertainment program, including sightseeing tours and trips through St. Louis tire-distributing plants is being arranged. Several hundred reservations at St. Louis hotels are reported.

C. V. Quinn, of the Reid-Quinn Tire Co., treasurer of the St. Louis organization, was elected chairman of the Entertainment Committee for the convention, to succeed the late S. L. Chlorins. A. P. Woehrle presided at the meeting, arrangements for which were handled by A. G. Jennings, business manager.

PAVED ROAD OPEN BETWEEN JERSEYVILLE AND FIELDON

A 15-mile section of pavement between Jerseyville and Fieldon, on Illinois State Highway No. 38, was opened to traffic last Wednesday. Though the greater portion of the distance has been open between the two towns for several weeks, concrete work on the strip immediately east of Fieldon was not completed until recently, and the old detour south of the highway was not closed until last week. Fieldon now may be reached from St. Louis via No. 3 north to Jerseyville and west on No. 38.

HILIPPINE RUBBER PRODUCTION PLANNED

merican Manufacturers May Establish Plantations to Be Financed by Self-Imposed Tax.

A plan to produce rubber on lantations in the Philippines, the roject to be financed by a selfmposed tax on each pound importd, is said to have been indorsed y officials of leading American ubber companies. Interested anufacturers are expected to ome to a definite agreement soon s a result of the success of expermental plantations in the Philippines established by the Department of Commerce.

How soon production of the rubber will begin depends on the scope of the program and the methods dopted. Whether the project will e carried on by a corporation ormed of contributing companies, r by each company with its own lantations, or by a group of plantions operated independently, has ot been determined. Although the mount of the self-imposed tax has ot been decided, it is said that a ax of 1 cent on each pound of crude rubber imported, which would raise more than $8,000,000 annually, would finance the project.

P. W. Litchfield, vice president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., and Harvey S. Firestone of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., have indorsed the plan. The scheme has advanced sufficiently to warrant manufacturers making plans for new legislation to provide for the establishing of large rubber plantations on the islands, it is said.

A plan to produce rubber on plantations in the Philipines, the project to be financed by a self-imposed tax on each pound imported, is said to have been indorsed by officials of leading American rubber companies. FEDERAL HIGHWAY TO BE OPERATED ON TOLL SYSTEM IS SUGGESTED regular army soldiers as he drove off the toll highway.

"Suppose you desired to go by motor vehicle to New York from Boston under present conditions. If you averaged 25 miles an hour for the 235 miles you would make it in nine and a half hours, but would be taking hazardous chances. The multitude of crossroads, railroad grade crossings, motor trucks to cut around in the face of steady opposite approaching traffic would be a continuous tax upon your ability as a driver.

"At every city or town between Boston and New York you would be forced to enter narrow and congested streets and be compelled to travel at a snail's pace or not at all. Also every town would have a different signal code, or none at all.

"But suppose the Federal highway toll system were available and you chose it, you could travel the entire distance at 40 miles an hour over an express highway. Freight and slow traffic would be traveling on an entirely different lane parallel to the express lane. You would never cross a highway or a railroad track and no motor vehicles would cross your path. The only man to watch would be the man ahead, and you would have a 20-foot concrete road to pass around him on if you so desired, providing you were under the speed limit of the highway. You would never meet a motor vehicle, as all tracks would be one-way.

Rules to Be Enforced.

"The road rules would be rigidly enforced by army guards stationed at intervals of a mile. You could travel speedily and safely, and if you averaged 30 miles an hour you would make the trip between Boston and New York two hours quicker than over the State road, but in most cases you would save nearer four hours. The Federal toll way over which you would travel wuld be 230 miles. Your toll would be $2.30.

"Enough people would drive their motor vehicles at a cent a mile toll over the New York-Boston Federal highway toll system in five years to pay the entire cost of its construction and maintenance during the five-year period.

"It is proposed that the Federal highway toll system be financed by a Government bond issue bearing 5 per cent interest.

"The 230 miles of four-way road between New York and Boston would cost $200,000 per mile, or $46,000,000 for the entire distance. To this we would add $4,000,000 for the construction of viaducts and submerged road crossing. The interest at 5 per cent for five years on $50,000,000 would be $12,500,000 which, added to the $50,000,000, gives us a total of $62,500,000.

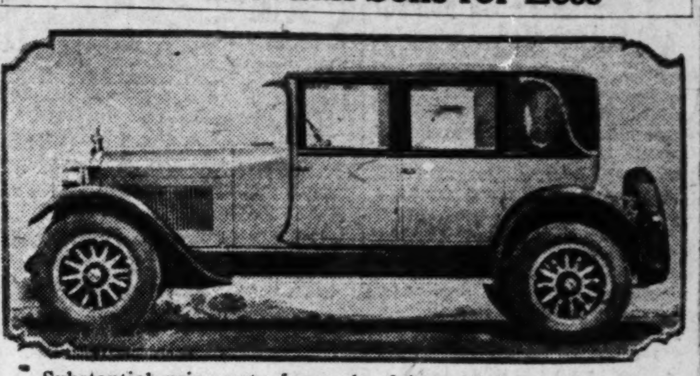
"Heavy motor truck freighting would pay a higher rate of toll than the passenger automobile. Each year the freight toll would run into many millions of dollars, but we have not considered that in the above figures. All this now is waste and worse than total loss.

"Today the United States is on wheels, traveling over antiquated cow-paths covered with plaster called 'super-highways.' Let us have roads for automobiles."

STUDEBAKER SHIPMENTS FOR 9 MONTHS PASS 1925 TOTAL

Studebaker shipmens for the first nine months of 1925 were greater than the total for 1924, it was announced recently. With three months of 1925 remaining for production, factory officials declare a new annual sales record probably will be made. One-profit production, unit-built construction and the no-yearly-model policy are given as factors in the record sales this year.

Stearns Sedan Sells for Less



Substantial price cuts for each of its models recently was announced by Stearns-Knight Motor Car Co., through the St. Louis distributor, Staehle Auto and Electric Co. The Sport Sedan, with Stearns-Knight Six engine, model S, is one of the types affected by the reduction.

Factory-trained mechanics are to be employed in the service department. Quarters for the St. Louis organization, which is one of 25 branches being established by the company, are 100x150 feet, and face on Sarah street.

MOTORISTS TO URGE REPEAL OF EXCISE TAXES BY CONGRESS

pose abolition of the tax have argued that the motorist gets back in Federal aid highway benefits a large part of the taxes he pays. Motorists point out that the Federal Highway Act was passed in 1916, for the general good of the country as a whole and not designed to benefit any particular group.

Society at large benefits from their improvement, development and maintenance, yet the revenues derived from Federal and State taxes against motor vehicles last year amounted to 44.8 per cent of the total highway expenditures of the nation.

Ample Room for Reduction.

Treasury actuaries estimate that for the fiscal year 1926 there will be a surplus in Federal funds of between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000 available for tax reduction. Four kinds of taxes are scheduled for relief: war excise, which includes motor vehicles, tires, parts and accessories; inheritance, gift and income. The motor vehicle excise taxes for the fiscal year 1925 amounted to $124,686,000 which, if eliminated entirely, would still leave ample room for reductions in the other three classes.

President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon have declared a reduction in income taxes will benefit the largest single class of taxpayers in the country and at the same time result in larger revenues for the Federal Government through increased business activity. According to the American Automobile Association, there are 12,000,000 automobile owners in the United States, as against 4,000,000 income taxpayers, which fact would seem to indicate that the automobile excise tax is more universal than any other form of major taxation.

Since the original war revenue act in 1917, excises on the large majority of these commodities were repealed, so that there now remains taxed as luxuries and nonessentials only automobiles, tires and accessories, cigar and cigarette holders, coin-operated devices, mah jongg and pung chow sets, cameras, sculpture and paintings and jewelry.

The outstanding argument in favor of the retention of the motor vehicle excise tax is that it is simple and easy to collect and that it has netted the Federal Government from $48,000,000 to $158,000,000 a year since it was inaugurated.

Summary of Arguments.

Some of the reasons why the motorist feels he should be relieved of these war taxes are: The automobile is not a luxury; the State alone should have the prerogative of taxing motor vehicles; the motorist already is bearing his full share of taxation: Congress in 1922 removed the tax on railroads, yet retains the tax on motor vehicles, one of the most essential forms of transportation; never before has Congress thus taxed the commodity of a basic industry; in view of large Federal surplus, tax may be eliminated without creating a deficit; will benefit largest single class of taxpayers.

There are leaders in Congress in sympathy with the movement to abolish the automobile war excises. Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, believes this form of taxation is wrong and should be wiped out as soon as possible. Senator Cummins, of Iowa, also has gone on record as unfavorable to the continuance of these taxes. On the House side, Chairman Madden of the Appropriations Committee, it is understood, is prepared to fight its retention, should the excise tax question reach the floor of the House. In the Ways and Means Committee, Representative Bachrach of New Jersey, and Wm. A. Oldfield, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, may be counted upon to vote for striking out the automobile war excise taxes.

RUMOR OF RICKENBACKER MODEL CHANGES REFUTED

No new models nor radical type changes in the Rickenbacker car are contemplated, according to E. T. Ustick Jr., president of the Rickenbacker-St. Louis Co., who recently received from B. F. Everitt, president and general manager of the company, a refutation of all rumors concerning production of smaller or larger four, six and eight models. Rickenbacker dealers have been advised to lay in a surplus stock this winter for the expected spring demand, with the assurance that whatever changes are intended will be in the direction of perfection and not in design, Ustick said. Everitt, in his letter to the St. Louis distributers, brands rumors of changes as ridiculous and untrue.

We Congratulate Rickenbacker Owners

We congratulate you on your fine judgment and discriminating taste as proven by your selection of the car you drive.

You have enjoyed for three years, things which old-line companies are just now incorporating in their latest models.

Right now when they are coming out with mammoth display ads, featuring as fundamental improvements in their cars, such things as air cleaners, oil rectifiers, double fly-wheels, four wheel brakes, etc., you can feel that your own judgment was three years ahead of some of the greatest engineers—for you have enjoyed these things as long as you have owned a Rickenbacker.

And today, the used car value of your Rickenbacker is just that much more than is that of cars which, minus these features, are now obsolete.

We congratulate you.

And now we ask you—is it not reasonable to suppose that the Rickenbacker model of today—the new model just announced—is again two or three years in advance of others in engineering features and body refinements? We assure you this is so.

To prove it you need only match this car in performance against any other. Compare point for point.

Then consider how much more you get at the new reduced prices. You will on that analysis, become a confirmed Rickenbacker owner.

AUTO BEATS FAST TRAIN IN RUN OF 514 MILES

Hurrying home from Bay Head, N. J., to Sharon, Pa., a distance of 514 miles, the owner of a seven-passenger Peerless six sedan turned the car over to his chauffeur and took the fastest train, only to find that his car had beaten him home by 75 minutes. When S. M. Phillips and his family, of Sharon, took the Broadway Limited at Bay Head, N. J., bound for home, he turned his Peerless sedan over to Raymond, his driver, with the statement that it probably would take the best part of two days to drive the car home. That was at noon Saturday. Phillips arrived home at 8:30 a. m. Sunday. The driver had been home since 7:15, having made the 514-mile run across the mountainous State of Pennsylvania in 19¾ hours. He said he made four stops for meals and one for a puncture, making his total running time less than 18 hours.

The president of a great motor car company building eights and sixes, was asked the question, "Which do you consider the ultimate engine for automobiles, four, six or eight cylinders?"

Answer: "There is no ultimate engine for automobiles. There will always be fours, sixes and eights; the four for straight utility, the six for utility combined with a degree of luxury, but the eight is the ultimate in smooth, ample power."

YS TRACTION INES WILL OWN MOST OF BUSSES

tor Coach Manufacturer, However, Believes Independents Will Control Intercity Traffic.

at most motor busses event- y will be operated by electric tion companies, and be substi- d for non-paying short lines by m railroads, is the opinion of J. Brosseau, president of the rnational Motor Co., manufac- rs of Mack busses. The motor , he says, as a step in the evo- on of transportation, will be an ortant link in all large city sit systems.

ecause the automobile has tak- away passengers from rail lines, lley and steam roads are using ses on unprofitable short line rations with the result that they e become logical operators of an and interurban service.

While trolley and steam lines l control the shorter bus lines, ependent corporations will han- e cross country busses and those een cities not connected by lleys, Brosseau declares. For transportation in larger cities trolley is the logical transit tor. In rural communities be- se of its economical operation, bus will be used more exten- ely.

"Busses are not a fad," Brosseau s. "It will not be long before slation will be passed putting bus on the same ecenomic and ntific basis as is the trolley and er the same governing board.

The motor bus is here to stay so as it fills the requirements of ublic service. As soon as the sportation problem goes be- d the ability of the bus, it will me its final status just as the se-drawn vehicle has given way power driven vehicles. Provided rators show a willingness to form to legislation and give e and economical service, it will vive."

What Becomes of the Old Cars When They Are Junked

Wrecked and Worn-Out Machines Are Smashed and Cut Into Scrap Metal for Foundries of Auto Factories.

What yesterday was the meanest old car that rattled over country lanes today may be part of a sleek machine treading the most exclusive boulevard, and the costly car that today bears its owner on the road of wealth, tomorrow may carry its driver over the cobblestones of middle-class prosperity.

Scores of cars daily undergo this process of transmutation. The first step is taken at a junk yard, a haven for old, wrecked, delapidated cars of every make and description. These cars are brought in by used-car dealers, who have received them in part payment for a more presentable make, from the police pound, where abandoned and lost machines are gathered; from wrecking companies that make a specialty of rescuing remnants of cars following smash-ups, and even from dissatisfied and despairing owners, willing and ready to accept a few dollars for a car whose days of usefulness so far as they are concerned have passed.

Valued by Utility.

A view of the junk yard reveals little more than a mass of tangled and twisted debris of wrecked and delapidated automobiles. Order is brought out of chaos by apparent arrangement according to value. The value of the car is considered not in its present state of preservation, but in its probable usefulness later in the manufacture of other cars.

The cars, after being stripped, are burned. From the ashes is gathered whatever aluminum by-product there may be. Dismemberment is accomplished by the acetylene torch. When sections of the machine are available, giant shears operated by an electric motor snap off the angle steel of the heavy chassis and otherwise divide the material into uniform lengths. These lengths are loaded into railroad cars and sold to smelters. The common mass of twisted steel, again made in a good metal, is sold to automobile factories.

Eventually a Cadillac, Lincoln or Packard will appear, made up possibly to a great extent of material from cars whose dust it would not deign to take. Or a Ford may be turned out of the factory gleaming in the knowledge that in one or two parts, at least, it and the more expensive car are brothers.

Salvage Work Profitable.

In addition to selling material to the smelters, the automobile junk yard finds profit in salvage and stripping work. When old cars are first received from anyone of the numerous sources, whatever of value remains on the automobile is retained. Glass especially is looked for. Hood and side curtains, tires, no matter in what condition, fixtures, motor devices, and wiring are sorted out and sold to various manufacturers. When fire and the acetylene torch have done their work, little of value is left except the mass of steel.

While comparatively new as an industry, the automobile junk yard has proved a profitable investment both to customer and proprietor. The importance of such an enterprise is emphasized by the increasing demand from factories for raw material.

TIRE INSURANCE PLAN SAVES BRITISH DRIVER WORRY FROM 'BLOWOUTS'

By the additional purchase of insurance coupons at the rate of one cent for every dollar of tire costs, British motorists, when buying tires, may insure them, a new plan of tire insurance provides.

If, within a year after the purchase, the insured tire has a 'blowout," a new tube and casing may be obtained from any dealer by the presentation of the coupon. The insurance company settles with the dealer. The plan applies only to tires of British manufacture.

PACKARD MAKING 40,000 CARS THIS YEAR, REGISTERS $100,000,000 SALES TOTAL

Big Price Slash and Maintaining of Qualities Result in Volume Production.

How a heavy price reduction followed by maintenance of quality can bring about real volume production of a high-grade car is shown strikingly by this year's experience of the Packard Motor Car Co. On Aug. 31 the Packard company closed what was in every way the greatest fiscal year it ever has had, and orders are reported to be still increasing.

Sales during the year, which are said to have exceeded the $100,000,000 mark, more than doubled, the 1924 total of $46,003,697 and were almost twice as great as the former record total of $55,670,464 reached in 1923. Earnings, it is said, have exceeded $11,000,000 in the year just closed.

It is estimated that at least 40,000 Packard cars will be turned out this year. Sales of both the six and eight cylinder models are running equally well. It seems unlikely that production can catch up with orders before Jan. 1.

Packard profits in the fiscal year just closed were more than double the total of the previous year. May, June, July and August were record months. Earnings in the final quarter of the fiscal year are estimated to be well in excess of $4,500,000.

HOW FACTORIES CAN BUILD BETTER CARS MORE CHEAPLY

Chain Assembly System in Body Works Only One of Improvements in Methods That Reduce Costs.

Presses exerting hundreds of thousands of pounds pressure, substitution of the chain assembly system in motor car today construction for bench work, new methods of painting that reduce the time to finish a body from 21 days to 5 days, light alloy parts replacing wooden ones, metal jigs supplanting wood jigs, standard hardware that can be fitted to many makes of cars, and the actual hours of work in constructing a body cut from 85 hours at a cost for labor of a dollar an hour, account for the reductions that have been made possible in the prices of automobiles.

When a piece of sheet steel can be placed in a press and with one operation a complete cowl can be stamped by pulling a lever and exerting a pressure of from 500 tons to 750 tons, stamping one section of the body in a few seconds an idea can be had of the time saved in this operation, when formerly this had to be shaped by hand.

A press is capable of doing the work of hundreds of expert body builders and not only turns out better parts but a greater number of them. For with the changing of a set of dies a body press can switch from stamping cowls to door panels with little loss of time.

Piece work has been replaced by the chain conveyor. The body used to be placed on a wooden frame, where a mechanic would start work on assembling it and work on that one body until it was completed. Now the body is placed on an endless chain and one man does just one operation and the body passes on to the next, saving time and turning out a better body, as each man on the chain is an expert in his one operation and is responsible for the single operation that he does.

Formerly the greater part of a motor car body used to be constructed of wood. Today steel has displaced it. Wooden pillars, frames, sills, braces and seat supports have all given way to steel. Some body-makers use wood for roof rails, sills and pillars, but the bodymakers are turning to the sheet steel body, as it is lighter, stronger, easier to build, and has longer life. Steel parts and fixtures do not have to be fitted by hand, nor are they liable to breakage as wooden parts are.

Painting also has reduced the cost of bodies. Bodies first of all, were painted with a brush, by hand; now they are painted with a pressure spray. Several coats of paint were needed, taking days to dry; and between coats they had to be rubbed down by hand. Now one coat is sprayed on and is dry as soon as it comes in contact with the body. Three to five days are required to paint it and let it set, while 21 days were required before.

Steel jigs have replaced the wooden jig, requiring no hand work or adjustments. Dies have been developed that cut all the parts once cut by hand, and efforts are being made to perfect and improve the construction of bodies so that dies can do away with all the hand work.

Body hardware has been standardized, which tends to reduce the cost. Fewer pieces are needed, and those that are used are simpler in construction.

Finishing and part of the upholstering is all done by machine and help to give us the lower priced automobile of today. All price reductions in the past year have been largely due to body economies and reduced factory cost.

MICHIGAN ROAD BOND ISSUE FOR $50,000,000 PROPOSED

A new $50,000,000 bond issue with which to complete the trunk line system of concrete roads of Michigan within three years has been proposed by the Michigan Tourist and Resort Association at Muskegon. Tourist and resort authorities of the State are supporting the movement. The report of the association for 1925 showed that more than 9000 tourists wrote its offices in Grand Rapids for literature and 80 per cent of them came to West Michigan, where they remained on an average of 21 days.

STATIONS MAY BE CLASSED BY POWER

New Plan Would Make More Wave Lengths Available Without Increasing Interference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Elimination of the present classification of stations is anticipated at the conference called by Secretary Hoover to meet in Washington beginning Nov. 9. It is believed that stations will no longer be designuated by letters as at present, such as classes A, B, C and D, and that for purposes of regulation the classification of stations will depend upon their power.

If this idea is adopted, the allottment of wave bands for the different classes of stations will be discontinued. The entire broadcast band will be open to any type of station whenever there is a vacancy.

The purpose of the change is that it will enable more stations to be crowded in and, it is believed, will tend to increase the service generally for the public. For instance, if a station of 500 watts operates on, say 350 meters in Boston, it will be possible to also place a 100-watt station on the same wave length out in the middle west without interference resulting.

Under this scheme, the powerful broadcasting stations can be scattered throughout the entire broadcast band with the smaller stations sandwiched in. Such an arrangement would make available more channels for powerful stations without increasing facilities for smaller stations.

ELECTRICAL DEVICES CAUSE DISTURBANCES

Organized Effort by Listeners and Owners of Equipment May Solve Problem.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Co-operative effort on the part of radio fans and the owners of electrical sources of disturbance is the most effective remedy for man-made interference, according to the Radio Laboratory of the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

"Much of the work in mitigation of electrical interference results in an improvement in the operation of the electrical devices or supply lines, and is thus a double gain," the Standards Radio Laboratory asserts. "There are, however, some electrical devices which, even when in perfect working order, cause disturbances which result in interference with radio reception. In many cases it is possible to provide filters, shields, chokes, etc., at the source of disturbance, and do much to relieve the difficulties.

"Part of the disturbance from electrical devices is practically inevitable and must be regarded, like atmospheric disturbances, as part of the inherent limitation of radio reception. In other words, the limitation of radio reception is not only the distance and the power of the transmitting stations and the sensitiveness of the receiving set, but also the omnipresent background of slight electrical disturbances which drown out signals below a certain intensity. This background of electrical disturbances is the underlying reason why reception from local stations is inherently superior to reception from distant stations."

Here are a few suggestions offered by the Standards Radio Laboratory toward decreasing interference:

"The first thing to do in tracing the source of trouble, is to make sure that it is not in the receiving set itself. The next thing is to open the electric switch at the house meter; if the interfering noise is still heard, the source is then known to be outside the house. It is then desirable to report the situation to the electric power company. Many of the companies have apparatus for the purpose of following up complaints of this kind. Usually a sensitive receiving set with a coil antenna is used to determine the direction from which the interfering noise comes, and this outfit is taken from place to place until the source is found. The location of such sources is often a very difficult and baffling undertaking. The trouble sometimes comes from a spark discharge over an insulator to ground, or between a pair of wires, or it may be that the wire is touching some object such as a tree, pole, guy wire, etc. Such a spark discharge is a loss of power to the operating company and a potential source of serious trouble, and for these reasons the company is probably more interested in finding and eliminating this type of trouble than the radio listener. Large leaks and sparks may often be observed at night, especially in hot weather. However, sparks which are too small to be readily noticed, may cause serious interference to radio reception.

"A frequent cause of in ence is power line inducted is due to the presence of wires near the antenna or ing set. A humming sound telephone receivers will identify this source of inter A method of eliminating, least reducing the magn this interference, is to place antenna as far as possible the wire lines and at right to them.

"Sparks are produced normal operation of many electrical apparatus (such tors, doorbells, buzzers, engines, x-ray apparatus, machines, some forms of chargers, rural telephone heating pad thermostats). are also sometimes prod defective insulators, trans etc., of electric wire lines usually give rise to electric which travel along the power wires and by them are diated out and are then up by radio receiving sets noise thus produced in a radio may come from a distur which has traveled several along the electric power wire

"One remedy for such ty interference is to eliminate spark. This is possible if spark is an electrical leak necessary to the operation of machine in which it occurs very useful electrical ma however, require, for their tion, the making and breaking electrical circuits while they carrying current and whe this happens a spark is prod It is impossible to eliminate machines so that it is necessary make the spark of such nature so arrange the circuits that radio-frequency current is duced or prevented from ra ing.

"To prevent the radio-frequ produced by a spark from get on to the lines connecting sparking apparatus, some form filter circuit is necessary. A denser (one microfarad, more less) connected across the spark points will short circuit a con erable amount of the radio-f quency current, or, a conde connected from each side of line to ground will serve the purpose. A choke coil in side of the line in addition to condensers connected to g forms a simple filter circuit should prevent frequencies in broadcast range from getting the line. A high inductance (coil) or high resistance conn in each side of the line change characteristics of the circuit to reduce the amount of pow diated. If such a filter circuit effective, or is impractical the paratus may in some cases be rounded by solid metal shee wire screen which is thoro grounded. The screen sh completely surround the appa This may be difficult. For ample, in shielding the ignition tem of a gasoline engine the coils and all wires and other of the system must be inclo metal shields and these must very well grounded."

To Reduce Resistance Lo

Resistance losses in a va condenser are caused by impe contacts between the plates, stators and rotors, and from bearing contacts. Soldered p and positive contact spring b ings, or pig-tail connectors, re these losses. These losses can also reduced by eliminating metal not essential to the opera of the condenser.

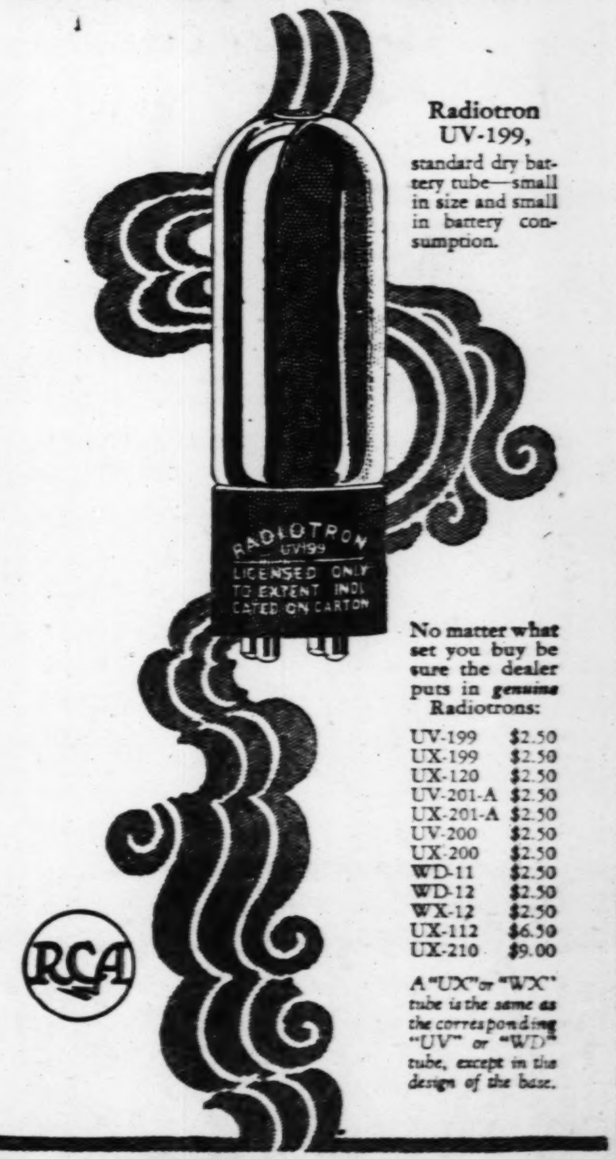
easy on the "B" Batteries



YOU can tell nothing about how a vacuum tube will act in your set—just by looking at it. There is no "quick test" to tell you whether you have picked a good one. Therefore the only sure way is to buy only RCA Radiotrons because you know that RCA accuracy of make insures uniform goodness and accuracy of testing keeps the standard high.

RCA tests show that all Radiotrons are easy on the "B" batteries. This is a matter of "plate resistance." If the resistance is too high, the quality of the signals is poor—and there's no joy in listening. If it is too low, your set will eat up "B" batteries.

In Radiotrons, both evils are guarded against in manufacture, and doubly safeguarded by tests after manufacture. For example, in Radiotron UV-199 the danger is in the placing of two elements known as a filament and a grid inside a metal cylinder (plate) which is only a sixteenth of an inch in diameter. They must be accurately held in place—by precision machinery—while they are being welded. They must be exactly right to the hundredth of an inch! This is too small a distance to measure with a ruler, but it is measured electrically by highly developed apparatus—in the RCA test laboratories. And you know, if you buy genuine RCA Radiotrons that you are getting vacuum tubes with "B" battery economy built-in!

"A frequent cause of interf ence is power line inducted wh is due to the presence of po wires near the antenna or rec ing set. A humming sound in t telephone receivers will usu identify this source of interferen A method of eliminating, or least reducing the magnitude this interference, is to place t antenna as far as possible fr the wire lines and at right ang to them.

"Sparks are produced in t normal operation of many typ electrical apparatus (such as m tors, doorbells, buzzers, gasoli engines, x-ray appartus, violet machines, some forms of batt chargers, rural telephone ringe heating pad thermostats). Spar are also sometimes produced defective insulators, transforme etc., of electric wire lines. Spar usually give rise to electric wav which travel along the electr power wires and by them are r diated out and are then pick up by radio receiving sets. T noise thus produced in a radio s may come from a disturban which has traveled several mi along the electric power wires.

"One remedy for such types interference is to eliminate t spark. This is possible if t spark is an electrical leak and n necessary to the operation of t machine in which it occurs. Ma very useful electrical machin however, require, for their ope tion, the making and breaking electrical circuits while they a carrying current and whenev this happens a spark is produce It is impossible to eliminate the machines so that it is necessary make the spark of such nature so arrange the circuits that t radio-frequency current is r duced or prevented from radia ing.

"To prevent the radio-frequen produced by a spark from gett on to the lines connecting sparking apparatus, some form filter circuit is necessary. A co denser (one microfarad, more less) connected across the sparkin points will short circuit a consi erable amount of the radio-fr quency current, or, a condens connected from each side of th line to ground will serve the sam purpose. A choke coil in eac side of the line in addition to th condensers connected to grou forms a simple filter circuit wh should prevent frequencies in broadcast range from getting the line. A high inductance (cho cell) or high resistance connect in each side of the line changes t characteristics of the circuit so to reduce the amount of power r diated. If such a filter circuit is n effective, or is impractical the a paratus may in some cases be su rounded by solid metal sheet wire screen which is thorough grounded. The screen shoul completely surround the apparat This may be difficult. For e ample, in shielding the ignition sy tem of a gasoline engine the spar coils and all wires and other pa of the system must be inclosed metal shields and these must b very well grounded."

To Reduce Resistance Losse

Resistance losses in a variab condenser are caused by imperfe contacts between the plates, bot stators and rotors, and from be bearing contacts. Soldered plat and positive contact spring bea ings, or pig-tail connectors, reduc these losses. These losses can b also reduced by eliminating a metal not essential to the operatio of the condenser.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

Radio brings companionship

It wasn't very exciting for her before radio came

YOUNG PEOPLE have young lives to lead and they go away from home to lead them. Old people are alone mostly. They are left without the friends of their youth as they are without the children of their middle age.

To the everlasting credit of radio, put down this additional service: Radio has brought the world to the old and solitary. Radio has provided new interests, new breadth of vision, a new viewpoint on life.

If it had done nothing else, if it had not provided music and education and entertainment for those who would otherwise have had to do without, this one contribution would be enough: Radio has relieved loneliness.

Have you a mother or a father, an aunt, an uncle, a sister, a brother, or just a friend, who lives alone? Think of a radio gift for the one who is sick, of course. But think of it, too, for the one who is lonely. It is in your power this year to give more happiness than you have ever given before.

ORIENT OPENS NEW STATIONS

DX fans have found a new long-distance goal in the broadcasting stations recently established in Tokio, Shanghai and other Oriental points. The transmitting from these stations covers 17 hours, from 1 o'clock in the morning to 5 in the afternoon, Chicago time.

Following is a list of the new broadcasters: JOAK, Tokio, 375 meters; JOBK, Osaka, 385 meters; JOCK, Nagoya, 360 meters; Shanghai, 365 meters; and Tientsin, 360 meters.

Save the Tubes!

Never use more tubes than are sufficient for the results desired. It frequently happens that inexperienced operators will have more tubes burning than are necessary, and then detune to lessen the volume of sound. For local stations, for instance, the first audio stage is usually sufficient.

The University of Texas will be on the air by Nov. 1 with a radio broadcasting station of not less than 500-watt power. All of the old broadcasting equipment except the generators has been discarded and a new and highly improved sending apparatus installed. The modulation and sharp wave of the air, will undoubtedly carry the station waves over a much greater distance than formerly. An echo-proof studio for the broadcasting is now being constructed in the main building of the University.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Post-Dispatch Radio Department cannot undertake to answer questions by mail.

Q. Please tell me where I can obtain test tubes for making storage B batteries out of Edison cells. S. L.

A. Most all drug stores carry test tubes in stock. Any drug store would be glad to order the exact sized tubes that you want if they don't happen to have them on hand.

Q. Am sending a complete picture of my radio set. Would like to know the kind of batteries needed to operate the set and how to connect them. C. H.

A. If you are going to use storage battery tubes you will need a six volt radio A battery. One having a capacity of 30 or 40 ampere hours will serve the purpose. If you intend to use dry cell tubes you will need three dry cells. In both cases two 45 volt B batteries will be required to operate the set. The binding posts on the back of the set are marked very plainly and if you are not familiar with electrical connections it would be best for you to have someone connect the batteries for you.

Q. 1. How can new Radiotron tubes be rejuvinated? 2. Will it hurt a good tube to rejuvinate it? 3. Is a loose coupler better than a two slide tuning coil? D. J.

A. 1. Disconnect the B battery from the tube and permit the filament to burn for 20 or 30 minutes. 2. No. 3. A loose coupler or vario coupler as they are now called is better than a slider tuning coil. A slider on a tuning coil makes a noise when the coil is used with a tube. Practically all tuning circuits in present day receivers use fixed coils and variable condensers due to their smooth and quiet operation.

Q. I am having trouble in getting a neutrodyne to work the circuit has been checked with a standard neutrodyne hook-up and I am sure that the apparatus is all good. I would like to have some advice as to what should be done to the set to make it work. W. W.

A. From the information that you have given us it would be impossible to suggest what might be wrong. The best thing for you to do would be to take the receiver to a radio electrician and have him check the circuit and determine what is wrong with the set. Some slight mistake in the wiring is probably the cause of your trouble.

Q. I have a three-tube set and when I turn the filaments on it starts to howl. What is the cause of this and how may the receiver be fixed? A. L.

A. Without having seen a copy of the circuit you are using it would be impossible to say just why it makes such a noise. It is probably due to too much regeneration. If you have a regenerative set you have most probably not learned how to operate it.

Q. I have constructed a receiving set according to the single circuit plan. I am able to receive local stations, but do not hear any out of town stations. Have tried different types and lengths of antennae but without success. Will a high tension line located a short distance from my antenna effect reception? W. W.

A. If you hear the local stations well you should pick up some out-of-town stations. Possibly you have not learned how to tune the set for distant stations. The high tension lines should not prevent you from getting distant stations, though they quite often cause a hum to be heard in a receiver at all times as well as other objectionable noises. There are thousands of receiving sets, however, that operate successfully near high tension lines.

A Good Ground.

A wire from the front of the house to a pipe in the rear will not make so good a ground as a wire down the side of the house, attached at a place where the water pipe enters the house.

NEW ARRIVALS

The Timbretone is a new loud-speaker built in a long, narrow cabinet that can be placed directly under a receiving set. It contains a well known make of an electric reproducing unit with a new design of flat horn which is said to give excellent tone quality and ample volume for the ordinary living room. Placed under a receiving set this unit makes a very neat appearance and effects a great saving in space.

The new air cooled Yaxley rheostats and potentiometers present a new design in rheostat construction. The resistance wire of these rheostats is wound on a special narrow insulation form and the coils are so supported that the wire is exposed on all sides. Such an arrangement permits the wire to be air cooled. Besides this feature the Yaxley rheostats are very neatly constructed and run exceptionally smooth. They are said to operate without a temperature rise and at constant co-efficient of conductivity. A quarter inch shaft fits the same size hole as a jack and the rheastats require only a single hole mounting.

The Furnell Manufacturing Corportation of Newark, N. J., is manufacturing a new variable condenser known as a 360 degree Evolute Taper coil condenser. It is entirely enclosed, which makes it dust proof, revolves through 360 degrees and the moving parts are completely balanced. It is claimed by the manufacturer that due to the very rigid construction, rough treatment will not easily upset its capacity.

Second Week of WEAF Chain Broadcasting With Added Local Presentations.

Besides opening its second week of WEAF chain broadcasting with Mme. Louise Homer as the headliner, Station KSD this week has several of the notable programs. Monday night a string quartet consisting of four leading St. Louis artists, Esmeralda Berry Mayes, first violin; Ethel Knobeloch, second violin; Carl Thol, viola, and Max Steindel cello, will present a half hour's recital in the studio.

Immediately preceding this will be an unusual concert in that it is made up entirely of compositions by negroes, presented by negroes. The songs of Nathaniel Dett, Harry T. Burleigh, S. Coleridge-Taylor, J. Rosamond Johnson, and a St. Louis composer, Antonia L. Haskell, will make up the list of numbers. The singers are members of the St. Louis branch of the National Association of Negro Musicians, of which National Dett is president, and their programs will be given in a way that will thoroughly delight the listening public. This program is scheduled for the hour between 9 and 10 o'clock.

Between 7 and 8 o'clock a special orchestral program by the Conley-Silverman Orchestra with Michel Gusikoff, violinist, and Max Steindel, cellist, as guest artists, will be broadcast direct from the West End Lyric Theater. Wednesday night being National Electrical Night the electrical world generally will celebrate Edison's birthday, and KSD will take part in this celebration by presenting a musical program of songs and orchestral numbers with Myrtle Calve Gisler, soprano, and Arthur Joseffy, baritone. Col. Albert T. Perkins, manager for the receivers of the United Railway Co., and an electrical engineer of national note will make an address.

On Friday evening John Herget, accordionist, and Nolte's Dance Orchestra of Edwardsville, Ill., will be the attractions, and Saturday night there will be a program broadcast from the Grand Central Theater.

Mme. Louise Homer, the great American contralto, will be the artist in tonight's program which is to be broadcast by KSD from New York, and as an added attraction will be the Capitol Theater program and the "Capitol Gang." Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday other WEAF programs will come through KSD to St. Louis listeners.

Chain Broadcasting Expert Finds Public the Final Jury

By J. A. HOLMAN,

Manager of Broadcasting, American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

Perhaps you are one of the radio listeners who heard the recent fourth anniversary program broadcast by station WEAF. You may even have been one of the many who wrote congratulatory letters to the station on that occasion. The great difference in the radio program of four years ago and today and the marked trend in the development of radio programs must have occurred to scores of the more thoughtful radio fans. It will be interesting to follow program tendencies by tracing briefly the history of WEAF.

Although the birthday recently celebrated was WEAF'S fourth, it was more than four years ago that the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. started experimental work in radio telephony. Being pioneers in the art of voice communication, our engineers were actually engaged in the advancement of the art since the birth of the vacuum tubes.

For example: In 1915 speech was transmitted successfully from Arlington, Va., across the continent to San Francisco, over the Pacific to the Hawaiian Islands, and at the same time in the opposite direction across the Atlantic to Paris. This was done by engineers of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in co-operation with the American Government.

Study of Problems.

With the advent of radio broadcasting WEAF was established as the Telephone Co.'s experimental station for the purpose of studying the engineering and economic problems confronting this new art.

Was there a demand for radio broadcasting? If so, what did the public want? How was the demand to be met from the economic point of view?

Finally, how could facilities be set up to meet the demand on the part of those who had legitimate use for the new medium? These four questions were, and still are, the outstanding ones presenting themselves for solution.

The first question was answered immediately. The demand was overwhelming, not only from radio listeners but from business organizations which sought to utilize the new art by installing their own broadcasting equipment. In New York alone more than 100 inquiries were received regarding the purchase of radio transmitters.

This would have meant 100 broadcasting stations transmitting all kinds of programs simultaneously, with the attendant economic and engineering inefficiencies and a positive dis-service to the radio audience.

The raison d'etre for WEAF will now be evident. It was to determine how genuine were the demands by these organizations for broadcasting facilities and to carry on the general experimental work of the telephone company that the station was provided.

Radio Audience Grows.

At the time that this station was started, broadcasting was looked upon as a novelty. The majority of radio fans were the amateurs, the old dyed-in-the-wool fans who, while they are still with us today, are greatly outnumbered by listeners preferring programs to experimentation.

This audience grew rapidly, for the fascination of radio telephony seized the public imagination with an overwhelming force. At first, mechanical music by phonographs and player-pianos sufficed. To cater to the growing audience, aspiring vocalists and instrumentalists desiring to take advantage of the new publicity medium requested placement on the programs.

For the first year or two, programs were disconnected presentations of one soloist after another. While in the very earliest days of the art it was possible to secure a few of the outstanding artists, they performed only because it appealed to them as a novelty, and as a means by which they might obtain other engagements.

What were the program tendencies in these pioneering days? It was the natural development from the simple studio programs to out-of-studio events. Program managers were aided then, as now, by the radio fan's letters. While the mail was fairly heavy, it contained a smaller proportion of constructive criticism, the majority of letters being expressions of enthusiastic surprise at the new medium and its quality programs.

Our station impresarios carried on extensive experiments and increased the number of program hours from 14 per week to the present average of 52. WEAF's personnel was doubled and then tripled. Every step was taken as a result of carefully arranged experimentation.

Assisted by the more thoughtful letter writers, the station branched out into many new fields. Musical programs, while forming the backbone, could not fill out the structure. Education, religion, arts and sciences, politics, sporting events, governmental and public proceedings, each was studied to determine its place in the program structure.

Religion in Radio.

Take the question of religion in radio as an example. The important religious bodies were consulted. From the first we felt that broadcasting activities along religious lines should be confined to such times as would not conflict with regular church services. The Catholic, Protestant and Jewish bodies were consulted and invited to participate in the big radio experiment.

The Greater New York Federation of Churches accepted the responsibility for the Protestant denominations and since then have presented a religious program on each Sunday afternoon and Thursday evening. For the Jews, the United Synagogue of America joined in the experiment and has been presenting its religious program on each Wednesday night. Even these religious programs have been studied and have shown considerable development, not only in their natures but in the amount of time devoted to them.

The educational problem was handled in conjunction with the outstanding educational body in the city, Columbia University. That there was a place in radio programs for serious lectures authoritatively and interestingly presented was expected, but no one anticipated the public response.

When the home study department of Columbia University selected as its first experimental course the series of lectures on the poetry of Robert Browning, it was felt that radio broadcasting was being given the educational acid test. The result was immediate and astounding.

The university was encouraged to further efforts.

Since that time, two years ago, there has been a continuous series of lectures by university authorities, discussing such subjects as history, psychology, religion, politics, economics and other major subjects. Education and radio were insolubly linked.

Politics in Radio.

As may be expected, national political organizations eagerly seized upon radio's opportunties. The new medium could counteract the evils of the voters' indifference and reach the citizen and his family within the confines of his home, they reasoned. The real problem for the broadcasters was not to obtain the co-operation of political bodies but rather to keep political activities from pre-empting a larger share of program time than the radio audience desired.

Great care has been exercised in political presentations from the earliest experiments. Absolute impartiality must be shown, as the radio fan has taken much interest in politics and will be the first to notice and to decry any leaning toward one party or another.

Equal opportunity was offered last year to the major political parties for the broadcasting of their national conventions, with results that are known to every radio fan in the country.

Because of the fondness of the American public for sporting events it was not long before WEAF made experiments along these lines. The first great effort was on the occasion of the famous Princeton-Chicago football game, played in Stagg Field, Chicago, in the fall of 1922 and relayed by specially engineered telephone circuits to WEAF.

This was the first important broadcasting from a remote point and words fail utterly to describe the thrill which the Eastern football fan experienced when he heard that Princeton student band playing in Chicago and followed one of the most exciting football games in years, play by play, simultaneously with the actual happening a thousand miles away.

So quick was the radio audience to respond to this type of program that the tendency to present sporting events on a larger scale each year has been marked. Now the radio audience follows every important sporting event, whether on the Atlantic or on the sun-kissed field of the Western coast, be it football, baseball, horse racing, boxing, aeroplaning or races by college crew or power boats.

Out-of-Studio Events.

Out-of-studio events such as concerts by the Philharmonic Society Orchestra, the New York Symphony Orchestra, the Oratorical Society of New York, the Schola Cantorum and others proved from the outset to be popular, also an occasional Broadway show, confined mainly to musical comedy.

These programs from sources outside the studio proved to be so acceptable that there never has been any question of their continuance and growing importance. Permanent installations were made to convey splendid hotel music at regular intervals, and similar installations have been made to provide other forms of entertainment.

The tendencies in the development of radio programs from simple studio events to those presented on the national scale could not help but bring important engineering and economic problems with them. To link up stations in distant cities meant the utilization of special high-quality long-distance circuits of the Bell system.

While the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. maintained long-distance telephone lines across the country, much engineering work had to be done to fit all of these lines for radio purposes. These circuits were designed for telephone subscribers' use, and in addition to talking circuits were utilized for telegraph service.

When demand was made for their use for radio broadcasting, telephone and telegraph facilities had to be removed from the circuit and there had to be substituted equipment for the transmission of radio programs. Special hookups were required for the broadcasting circuit, as the radio signals would be amplified to such an extent as to produce what in telephone parlance is called "Morse chatter" and "crosstalk." It was found that a limited amount of facilities could be so arranged that the circuits would be available for broadcasting purposes at a time when the long-distance telephone traffic was at a minimum.

The result was a ready means for connecting a network of stations in various parts of the country to Station WEAF to present important sporting events and other programs to the radio audiences eagerly awaiting them.

While the many letters of the radio audience were being carefully analyzed to study program tendencies, and while the station managers were conducting independent experiments regarding program values, business organizations were not slow to step into the picture and to bring a valuable contribution to the art's development.

YOU NEED WAIT NO LONGER

HUNDREDS of people have hesitated to buy radio because they feel that radio has not reached its fullest development. To those people we say this:

There is no more reason for you to put off buying radio than there is to put off buying a car until next fall's models are announced. The changes which will be made will be like those made in your automobile—minor improvements, mostly in appearance, not vitally affecting the measure of your enjoyment.

When all is said and done, performance is what you buy in radio. And performance will remain the same, improving not so much through improvements in receivers as through development of broadcasting facilities. And if you want proof that radio performance has reached the degree of perfection you seek, arrange to listen to the A-C Dayton.

The A-C Dayton is practical radio at its best, built to sell on its own ability to satisfy by superior performance. The nearest A-C Dayton dealer will arrange a demonstration in your home at your request. Then, with the set operating under conditions which will prevail after you buy, judge radio and A-C Dayton by what your own ears tell you.

ELIMINATORS ARE BECOMING POPULAR

Latest Rectifier Tube Based Upon New Principle, Has No Filament to Burn Out.

There are numerous "B" battery eliminators on the market, and it is expected that several more will be introduced before the first of the year because of the development of new rectifier tubes. It is apparent that many broadcast listeners are anxious to eliminate the inconvenience and expense of changing batteries at least once a year. One manufacturer sounded out the sentiment among dealers and the public and found the interest in "B" eliminators so great that he multiplied his production by 10.

The majority of "B" eliminators, which enable the use of house lighting current as a source of plate voltage, range in price from $25 to $70. This is chiefly because of the expensive condensers required in the device. It is understood that several concerns will place "B" eliminator kits on the market in the near future so that amateurs can build their own current supply devices from reliable parts.

One of the main factors which has been a drawback to the majority of manufacturers of "B" eliminators has been the development of rectifier tubes. Two of the latest tubes to make their appearance are the Rectron UX-213, a full wave rectifier giving an output of 65 milliamperes, and the Raytheon, which is claimed to be built upon a new principle, the forerunner of which is the "S" tube. The underlying principle is that any gaseous tube which has one very small electrode and one large electrode is a partial rectifier; that is, the current flows more readily when the larger electrode is made negative than when it is positive.

New Principle Discovered.

For years scientists have searched for insulators that would stand up under intense heat and would not break down under extremely high voltage stress or deteriorate with age. Mica, lava, glass, porcelain—all were tried without avail. C. G. Smith of Cambridge, Mass., during his years of development work on a new gaseous rectifier, recently discovered that the insulator was the very gas with which he was working. It was found that this and other gases would not conduct current between two electrodes that were close together. The new rectifier for "B" battery eliminators was built with this "short path" insulator as the foundation.

Among the advantages claimed for this rectifier are: "No filament to burn out, high voltage output, high current output, excellent regulation, full wave rectification, extremely long life. The tube can be made to deliver, at the output of the filter, potentials well over 150 volts, especially suited to use with the new power amplifying tubes as well as with standard tubes. It is possible to obtain over 60 milliamperes without injury to the tube. Regulation is the ability of the device to hold its output voltage at varying conditions of load or current drawn.

No Rheostat Required.

Under continuous operation at an output of 50 milliamperes it is reported that there has been no sign of diminishing life in any stock tubes tested after 10,000 hours. Under average conditions of operation this means a life over a number of years.

The fact that there is no filament eliminates any necessity of attention during the service of the tube. A rheostat is unnecessary, line surges will not affect the tube, and extra windings on the supply transformer are eliminated.

The gas employed is helium at a pressure of about 12 millimeters of mercury. The tube depends on ionization for its action and therefore the vacuum is not nearly as perfect as that used in common amplifying tubes. It is necessary, however, to evacuate thoroughly before releasing the helium. Only a very small amount of helium is employed in the manufacture of these tubes and this is obtained in the production of liquid air. A quart of helium at atmospheric pressure is said to be sufficient for 700 tubes.

MAGNIFYING RADIO SOUNDS

Gentleness and the subdued tone are emphasized in radio transmitting stations to a degree seldom attained in other places. In the studios, performers have learned that it pays to be quiet, because of the psychological effect on listeners when unwonted sounds go out. And performers have found out that soft tones, close to the microphone, appeal far more pleasurably to the radio listeners than the music hall volume and the concert stage requirements.

A small folding organ, used by street preachers, makes its appeal in studio recital to sound like the mighty tones of the vast pipes. The jewsharp, in the hands of a skilled performer, makes strange melody that in a large theater is difficult to hear. The harmonica has come to be almost a necessity for the radio studio, for it fills in many a wish for variety and does it well. The canary, before the microphone, sounds as if its size were that of the eagle when the loud speaker on a good receiving set delivers the song.

As an experiment, try to clear up signals and cut static interference by inserting a variable grid leak in the ground lead.

REFRACTION AFFECTS SHORT WAVE SIGNAL

Naval Scientists Are Making an Intensive Study of the Heaviside Layer Theory.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Recent developments in high frequency experiments at the United States Naval Research Laboratory at Bellvue have indicated two rather startling conclusions regarding this phenomena.

One of these theories attempts to explain why stations located within a few hundred miles of a high-freqnency transmitter cannot pick up its signals while receivers thousands of miles away, even as far as half way around the world, can receive them clearly.

The other is that it may never be possible to utilize the frequency band above 10 meters for distance transmission.

Dr. A. H. Taylor, physicist, in charge of the Bellevue Laboratory, is the author of these conclusions. Dr. Taylor bases them on the results of experiments over a long period as well as on the reports of observers scattered throughout the world. Dr. Taylor would not discuss the possibility of the utilization of high frequencies for broadcast transmission and reception in the near future.

According to Dr. Taylor, it is pretty well established that the magnetic field of the earth influences the motion of electrons in the atmosphere and that it has an important bearing on high frequency waves, whereas the low frequency waves are not appreciably affected.

"An appeal to this influence and to the well-known laws of the reflection and refraction of waves," says Dr. Taylor, "has resulted in a theory that appears to fit the facts fairly well and which although by no means complete will at least, we hope, encourage theoretical and experimental work which will throw light on the subject.

"Perhaps the most striking fact which has come out of the studies of high frequency transmission is the obvious existence of a skipped distance combined with the fact that in many cases the signals at relatively great distances are much stronger than they are at relatively short distances.

"It appears that the change from normal radio conditions which has led to extraordinary range of communication with low power occurs at about 120 meters or 2300 kilocycles."

According to Dr. Taylor's theory there is a gradually increasing state of ionization in the high level of the earth's atmosphere. It is believed this is due to the sun's rays and other causes. The velocity of radio waves is higher when traveling through ionized regions than when through un-ionized space.

When the wave is sent out by the antenna it travels at an angle toward the Heaviside-Kennelly layer. As ionization increases in the high levels, the velocity of the wave increases so that it is gradually bent over because the top of the wave travels more rapidly than the bottom. Thus, it is bent back toward the earth. From the reaction of the induced in the earth's surface at the of the wave the earth itself an action tending to the wave out.

This means that the wave not be received at any point tween the place sent out and place where it again return the earth. Of course, there is a ground wave which makes signal audible for a short from the transmitting station, fading on the ground wave is pronounced.

If the wave happens down around 600 miles station in that locality can very good signal, while a 200 miles closer to the tra ting station could not pick at all.

"The skipped distance in summer night time is much er than it is in the daytime," Dr. Taylor, "and the skipped tance gradually increases midnight. This is what we pect. Although the winter skipped distance is not accur ly known, it is very known that the skipped distan is decidedly greater than it is dur ing summer nights and this seems reasonable because ionization should be less in winter time and therefore shoul not penetrate to so low a lev because the periods of sunligh are shorter an the intensity sunlight less."

The length of the skipped dis tance, Dr. Taylor says, depend entirely on how close the Heavi side Layer is to the earth. The closer the layer, the less the skip and vice versa. Quite often there is a first, second, third and fourth skipped distance as the wave tra els up and down at an angle from the earth to the Layer.

Dr. Taylor says the angle which the wave leaves the ant depends upon the frequency which transmission occurs. The higher the frequency, the flatter the angle; that is, the nearer the earth's surface the wave will out.

"This means, for instance," Dr. Taylor, "that at about 20,7 kilocycles the wave in order to be properly reflected will have leave so nearly horizontal that will be very heavily absorbed the earth. On addition, the cur vature of the earth will actu get into the way of it so that cannot reach the layer with an angle as to be reflected. According to this, we are not lik to see very satisfactory communica tion over great distances on wave shorter than 10 meters, that is higher frequencies than 30,0 kilocycles.

"The only way we can conc of communication at high frequen cies being feasible over long ran would be to have them started pre ferably in a beam from compara tively high altitude, so that they would come to the reflecting area at a low angle without being ab sorbed by the earth. This point, no doubt, will be proved or dis proved in the not very far distant future."

STATION CALLS

reaction of the induced currents in the earth's surface at the base of the wave the earth itself has an action tending to straighten the wave out.

This means that the wave cannot be received at any point between the place sent out and the place where it again returns to the earth. Of course, there is also a ground wave which makes the signal audible for a short distance from the transmitting station, but fading on the ground wave is very pronounced.

If the wave happens to come down around 600 miles away, a station in that locality can get a very good signal, while a station 200 miles closer to the transmitting station could not pick it up at all.

"The skipped distance in the summer night time is much greater than it is in the daytime," says Dr. Taylor, "and the skipped distance gradually increases toward midnight. This is what we expect. Although the winter night skipped distance is not accurately known, it is very definitely known that the skipped distance is decidedly greater than it is during summer nights and this again seems reasonable because the ionization should be less in the winter time and therefore should not penetrate to so low a level because the periods of sunlight are shorter an dthe intensity of sunlight less."

The length of the skipped distance, Dr. Taylor says, depends entirely on how close the Heaviside Layer is to the earth. The closer the layer, the less the skip, and vice versa. Quite often there is a first, second, third and fourth skipped distance as the wave travels up and down at an angle from the earth to the Layer.

Dr. Taylor says the angle at which the wave leaves the antenna depends upon the frequency at which transmission occurs. The higher the frequency, the flatter the angle: that is, the nearer the earth's surface the wave will go out.

"This means, for instance, "says Dr. Taylor, "that at about 20,700 kilocycles the wave in order to be properly reflected will have to leave so nearly horizontal that it will be very heavily absorbed by the earth. On addition, the curvature of the earth will actually get into the way of it so that it cannot reach the layer with such an angle as to be reflected. According to this, we are not likely to see very satisfactory communication over great distances on waves shorter than 10 meters, that is of higher frequencies than 30,000 kilocycles.

"The only way we can conceive of communication at high frequencies being feasible over long ranges would be to have them started preferably in a beam from comparatively high altitude, so that they would come to the reflecting area at a low angle without being absorbed by the earth. This point, no doubt, will be proved or disproved in the not very far distant future."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
TRUE LIFE STORIES

PART EIGHT ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 18, 1925. PAGES 33—40.

He Married a Very Superior Woman; She Never Let Him Forget It; He Killed Her

Garage Mechanic's Club Woman Wife Nagged Him for 23 Years and Set His Children Against Him

Ray Shank Ran Amuck the Night She Notified Him of Her Divorce Action, Slaying Her and Their Son, Paul—His Daughter Escaped From Murder House and Will Appear as Witness Against Him. Mrs. Shank Had Social Obligations and Liked to Go; He Was a Worker Who Wanted a Hot Supper When He Got Home at Night.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, COLO., Oct. 17.

IN court they will say: "Ray Shank, you murdered your wife, Marian, and your son, Paul."

If, at the last minute he should deny it, his daughter, Ruth, will be there to testify against him. She saw him shoot her mother and brother down. That is, she will testify unless she should back out and lie in an attempt to save him. An eyewitness makes it a hanging case. As far as the facts are concerned and her story is concerned he'd get the rope.

But Ray Shank's lawyers still have a defense; quite the usual one, insanity. In this case, however, it appears to be a better defense than in most where lawyers say: "Insanity."

Ray Shank will tell this story:

He was just an ordinary young fool 23 years ago. Lots of better educated and handsomer men called on Marian Cordingly. So he thought. So he was given to understand. But for some reason not at all clear, Marian Cordingly liked him best. Her friends couldn't see why. Marian had gone to college, her parents were well-to-do and she moved in a rather select group. She was expected to marry one of her own kind. Not that common Ray Shank. Not that lout of a Ray Shank who had stopped school after the eighth grade and worked with his hands. Why will girls be so blind?

Marian was romantic and entirely human. The other men who paid her attention were gallant and courteous, but not adoring. Ray adored her. He looked up to her. To him she was on a pedestal. She was a fine thing to be worshiped. Her world was not his, but infinitely better, he thought. She went to parties in fine homes, she danced, she sang, she played the piano, she talked of expensive clothes and much travel. She belonged to several clubs and gave promise of becoming an inveterate gadabout. Unknown world to Ray Shank. Lovely world. Lovely girl.

She enjoyed the flattery of Ray's humble devotion. She queened it over him, but this was not so easy with men of her own set, who knew any number of girls like Marian. Ray knew only one. All the others laughed at him. Marian didn't laugh. She considered it touching that Ray should worship her. It showed a fine perception in him, a desire to attain higher things. All the other men had ideas of their own as to what was good taste and what should be done on all occasions. But Ray said:

"You know what's right, Marian. Me—I don't. I never had experience in such things."

She Would Reform Him

Certainly there was in her mind the idea that she could make Ray over when they were married. Certainly she dreamed of molding him to her style of husband. Not an aggressive husband. But a husband who knew how to use a knife and fork and what to say to callers. She didn't want him to learn too much. Just enough to be graceful, but not enough to spoil his worship of her. There are some girls who are content to be comets trailing a star, some are satisfied with a twin planet arrangement and others demand a satellite. Marian Cordingly was this last type. She must be the sun and Ray the planet.

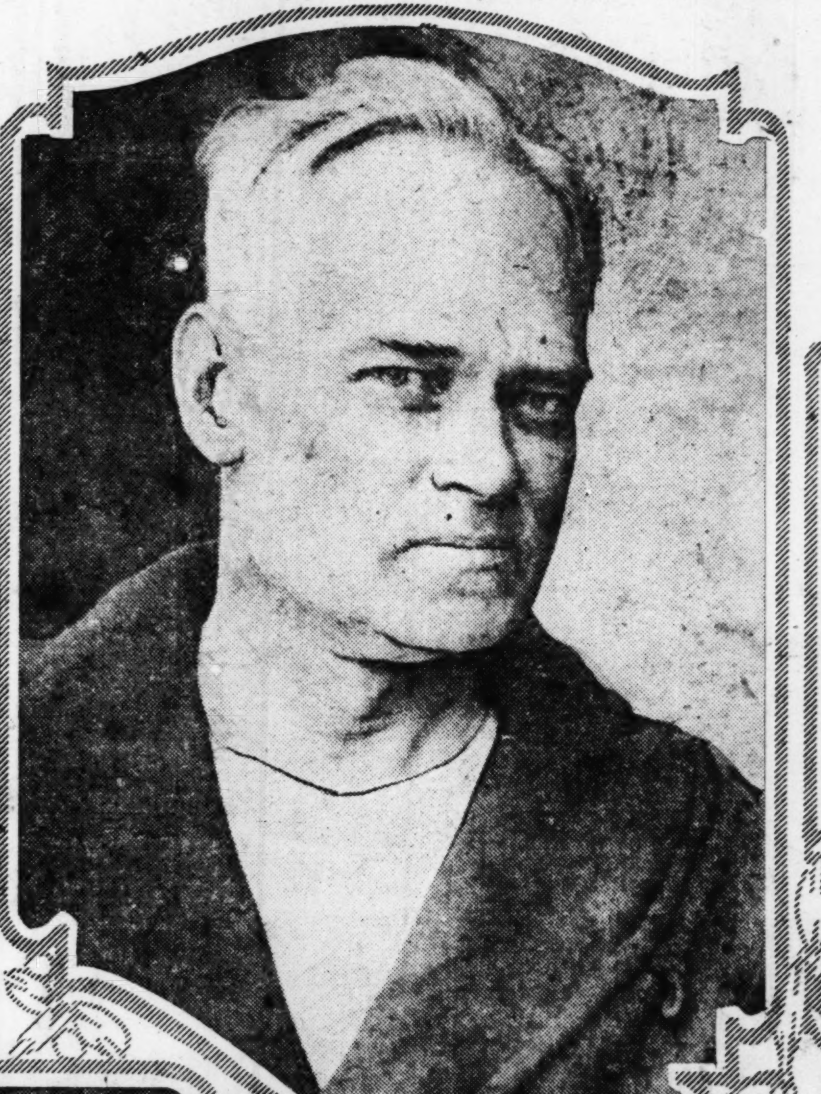
Poor fellow! He never realized the false humility of courtship that gripped him. Nor did she. It was always to be as it was then—Marian the queen and Ray the adoring courtier. So, in spite of her family and friends, she married him. It was the worst mesalliance of several social seasons. They were so utterly unsuited to one another. Everyone predicted a quick divorce.

Ray Shank and his adored one were plunged into that enforced reduction to a common level called marriage. He realized very soon that he had not married an angel. She realized that she had married a hopeless clod. At least, so she considered him. Had this clod spurned under foot turned still adoring edges upward, she might have been spared the disillusionment. But Ray was about finished with adoration.

Finding that his wife was a mere mortal after all, Shank's attitude changed. While in his heart he still acknowledged her superiority, he began to resent it. He was her husband, wasn't he? The head of the house? She had promised to love, honor and obey him. Thus, in his mind grew one of the little hatreds that live in love. It made him jealous of his authority, supersensitive to her criticism, suspicious that behind his back her friends, if not she herself, were laughing at him.

For her part, the discovery that men seldom change after marriage, was a sad blow. She had married a plain, hard-working man in the secret hope of polishing him. She soon learned that Ray Shank was not likely to be much different 20 years hence. He was what he was and seemed truculently determined to stay that way. He was the Ray Shank she had married and the Ray Shank she must live with. After the first shock of surprise Marian Shank settled down into one of those gentle, life-long martyrdoms which wives sometimes affect. If she could not be his angel she could be his patient victim. But in the course of being patient she would show him just how very patient she was; how much she had to put up with, what she had sacrificed for him, how little he deserved her.

RAY SHANK. Taken in jail after the shooting.



RUTH SHANK. She saw her father shoot her mother down and will testify against him at the trial.

MRS. MARIAN SHANK.

PAUL SHANK. He was shot to death by his father.

Children Sided With Her

These mutual readjustments, of course, did not work out in so many words. Rather, they were subtle changes, which during the first five years or so did not find strong enough expression to alarm either of them. But when the children came; first Ruth and two years later, Paul, the smouldering feud between Ray Shank and his wife broke into words.

"Daddy," little Paul would say, "when I grow up I'm going to work with my brains instead of my hands."

"What put that idea into your head?"

"Mamma says I'm to be a gentleman and not any old mechanic."

Shank was a mechanic.

Or Ruth would say:

"Look, Mamma, Daddy's eating with his knife."

"Use your fork like Mamma does," Mrs. Shank would sigh.

When the children were at school or asleep they'd quarrel about it; Shank so bitterly hurt that his lip would tremble; Mrs. Shank so righteously right that she bristled with defiance.

"Why do you have to go setting the children against me?" he would ask. "They're as much mine as yours. I don't talk against you to them. Kids should respect their Dad. How're they goin' to respect me if you keep up that kind of talk?"

She would raise her hands in an appeal to heaven to witness.

"Respect you? How can they respect you, Ray? The way you do. Why don't you watch your grammar and your table manners? Why don't you try to get into some respectable work? Some business."

"My work's all right. It's honest, ain't it? I make you a living, don't I?"

"Fine living. This grubby little house in this neighborhood."

"It's good enough for anybody."

"Good enough for you. But I want to remind you, Ray Shank, that I was brought up to something better. And my children are going to be brought up to something better, too."

Spurred on by her constant nagging, Shank did go into business. But it was an automobile repair shop. And while he employed several men he did not make a white collar job of it for himself. He was reared a mechanic. He liked his work. So he came home to Marian and the children with crank case grease under his finger nails and the smell of gasoline about him.

The children were natural allies of their mother. In an appeal to them against the head of the family she could win any sort of case. The Shank children, girl and boy, came to regard their father as a matter of considerable regret. But having kinder hearts and more innate tact than adults they remained outwardly loyal.

Shank loved his wife and children. For no other reason would he have put up with 23 years of warfare at home. His was of course an entirely selfish fight. He wanted to keep his home. He wanted to hold them to his station in life. When he said that their house, the food he provided, the clothes he bought were good enough for them he really meant, "I'm good enough for you."

His wife believed she was making war for the best interests of her children. She felt that she had married beneath her and wanted her children to rise above their father's level. She wanted them to be well educated well-dressed. They must live in a good neighborhood. Marian Shank was proving the adage that a woman always drags a man down to her level or labors all her life to lift him up to her level.

"Of course Ruth will go to college."

"H'mph. College. I never went to college."

"I wish you had."

"What does she need a college education for? I never had any and got along all right."

"Yes—all right. Where are you now? In a garage."

"It makes us a living, don't it? I guess it'll have to pay her way if she goes, won't it? Why are you always despising it?"

Paul Couldn't Go

Ruth and her mother carried their point. She went four years to the University of Colorado at Boulder, some 30 miles from Denver. But when it came Paul's turn Ray Shank said he couldn't afford it.

"We're growing old, Marian," he objected. "We've got to be saving something."

His refusal to advance funds for Paul's education when the youth graduated from high school last June caused the final break. Paul went to work. Ruth obtained a job as instructor in the Denver schools. Their mother grieved.

During all these years Marian Shank had tried desperately to keep her girlhood friends. She wanted to hold the ground she herself had lost by an unfortunate marriage, for her children. It was her hope to launch them in the social sphere she had left to marry their father. With this end in view she retained membership in various clubs and interested herself in church and social work.

Shank could not understand this. He complained that when he came home to their bungalow after a hard day's work she was away, the house was dark and there was no hope of supper. But probably he had a more serious objection. He felt, no doubt, that she was trying to get away from him, trying to go back to the old life, to the friends who laughed at him and pitied her.

This last summer Shank and his wife were estranged. But they continued to share the same house, partly because of the human dread of climaxes, partly because Mrs. Shank had no place else to go. Paul and Ruth stayed with their mother, afraid, now that the break had come. They tried in a fashion to reconcile their parents.

"Poor old Dad," Paul said, "he means well."

"Yes, Mother," Ruth said, "remember, he hasn't had your advantages."

They were pitying him now. That was harder to endure than their bickering. Shank fell into morose moods when he did not speak to them for days.

It was coming. They would leave him.

Coming home, he heard them talking in low tones together. Probably discussing a divorce. Most likely talking about him. Getting ready to leave him all alone. Marian, his wife. Paul, his son. Ruth, his daughter. All against him. Whispering. Plotting.

Mrs. Shank arranged a crisis which was as cruel as it was dangerous. She filed suit for divorce, secretly, and had deputies call at the house on the evening of Sept. 15 to serve her husband with the papers. While she was there. While the children were there.

The doorbell rang.

"Well, aren't any of you going?" he said, ill-temperedly.

They did not stir. They knew who it was.

He went.

"Mr. Shank?"

"Yes."

The Climax

"We're from the Sheriff's office. This is a summons. Your—your wife's divorce suit, you know."

"Oh!"—— he said. "I didn't know."

He stood in the hall a long time with that paper. His wife and children were in the living room. He started as if to go in and make a scene. Then, he changed his mind. Slowly he went out the door and across the porch, an old, gray-haired man. He sat down on the edge of the porch.

Inside, they were afraid. He had been so silent, lately, so moody. He had brooded. What would he do? What was he thinking out there on the porch?

They should have fled. Why they didn't is one of those inexplicable twists in human behavior. Maybe they still trusted him. Maybe they shrank from dramatics. The tendency people have in times of great emotion to pretend as if nothing were wrong sent them to bed as usual. Ruth slept with her mother in the bedroom. Paul went to bed on the sleeping porch, which he had shared with his father.

Some time in the night Shank came in and went to bed. But he did not sleep. About 4 in the morning he got up and loaded an army carbine with a clip of cartridges.

First he killed Paul as he slept.

Then he appeared at the door of his wife's room. She was awakened by the muffled shot and called out: "Ray, is that you? What made the noise?"

"I dropped a lamp bulb," he answered.

Lamp bulbs make a pop when they break.

He turned on the light. She saw the rifle and screamed. He shot and she fell dead. Next, he swung the rifle around to Ruth. But the ejector jammed. Ruth dived under the bed. Watching his feet, she saw her chance as he left the door. She scrambled out and ran from the house, screaming. Her father dashed after her like a madman. He held the rifle above his head to use it as a club.

Chester Seguine, a neighbor, awakened by the shots and screams, ran from his house in time to intercept Shank. He grappled with the slayer and, although Shank broke away, Ruth had time to gain the home of another neighbor, and safety.

Shank ran back to his own house.

When police arrived they found the bodies of Paul and Mrs. Shank. The murderer was trying to drown himself in the bathtub. . . .

Pretty soon Ray Shank will go on trial.

"I was insane that night," he will say.

SAN ANTONIO Tex., Oct. 17.

LIFE was a drama for Mrs. Ada McCobb. All the world was a stage and all the people players and she was the principal player. She lived and moved and had her being in unreality. Then, one day, real tragedy came to her door and she died as dramatically as she could have wished, with background of mystery and hint of frustrated romance.

Wealth was hers, and fine raiment and jewels. She might have had a house and liveried lackeys and all the circumstance which wealth bestows, but it suited her sense of the dramatic to hide in a back room of a boarding house out in Harlandale suburb, suspicious of every stranger who came and every voice that called on the telephone, seeing enemies lurking behind the palms that lined the avenue, fearful of every footfall on the stair, trembling even behind the bolted doors and fastened windows and plugged keyholes of her room.

Living in an atmosphere of intrigue and menace no less real to her because it was unreal in fact, the death by violence that she dreamed of came at last, absurdly, in a flare-up on a hot day over a dish of peaches and cream. Feeling her regal self aggrieved by a detail of her luncheon that she deemed unworthy of a Queen, she would have struck down the woman she blamed for the affront, but she was struck down herself, and died there in her boarding-house room.

Practically nothing was known here about the woman's past, so great was her reticence, up to the day of her death. The information that has been gathered since, curiously disconnected, does little more than deepen the mystery.

Once a Broker's Wife

This much has been pieced together: Once she was the wife of Henry McCobb, a Wall street broker. They separated and were divorced. She received from him in settlement, or derived from other sources, or both, a substantial fortune. She still cared for her former husband, after the separation, sufficiently to wish him to have the income from her real estate, as shown by an undated and unsigned will found among her effects, but he has long been dead.

She toured Europe often, and traveled around the world, gathering treasures wherever she went, jewels and other adornments, articles of virtu, whatever caught her fickle fancy. Hoarding these things as a miser hoards his gold, filling trunks and boxes with them and storing them here and there.

She had properties and interests in one city and another and mines in Mexico. She had been important enough to be listened to by statesmen in respect to international affairs. Her influence saved the life of an American in Mexico, who had been condemned to death. Woodrow Wilson, when he was President, seems to have given some personal attention to the straightening out of some sort of a tangle concerning her property in Mexico. In that connection she formed a dislike for Henry P. Fletcher, then in charge of American affairs in Mexico, and later, when he was proposed for Ambassador to Italy, she had the assurance to oppose his confirmation.

Always Afraid

It suited her, an eccentric woman approaching 60 years of age, to spend most of her time in recent years, when she was not traveling, in San Antonio, living at unpretentious hotels or boarding houses. When, formerly, she appeared in public she was overdressed in rich raiment that had passed or was passing from style, and she loaded herself down with diamonds and other jewels. That was before, with increasing suspiciousness, she sought concealment.

Fleeing always when no one pursued, Mrs. McCobb moved frequently from one lodging place to another. In early June, back of which time the tracery is dim, she was staying at the Presnall Hotel on Garden street, conducted by Mrs. Lois Mehavier. She was cautious there but the flame of her vanity still burned, and two or three times she rigged herself in finery extracted from one of her many trunks and bedecked herself in jewels and basked in the awe of the other guests.

It may have been these vain indulgences that helped to give rise to her feeling that she wasn't safe there, as she confided to a friend, and prompted another of her frequent migrations. Scanning the advertisements she learned that Mrs. W. M. Longworth was accepting roomers and boarders at her home, 230 Laclede avenue, Harlandale. She called up Mrs. Longworth and made inquiries. It was two or three weeks later, however, when she came to look. A girl brought her in an automobile. The girl sat in the hall while Mrs. McCobb looked at a second floor rear room and decided that it would suit her. That was June 26. That night Mrs. McCobb came again, this time on a street car. Her several trunks were brought by an expressman. From that day until Sept. 25, when she was carried out in a dying condition, she did not leave the house.

Mrs. Sheridan snapped on her way to her preliminary hearing.

The room she had taken pleased her because it was accessible to the back stairs, leading from the wide first floor hall. She never left her room unless she was sure that she would not encounter anybody but Mrs. Longworth and her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Sheridan, the maid and the young student who did chores for his board. She never left her room without a fan in her hand, which she spread in front of her face if anybody approached. She seldom had need to use it, however, for her wariness was so great that she usually fled up the back stairs to her room before anybody approaching the house could see her.

She had her meals served in her room. The only time she entered the dining room was the day that a Spanish woman and her daughter, who had known her at the Presnall, came to see her. First seeing that the others had eaten and departed, she had these two as her guests at dinner, but she was furtive and ill at ease all the time that they were eating and did not introduce them to Mrs. Longworth or her daughter.

Part of the jewelry found in Mrs. McCobb's trunks.

Had No Friends

There is a wide porch where breezes blow and Mrs. Longworth at first tried to get Mrs. McCobb to sit out there, but she never did. There was another roomer who was lonely and sent by Mrs. Longworth an invitation to Mrs. McCobb to visit her in her room, but she did not go. She was at pains to avoid meeting the other woman. Before coming down stairs she would pause cautiously at the top of the rear stairs and cup her hands and call down to Mrs. Longworth or Mrs. Sheridan a hoarsely whispered question whether Mrs. Smith had gone out.

Before going there, it has since been learned, Mrs. McCobb had carried on a voluminous correspondence by mail and telegraph. From causes not clear it had dwindled during her stay at Mrs. Longworth's to an occasional letter and telegram.

During all the time that she was there she did not appear in any of her finery and wore no jewelry except a pearl necklace. There is reason to think, though, that in the security of her room, with bolted doors and drawn window shades, she took from her trunks some of her treasures and arrayed herself and had her hour of strutting through the pretense that life had become to her. Never at night, though, for after dark she never had a light in her room.

By actions and intimations Mrs. McCobb gave the people at the house to understand that she was being plotted against and pursued and hinted darkly at sinister things that might happen if she did not take the greatest care to avoid being discovered.

She was always suspicious when Mrs. Longworth or Mrs. Sheridan used the telephone. She apparently feared that they would betray her into the hands of enemies. Every time one of them telephoned she questioned closely as to who had been talking and what about.

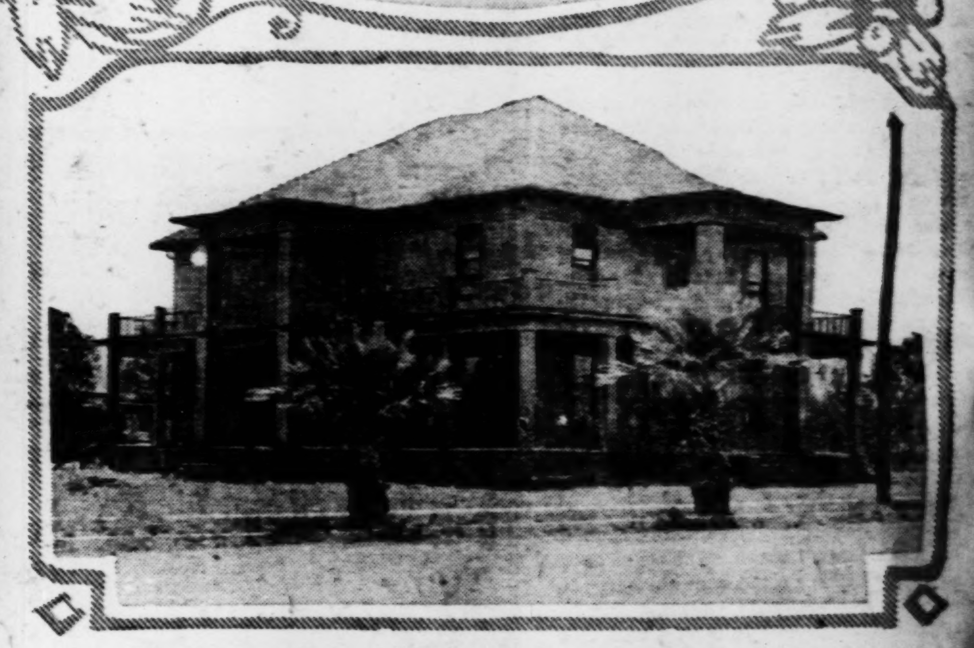
On the day of the tragedy Mrs. Sheridan had difficulty getting the person with whom she wanted to discuss a matter of business. Mrs. McCobb was considerably exercised over the frequent use of the telephone. She questioned Mrs. Sheridan and was told what the difficulty was, but seemed not entirely satisfied.

Mrs. Sheridan, in the back yard, was using a hammer to knock the caked mud from her automobile chains, getting ready for a drive into the country. Mrs. McCobb called down to her, asking her to bring the hammer to her room when Mrs. Sheridan had finished with it. Mrs. Sheridan carried it to her a little later and then busied herself dyeing a dress. Several times Mrs. McCobb called to her and asked her to come to her room. Mrs. Sheridan answered each time: "I'll be there in a minute."

The Killing

Finally she went. What then took place is told by Mrs. Sheridan. There is nobody to confirm it or deny it. She entered the room. Mrs. McCobb's luncheon had been brought to her. "Look at those peaches and cream," she cried. "You are to blame." Mrs Sheridan walked over to look. Mrs. McCobb stepped behind her and shot the door bolt. Mrs. Sheridan turned at the sound. Mrs. McCobb, with the hammer clinched in both hands and raised above her head, was rushing upon her. She caught Mrs. McCobb's arms as the hammer descended and deflected the blow.

They struggled for possession of the hammer and fell to the floor. Mrs. Sheridan wrested the tool from the older woman. Mrs. McCobb tried to choke her. Mrs. Sheridan struck with the hammer, as hard and often as she could, calling for help.



The Longworth boarding house where Mrs. McCobb was killed.

Mrs. Longworth, downstairs, heard her daughter's calls for help. She ran to the door of Mrs. McCobb's room. It was locked. There were sounds of a struggle. She ran to the front of the house and climbed through a window to the roof of the porch and in that way reached the window of Mrs. McCobb's room. She wrenched away the screen and climbed into the room. Mrs. McCobb was lying on the floor, bleeding from many wounds, unconscious. Mrs. Sheridan was lying near her. Mrs. McCobb's hands clutched her throat. She, too, was unconscious, or appeared to be. Mrs. Longworth unbolted the door and admitted Jeannette, the maid. Then she called the police.

When the police arrived they found the two women still lying on the floor. Mrs. Sheridan appeared to be still unconscious, but she presently revived. Mrs. McCobb was taken to a hospital, where she died without regaining consciousness. Mrs. Sheridan had no external injuries.

The four trunks in Mrs. McCobb's room, taken by the authorities, yielded a peck of jewelry, unexpert appraisals of which vary from $25,000 to $60,000; an astonishing quantity of clothing, most of it out of date, and a great accumulation of letters, telegrams and other papers. It was expected that these papers would reveal all that was not known about the woman's history, but the more of them that were scanned the greater the confusion.

Eleven other trunks, filled with the woman's hoardings, were found at Laredo and it was learned that there were still other trunks in the City of Mexico and in California.

Letters were found which indicated that they had been written by relatives, but when telegrams of inquiry were sent to these the answers were that they were not related to Mrs. McCobb, but had indulged her in assuming a kinship that did not exist and addressing her accordingly. The near relationship narrowed down to a brother and it was found that he was dead. That left nephews and nieces as heirs of the estate, if there was no will. A will was found, but it was not signed or witnessed.

There were letters, many of them from a man in Mexico City, breathing a devotion the depth of which might be doubted in view of the woman's age and vanished charms, but it is not to be doubted that she rated the penned endearments at their face value and that they played their part in the dream world which she seems to have created for herself and of which she was the center.

Nephews and nieces were heard from, directing that the body be prepared for burial, but not claiming it. Mrs. Sheridan was held in default of $10,000 bond, but later it was reduced to $2500 because nothing had been discovered in disproof of her statement that she killed Mrs. McCobb in self defense, and she was released.

Settling Estate

District Attorney Chambers and his assistants, despairing of unraveling the tangle into which the woman's papers led, have turned the task over to John H. Cunningham, who has been appointed administrator of the estate, and he is still searching for papers which will establish the extent and character of her estate, which may be worth much, as she intimated to friends, or little. Probably it will be found, at the last, that there was about her fortune, some of the unreality in which she dwelt. Whatever there is will, it is expected, go to the nephews and nieces, eight of whom have so far come forward— W. T. Smith, Hillsboro, Tex.; G. L. Simpson, Houston, Tex.; Lucille and Alice Germaine, Laurelton, N. Y.; August Renting, Omaha, Neb.; David Laird, Ceres, Cal.; John Mendham, Seattle, Wash., and Mrs. Estella Thompson, Modesto, Cal.

Mrs. McCobb, who moved through an unreal world, playing a part, cherishing the promise of romance that did not come to pass, fleeing from phantoms, lies in a vault with nobody concerned enough to give her interment. Her death was drama, as her life had been. Unlovely drama, but not unlikely she would have chosen to have it so rather than to pass away peacefully, as pass away the undistinguished who are not players in a play.

LAWYER'S WIFE DEFIES U. S. AND CANADIAN COURTS IN REFUSING TO GIVE UP HER CHILD

Mrs. Hilda Cooke, Declared by San Francisco Court to Be Unfit for Custody of Daughter, Still in Possession

Case Began Three Years Ago in Toronto When Her Husband Sued for Divorce Naming Co-respondents A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I and J—Canadian Parliament Refused Him Divorce and Mrs. Cooke Fled With Baby to United States—Government Orders Her Deported, but She Escapes and Is Now Defended by Son of Senator Hiram Johnson of California.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.

THE piquant relations of James Henry Cooke, a Toronto barrister, and his wife, Hilda Betty Cooke, which for three years have interested Toronto, Ottawa, and other Canadian cities, have now shifted to Reno and San Francisco, where charges that Senator Hiram Johnson, whose son is one of Mrs. Cooke's recent attorneys, has used his influence in the case, were reported a few days ago to have created a sensation.

The public got its first inkling that life in the Cooke family was somewhat unusual when court proceedings began three years ago over the custody of the child, a little girl named Shirley, then two years old. That dispute still has not been settled—is indeed still going strong—with Cooke holding orders from the courts of Canada and the United States giving him the custody of the child, but unable to get actual possession of her.

Since that dispute began there have been all sorts of other proceedings. These have included an application for divorce at Ottawa, an alimony action in Toronto, deportation proceedings in Washington, habeas corpus proceedings in San Francisco and legal action in Reno.

The first break came December 14, 1922. On that occasion Cooke sent his wife to the theater with a relative. On her return her husband served her with divorce papers and when she rushed upstairs for her baby she found that the baby was gone. At this time the Cookes had been married four years.

An arrangement was patched up under which husband and wife agreed to separate and all proceedings, including Cooke's application for divorce and Mrs. Cooke's application for alimony and possession of the child, were stayed, until July 20, 1923. Cooke was to pay Mrs. Cooke $30 a week for herself and $5 a week for her child.

During the period of separation Mr. and Mrs. Cooke went to live together in the city of Buffalo, but they disagreed again in May, 1923. Cooke then went on with his divorce action, and the case was heard by the Parliamentary committees at Ottawa. It occupied two days before the Senate Committee.

Parliament Refused Divorce

There was an unprecedented outcome when the Senate Committee divided in a tie vote, the divorce bill being automatically lost. There was a rehearing in June, and at this hearing the Senate Committee passed the bill. Another unprecedented incident occurred when the Private Bills Committee of the House of Commons, which reviews all divorce bills, unanimously rejected this one. Ordinarily in divorce cases the House of Commons automatically accepts the judgment of the Senate, but in this case it not only rejected the Senate's decision but did so unanimously. It was a great victory for Mrs. Cooke.

The lady then began her alimony action, which after many days of hearing and after rousing an interest such as has rarely been observed in any Canadian court, ended for her in disaster. Her husband's defense against the alimony action consisted of allegations of misconduct such as had been put forward in his attempt to get a divorce. But while the lawmakers at Ottawa had not been impressed by the charges against Mrs. Cooke, she encountered a different attitude of mind in the case of Mr. Justice Orde, who heard the alimony action.

The charges of misconduct involved a larger number of men more or less prominent in social, business and professional cricles in Toronto. The action was tried shortly after the famous Maharajah blackmail case in England and, following the precedent set in that case, the men whose names were involved came to be known as "Mr. A," "Mr. B," "Mr. C" and so on. The alphabet was used up as far as J, and it was feared at one time there would not be sufficient letters to go around. Before the case concluded several of the men involved entered the witness box and denied the more serious allegations.

Mr. Justice Orde, however, found it necessary in giving judgment to use the following language:

"Weighing all I have heard, I find as a fact that during the year 1922—the particular occasion is of no particular consequence—Mrs. Cooke and 'Mr. A' were guilty of an offense.

"Taking up the other charge, I am forced to conclude from her former actions, her attitude and her state of mind toward men not her husband, that there is no doubt that Mrs. Cooke was guilty with both 'Mr. C,' and 'Mr. E.' The evidence is not at all as strong as in the case of 'Mr. A,' but we have the continued, frequent and steady visits of these two young men coming to court her, just as if she was an unmarried woman, such as to render her conduct open to grave suspicion.

A Judge's Comment

"If each rested upon its own efforts, if there was not her previous conduct, that evidence would have to be scrutinized. But I am forced to conclude that the frequent visits of 'Mr. C,' in 1923 all point to an intimacy that, if it does not amount to an offense, is very difficult to explain.

"I find that during the period from the summer of 1923 until 'Mr. C' left, that Mrs. Cooke and he committed an offense on one or more occasions, and the same thing is true in regard to 'Mr. E' whose friendship has continued apparently up until the present time."

Saying that Mrs. Cooke would need financial assistance during the recent divorce trial, Mr. Justice Orde continued, "It was unwise for her to accept 'Mr. E's assistance."

He went on, "Neither of these men have been called to give their evidence. 'Mr. E' was apparently here almost daily, but was not called and has not come forward himself to prove his innocence.

"The absense of these three men from the witness box presents a very serious aspect. She has not seen fit to call them and the fact that they have not been called must be considered."

His lordship said: "With these findings of fact I must dismiss the plaintiff's cause of action."

The foregoing judgment was delivered Jan. 14 of this year. Mrs. Cooke entered an appeal, but Jan. 17, three days after judgment was delivered, when Mr. Cooke tried to serve a writ of habeas corpus upon her apparently for the purpose of getting possession of Shirley, he was unable to locate her. Apparently, he said in an interview, she had sold her furniture at a second-hand store and had left the city.

In moving for the custody of the child Mr. Cooke declared that both Mrs. Cooke and her former counsel, the late Hartley Dewart, K. C., at one time leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, had given an undertaking to the Court that the child would not be taken out of the province pending the hearing of the divorce proceedings, and that this undertaking had been renewed. It was therefore alleged that Mrs. Cooke had left Canada in defiance of the Court.

Cooke's lawyer said that one of the men whose names had been mentioned in the alimony proceedings had also disappeared and that Mrs. Cooke had been seen in his company at the border. Mr. Justice Kelly, who heard Cooke's application for custody of the child January 27, gave judgment in his favor: "In my opinion," he said, "the mother is not a fit and proper person to have the child. It is in evidence," he went on, "that since the judgment in the alimony action Mrs. Cooke has been seen in company with one of the men with whom that judgment declares she had misconducted herself."

A few days later it was announced that the immigration authorities at Washington had issued a warrant for the deportation of Mrs. Cooke if and when she was located in the United States. It was stated that a descent which the United States authorities had made at Westfield, N. J., where it was believed Mrs. Cooke with her child was staying, turned out to be fruitless.

While Mrs. Cooke has disappeared from sight her appeal against the decision in the alimony case came up for trial, but was dismissed in May. During the hearing Cooke's counsel said that warrants were out in the United States for a breach of the Immigration Law in Canada for abduction against Mrs. Cooke.

Fled to U. S.

"She got across at Detroit," said Cooke's counsel, "by a subterfuge. She got a man to say that he was Cooke's intimate and bosom friend at the university, a man about 25 years of age, and that Mrs. Cooke had to get out of the country on account of her health. We have offered a reward for her in circulars."

It was not until June that Mrs. Cooke, her mother and her child were located living in an apartment at Reno. But when Immigration Officer Farrelly attempted to take Mrs. Cooke to San Francisco to answer the charge of illegal entry he was stopped by a writ of habeas corpus.

Since then the tangle of legal proceedings has grown more and more complicated, the scene shifting from Reno to San Francisco and back again, Mrs. Cooke fighting deportation and the loss of her daughter, while her husband with unflagging pertinacity and disregard of expense is seeking possesion of the child.

On July 10 Mrs. Cooke strengthened her hold on her child. Alleging a need for immediate and special protection she appeared before Judge James M. Trout, in San Francisco, and had herself appointed legal guardian of her daughter.

On July 26 Mrs. Cooke and the child failed to appear at the Superior Court, San Francisco, for a hearing on Cooke's habeas corpus petition. Cooke's lawyers asked that she be adjudged in contempt.

On Sept. 21 a dispatch from San Francisco indicated that the case was in the hands of Secretary of Labor Davis. Archibald Johnson, counsel for Mrs. Cooke, claimed that the action to deport her had been definitely dropped by the Federal Government. Joseph A. McCaffery, for Cooke, disagreed. In wiring Secretary Davis, McCaffery concluded with this statement:

"The boast of Senator Johnson that he would block the deportation of Hilda Cooke because his son was counsel for her seems to have been made good."

Cooke Awarded Custody

On Sept. 30 Superior Judge J. T. Trabucco in San Francisco gave judgment awarding the custody of the child to Cooke, but as neither the wife nor Cooke was in court, although under order to be there, Cooke was in the position of a father being awarded the custody of his child and not knowing where to find her

Cooke is 40 years old, his wife about 25.

The evidence adduced by Cooke in the alimony action to describe the relations of his wife with other men would fill many volumes. Tyical of it are some extracts relating to "Mr. A.," a well-known young man in Toronto. The first witness called was Emily Granger, a former servant in the Cooke home. Handed a photograph of "Mr A," she identified it as that of a man whom she had seen at the house almost daily during 1912, and also at the Cooke summer home at Island Grove, Lake Simcoe.

"In the spring of 1922 this man stayed all day, making love to Mrs. Cooke," said witness, "kissing and hugging her.

"One day Mr. Cooke went up to his summer home to do some work. That night, at midnight, 'Mr. A.' came into the house. He was still there when I went to sleep. He was gone when I got up in the morning. The living room was covered with cigarette ashes and liquor bottles were all around.

"When Mr. and Mrs. Cooke moved up to their summer home Mr. Cooke would leave for the office Monday morning. Then 'Mr. A' would come up and stay until Friday night. He would bring a couple of suitcases with him. In the morning they would go in the lake to bathe and then come back for breakfast. They would drink liquor and Mrs. Cooke would get intoxicated. I left their service because of Mrs. Cooke's carrying on."

John Harry Arden, gardener at Island Grove, also testified to Mr. A's" residence in the Cooke home for four days of each week.

"What would you say as to the conduct of this man and Mrs. Cooke?"

The Gardener's Story

"They seemed very affectionate, one to another. On nights when they expected Mr. Cooke he would leave his car in some roadway along the shore. At other times he told me to cover up the tracks of his motor car in the gravel. He said that was the first thing Mr. Cooke would think about. Once or twice Mr. Cooke came home unexpectedly on a Wednesday. But he usually used to sound his horn and 'Mr. A.' would slip out and take a roundabout way on the lake shore."

Other witnesses told of having seen Mrs. Cooke motoring with "Mr. A." and of the two having been ordered off the floor in a dance pavilion at Jackson's Point.

Sadie Bernardina, also a former servant in the Cooke home, told of having seen both Messrs. "A:" and "B." visit Mrs. Cooke. She had also called at the Postoffice for mail addressed to Jean MacDonald and brought it to Mrs. Cooke.

"Did you say anything to Mr. Cooke?"

"No, I was new to the country and thought it might be the way of the people."

"Did you ever see any of these letters?"

"Yes. I read one that she gave to me to burn. It was from 'Mr. A.' He told her how much he loved her."

Mrs. Cooke, the witness declared, had taught her baby to call "Mr. A." "Laura."

Private detectives told of having shadowed Mrs. Cooke on motor rides with Messrs. "A." and "C." Another detective testified to having kept a watch on the Cooke apartment and to having seen "C." leaving frequently as late as 3 and 4 in the morning. On one occasion Cooke had been with him, and they had seen Mrs. Cooke kiss "C." good-by.

Similar testimony was given regarding visits to Mrs. Cooke's home by "Mr. E."

When evidence was given regarding Mrs. Cooke's visits to "E.'s" home on the Lakeshore road, some miles from Toronto, W. R. Smythe, counsel for Cooke alluded to the house in question as "a bootleggers' paradise," which drew a rebuke from Justice Orde.

At one stage during the hearing of the case a prospective witness for the defense came to blows outside the courtroom with another man, generally identified as "Mr. D." The two were separated after a brief exchange of fisticuffs.

Mrs. Cooke went in the witness box and denied all misconduct. Evidence was adduced that one friend had paid $500 on account of the Cooke divorce proceedings. Another man, Mr. "J." had helped to pay for a car that had been damaged by a motor truck.

United States Senator Hiram Johnson of California and his son, Hiram II., whose names have been involved in the Cooke case through young Hiram's appearance as counsel for Mrs. Cooke. Political enemies have charged that Senator Johnson exceeded the prerogatives of his office in assisting Mrs. Cooke.

'AMERICAN BEAUTY' AS SEEN BY ILLUSTRATOR

C. D. Williams Adds His Idea of National Type to Symposium of Color.

C. D. Williams, who enjoys high distinction as a painter of ideal American girl types, stands firmly behind Haskell Coffin's theory that this country is producing its own distinctive type of beauty—a type of feminine pulchritude that is not English, French, Teutonic nor Oriental, but a blending of all. In his "American Beauty," a reproduction of which in colors appears elsewhere in this paper as the third of a series of ideal portraits, this Philadelphia illustrator has lived up to his theory probably with more fidelity than Coffin himself displays. He also has lived up to the highest standards of his hobby, which is that of portraying pretty American faces.

"American Beauty," with blue eyes, auburn hair, dark eyebrows, skin of delicate tint and graceful, but firmly molded features, is in short a composite picture of loveliness, frankness and charm. It is not a cause for surprise that the artist, shortly after producing this picture, was chosen as one of the judges in the beauty contest held this year at Atlantic City, where there were assembled the prettiest girls selected from each locality in the United States.

The fact that Williams received all his training in this country under American painters may have had much to do with his partiality for girl types in which appear no distinct trace of foreign ancestry. He was born in New York, but he received his art education and his first practical experience in Chicago. His first work was with the Chicago Record, a newspaper which is no longer in existence. There his talent became conspicuous and in 1899 he journeyed to Philadelphia to become associated with the Saturday Evening Post as an illustrator. Since then his portraits have been in tremendous demand and his production of beauty types has been voluminous.

"American Beauty" is a study in pink, distinguished by freedom of design and dexterous treatment of contrasts and edges. The delicate hues of gown and a cluster of roses blend into the more delicate hues of arm and throat. A sharply contrasting background blends into the auburn hair through its reflection on the hair itself. Lines of shoulders and arms lose their crispness through bold use of light reflection and enveloping color. Only once does there appear a sharp delineation of edge. This contrast, where the rose tint of face meets the rich dark shade of hair under a reflection of light, is then used with marked effectiveness to augment the softness of outline on the other side of the face.

MOTION PICTURE PHOTOGRAPHY TAKEN UP BY DUKE OF YORK

His Wife and Mother-in-Law Are First Subjects of His Camera.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Two members of the royal household have come out recently in brand new roles—the Duke of York as a motion picture photographer and Prince Henry as a motorcycle rider. Prince Henry is the first of the king's sons to forsake the automobile for the motorcycle and while several members of the king's family have been fond of the camera for a long time, the Duke of York is the first to become interested in the making of motion pictures.

Prince Henry took up motorcycle riding while at Balmoral Castle this summer where he spent seven weeks with his parents, leading a simple life at the famous royal estate in the Scottish highlands. When the royal party returned to London recently the prince brought his cycle along with him, and may be expected to appear on the streets of the metropolis before long on his new machine, the intricacies and operation of which he learned on the Scottish highways near Balmoral.

The Duke also took his preliminary lessons in handling a movie camera during the vacation in Scotland. For several weeks he carried his own portable apparatus wherever he went, usually on rides and strolls in the country. His first subjects were his wife, the Duchess of York, and her mother, the Countess of Strathmore, who posed for him in the grounds of Glamis Castle and who took great pride in their "tryouts," endeavoring to show what excellent "film stars" they really are. The Duke's films will be shown to King George and Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace in the near future.

MME. CAILLAUX LEFT HER COAT

So Tug With Party to Welcome Her Husband Had to Wait.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—About a hundred officials, politicians and members of Parliament who boarded the tug Titan to proceed down Havre Roads to meet the liner France, bringing the French Debt Mission home from the United States, became restless and loudly criticised the captain when the tug was delayed in leaving the dock. She was scheduled to pull out at 11 o'clock, but five minutes passed, then 10, and a delegation was sent to the bridge to plead with the captain for speed and to find out the cause of the delay.

"Madame Caillaux forgot her cloak at her hotel and we had to send back for it," was the captain's explanation.

BATTLE OF WESTPORT ENDED PRICE'S RAID

Conflict Marked Crisis of Disaster to the Confederate Cause in Missouri.

BY FLOYD C. SHOEMAKER,
Secretary, State Historical Society.

The year 1864 was the last with five seasons. According to Missouri wits the war had added a season until it stood "spring, summer, fall, Price's raid and winter." But '64 was the last and Oct. 23 marked the close of the "new" season. It also marked the crisis of disaster to the Confederate cause in Missouri. On that day ended the three-day battle of Westport and the five-week raid of Gen. Sterling Price.

From the moment Gen. Sterling Price in command of the "Trans-mississippi Army" of 10,000 men entered the State in the southwest he encountered misfortunes. Forestalled in their plan to attack St. Louis, forced to withdraw from Jefferson City, and harassed all the way in the march from Boonville to Jackson County, his forces fought the first of a series of battles at the Little Blue River, a stream east of the town of Independence, on Oct. 21, 1864.

There was a sharp skirmish at the Little Blue, and Gen. Price forced the Federal troops of Gen. Curtis to abandon their position and fall back to their entrenchments along the Big Blue River. These Federal entrenchments faced eastward from Independence with a closely guarded front of between 10 and 15 miles. Price's army covered the country from near the Big Blue eastward nearly to the Little Blue with Gen. Alfred S. Pleasanton and his Federal troopers in the rear. Such was the situation on the night of Oct. 31.

Confederates Outnumbered.

On the morning of the 22d the fighting began along the Big Blue. The Federals were numerically superior to Price's army, their entrenchments were on a steep-banked stream fordable only in a few places, and the channel of the stream had been choked with felled trees, forming a barrier through which a way could be forced only by much delay and the use of axes. Yet Price's cavalrymen, by the persistent and tenacious nature of their assault, succeeded in forcing a crossing in the very face of the resistance to their advanc and by night occupied the Federal entrenchments along the Big Blue. The Federals fell back to their defenses along Brush Creek and Wornall road in front of Kansas City. While Price was making this attack, Gen. John S. Marmaduke had been forced into an encounter with Pleasanton's troops in the town of Independence. The Confederates resisted the attack of the Federals and kept Pleasanton's forces back until they joined Price in the entrenchments along the Big Blue.

The next day, Oct. 23, the sun shown on an ideal Sabbath, but long before the hour for the chimes proclaiming the day, at sunrise, the Battle of Westport had begun.

Twenty-nine thousand men took part in this conflict. The casualties reached 1000. The states of Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Iowa, Wisconsin, Colorado, Texas and Illinois all had troops in the battle. Major-General Samuel R. Curtis moved forward through Westport with an army of 15,000 against Gen. Joseph O. Shelby's troopers; Gen. Pleasanton came up from the rear with 5000 men against Gen. John S. Marmaduke's guard at the river. The Confederate troops numbered 9000 in all.

Shelby on Hilltop.

Gen. Shelby and his men had a strong position on the top of a hill in front of Westport and had been able to stop every advance of Curtis' forces up this hill. Then occurred an interesting event. A very old and feeble man begged a moment's talk with Curtis. He explained to Gen. Curtis that he knew where there was a gap in the rocky ridge that had proved so impregnable, and would point it out. Curtis bade him lead the way; and the old man conducted the troops to a more gentle acclivity, thus allowing them to mount the hill and destroy the strength of Shelby's position. Gen. Curtis begged the old patriot to mount a horse and accompany him and his staff throughout the day as a mark of gratitude for the really very great service he had done them, but the old veteran refused.

The fighting in front of Westport was of a most desperate character. A number of times the forces met in hand-to-hand encounters. The Confederate sharpshooters climbed the trees and picked off the Federals, officer and private alike. Capt. Curtis Johnson of the Kansas volunteer cavalry and Col. James H. McGhee met in a duel in the very midst of the melee of shouting men, cracking pistols and plunging horses. McGhee fired first, severely wounding Johnson, who shot McGhee through the heart, dropping him from his horse dead. The fall of their leader disheartened McGhee's remaining men and they broke and fled.

At almost the same hour that McGhee fell, General Marmaduke made his last grand stand along the Big Blue River in the endeavor to hold back General Pleasanton's men. Bullets sown like pebbles in the fields and gardens marked the spot where the Federals charged up the hill in the face of a withering fire from the men in gray. A log cabin that stood until 1895 was estimated to bear the marks of 5000 bullets received in this engagement. The Federal force that hurled itself up the hill was so great that even General Marmaduke's men could not hold their ground. Soon after this collapse of the rear guard, General Price's men wee slowly but surely forced to retreat from the vicinity of Kansas City and the battle rapidly drew to a close.

Price's Last Stand.

Price and his officers rode along the retreating lines urging the men to make one more stand, which they did at almost exactly one o'clock. This second stand of Price's army was on the east and west line from the present Forest Hill cemetery to the Wornall road.

Organized effort is being made to have Congress set aside this field as a national military park. Huston Crittenden of Kansas City, as curator of the Missouri Valley Historical Society, has succeeded in having the national Government make a preliminary survey in pursuance of a law passed and approved this year. The widespread military representation of states in this combat and the significance of the battle in the history of the valley and the West, merit favorable action.

ALE OF TWO TRACTS ON CLAYTON RD. FEATURE MOVEMENT IN THE COUNTY

W. Hirwich and Dr. Robert Wilson Buy 150 Acres at Clayton and Denny Roads; A. B. Mooney, 85 on Clayton, Near Mason.

By Berry Moore.

The wave of buying, which de- ped overnight last spring in Louis County, and which was wed this fall, continues to p that section of the real es- field.

tract of 150 acres at the south- t corner of Clayton and Denny ds was bought yesterday by H. Hirweck, a real estate opera- , and Dr. Robert Wilson of the ry road and 85 acres on the th side of Clayton road, just t of the Mason road, was ac- ed by Art B. Mooney, presi- of the Art B. Mooney Tire

Grantors in the sale of the yton and Denny road tract Thomas G. Rutledge and J. Lashly, attorneys. N. S. Wood dled the negotiations for Hir- k.

The consideration was not stat- , but it is understood that a siderable profit was realized Rutledge and Lashly, who re- tly acquired the tract from Roy Williams and Charles P. Bland the firm of Williams & Bland, others. The latter were also n a substantial profit on their estment, it is understood.

There were $87.50 in Internal enue stamps on the deed for equity in the Denny and Clay- road purchase, subject to deed of trust for $125,000 hich was reduced by the pur- hasers to $100,000.

This tract has 2,400 feet on Clay- road and 2600 feet on Denny d, and is one of the largest as in this locality available for lusive purposes.

The Mooney Purchase.

The tract acquired by Mooney, otiations for which were led by Glick Real Estate Co. is known Clayton Crest. It is improved a 12-room house which is e remodeled for the purchaser's pancy.

Plans contemplate subdividing remaining 75 acres into five ten acre plots for exclusive es. This is a beautiful, undu- ng stretch of ground, wooded e and there, at once susceptible coversion for this purpose.

The price pair by Mooney was given out.

Tesson Tract Sold.

This is the third major sale on Clayton road within the last k, the other involving the son tract of 207 acres on the th side of Clayton road, a mile t of the Denny road, acquired David May, president of the Fa- ous-Barr Co., from Joseph L. bler, through the Weisels-Ger- t company. There is much culation as to May's plans.

Negotiations are being conduct- through Wood for three other cts in this part of St. Louis unty, the most important being behalf of a New Yorker, obvi- ly in the market because of the eculative feature of purchases in is section.

The northeast corner of Clayton d Denny roads, with 35 acres, s recently sold to Eugene Altheimer and Victor Rhodes. This tract had withstood several attractive offers.

Senator's Land Sought.

Senator George H. Williams owns a large tract embracing the southeast corner of Clayton and Denny roads, with the exception of two acres on the corner, which has been sought by speculators and capitalists in quest of land for a large estates. Negotiations have been reported as practically closed fo rthis tract severa ltimes.

According to realty circles, contracts were executed during the week involving another important Clayton road site, but confirmation could not be obtained.

Charles L. Weber, in connection with L. V. Cartan & Co., sold a Geyer road tract, details of which will be given out in due time.

Negotiations, it is understood, are progressing through Proetz & Schnell, for a 20-acre tract on the west side of Denny road, adjoining the recent purchase of Louis Hager Jr. A syndicate headed by Edward L. Bakewell recently purchased 85 acres on the east side of Denny road, opposite the Phoenix Stock Farm, which was purchased by Bakewell several months ago..

There is also a notable movement along Manchester road, where tracts are being sought for subdivision purposes.

AUCTION SALE OF 86 LOTS OF MOORLANDS ADDITION

Property on East Half of Subdivision to Be Offered at Auction Next Saturday.

Eighty-six lots in the east half of the Moorlands addition are to be closed out at auction Saturday, Oct. 24, without reserve.

The Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., exclusive agents for the Moorlands Land Co., have engaged in this connection the Cook Auctioneer Service Co. of Louisville.

All Lots to Be Sold.

The sale will be started at 1:30 p. m. of that date and continued until every lot has been knocked down. Exceptional terms of sale have been arranged.

A large tent will be provided for the auctioneer, so that in case of rain the auction can go on unhampered. There will be a band to entertain the public.

The east one-half of Moorlands addition, comprising the lots to be sold, is restricted to homes only. It is situated between Wydown boulevard and Hanley road, and adjoins beautiful Moorlands Park. The property is served by the Wydown boulevard and Clayton cars, and is convenient to schools and churches. The School Board of Clayton has plans for a school in Moorlands Addition on ground selected two years ago for this purpose.

The Moorelands formerly the Boland farm, was placed on the market three years ago as a high class subdivision by the Moorlands Land Co., with the Holbrook Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., as exclusive agents.

A Subdivision Success.

It was a notable subdivision success from its conception.

The tract as a whole extends from Clayton road on the South to Wydoon Blvd., and from Southmoor Forest Ridge and Brentmoor on the east to Hanley road on the west.

Shaw & Francis are associated with the Holbrook Blackwelder Co., as selling agents.

The sale was inadvertently advertised during the week to take place Oct. 31, instead of Oct. 24.

THE NEWLYWEDS
A COMPARATIVE STORY OF THRIFT AND EXTRAVAGANCE

The parallel in the lives of Jim and John ended with their marriage. They had been chums from childhood, classmates at school and were married on the same day. In rental equipment they were equals, but they differed widely in their habits of life.

JIM

Jim rented an expensive flat in a swell neighborhood. It took all his income and then some to keep his wife and children in the style set by his friendly neighbors. He was harassed by bill collectors and rent increases and couldn't save a dollar.

At the end of ten years Jim was forced to move to cheaper quarters, and had nothing to show for his labor but rent receipts which proved that he had paid enough to buy the flat, but the landlord still owned it.

JOHN

John rented a modest home in a quiet neighborhood where living expenses were comparatively low, and invested all he could save in shares in a Building Association.

In a couple of years he was able to make a loan to buy a home to his liking and moved in, thereafter paying off the loan with the rent money. In ten years the house was clear; the family home was secure and John was free to put by his savings for business purposes.

on Residences, Flats, Apartments, Business and Office Bldgs.

For thirty-seven years we have been lending money on property in this vicinity.

We have learned the business. We know how much we can lend safely—the proper rate of interest—the fees a borrower ought to pay and where to find the investor who will buy the mortgage.

We do not regard the lending of money as a favor to the borrower, but as a business transaction of advantage to both parties.

We shall be glad to have your application if you wish to borrow money in any sum on first mortgage real estate in St. Louis City or County.

GEN. SUN ORDERED TO LEAVE SHANGHAI

Chekiang Soldiers, Who Seized City, Continue Pursuit of Chang Tso-Lin.

By the Associated Press.

PEKIN, Oct. 17.—The Government today issued a mandate ordering Gen. Sun Chuan-Fang, Governor of Chekiang, to withdraw his troops from Shanghai, occupied yesterday, to their original stations.

The mandate is that since the withdrawal of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin's troops from Shanghai, the grievance of which the Chekiang General previously complained has been removed. The Chekiang forces entered Shanghai today. Gen. Sun immediately issued a proclamation denouncing Chang, who is the chief supporter of the Pekin Government. Sun is an ally of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, Chang's principal enemy, who, at Kalgan, northwest of Pekin, is believed to have spent the last several months in preparation for war with Chang.

The Chekiang troops are pursuing Chang toward Nanking.

LIQUOR FOUND IN COMPARTMENT OF TABLE IN SALOON

Detective Sergeant Coakley, head of the Police Department liquor squad, is frank about his occupation.

Yesterday afternoon he went into two saloons on Cherokee street an dtold the proprietors he had heard they sold liquor and home brew and said he'd like to take a little look around, if they had no objection.

Each denied the charge and waved Coakley the freedom of his place.

He arrested Elmer Schmidt, 22 years old, when he found 92 pint bottles of home brew in the basement of his saloon at 2000 Cherokee avenue.

Michael Metzger, 2100 Cherokee avenue, permitted a search and Coakley found three pints of moonshine whisky and a pint of gin in a compartment of a table in a rear room. Metzler also was arrested.

COURT DISMISSES $31,925 SUIT AGAINST HENRY C. PIERCE

Suit brought by former Attorney General Barrett to collect $31,925 in corporation franchise taxes from Henry Clay Pierce, of New York, formerly of St. Louis, was dismissed yesterday by Circuit Judge Piercy, after it had been under advisement for 15 months.

Attorney General Otto notified the court he will seek a new trial.

The suit charged the Pierce Investment Co., failed to pay a corporation franchise tax for five years prior to 1922, when its charter was revoked by reason of Pierce's failure to make a report to the State as is required annually. Pierce testified in a deposition that the company never had transacted any business and when its assets were transferred to him 10 years ago, he supposed the corporation had been dissolved.

DEDICATION OF NEW BANDSTAND TODAY

Structure in Pagoda Lake, Forest Park, Presented to City by Nathan Frank.

The Nathan Frank Bandstand, in Pagoda Lake, Forest Park, will be dedicated and formally presented to the city by former Congressman Nathan Frank, in a program starting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. This gift of Frank, who is an attorney, represents about $50,000.

Built of concrete and Indiana limestone, with an ornamental roof of copper, the bandstand is on a small, circular island in the lake, facing the lower entrance of the Municipal Theater. It is a circular pavilion, 42 feet in diameter and 33 feet high, with the top supported by four heavy columns. It accommodates 70 musicians, for whom there are cloakrooms in a basement. There are bronze railings, lamp standards and ornamental lantern. Helfensteller, Hirsch & Watson were the architects.

The program today will open with the playing of "America." Park Commissioner Pape will make an introductory talk, followed by addresses by President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service, Director of Public Welfare Salisbury and Mayor Miller, and a response by Frank.

Falkenhainer's Band will present a musical program after the speeches, including a selection from "La Reine de Saba," the "Tannhauser" overture, waltz suite from "Les Patineurs," "Chocolate Soldier" selections, Meyerbeer's "Torchlight Dance," chorus from "Carmen," "Scenes Pittoresque" by Massenet, excerpts from "Rose Marie," Pryor's "Frozen Bill," "Forget Me Not" and the "Star Spqangled Banner."

MISSOURI'S SUIT AGAINST STANDARD OIL POSTPONED

Testimony Is to Be Taken in Anti-Trust Case Nov. 11, in Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—The antitrust case pending in the State Supreme Court against the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, scheduled for hearing Tuesday, in Chicago, will be continued until Nov. 11, Attorney-General Otto announced today. The hearing will be held before a special commissioner appointed to take testimony on a motion filed last September by Former Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett, asking the Supreme Court to set aside an order it issued on June 30, 1913, suspending a writ of ouster issued against the company on March 9, 1909. This would terminate the company's "parole" in Missouri.

The building will be located at St. Angela's Park, Oakland Station, near Kirkwood, Mo., and will replace those now situated at Twelfth street and Russell boulevard.

ATHLETES RESENT SPEECH IN DEFENSE OF ARMY DRILL

Reference to Compulsory Military Training at Missouri University Draws Criticism on Speaker.

CALLED OBJECTORS SPINELESS COWARDS

Russell Casteel's Remarks About Opponents of Cadet System Add Bitterness to College Dispute.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo.—Resentment of the speech of Russell Casteel made at the mass meeting on the eve of the Missouri-Nebraska football game is running high among some of the student body of the university.

In his speech at the mass meeting Casteel said, in referring to the objectors of military training, "the students of the university who are opposed to compulsory military training should not show themselves at the football game because they are opposed to physical combat." He went on to call these objectors spineless and devoid of courage.

Question of Compulsion.

Henry Depping, president of the student body, referring to the speech, said, "I am at a loss to understand why Casteel would use such tactics at the mass meeting. It was unwarranted and uncalled for. I further cannot see why the Missourian played up that part of the mass meeting and failed to tell in its story the real things that took place at the mass meeting."

Kent Farley, one of Missouri's dash men and who tied the world's record in the 50-yard dash, said, "One would infer from the speech of Casteel that those who object to the compulsory feature of military training are yellow and spineless. I haven't seen Casteel displaying any great bravery on the field of combat. It seems to me that the brave man is the man who stands up against such stuff as the compulsory part of this training. As I see it Casteel failed to display any of the Tiger spirit when he used such means to make his speech."

Harold Anthony, captain of last year's baseball team, said in referring to the Casteel talk, "He disgraced the "M" that I am wearing. If Casteel is the apex of the Tiger spirit and uses those tactics that he used Friday night I cannot understand his conception of the Tiger spirit. I felt like replying to him at the mass meeting but felt the audience would understand the tactics he was using. Many of the athletics are opposed to such methods as he used in that talk."

Kenneth Lancaster, holder of the junior pole vault record of the United States, is strongly opposed to the speech of Casteel. Lancaster said that he felt that Casteel was entirely wrong in his statements against the objectors of compulsory military. Continuing, Lancaster said, "We should bear in mind that the opinions expressed by Casteel is but the opinion of one individual appearing on the program to make a pep speech and then diverge to enter sarcastic and denouncing remarks against those students who have their opinions on this matter and who are far from being yellow or spineless as he suggested in his talk. Casteel should be repudiated by the student body for such statements that were unwarranted."

Cecil H. Coggins, an "M" man and a member of the student senate from the school of medicine, said, "Casteel's implication that the students who are opposed to compulsory military training are lacking in either physical or moral courage was obviously unfair. Fighting for "Mizzou" is one thing and fighting for militarism is another thing and any clear thinking student can distinguish between the two. It requires a lot more courage to stand before an unsympathetic crowd and attack an established institution than it does to float along on the current of athletic enthusiasm and throw mud at honest thinkers. Every student at Missouri is loyal to her ideals and is willing to fight for them but Casteel should be reminded that a man may be a Tiger and yet not be a killer.

Woodburn Ross, a member of the debate team last year and a very active worker in religious activities voiced his objections against the methods used by Casteel. Speaking on the matter he said, "Such tactics used by Casteel would cause me to be opposed to military training, if anything would." Ross defended the compulsory feature at a recent open discussion meeting on the question at the Christian Students' Congregation meeting.

Hugh Williamson, editor of this year's Savitar, defended the compulsory feature of the training at a meeting of the Athenaean debating society the same night. After helping the debate Williamson said, "As I see it Casteel played very unfair at the mass meeting and used a time to project petty ideas upon the audience that did not come there to hear a talk on militarism but to hear about the Tiger spirit. It was strictly unfair."

BRIBE OFFERS IN GASOLINE TAX INQUIRY REPORTED

Person in St. Louis Caught in Evasions Said to Have Tried to Settle With Investigators.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 17.—State Auditor Thompson has received reports that distributors of gasoline in St. Louis have made members of his field force personnel offers to compromise cases wherein evidence was found relating to evasions of the State tax of two cents per gallon on gasoline and one cent per barrel for inspection of gasoline and oil.

A preliminary survey has indicated that evasions will total $40,000 or more in payments of the tax in St. Louis. The audit of the gasoline tax extends from the first of the year, when the tax became effective, to Oct. 1. The audit of the oil inspection tax collections dates back to early in 1923.

Details are Withheld.

Thompson today declined to comment on the alleged irregularities and offers to auditors for the reason that he had received no report from the members of his field force and said he could not discuss the matter until completion of the audit.

The auditors making the investigation in St. Louis are John Bartholomeus and T. H. Eversole.

When the auditors recently checked up the accounts of the state oil inspection department, variances in the proportion of the one cent a barrel inspection tax receipt and the receipts from the gasoline tax of two cents a gallon were noted, it was said. This resulted in sending of the auditors to St. Louis to make a check of the railroad records of gasoline shipments received by the various oil companies. These records are being compared with the tax reports of the companies to the oil inspection department, on the amount of gasoline handled by them.

Method of Collections.

Under the present system most of the gasoline tax is collected from the larger companies or jobbers at their bulk gasoline stations instead of at the retail filling stations. In such instances the retail station reports show the tax on gasoline they have sold was paid at the source. The oil inspection tax also is levied at the bulk stations, and is designed to cover the cost of inspection by the State.

The gasoline tax law provides a penalty of 50 per cent of the amount of the tax due, for evasion and also provides a fine of $1000 or imprisonment for one year in jail or both on conviction of violation of the law.

GANZ DIRECTS 12 GIRL PIANISTS IN BACH CONCERTO

Large Audience at Dayton Enthusiastic Over Novel Ensemble Effect.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DAYTON, O., Oct. 17.—Rudolph Ganz, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, undertook a new feat here last night at Memorial Hall when he conducted a massed ensemble of 12 girl pianists in arrangements of Bach's C Minor concerto, Sinding's "Variations" and Arensky's "Valse." A large audience received the novelty with enthusiasm.

During the intermission, a baton of ivory and gold was presented to Ganz. The Dayton Civic Music League, under the auspices of which the concert was given, requested that arrangements be made to bring the St. Louis orchestra here next season.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The story of a runaway boy who enlisted in the navy under an assumed name and was never again heard of by his mother until he perished with the sinking of the submarine S-51, was disclosed today through a pension claim filed at the Pension Bureau.

The mother is Mrs. Catherine McCarthy of New York. The son, Sylvester McCarthy, who enlisted some time ago as "John J. McCarthy," gave as his next of kin the name of an aunt. She was notified of the boy's death, and carried the news to his mother, who filed the claim.

The award advances $1000 as a loan without interest to be repaid at the end of five years and is made from a fund the Morning Choral Club has been slowly accumulating for several years.

MAN WHO WORKED 52 YEARS FOR GAS COMPANY IS DEAD

John Marshall, 82, Who Was Retired in 1924, Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

Funeral services for John Marshall, 82 years old, the oldest employe in age and point of service of the Laclede Gas Light Co. at the time of his retirement a year ago, will be held at 8:30 a. m. tomorrow from St. Vincent de Paul's Catholic Church to Calvary Cemetery.

Marshall, who died Friday of the infirmities of age at the home of Joseph Brady, 1818 South Second street, where he lived for the last 20 years, went to work for the Laclede company 53 years ago. His first job was that of gasmaker at station A, Main and Rutger streets. Later he was made yard foreman at station A. He also supervised the installation of gas mains throughout the city for the company. Ten years ago he was persuaded, because of failing health, to accept the post of gatekeeper at the Main and Rutger street plant. He was retired a year ago under the company's annuity system.

Marshall was unmarried and has no known relatives. Officers of the Laclede company will attend the funeral services tomorrow.

She refused to discuss her injuries when she regained consciousness at city hospital.

Belgian Idea Applies to Cattle and Not Thieves, However.

By the Associated Press.

ANTWERP, Oct. 17.—Cattle rustlers on far Western ranges may be confronted by the nose prints of stolen animals if a suggestion made by the Antwerp Chamber of Commerce proves practicable. The chamber has sent a communication to the minister of agriculture urging that substitution of inferior animals may be prevented if legislation is enacted requiring that nose prints be made of all cattle, just as finger prints are made of human beings.

CAILLAUX APPEAL FAILS TO PREVENT CAPITAL LEVY TAX

French Radicals, Headed by Herriot, Unanimously Adopt Resolution Favoring Measure.

Former Premier in Tears, Futilely Begs Finance Minister to Accept Policy "to Save France."

NICE, France, Oct. 17.—The French radical and Socialist parties stand committed by unanimous vote of their congress here to introduce in Parliament a bill calling for a levy on capital.

The decision came in spite of opposition by Finance Minister Caillaux. This opposition was uncompromising yesterday, but weakened as today's session progressed and the Finance Minister finally acepted the text of the resolution offered but only "as a member of the radical party and not in his ministerial capacity."

This, it is understood, leaves him free to oppose the measure when it comes up in Parliament, in the event a majority of the Cabinet disapproves of it.

The queston of a capital levy with former Premier Herriot as its champion dominated the sessions of the radical Socialist congress.

Caillaux, leading the opposition, held a capital levy to be an "act of financial demagogy."

Herriot proclaimed it a patriotic act under the present circumstances. "We cannot leave this congress empty handed; a capital levy is necessary to save France from bankruptcy," he declared.

Herriot in Tears.

"We demand a sacrifice from wealth, not in sentiment of low demagogy, but because of our love for the republic and the country. I invited the Minister of Finance to join the deliberations of the Financial Committee of this congress to help us find a formula which will mark an era in the doctrine of the radical parties."

Herriot, almost with tears in his eyes, literally implored Caillaux in the congress hall to throw his lot in with them and accept the capital tax levy, "for new situations, new methods are necessary," he argued earnestly.

"I am not a demagogue," he said. "I am a bourgeois like the others, but the only means I see of saving the country is a levy on capital."

Caillaux Unmoved.

The moment was dramatic. The temptation was strong, for by consenting to sacrifice his own convictions, Caillaux would probably become the next Premier. But he was inflexible.

Caillaux accepted the invitation to work with the Financial Committee, but he again warned the assembly against the dangers of a capital levy, saying:

"Germany resorted to a capital levy twice, and each time her finances were wrecked. I will work with you in the elaboration of the most advanced program, but I must warn you that before I adopt it I must feel that it is not dangerous to the country. I am in command of the financial ship of state and I shall not steer it on the rocks."

Mentions Debt Interest.

He admitted that there was 20,000,000,000 francs remaining to be paid for the restoration of liberated regions and warned against imprudent words which might endanger the system of loans to which the country is certain to have to resort again.

Caillaux said that the maturing payments due this year amounted to 22,000,000,000 francs, but the floating debt of 55,000,000,000 francs would be greatly decreased by the gold guaranteed 4 per cent loan now in progress.

"The interallied debts, settlement of which I have just tried to negotiate," he asserted, "through the negligence of the Ministers and the former Legislature have been permitted to increase nearly 40,000,000,000 francs through accruing interest, 23,000,000,000 francs for the United States and nearly as much for England."

ARMED ROBBER SNATCHES WOMAN'S PURSE AND FLEES

Victim of Theft Stood Near Auto Talking to Parents at Whom Revolver Was Pointed.

A young man who attempted to hold up Max Forbestein, a jewelry salesman of 4223 Grace avenue, as he and his wife were sitting in an automobile in front of their home yesterday, contented himself by taking a beaded purse from Forbestein's daughter, Mrs. Jeanette Lieberman, who stood near the car talking to her parents. The purse contained $8.

"Have you got anything?" the thief demanded as he approached the jewelry salesman and flourished a revolver.

"Not a thing," was Forbestein's answer, whereupon the youth snatched the pocketbook and fled down an alley.

CHARGES AGAINST ATTORNEYS DROPPED

Wallace Davis and Tom Poe of Little Rock Exonerated in Mail Theft Case.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 17.—All charges against Wallace Davis and Tom Poe, Little Rock attorneys, now pending in the United States District Court here in connection with receiving of $90,000 worth of Liberty bonds stolen in the Rondout mail robbery in 1924, have been nolle prossed and similar action will be taken in connection with charges pending in Chicago, it was announced here today.

This announcement followed a conference of Horace L. Dyer of St. Louis, special Assistant Attorney-General; Charles F. Coles, District Attorney, and Senator Joe T. Robinson, chief of counsel for Davis and Poe.

Davis and Poe were attorneys for Herbert Holliday, member of the Rondout gang of train robbers who now is serving 25 years in the Leavenworth penitentiary. They were tried last spring on charges of aiding in concealing a portion of Holliday's share of the loot and were acquitted. Soon afterwards they were indicted in Chicago, but warrants never have been served.

After the conference, this statement was issued by Dyer and Senator Robinson:

"The defendants, Wallace Davis and Tom Poe, having been tried and acquitted of the offense of knowingly receiving and unlawfully having in their possession some of the proceeds of the Rondout mail robbery and the conspiracy indictments both in Little Rock and Chicago being based upon the same transaction there is no criminal liability upon the part of the defendants and while there was a question of civil liability for the loss of two $1000 bonds while in the possession of one of the attorneys for Holliday, reimbursement has been made to the Post Office Department for distribution to the holders of the lost bonds. The Government is therefore of the opinion that the ends of justice have been fully met."

DISPUTE OVER CLAYTON ROAD TO BE ARBITRATED

City and County Officials Agree to Editorial Suggestion of the Post-Dispatch in Matter.

CONFERENCE TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Comptroller Nolte Accepts Proposal for St. Louis and Judge Preiss for the County Court.

An inquiry by the Post-Dispatch yesterday to determine whether the city and county would accept its editorial suggestion that they arbitrate their dispute over the resurfacing of Clayton road to permit that important thoroughfare being made safely passable before winter, resulted in an agreement by Comptroller Nolte for the city and Judge William Preiss for the County Court to a conference this week.

Judge Preiss said he felt certain that if representatives of the city were to meet the Court informally "across the table" that an understanding could be reached. Comptroller Nolte accepted the proposal promptly.

"The sum of money involved is too small and the public inconvenience of having the road closed to safe travel is too great to permit of any deadlock in the matter," Nolte said. "I will be glad to talk with the County Court to see if we can't settle the thing and let the work of fixing up the road proceed at once."

Suggestion of Preiss.

Judge Preiss' invitation to the conference named Director of Public Utilities Wall, because Wall has been the principal for the city in the negotiations so far. Nolte was suggested because it was understood that he had been in consultation with Wall. Wall said last night that he wanted the opportunity of consulting Nolte tomorrow before definitely accepting Judge Preiss' proposal. He was of the opinion that the conference could not be held before Thursday, due to the absence of the Water Commissioner. Most of the actual contact between officials so far has been between the Water Commissioner for the city and the county engineer, for the County Court.

The dispute has been under what terms and how the city should restore Clayton road, between Pennsylvania avenue and North and South road. It was necessary for the city to tear up the road to lay its pipe line leading from the new waterworks on the Missouri River to the city. A part of the summer the road was closed and the remainder of the time it has been open to automobilists at their own risk.

At this time the county estimates that $16,800 would be just compensation if it is to undertake to restore the road. The city had agreed to pay $12,000.

Gist of the Editorial.

The editorial comment of the Post-Dispatch was that the apparent differences between the city and county were overshadowed by the inconvenience to residents of both city and county. Clayton road is one of half dozen main arteries connecting the city and county and its present condition menaces whoever essays to traverse it. If it is not resurfaced at once it will be closed to travel throughout the winter. The editorial suggested that, conference failing, city and county profitably could submit their differences to arbitration.

NEW OPERA STAR

MISS BERNICE PUCKETT.

MISS PUCKETT SINGS HER DEBUT IN OPERA

Critics Approve the Nedda and Marguerite of Former St. Louis Girl.

St. Louis relatives of Miss Bernice Puckett, formerly of this city, have received newspaper accounts of her appearance in grand opera at Philadelphia, on Oct. 5 and 6. She is a sister of A. K. Puckett of 316 Skinker road, and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Puckett, formerly of 6235 Waterman avenue, but for the last several years of New York and Milan, Italy. The elder Puckett was at one time connected with the International Shoe Co.

Singing under the name of Doris Marbro Miss Puckett appeared with the La Scala Opera Company at the Academy of Music before capacity houses. On the night of Oct. 5 she sang the role of Nedda in "I' Pagliacci," and on the following evening that of Marguerite in "Faust." Both are lyric soprano roles, with passages of coloratura.

The critic of the Public Ledger recorded that Miss Puckett "was a most attractive Nedda in voice and appearance," and that the difficult "Bird Song" was performed "in excellent vocal style and with fine execution." The Inquirer related that she had many recalls at the end of the first scene and at the conclusion of the opera. The Corriere d' America of New York praised the sweetness of her voice and charming appearance.

Miss Puckett, after attending Lenox Hall, went East and began her vocal studies in New York. She has spent the last five years under teachers in Milan, and made her operatic debut there four years ago. She is 26 years old.

$1,250,000 BOX CAR ORDER HELPS LABOR IN 2 PLANTS

American Car & Foundry Co. and Commonwealth Steel Plant Get I. C. Work.

Prospects for the winter were brightened for many families of the Tri-Cities by announcements yesterday of new orders by officials of the American Car & Foundry Co., Madison, and the Commonwealth Steel Co., Granite City.

A $1,250,000 order for 500 automobile box cars for the Illinois Central Railroad was announced by the car foundry officials. This work will be started in December and probably completed in January. It cannot be finished sooner, since the plant is only half through filling a $1,500,000 order for 1000 cane cars for Cuban sugar plantations.

The foundry plant is using about half of its capacity force of workmen, approximately 750 men. The company now assures them of steady work at least until January.

The Commonwealth Steel Co., which has been operating only one of its six furnace units, started a second unit Friday, General Manarer A. T. Morey announced. He said new orders for railway equipment had made this possible. Work previously had been slack because the railroads had not been purchasing much equipment, utilizing old stock instead.

The steel company did not find it necessary to reduce its force of 2500 men, but did greatly decrease the length of their working day and consequently their earning power. The new orders will result in longer shifts and better pay. Morey said the second furnace would be kept in operation for some time.

Father, Rich Lumberman, in Chicago—Party Poses for Photos Before Liner Pulls Out.

From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The ebony Prince Kojo Tovalou-Houenou of Dahomey, West Africa, who recently was embroiled in difficulties in Chicago over his color and his checks, again today ran into financial entanglements that all but caused him to miss the French liner, France. A 20-minute delay in sailing time saved him, however.

Mrs. Irene Knowlton, white wife of a wealthy lumberman, who was Kojo's hostess in Chicago, also sailed on the France. With them went Mrs. Knowlton's daughter, Jacqueline, 7 years old, who came to the pier in a cab with Prince Kojo and her mother. The woman and child occupied a stateroom opposite that of the Prince.

A negro woman who said she was Mrs. Gaynell Greeley, proprietor of a photograph studio here, occasioned the dusky potentate's unexpected delay with vociferous demands at the pier for $300 she said was due her for 1000 photographs of His Highness.

Policeman Unimpressed.

Mrs. Knowlton left her daughter in their cabin and flew to the defense, but an unimpressed traffic policeman named Joseph Glennon bundled the trio unceremoniously off to a police station to "tell it to the sergeant."

After more wrangling on the way and at the station, Mrs. Greely announced she and the Prince had reached a satisfactory agreement and she would lodge no complaint. He had promised to send a certified check, she said, and all would be well.

His royal nibs, with Mrs. Knowlton still clinging to his arm, dashed off together just in time to get up the gangplank. Reporters, meanwhile, had found little Jacqueline sobbing in her mother's cabin and asked her about her father, Harry N. Knowlton.

"He's in Chicago," the child sniffed.

"And where's your mother?" she was asked.

"Oh, she's with the Prince," was the reply.

They Pose for Pictures.

The panting Prince and Mrs. Knowlton paused at the top of the gangplank and posed for photographers, Jacqueline at this time standing between them. The royal teeth gleamed like ivory as the usual farewell crowd stood amazed at the spectacle of a richly gowned white woman and little girl being pictured beside a strapping negro whom many mistook for Siki, the Singular Senegalese.

Prince Kojo came to New York a year ago from Paris, where he is known as a lawyer, doctor and journalist, with degrees from the University of Paris, to study conditions under which American negroes live. He went to Chicago shortly afterward and returned here only three weeks ago.

H. W. Heron, a negro clothier here, at whose home the royal visitor stayed, said the Prince left owing him three weeks' room rent. He added that he had "implicit confidence" in the Prince's promise to send the money as soon as he reached home.

He said the Prince was brought to him by Roland Hayes, famous negro tenor, when he first arrived in America and that this own impressions of the royal visitor was that he was a "cultured and refined gentleman" whose difficulties resulted from his ignorance of American customs.

Heron said he was aware of Kojo's association with Mrs. Knowlton but that she and her daughter had been staying at Hotel Holley. Employes there said Mrs. Knowlton had checked out during the morning. Heron said Mrs. Greely had come to his house to collect the photograph bill which he declared the Prince supposed his secretary had settled long ago.

In Chicago Kojo first broke into print when a German waiter and an Irish policeman threw him out of a restaurant which he entered with several white companions. One or two royal molars were lost in this encounter, and the policeman drew a pair of black eyes. Kojo later was discharged on the disorderly conduct charge placed against him. The French Consul then asked the corporation counsel of Chicago for a letter identifying the Prince as a ward of France.

Later Arrested Again.

Later Kojo was arrested in the Gold Coast home of Mrs. Knowlton in connection with a $350 check which he cashed in paying $118 for a frock and some lingerie for a woman companion. The check was returned marked "No Funds," but the Prince finally convinced the authorities he had unintentionally overdrawn his account and again was exonerated.

The Prince is unmarried and is 33 years old. Twenty-five years ago his father, then Prince Tovalou, created a mild sensation in Paris while on a visit by announcing he had 103 wives living, 24 dead and 233 living children.

NEW COUNTERFEITING SCHEME IS EXPOSED

U. S. Agents Go to Investigate "Mint" Methods as Suspects Are Taken in Joplin.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 17.—Federal Reserve Bank agents will come here next week to investigate the operations of two alleged counterfeiters, who, the police say, confessed today that they have circulated nearly $1000 in "raised" currency in eight cities in the Middle West during the last two or three months.

Two city detectives said they caught the two men last night preparing spurious money in a "mint" they had set up in a hotel room. They seized $150 in "raised" bills.

The suspects said they had passed the money, all $2 bills raised to tens and twenties, in Chicago, Des Moines, Kansas City, Wichita, Hutchinson, Salina, Topeka and Denver.

Their system is declared to be the most clever ever exposed. No stamps were used, but figures cut from the corners of genuine $20 bills were inlaid into $2 bills through artful and tedious work.

With the use of fine needles and razor blades, the figure ends cut off the $20 bills were split, thus giving two figures that could be used. Figures on the $2 bills were scratched with the use of needles, so the $20 figures could be inlaid with glue, then pressed by a hot iron.

The prisoners gave their names as Arthur Leroy Collins, 28 years old, and James Dewey Halley, 29, both of Omaha.

EPISCOPALIANS TABLE DIVORCE RESOLUTION

Act Smothers Plan to Amend Canons of Church; Four New Bishops.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 17.—Four missionary Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church were chosen today by the House of Bishops, meeting here in general conference of the church, and sent to the House of Deputies for confirmation. The deputies will meet Monday morning to ratify the selections. The Bishops chosen:

William M. Thomas of Porto Alegre, Brazil, suffragan bishop to Brazil; Shirley Hall Nichols of Yamunichi, Cho, Hiroshai, Japan, missionary Bishop to Kyoto; Robert Erskine Campbell, prior Masambulam monastery school, Liberia, Bishop of Liberia; Middleton Stewart Barnwell, general secretary field department, National Council, New York, missionary Bishop of Idaho.

Two prelates, whose election was not officially announced, but whose elevation to the Episcopacy was learned from authentic sources, are: The Rev. Walter Mitchell, D. D., of Trenton, N. J., executive secretary of that diocese, to be missionary Bishop of Arizona, and the Rev. Frank W. Creighton, rector of St. Ann's Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., to be missionary Bishop of Mexico.

The House of Deputies tabled the resolution sponsored by the Sanctity of Marriage Association. An overwhelming vote thus killed the resolution, which would have amended the canons of the church making remarriage after divorce almost impossible.

The question of the church in the United States becoming a constituent member of the Federal Council of Church, decided adversely by the House of Bishops yesterday, may be discussed later in the House of Deputies. Today the Bishop's resolution that the status quo be maintained was sent to the House of Deputies for concurrence. On motion of George W. Wickersham, New York, the resolution was placed on the calendar for later consideration.

DAVIS-MACNIDER TEAM A G. O. P. BID FOR VOTES IN 1928

Appointment of Missourian Placates Leaders Who Put State in Republican Column.

AVIATION DISPUTE A DECIDING FACTOR

Iowan, Former Legion Commander, May Silence Veterans Backing Col. Mitchell.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright 1925.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The smartest piece of politics since the days of the last campaign, when master strategy was uppermost, has just been exhibited by President Coolidge this week in appointing Dwight F. Davis of Missouri to be Secretary of War and Hanford MacNider of Iowa to be Assistant Secretary of War.

The success of a political maneuver is not always demonstrable at the outset, but if the reasoning which prompted the appointments should work out as planned, it will remove some of the principal sources of criticism which the President has lately been facing.

Davis is a Missouri man, and the West has been clamoring for recognition in the Cabinet. Mr. Coolidge has been criticised for "too much New England." He had appointed Harlan Stone to be Attorney-General and then elevated him to the Supreme bench and appointed another New Englander in his place.

Missouri G. O. P. Active.

When John Weeks of Massachusetts notified the President many months ago of his desire to resign, Mr. Coolidge began to think of a Western man, feeling that Massachusetts would forgive him if he did not select a man from his home State to be Secretary of War.

Missouri Republicans have been particularly anxious to secure a Cabinet portfolio, because in two successive presidential campaigns what had hitherto been a doubtful State was placed in the Republican electoral column.

Behind the selection of MacNider is another desire to please the Middle West. But basically it was an effort to please the American Legion and ex-service men generally.

This is not because Mr. Coolidge has felt himself weak with the ex-service men ever since he voted the bonus bill but because from these ex-service men has been coming the largest and most enthusiastic element in support of Col. William Mitchell in his attack on administration methods in the air service.

Backing Not Negligible.

While Mitchell will be dealt with by court martial for indiscreet statements, the President has been shrewd enough to discover that the sentiment behind Mitchell is by no means negligible and represents a well defined criticism of bureaucratic methods in Washington, intensified by ex-service men's experiences with Washington during the war, and since, in the handling of the veteran's troubles.

Both Davis and MacNider are young men, progressive, active and influential with the younger school in American public life. The controversy over the air service is, in its essence, hardly one of lack of funds for planes, as enough money has been appropriated to occupy the construction of facilities of such airplane plants as America possesses.

It is essentially a matter of administration in which diminished personnel is due to small appropriations. But here again differences of opinion arise as to efficient administration with available funds.

Urged Special Inquiry.

The new Secretary of War was instrumental in persuading President Coolidge to convoke a special board of inquiry. He felt it would bring out all the constructive criticism and guide the War Department.

Davis has paid particular attention to aircraft. MacNider knows from his war career as well as his experience as commander of the American Legion just what it is about the War Department that causes resentment out in the great open places.

WORKMAN STRUCK IN EYE BY NAIL SEEKS $15,000 DAMAGES

Sues Realty Company for Loss of Orb, Alleging Weak Stringer Caused Accident.

A suit for $15,000 damages was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Matthew Norman, a carpenter, against the Walter Jones Real Estate Co., 618 Chestnut street, for the loss of his left eye.

He states that on Aug. 17, while in the employ of the defendant company, he was fastening boards to a stringer in a doorway of an apartment house at 4944 Page boulevard when a nail he was using flew back and struck him. He alleged the accident was due to the stringer collapsing as he hit the nail.

CALLS ON SCIENCE TO STUDY 'SPIRIT FORCES'

DR. HEREWARD CARRINGTON.

SAYS GHOSTS CAN'T BE LAUGHED OFF

Radio Speaker Declares Serious Scientific Study of Psychic Phenomena Is Warranted.

Ghosts, haunted houses, spirit rappings and all the other familiar psychic manifestations deserve sincere scientific investigation, Dr. Hereward Carrington, noted psychic expert, declared in an address at the radio show at the Coliseum broadcast over KSD last night.

Not that every ghost is genuine. Not that every vaudeville performer who sets himself up as a mind reader has a real psychic power. Not that every self-styled medium is above the cry of "fraud." Far from it, in the opinion of Dr. Carrington, who declared that 98 per cent of the so-called psychic phenomena brought into the public notice was pure fake. But the other two per cent, once established as something above the natural, should be investigated on the same scientific basis as is the phenomena of radio activity, for example.

Questions With No Answer.

Dr. Carrington, an Englishman by birth, has been a prolific writer of books on the psychic and is regarded as an authority on the science of the unknown. As a research officer of the American Psychical Society he contributed an article exposing the work of Hindoo magicians, which was published in the Sunday Post-Dispatch of Nov. 18, 1923.

"What makes the man in the street car turn around when we stare at the back of his neck?" Dr. Carrington asked. "Is it some invisible power within us that reaches out to him? What strange power brings before us some strange vision or unusual thought which later proves to have been coincident with the death of some distant person?

"These are common psychical phenomena and they deserve scientific investigation of quite a different character from the hit-or-miss speculation of the dilettante. Similarly the underlying cause of dreams, for example, is deserving of investigation.

Mystery of Levitation.

"How is it that with our eyes closed in slumber, we distinctly see people in our dreams? By what strange power are we enabled to go through the most realistic experiences without moving from one place?

"Coming down to what we might call physical phenomena, as opposed to mental phenomena, what explanation is there for the power of the legitimate medium who causes the movement of objects without being near them, who causes lights to light and holds remote objects under the control of some occult power?

"Fake, you say. Perhaps. In 100 examples of the psychic laid before the public I believe 98 are fake. But some of them are genuine, growing out of the unusual mediumistic powers of an individual.

Field for Investigation.

"A real medium is a rarity. Just as there are many who play the piano, but few great pianists, so there are many would-be mediums but only a few with real powers, perhaps a half dozen in a generation. It is to these that psychic powers are given in an unusual degree.

"But in every man and woman there is that latent psychic power that makes them participants in small degree in the powers of the great mediums. These powers should be developed by the study of the psychic. At the same time, scientists, who are capable of carrying on a cold-blooded, impartial investigation, should delve into the mysteries of this borderland, treating them not as supernatural manifestations to be avoided but facts upon which they can lay their hands if they set out to do so as they have set out to reach more tangible truths."

Man Noted for Civil War Feat Dies.

DAYLIGHT ROBBER CRUISES ABOUT SOUTH ST. LOUIS

Takes His Time in Picking Out an Auto, Then Holds Up Two Men on the Street.

A well-dressed highwayman, who operated in South St. Louis streets yesterday afternoon, was particular as to just what car he drove about his business.

He began a brief career by climbing into a Ford roadster driven by Oliver Reinhardt, of 2018A Cherokee street, which was standing at the curb at 3714 Meramec street. Holding a revolver at the boy's side he ordered him to drive around until he could pick out the automobile he wanted.

Finds Car That Suits.

The car was found in an alley at the rear of 4047 Castleman avenue, there it had been parked for a few minutes by the owner, Frederick J. Pickel, who was moving from that address to 3833 Castleman.

"That just about suits," said the robber, and ordering his "chauffeur" into the machine with him he drove away in the Pickel car, a 1925 model Flint, brand new and painted blue. Three blocks away young Reinhardt was let out of the car.

Half an hour later John Wand, 24, of 2523 Wyoming street, driving north at 3112 Portis avenue, found the street blocked by a Flint car, pulled straight across the roadway. Out of the car stepped the highwayman.

"Give me your money," he cried, flourishing a revolver.

Robs Truck Driver.

Wand handed over $20 and the highwayman entered the Flint and drove to 3904 Utah street, where he pulled up beside a delivery truck for the B. Nugent & Brother Dry Goods Co. The truck was driven by John B. Sherer of 4563 Lucky street.

"Hand over your money or you die," Sherer was told. The latter turned over about $80 in collections and some checks.

Half an hour later, in the alley behind 3626 South Grand boulevard, police found the blue Flint car. The engine was hot. But the car was empty. After a busy hour the highwayman had abandoned the machine.

FEW MEN EVER MARRY FIRST LOVE, WOMAN WRITER SAYS

Seldom Do They Wed the Incarnation of Their Ideals, She Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Few men ever marry the first woman with whom they fall in love, claims Elsa Rema, writing in Der Montag. Chance, she asserts, is mightier than cupid, and usually first loves become separated.

Seldom does a man marry the incarnation of his ideals, she continues. Usually the male who wanted a brunette marries a blonde; the one who craved a good cook gets a piano player who doesn't know the difference between pork and veal; he who desired a "swell dresser" weds a plain spinster, and so on.

Men marry readily when young, Fraulein Rema finds, but when they are self styled "confirmed bachelors," clever and sympathetic housekeepers have the best chance of landing them, especially if adept in culinary arts. Such bachelors often marry from the sheer fear that the housekeepers will resign and leave them to the tender mercies of others not so gifted.

Widowers also are easy marks for aspiring females, says the writer, who explains: "They no longer know how to live alone. They are used to their own hearth and home. They are unable to do without female caresses and tenderness."

COURT RESCINDS CHARTER GRANTED TO KOSHER GROUP

Judge Hamilton Acts After Opponents of Vaad Hoeir Petition for Hearing.

Circuit Judge Hamilton yesterday set aside his order of Friday granting a pro forma decree of incorporation to the Vaad Hoeir, a Jewish association for dietry law. The decree had been granted on recommendation of Raymond Hartmann, who was appointed "friend of the court" to investigate the application for a charter.

After the report was made counsel for the association obtained an order approving the recommendation, the referee having found that the organization was not a kosher meat monopoly, as had been alleged by Eugene Rainey, editor of Jewish Voice, and William Siegelmann, president of the Brith Sholem Congregation.

Former Circuit Judge Charles W. Rutledge, representing objectors, complained to Hamilton that his side had not been heard, whereupon Hamilton allowed objectors four days in which to file exceptions.

Hobos Seize Georgia Freight Train.

BRUNSWICK, Ga.—After pouring oil on the track in front of a moving freight train near here, 12 hobos boarded the train as it stopped, took charge of the engine, and ran the train several miles to Thalman, Ga., where they stopped, climbed down from the engine and took to their heels.

BULLARD BERATES PACIFISM; SAYS WAR MAKES MEN

Declares the Internationalist Reads Himself Out of All Obligation to His Own or Any Other Country.

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 17.—Whatever impatience European nations may feel at America for "our slow entry and our quick exit," they cannot censure us for "meddling" in the World War, Major-General R. L. Bullard, U. S. A., retired, said in his address today at the dedication of Alumni Memorial Hall, erected to the memory of Vanderbilt University students killed in the war.

Until the European war touched the American soldier and his country, it was not his war, Gen. Bullard said.

A Devoted Nationalist.

The spirit of the American soldier was that of a "devoted nationalist, thinking sometimes of other nations, but always holding his own above all others."

Gen. Bullard contrasted the nationalist with the internationalist, the latter as "the man who, claiming to have risen above any one country, to have become too big and too broad to be limited to one, pretends to read himself into a citizenship of them all and does read himself out of all obligation to any.

"That," he said, "is the internationalist. The men we honor today were not of that order."

Calls War a Hateful Thing.

Turning to eulogize those whom he characterized as nationalists, the general said:

"War is a hateful thing, but it makes and proves men; it regenerates those made selfish and grasping and individualistic by peace.

"Scoffers at the passion of patriotism, internationalists, pious souls who teach a one-sided Christianity, weak souls and gentle who would have us surrender at the first threat all these will tell you that these fighters of the great war were driven cattle who could not tell you for what they were fighting. And they are all fools."

Former Missouri Woman Ends Life

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—With the photograph of a man clutched in one hand, and in the other an unfinished letter in which she asked for forgiveness, the body of Anna Turner, 26 years old, was found on the floor of her room today by her girl roommate. All the burners in a gas range were turned on. Papers found in the apartment disclosed that the young woman had been married to Peter J. Macaulay in Kansas City in July, 1917, and had been divorced in Chicago in 1924. Her roommate said the Turner woman had been despondent over a love affair with a New York man.

STEALING OUR STUFF

THEY CAN STEAL OUR CHATTER AND OUR STYLE

But They Can't Steal, Imitate or Duplicate Yahlem's Bargains

The same bozos who razzed Yahlem in the past four years for putting jazz, ginger and pep in his used car advertising are stealing his stuff today. That proves that Yahlem had the proper hunch. Yahlem originated FABLES, poetry, stories, etc., in his advertising, and his so-called competitors criticised him for it. But now, four years later, they flatter him by imitating his style. That's because they know a guy can't be wrong all the time and steadily grow to be the biggest used car dealer in the West! You'll find that folks who believe in the merit of their own proposition never have to cop the other fellow's stuff!

But you folks, the buying public, know the lowdown in the situation. You know that Yahlem has no competition in Price, Selection, Quality, Terms or Originality. We lead and others follow! Who started "No Interest?" Who started "A Year to Pay" on used cars? Whom do you call the "Used Car King," the "Price Wrecker" and the "Workingman's Friend?" There is only one original Bimbo in this business, and that is Big Boy Yahlem himself, in Person! Don't let 'em tell you different, bully!

WE HAVE NO BRANCH STORES

Because every branch store means more rent, more help, more overhead. That means more expense to be attached on to the price of he car sold, becauss somebody has to pay for it.

And we have no tiled floors, no silk shirt salesmen, no fancy windows, because that costs money which must be taxed on the used car. Yahlem is as democratic as an old shoe. He does business with the working man on small profit. High hat class doesn't go with you after you've paid for the car! Think that over!

We Challenge any Used Car Dealer to Compare Sales Records With Yahlem for 1925-24-23-22-21-20

We Offer an Apology—To Our Competitors

The constantly increasing reports locally that we do practically all the used car business in town are wrong, and we, The Weber Motor Car Co., have never made such a statement. The only way that we can account for this is from the continually increasing Used Car Business that we are enjoying at such extremely low prices may have led some enthusiastic customers to make these statements.

THE YELLOW DUCK RHYMES

Some times when I
  Go out at night,
I find the world
  Is shining bright!

The Moon-beams cross
  The grass in bars,
And all the Pond
  Is full of stars!

Some times the Fish
  Come up to see
The beauty of
  The night with me

I hear them splash
  And dive below,
Except my friend
  The Gold Toto

He swims and talks
  With fine e-la-tion
And I quite like
  His con-ver-sa-tion

He tells me that
  His family name,
Is one of learned
  And Princely fame

A Gold-Fish he,
  Of Chinese note,
And an ex-ceed-
  Ing-ly fine coat

Now Toto says
  That he can see,
Up to the top
  Of any tree.

Some trees, you know,
  Grow ve-ry high.
I've ev-en seen
  Them touch the sky!

And Toto says
  That he can see,
Down to the bot-
  Tom of the sea

Toto I'm sure
  Is ve-ry wise,
Who wouldn't be,
  With Toto's eyes?

He says I un-
  Der-stand his ways,
And help to glad-
  Den all his days

And so we swim
  The Pond to-gether,
In al-most ev'-
  Ry kind of weather

And often till
  The night is sped,
And ev'ry star
  Has gone to bed.

Then just above
  The Eastern rim,
We see the Sun,
  And bow to him!

Princess Ozga Exiled From the Roseland Kingdom

"NO Ruler has condemned us yet," said Betsy addressing the Royal Gardener.

"Of course not," added Shaggy. "We haven't even seen the Ruler of the Rose Kingdom."

"Well, to tell the truth," said the Gardener, in a perplexed tone of voice, "we haven't any real Ruler, just now. You see, all our Rulers grow on bushes in the Royal Gardens, and the last one we had got mildewed and withered before his time. So we had to plant him, and at this time there is no one growing on the Royal Bushes who is ripe enough to pick."

"How do you know?" asked Betsy.

"Why, I'm the Royal Gardener. Plenty of royalties are growing, I admit; but just now they are all green. Until one ripens, I am supposed to rule the Rose Kingdom myself, and see that its laws are obeyed. Therefore, much as I love you, Shaggy, I must put you to death."

"Wait a minute," pleaded Betsy. "I'd like to see those Royal Gardens before I die."

"So would I," added Shaggy Man. "Take us there, Gardener."

"Oh, I can't do that," objected the Gardener. But Shaggy again showed him the Love Magnet and after one glance at it the Gardener could no longer resist.

He led Shaggy, Betsy and Hank to the end of the great greenhouse and carefully unlocked a small door. Passing through this they came into the splendid Royal Garden of the Rose Kingdom.

It was all surrounded by a tall hedge and within the enclosure grew several enormous rosebushes having thick, green leaves of the texture of velvet. Upon these bushes grew the members of the Royal Family of the Rose Kingdom—men, women and children in all stages of maturity. They all seemed to have a light green hue, as if unripe or not fully developed, their flesh and clothing being alike green. They stood perfectly lifeless upon their branches, which swayed softly in the breeze, and their wide-open eyes stared straight ahead, unseeing and unintelligent.

While examining these curious growing people, Betsy passed behind a big central bush and at once uttered an exclamation of surprise and pleasure. For there, blooming in perfect color and shape, stood a Royal Princess, whose beauty was amazing.

"Why, she's ripe!" cried Betsy, pushing aside some of the broad leaves to observe her more clearly.

"Well, perhaps so," admitted the Gardener, who had come to the girl's side; "but she's a girl, and so we can't use her for a Ruler."

"No, indeed!" came a chorus of soft voices, and looking around Betsy discovered that all the Roses had followed them from the greenhouse and were now grouped before the entrance.

"You see," explained the Gardener, "the subjects of Rose Kingdom don't want a girl Ruler. They want a King."

"A King! We want a King!" repeated the chorus of Roses.

"Isn't she Royal?" inquired Shaggy, admiring the lovely Princess.

"Of course, for she grows on a Royal Bush. This Princess is named Ozga, as she is a distant cousin of Ozma of Oz; and, were she but a man, we would joyfully hail her as our Ruler."

The Gardener then turned away to talk with his Roses and Betsy whispered to her companion: "Let's pick her, Shaggy."

"All right," said he. "If she's Royal, she has the right to rule this Kingdom, and if we pick her she will surely protect us and prevent our being hurt, or driven away."

So Betsy and Shaggy each took an arm of the beautiful Rose Princess and a little twist of her feet set her free of the branch upon which she grew. Very gracefully she stepped down from the bush to the ground, where she bowed low to Betsy and Shaggy and said in a delightfully sweet voice: "I thank you."

But at the sound of these words the Gardener and the Roses turned and discovered that the Princess had been picked, and was now alive. Over every face flashed an expression of resentment and anger, and one of the Roses cried aloud:

"Audacious mortals! What have you done?"

"Picked a Princess for you, that's all," replied Betsy, cheerfully.

"But we won't have her! We want a King!" exclaimed a Jacque Rose, and another added with a voice of scorn. "No girl shall rule over us!"

The newly-picked Princess looked from one to another of her rebellious subjects in astonishment. A grieved look came over her exquisite features.

"Have I no welcome here, pretty subjects?" she asked gently. "Have I not come from my Royal Bush to be your Ruler?"

"You were picked by mortals, without our consent," replied the Moss Rose, coldly; "so we refuse to allow you to rule us."

"Turn her out, Gardener, with the others!" cried the Tea Rose.

"Just a second, please!" called Shaggy, taking the Love Magnet from his pocket. "I guess this will win their love, Princess. Here—take it in your hand and let the Roses see it."

Princess Ozga took the Magnet and held it poised before the eyes of her subjects; but the Roses regarded it with calm disdain.

"Why, what's the matter?" demanded Shaggy in surprise. "The Magnet never failed to work before!"

"I know," said Betsy, nodding her head wisely. "These Roses have no hearts."

"That's it," agreed the Gardener. "They're pretty, and sweet, and alive; but still they are Roses. Their stems have thorns, but no hearts."

The Princess sighed and handed the Magnet to the Shaggy Man.

"What shall I do?" she asked sorrowfully.

"Turn her out, Gardener, with the others!" commanded the Roses. "We will have no Ruler until a man-rose—a King—is ripe enough to pick."

"Very well," said the Gardener meekly. "You must excuse me, my dear Shaggy, for opposing your wishes, but you and the others, including Ozga, must get out of Rose Kingdom immediately, if not before."

"Don't you love me, Gardy?" asked Shaggy, carelessly displaying the Magnet.

"I do. I dote on thee!" answered the Gardener earnestly; "but no true man will neglect his duty for the sake of love. My duty is to drive you out, so—out you go!"

With this he seized a garden fork and began jabbing it at the strangers, in order to force them to leave. Hank the mule was not afraid of the fork and when he got his heels near to the Gardener the man fell back to avoid a kick.

But now the Roses crowded around the outcasts and it was soon discovered that beneath their draperies of green leaves were many sharp thorns which were more dangerous than Hank's heels. Neither Betsy nor Ozga nor Shaggy nor the mule cared to brave those thorns and when they pressed away from them they found themselves slowly driven through the garden door into the greenhouse. From there they were forced out at the Cut along border and fold in half along dotted lines (............). Starting with picture No. 1, by making one fold from the bottom up, where the dotted guides show, you can make a new picture. Make another fold from the bottom up and a third picture appears. Then return to No. 1 and fold from the top down, in the same manner, which will give you two more pictures. Last, returning to picture No. 1, make one fold from the bottom and one fold from the top and you will get a surprise.

The Rose Princess was sobbing bitterly; Betsy was indignant and angry; Hank uttered defiant "Hee-haws" and the Shaggy Man whistled softly to himself.

The boundary of the Rose Kingdom was a deep gulf, but there was a drawbridge in one place and this the Royal Gardener let down until the outcasts had passed over it. Then he drew it up again and returned with his Roses to the greenhouse, leaving the four queer assorted comrades to

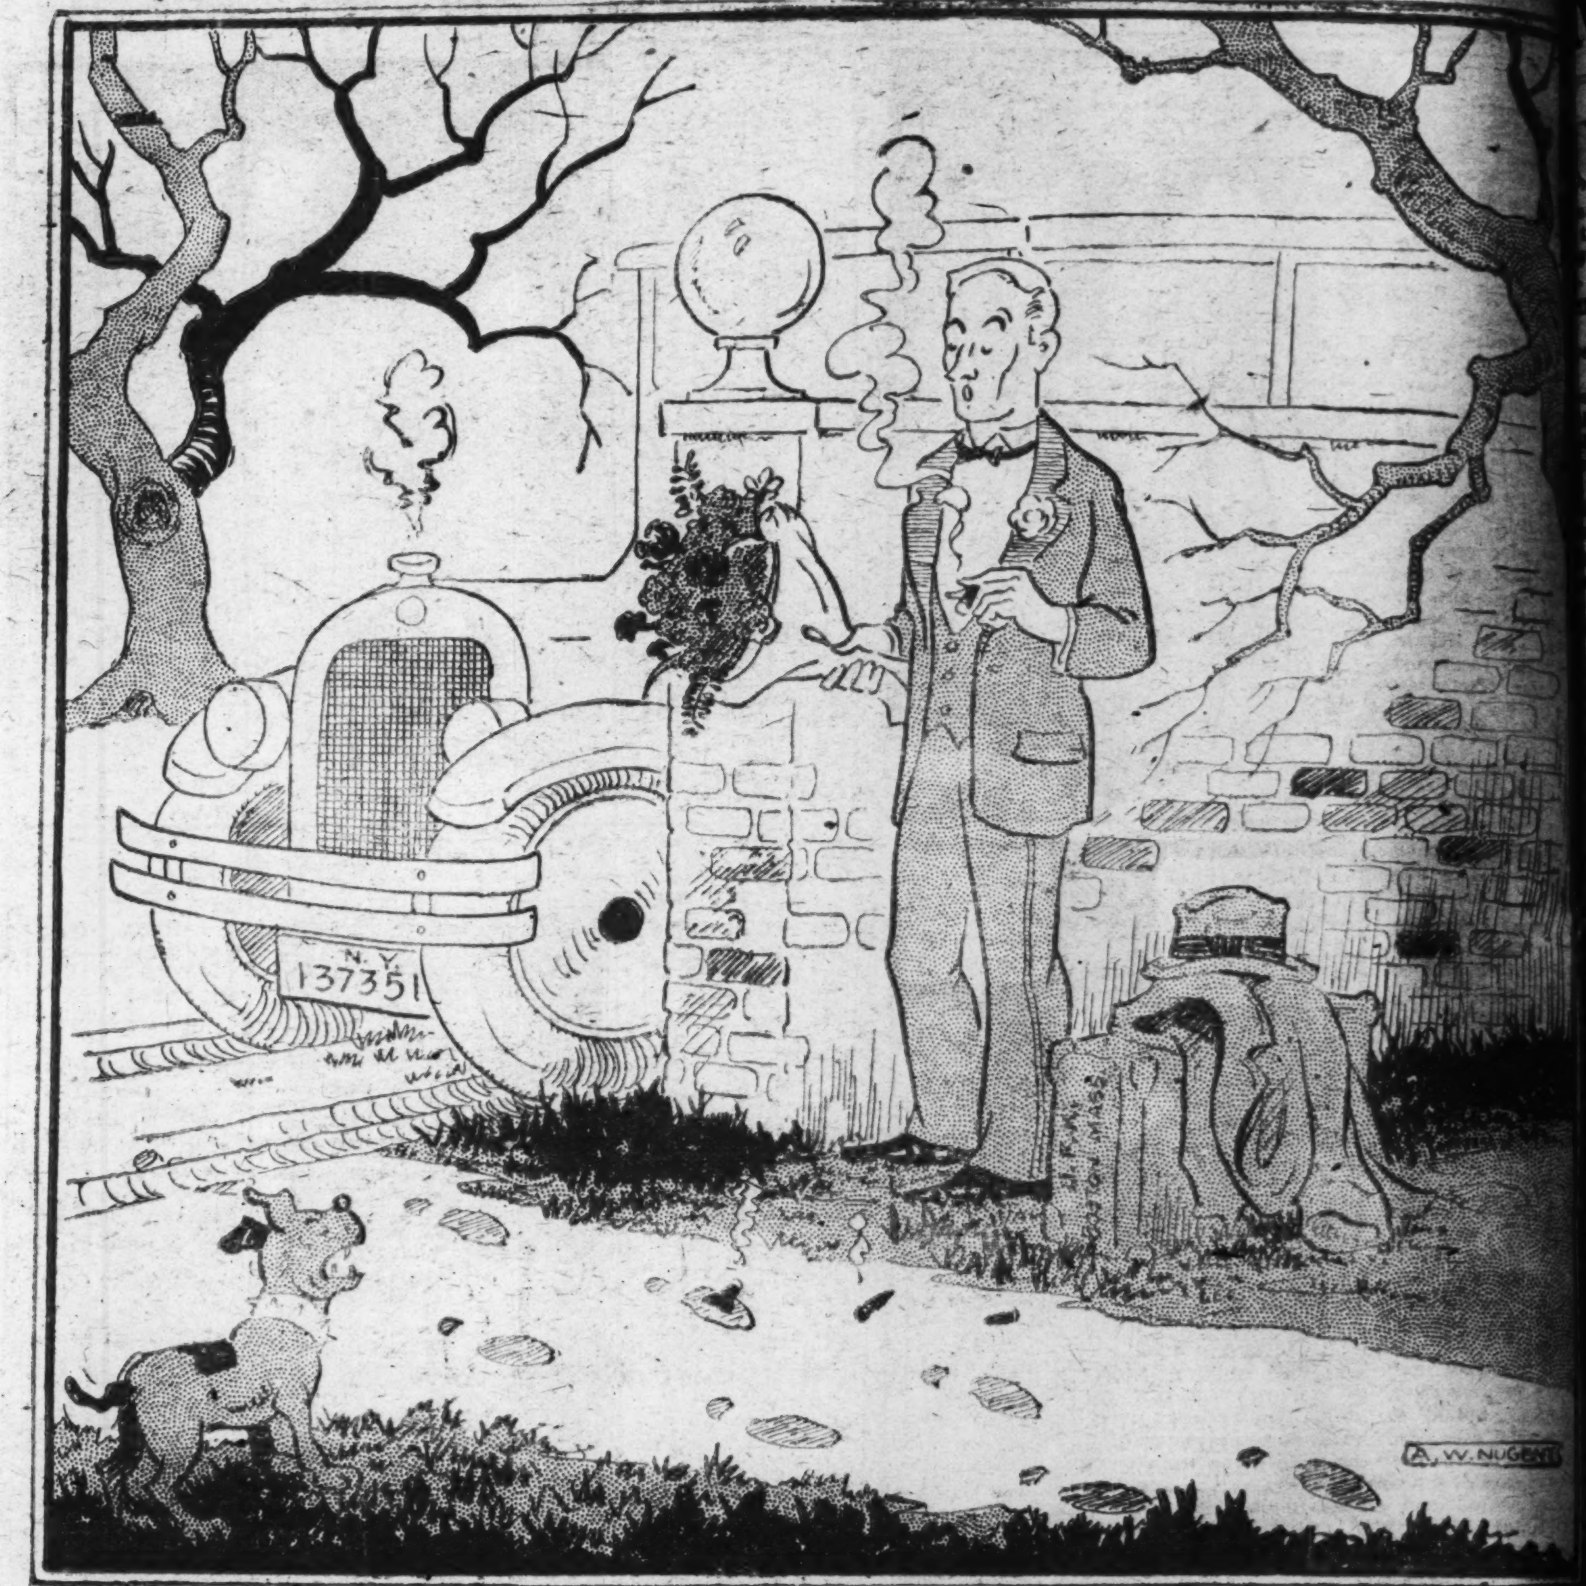
THE GREAT "SHERLOCK HOLMES" TES



How would you like to be a Sherlock Holmes? Here is a chance for you to try.

The picture shown above is a snapshot made by a secret agent on an important case. It was all the evidence there was, showed the great detective a great many things. For instance, he deduced that the young man in the picture was not the owner automobile. Can you tell how he did it? And here are some more questions for you to answer: Has the man been standing there What time of day is it? Is it warm or cool? Has the car been there long? From what direction did it come? Has anyone pa was it a man or a woman? Did he or she pass before or after the young man arrived? Does the young man own the dog? Is he wa for a man or a woman?

Study the picture carefully, as you would if you were the great Sherlock and Dr. Watson brought it to you, and see if you can the questions.

WHAT CITY IS BURIED HERE?

When the moon its face behind dark clouds, Skinny remarked, e stumbled along, "Well, Chink, I guess we'll a sweet time getting back, unless Ben has enough to light a lantern at the tent. Hanged know which way we are going. Do you?"

"I only know I'm going to camp—and which that is makes no difference to this guy!" led the other.

e two labored on their way, bearing their bur- as best they could and finally Skinny called the lake, "Hey, Ben, light a glim!"

"Too, hoo!" Ben Smith called back.

raight for the light the boys went, turning lake's end, and they arrived to find their com- ion standing in the tent's door, white of face fingering a rifle.

"What's the rip?" Chink inquired.

"Thieves!" was the answer, and as Ben spoke got another thrill, for down the lake a ways a t gleamed and this he spied. "Didn't know ybody else was on the lake tonight," muttered n, "but there's a camp yonder, it seems. While I s putting out throw-lines, somebody came here d went through us, for a lot of grub is missing."

The three lads were husky and, while they were m the city, not one of them might have been lled a tenderfoot to be easily frightened by stran- s or tough adventure. Skinny Blair "broke" gun, examined it for shells and threw it back gular once more. "Come on," he said, "and 'll politely visit the guy or guys yonder and see o or what they are."

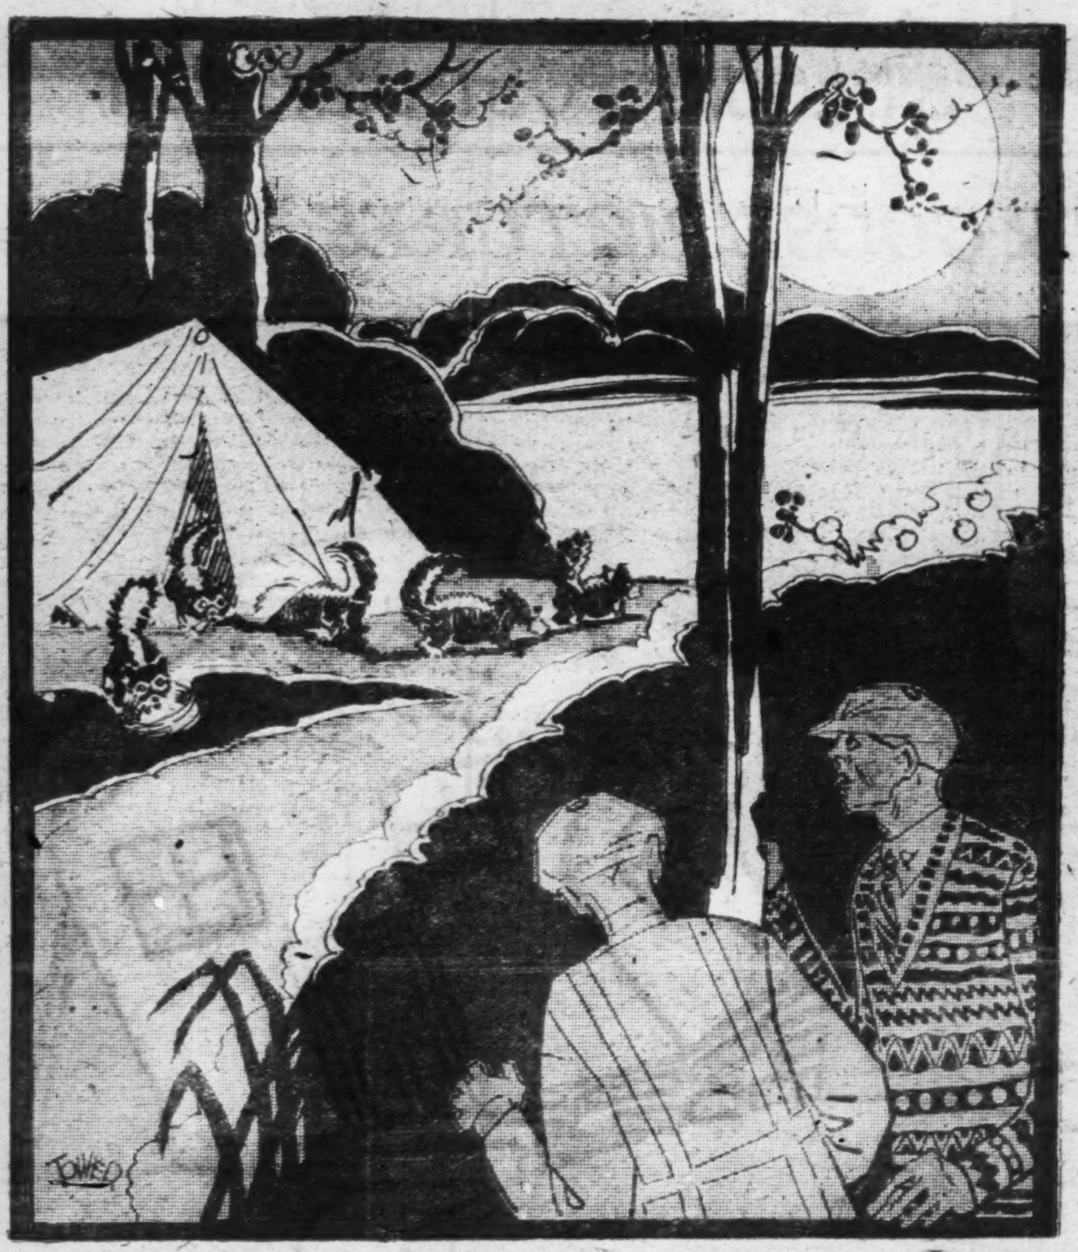
The three started, but when it was noticed that n Smith carried his rifle, Skinny objected. "Leave it, Ben," he said. "We won't come up n them, all loaded like an army! I've my 'six' and that's plenty."

At the stranger camp it was discovered that a uple of youths were the occupants. Both were leep in their blankets and in the tent burned lantern.

"Turned in, folks?" inquired Skinny, the first peer into the tent.

"Um, huh! You fellows are camped up-lake, I ke it?" one of the strangers answered waking.

"Quite correct!" stoutly cried Chink, just then ying some crackers lying loose upon the ground ide. He also, in a quick survey of the tent's in- rior, saw a chunk of bacon and some other food ther carelessly scattered around. Pointing to se, Skinny whipped out his gun and ordered, u two kids follow us and be lively! Coarse , I say, stealing our grub and don't even take trouble of hiding the loot!"



Jud Kline nudged him and, on looking toward the tent, what should Skinny see but a line of white and black objects plainly visible in the moonlight.

"What do you mean?" fearfully exclaimed both tent occupants, rising.

"I—we—mean that you are a pair of thieves and we'll take care of you until morning, when we'll lug you off to town and turn you over to the authorities!" cried Skinny, waving his gun and ordering the strangers to fall in ahead of him.

There was nothing to do but obey, and as the party hiked back to the other camp the strangers protested they had not robbed anybody; that they had not been away from their own tent; that they were ignorant as to how the food became scattered around their own premises. "You are making a mistake," declared they.

"That's all right!" Ben Smith growled. "We had crackers and bacon and a lot of other stuff, much of which is gone. Fine pair of birds you are, I must say!"

Ben, Chink and Skinny held a hurried confab, after which the strangers were led to a couple of scrub oak trees near the door of the tent and there tied securely. "If you don't sleep any during the night, it makes little difference to us," Skinny remarked gruffly. Turning to his companions Skinny said, "One of us will stay up and watch these thieves. We'll take turn about. If one of them offers any funny business—why, let him have it, good and plenty."

Protesting their innocence the two unfortunates stood tied to the scrub oaks. Both were so badly frightened they offered no threats, but argued they had done nothing whatever and knew nothing about the food.

Skinny and Chink were snoring peacefully and Ben was on watch. Fretting, the prisoners begged for enough freedom so they could lie down and rest their bodies a little, and Ben, softened by their pleas, allowed them enough rope to be able to do this. Thankfully the lads dropped to the ground and soon slept also, for it availed them nothing to remain awake.

Ben sat looking at the moon, which now and then peeped from behind clouds; and finally, when the bright orb seemed to have disappeared for the night, the sentinel became drowsy and soon snored himself.

Ben Smith, sleeping soundly, failed to waken one of his chums to relieve him on watch and, therefore, to his surprise this lad was jarred out of his slumber by the plaintive cries of snipe, plentiful about the lake's shores and which were out early seeking their morning meal. With a bound Ben jumped to his feet, looked at the prisoners still snoozing and called to his friends, "Near sunrise, fellows!"

"Gee, and you kept at it all night?" Chink cried, rubbing his eyes. "Why didn't you call us for relief?"

"Oh, I thought I might as well watch 'em as anybody else!" carelessly answered Ben.

"Well, I'll start a fire and make a bit of breakfast," Chink remarked, kicking Skinny and preparing a fire.

The prisoners sat up, looked as pleasant as possible and renewed their protests of innocence.

"We'll give you a bite and a sup of warm coffee and then—off you go to the Sheriff." Skinny observed, sneering upon the pair.

Ben Smith was at the water's edge, washing his face and hands, when a loud cry came to him from camp. Running thither he found Skinny and Chink wild-eyed and completely flabbergasted; for not a morsel of food remained in camp except some coffee. Everything was cleaned out, even to some boxes of gum and candy. All over the tent lay bits of crackers, cakes and other food that could be easily spilled.

"Hey, Ben, you were on watch!" excitedly called Skinny Blair. "What happened here in the night?"

"Nothin'!" Ben gasped.

"Didn't you see anybody—anything? Who got in and cleaned us of what we had left?

"Didn't anybody!" Ben answered; and this lad felt so guilty that he didn't care to talk much.

Smiles of joy lit up the faces of the two prisoners. They realized now that there was hope for themselves. "I told you," one of the fellows said, "that we are innocent of any thievery. We are not that stripe of boys."

"Well, Skinny gasped, "I own up that we made a mistake—maybe—"

"What?" inquired Chink.

"If there are other thieves hereabouts," Skinny explained, "they must have robbed the camp of these two boys we are holding. If that's a fact, we will have to turn them loose, beg their pardon and do the best we can to obtain forgiveness."

To the other camp the party journeyed, only to find it cleaned out of every possible bit of food. Even some clothing was taken, consisting chiefly of a pair of wader-boots, which had been used, so the owners explained, in which to store a couple of long pancakes their mothers baked for them to take along on the trip.

Promptly the prisoners were released. There was nothing for breakfast, so one of the strangers and Skinny Blair hoofed it away to the nearest town to procure some food.

"And when we get it, I bet nobody will snipe it away from us!" Skinny angrily declared.

The two boys from the lower camp—Jud Kline and Billy Hunt—were really good sports and soon forgot their experience at the hands of the others. All five boys decided to remain at the lake, go on with their fishing and discover, if possible, the thief or thieves.

That night early, behind a boulder near the tent of Ben and his friends, all the lads waited and watched. They placed what food they possessed and which had been purchased at the town just inside the tent door. All armed and ready to do most anything, they anxiously waited. Nothing happened for hours, and it began to look as if the thieves would not return for more loot; but just as Skinny threw himself down and spoke of giving up the watch, Jud Kline nudged him and, on looking towards the tent, what should Skinny see but a line of white and black objects plainly visible in the moonlight.

"Heavens alive!" gasped the five lads.

"What'll we do?" chattered Chink.

"Shoot!" Billy Hunt whispered lifting his rifle.

However, Skinny Blair grasped the gun and pulled it down. "Don't for the love of Mike and everybody else in the world," exclaimed Skinny.

Helpless, the boys watched the line of thieves carry off their food, and when the last one of the unwelcome visitors departed lugging a burden five very badly beaten fishers drew sighs of relief, and later that day camp was moved to the opposite side of the lake.

The thieves were about a dozen skunks!

MAJOR GENERAL GREELY, WHO ORDERED THE EXECUTION

PRIVATE HENRY, WHO WAS EXECUTED

BRIGADIER GENERAL BRAINARD, ONE OF THE EXECUTIONERS

Major-General Greely Describes This Execution at the Arctic's Rim

By CHARLES G. ROSS.

THE year was 1884. The scene was bleak and desolate Cape Sabine on Ellesmere Land, only 11 degrees from the North Pole. In a low stone hut covered with deep drifts of snow 12 men lay dying. They were all that were left of 25 who had gone into the Arctic three years before at the command of the United States Government, and there they had been caught in the grip of the ice and the relentless Arctic winter. Hope was almost gone. Their rations had dwindled to such an extent that they were being divided, not by the pound nor by the ounce, but by the sixteenth of an ounce. Each sliver of food was as fine as a match. A day's ration would not cover the palm of the hand. The survivors were eating the sealskin thongs from their boots and the boots themselves.

It was an army expedition and a lieutenant of cavalry was in command. Although near to death he never lost hold on his men. Emaciated almost beyond belief, so weakened that when he went outside the hut he

THE DEATH WARRANT.

Near Cape Sabine, June 6, 1884.

To Sergeants Brainard, Frederick and Long:

Notwithstanding promises given by Private C. B. Henry yesterday, he has since, as acknowledged to me, tampered with seal thongs, if not other food, at the old camp. This pertinacity and audacity is the destruction of this party, if not at once ended. Private Henry will be shot today, all care being taken to prevent his injuring anyone, as his physical strength is greater than that of any two men. Decide the manner of death by two ball and one blank cartridge. This order is imperative and absolutely necessary for any chance of life.

A. W. GREELY,
First Lieutenant Commanding.

"Henry will be shot today, care being taken to prevent his injuring anyone" crawled on his hands and knees, still he kept by his sleeping bag the sword and epaulettes of his rank.

And he commanded. It is difficult for fancy to picture a man in sorrier plight. His military career which had begun so brilliantly seemed about to end miserably, forgotten in the Arctic wastes. More than half of the men committed to his charge had died of starvation and there was almost no hope that even one would survive. The flame of his own strength was flickering out like a guttering candle. To add to these troubles came a strange and evil one right at hand. A private soldier, the strongest man left, was discovered stealing rations. With the high hopes all gone and death waiting just outside the grimy hut where the wind was roaring, the lieutenant of cavalry wrote in his order book a sentence of death for this man and he was taken outside and shot.

An over-harsh punishment? Let judgment await the completion of the story. It is recounted here as gleaned by the writer in recent interviews with Major-General A. W. Greely, retired (the former cavalry Lieutenant), and Brigadier-General David L. Brainard (a Sergeant with the expedition).

At 81, Greely, who suffered almost incredible hardships in the Arctic a generation ago, displays a physical vigor that would shame many a man of half his years. His frame is erect and his blue eyes, behind their glasses, are keen and lively. Only in the deepened lines of his face and the whiteness of his full jutting beard can the age of the General be read. His mental faculties have weathered the years as successfully as his physique.

"My friends tell me," said the General, "that I am made of steel."

IT WAS only by request that the General, seated before a crackling wood fire in the glassed-in sun porch of his little summer home in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, would go into the details of those days on Cape Sabine. He preferred to talk of his laying of cables and stringing of telegraph wires, while he was the Chief Signal Officer of the Army; of his wireless installation in Alaska; of his bloodless victory over an Indian tribe on the warpath; of his feeding of the multitude after the San Francisco earthquake of 1906.

The Lady Franklin Bay expedition, which held the attention of the world to an even greater extent than the Amundsen and MacMillan ventures have done lately, lives in the memory of its chief figure merely as one of the episodes in a singularly long and varied career of army service.

"But do you not," I asked, "recall sometimes those experiences so filled with drama and fine deeds? Do you not contrast the polar methods of the early pioneering days with the modern efforts to get to the pole by airplane?"

The General brushed aside the implied assumption that he was living in the Arctic past. "I have done other work than Arctic exploring," he said. "We were sent north by the Government to do a certain piece of work and we went. My mind does not dwell on it. It was part of my service as an army officer. I have never done a great thing, nor anything that was planned far ahead. My requisition for the supplies of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition had to be drawn up on 72 hours' notice. It has been my philosophy to do, day by day, the work that came to hand to be done."

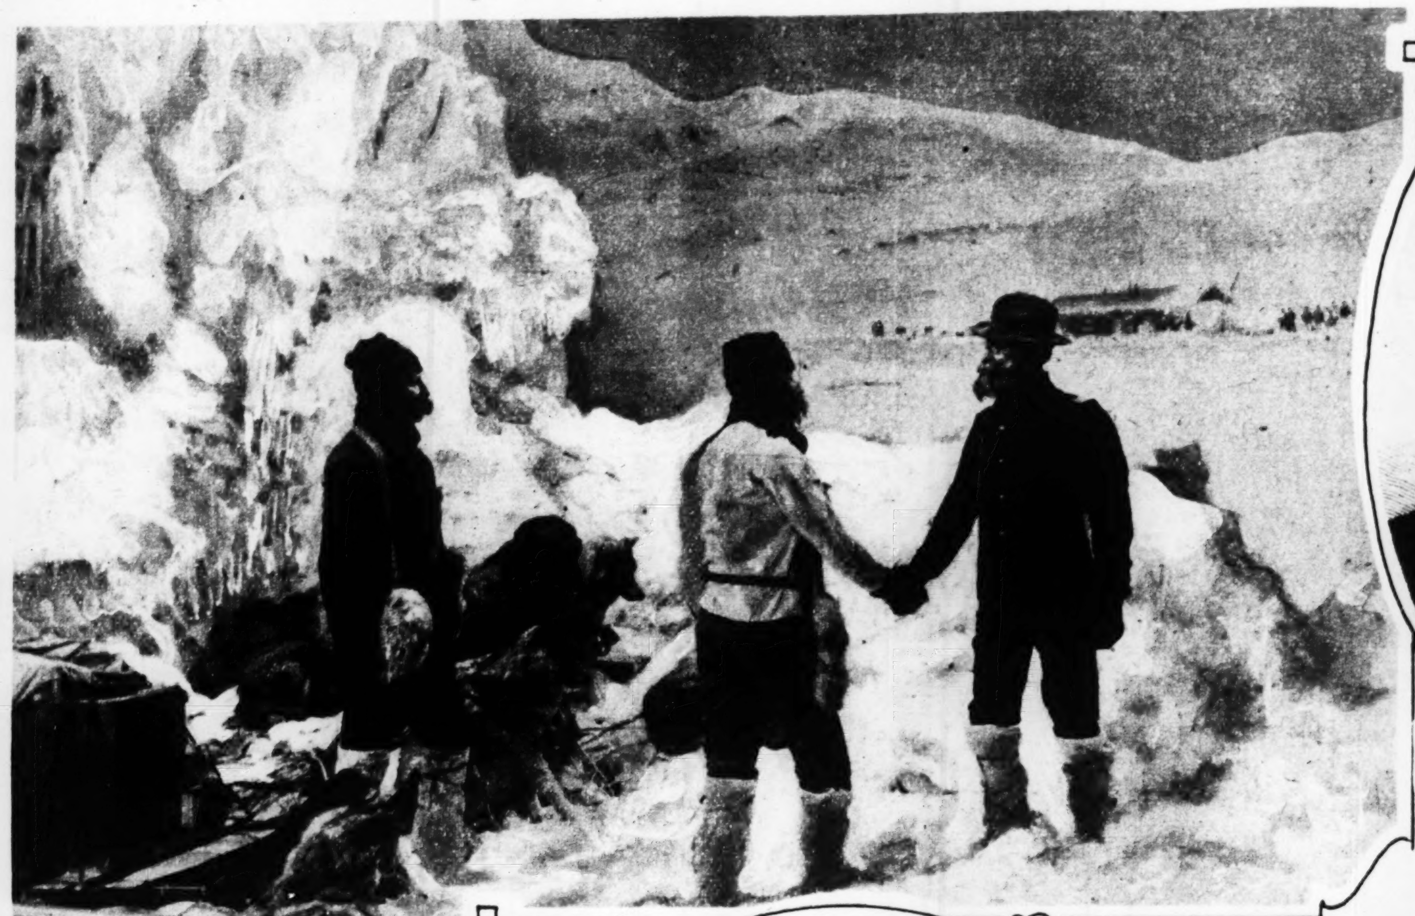
I had read a portion of General Greely's vivid diary, and the execution of Private Henry stood out in my mind as the incident most surcharged with drama. The written recital had the simplicity, the inevitability, of Greek tragedy. As told again by the General, with the woodfire crackling a minor accompaniment, it lost none of those qualities.

WITH a spark of hope still alive, but growing fainter each day, the party had retreated 500 miles by boat to Cape Sabine, on Ellesmere land, and there established winter quarters. They were still 25 in number. They built themselves a winter house, 25 feet long by 17 feet wide, with stone walls three feet high and about six inches in thickness.

Over the top was laid a whaleboat, forming a ridgepole. Oars were used as rafters, and over the whole was stretched a canvas tent and sails for a roof. Two pipes leading through the roof served as chimneys and ventilators. There were no windows, the only source of light being an Eskimo blubber-lamp, which was lighted about an hour each day. Whenever cooking was done, it was necessary to pull out the cloth with which the roof vents were stuffed.

The house was surrounded with an outer wall of snow. To the rescuers, when at last they arrived, the low structure looked like a snow drift rather than a habitation built for 25 men. Entrance was gained, Eskimo fashion, through a tunnel about three feet high and two and half feet wide. Here the party lived for the seven terrible winter months preceding the rescue of the seven survivors. "There was literally no space between us," said General Greely.

What did the Lady Franklin Bay expedition accomplish? Like the MacMillan adventure, it was undertaken, not in an effort to reach the North Pole, but for purposes of scientific investigation and discovery.



INCIDENT at the Arctic camp where Private Henry was executed for stealing food while his comrades starved—a photograph of an exhibit at the Chicago World's Fair. Left to right: Brigadier-General Brainard, then a Sergeant; Lieutenant James B. Lockwood, who died 10 weeks before the rescue; and Major-General Greely, then a Lieutenant.

Greely and his men went to the frozen North, at the command of the War Department, to establish for the United States one of a chain of 13 circumpolar stations, for the taking of scientific observations, recommended by the Hamburg International Geographical Congress of 1879. It was thus an expedition in which there was world-wide interest.

Gen. Greely is not dreaming the years away. He is still at work. Correspondents in all parts of the world keep him informed on international affairs. A portable typewriter in his study at "Hidden House," with a sheet half filled with typing, was visible evidence of his activity. He does his own typing. When he comes down from the mountains for the fall and winter in Washington, he will bring the typewriter with him and keep on working. One of his regular tasks is the compilation of facts relating to exploration in all parts of the world, for publication in an authoritative yearbook.

By way of rounding out the interview, I asked him to tell of his feeling in the face of death on Cape Sabine.

"THERE was no fear of death there. Every night we went to sleep in the knowledge that we might never awake. The was all. We were too accustomed to the presence of death to fear it.

"St. Paul," he added, "said that he died daily. St. Paul never did, but I did. I died daily for three months."

Twelve were living when the tragedy of their besetment in the Arctic ice reached its apex with the execution of Private Charles B. Henry, whose real name, as General Greely records in his diary, was Charles Henry Buck.

"Time has softened the recollection of Henry's wrongdoing," said General Greely. "I should prefer that the story be read in and between the lines of the official reports. But—since you inquire—Henry had been a deserter before he joined the Lady Franklin Bay expedition. I did not know that, of course, or he would never have been taken. Henry repeatedly stole from our supplies and I ordered him shot. We were reduced at that time to the eating of small bits of sealskin, softened in water; lichen gathered from the rocks, and shrimps.

"Sealskin," interpolated the General, in a matter-of-fact tone, "is not bad if it is untanned. It is something like the skin of a chicken. Shoe soles are good; anything of that sort, in fact, is all right if it has not been tanned. The shrimps were so called by our party for want of a better name. They were really a sort of sea-lice, each about the size of a rice kernel. As for water, we didn't use much; we didn't have the fuel to melt the ice with. I used sometimes to thaw out ice on my body so as to give water to a sick man."

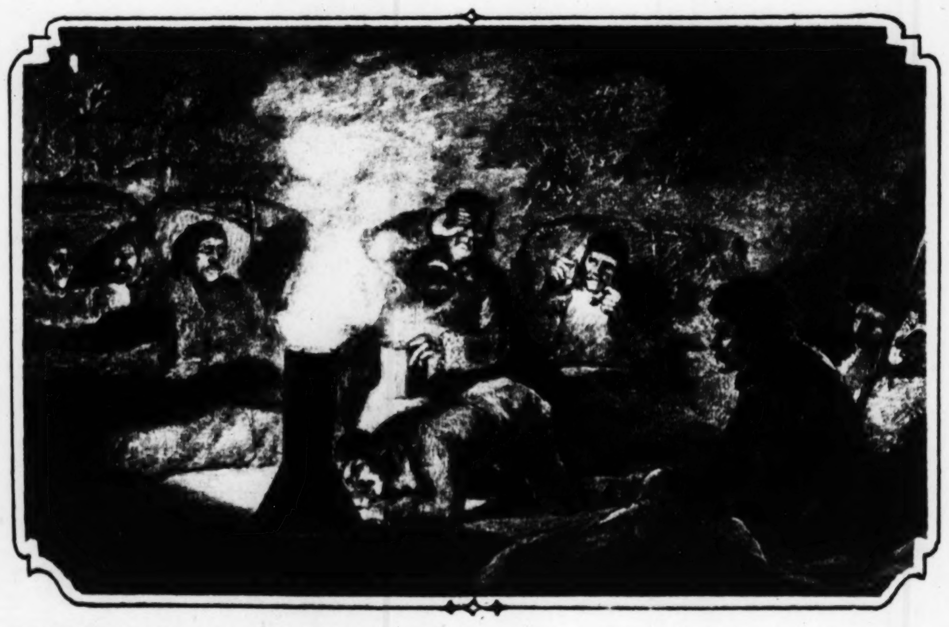
The stark facts as recounted by General Greely in the interview can be filled in from the day-by-day records kept by members of the party. This was the state to which they had come in their fight with the merciless Arctic winter, as revealed in an entry in Greely's diary for June 4, 1884:

> "Our condition grows more horrible each day. No man knows when death is coming, and each has long since faced it unmoved. Each man who has died has passed into the preliminary stages of mental, but never violent wandering, without suspicion that death has marked him."

CORPORAL SALOR had just died of starvation—the thirteenth man of the party so to perish during that winter on Cape Sabine—and the survivors had lacked the strength to bury him. Corporal Elison, one of the strongest and most heroic of the group, lay in his sleeping bag with both hands and both feet frozen off. Greely expected—had expected for three months—to die any day.

All of them were emaciated almost beyond recognition. Those who crawled out from the crowded hut in the hope of obtaining food could not fail to see the graves of their comrades, and the bodies of those lying unburied on the ice.



COOKING TIME in the winter hut, where the tiny store of food was plundered by the largest strongest man in the party. Detected and warned of the consequences, Private Henry continued to steal food.

And Henry was stealing from their pitifully small provisions. He had already been detected in several thefts but had been let off on his earnest promises of reform. He was the strongest man of the party—strong partly because of the food he had stolen. On June 4 Greely made the significant note in his journal:

> "Henry stealing again from our shrimps. Schneider and Bender also suspected. It will be necessary to take some severe action, or the whole party will perish."

On the next day he wrote: "Henry acknowledged again to me that he had been stealing, and I had a long conversation with him, in which I told him that as he had no conscience he might at least have a little common sense; that it was evident that if any of the party survived, it must be through unity and fair dealing, otherwise everybody would perish. He promised to deal fairly in the future, and seemed impressed with my caution that he would come to grief if he did not."

Greely, however, doubted his sincerity, and consequently, on the same day as his interview with Henry, issued the following order to Sergeants Brainard, Frederick and Long:

> Private Henry having been repeatedly guilty of stealing the provisions of this party, which is now perishing slowly by starvation, has so far been condoned and pardoned. It is, however, imperatively ordered that if this man be detected either eating food of any kind not issued him regularly, or making caches or appropriating any article of provisions, you will at once shoot him and report the matter to me. Any other course would be a fatal leniency, the man being able to overpower any two of our present force.
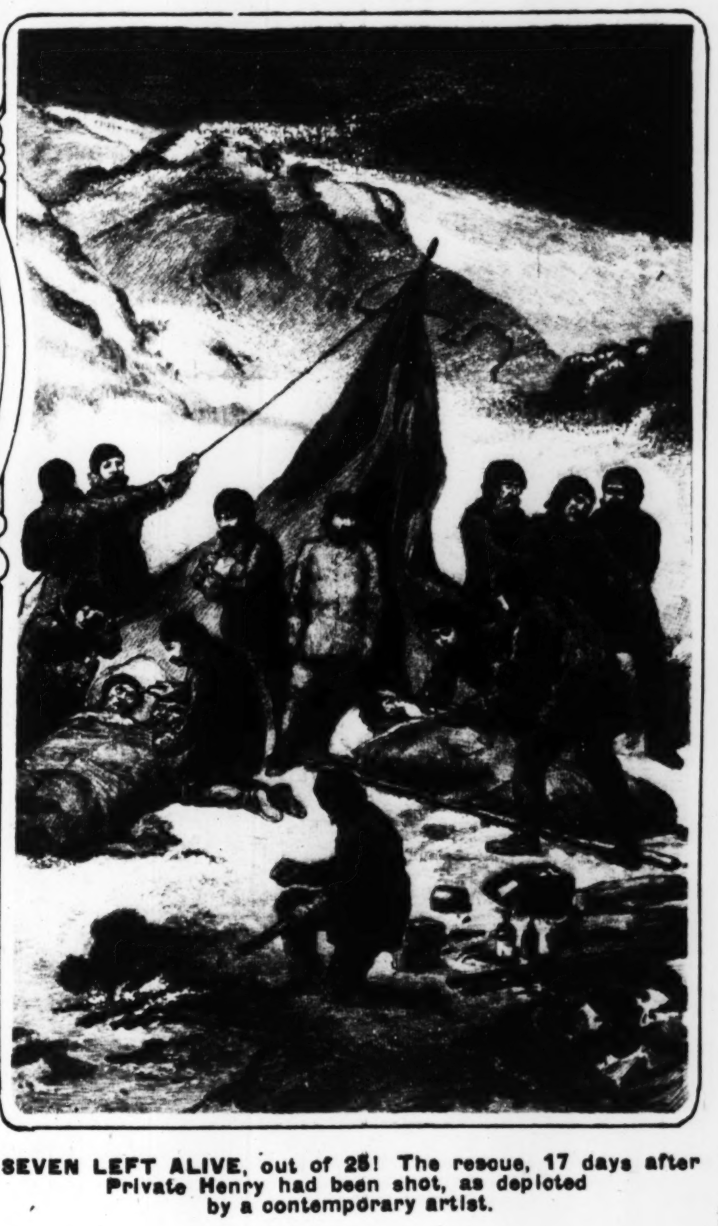
> A. W. GREELY.
> Lieutenant Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A.

Not a day elapsed before Henry was caught stealing shrimps out of the general mess-pot while the cook's back was turned. Later Henry was seen making two trips to the old winter quarters of the party. On his return from the second trip, Greely asked him what he had been doing. He admitted that he had taken from there sealskin thongs for food and that he had also taken and secreted a sealskin.



SEVEN LEFT ALIVE, out of 25! The rescue, 17 days after Private Henry had been shot, as depicted by a contemporary artist.

"He was bold in his admissions," said General Greely, "and showed neither fear nor contrition. I ordered him shot."

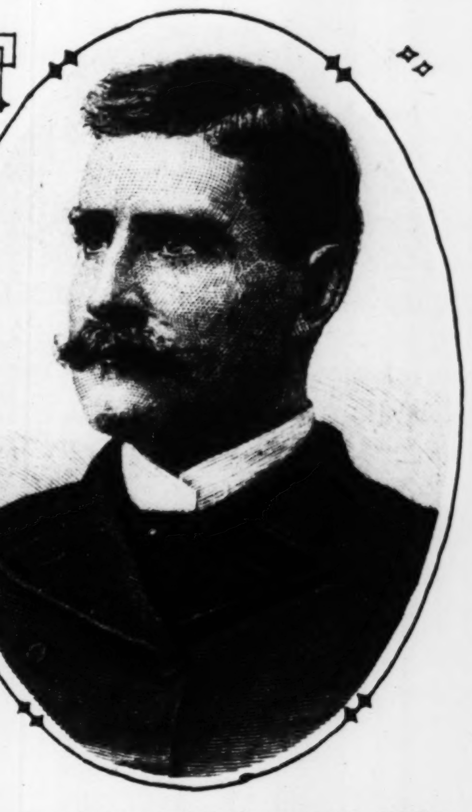
General Greely issued the death warrant printed in the box at the head of this article and Henry was executed, but the manner of his death, as disclosed, was not decided strictly according to the formal order for "two ball and one blank cartridge." Life on Cape Sabine had been stripped down to the elemental necessities.

THE story now may be told by General (then Sergeant) Brainard, the only other surviving member of the expedition. The record shows that Brainard, 27 years old at the time, served with exceptional heroism. Greely's diary is replete with notes about his unremitting efforts, at tremendous hardship to himself, to keep the party supplied with life-saving shrimps. For 70 days Brainard made a daily journey of a mile, past the graves of his comrades, to examine his shrimp nets. These were gunny sacks, baited and sunk in the water. It took from 1200 to 1500 shrimps to make a gill.

Like the chief of the Greely expedition, General Brainard is now a man of remarkable vigor for his years, giving no visible sign of any ill effects from the tortures of hunger and cold on Cape Sabine.

Squarely built and straight as a poker, General Brainard carries his 68 years with a military jauntiness that is accentuated by the upturned ends of his white mustache. His blue eyes are bright and his speech crisp. On seeing General Brainard, it is easy to understand how Greely came to depend on him as his chief support on Cape Sabine.

"Henry," Brainard began, when I interviewed him in his office at Washington, "had stolen from the common provisions of the party. His crime in the circumstances made him a murderer, and I took part in his execution, as ordered by General Greely, with no more compunction than I would show in shooting a mad wolf. Every member of the party agreed that the execution was justified; that, in fact, it was absolutely essential if any of us were to get out alive.



BRIGADIER-GENERAL David L. Brainard when a Sergeant. He is the only survivor of the three Sergeants who called Private Henry out of the hut, took him 150 yards away and shot him.

"AFTER General Greely—or Major, as we called him then, because he had been a Major of volunteers—had issued his order for Henry's death, the three of us named as executioners, Sergeants Long, Frederick and myself, went off by ourselves and held a conference. We went out in the open, leaving the rest in their sleeping bags in the hut. We were so weak at that time, you understand, that no man dragged himself out of his bag unless he had to.

"The three of us agreed that no one except ourselves should ever know who actually killed Henry. There were three weapons available—a .32-caliber rifle, a .45-caliber Remington rifle, and a shotgun in which we used large balls, like buckshot. At first we thought of getting a fourth man to load the three guns—two with blanks and the other with a ball. But fearing that this fourth man, if called into the affair, might in some way discover our secret, we decided to manage the whole thing ourselves. We decided to use the .45 Remington rifle, which was the most efficient gun of the lot, and to draw straws to see who should fire it. The man who got the longest straw was to be the executioner.

"The straws were drawn. Which of us got the longest I have never told, and never shall tell. I do not believe that either of the others—both now dead—ever told.

"It was in the afternoon of June 6, about 2 o'clock. I remember it as one of our blackest days on Cape Sabine. Two other members of the party besides Henry died that day. They died of starvation, while Henry, by his pilfering throughout the winter, had kept himself in good trim. He was a big fellow, 6 feet and 1 inch tall, weighing normally about 200 pounds. General Greely does not exaggerate when he says that Henry could have overpowered any two men in the party. We were so weak that he would have been too much for six of us.

"Armed with the chosen rifle, carried by the man who had got the long straw, we called Henry out of the hut and ordered him to go with us. He did not then know we were to kill him. We took him about 150 yards down from the hill to a point near the old winter house. There we stopped and read to him the order of execution.

"HENRY no sooner divined our intention than he sprang toward an ax that was lying at our feet on the snow. One of us—I am not permitted to say which one—stepped forward and put a foot on the ax. Henry was lunging for the ax when the man with the rifle, standing in front of him, 12 or 15 feet away, fired. The line of fire was across the front of the man who had his foot on the ax, and into Henry's chest. He staggered but did not fall. Another shot was needed. It followed at once. The ball struck Henry in the chest, at about the same place as the first, and he fell dead.

"We then passed the gun from hand to hand, and as each man took the gun he held it aloft and swore to the other two never to reveal who fired the shots.

"We took Henry's body, wrapped it in canvas, carried it from 50 to 100 feet and dropped it into the sea. It was dropped in what we called the 'tidal crack'—the space between the fixed ice at the edge of the land, known as the 'ice-foot,' and the ice floe that rises and falls with the tide. The crack at that point was about two feet across.

"After putting Henry's body away, we went back to the tent and reported to the commander. The order was then read to the assembled party, and all said that no other course could have been pursued."

When Henry's bundles were searched after the execution, considerable quantities of sealskin were found, as well as a pair of sealskin boots which Greely had lent to another member of the party and which had been stolen two nights before. In his pocket was a silver chronograph which he had stolen from Greely's effects.

As soon as Greely could get in touch with the War Department, he made a detailed report of the execution and asked that his action be reviewed by a court of inquiry. In reply, the Secretary of War wrote that in the light of diaries of members of the party, including that of Henry himself, there was no doubt whatever "of the necessity and the entire propriety" of the sentence of death. The Secretary therefore saw no reason for ordering an inquiry.

After the return of the survivors, and the telling of the tragic story, it caused a great sensation throughout the country. Newspapers denounced or praised Greely, according to their views, and sermons were preached on the topic in many pulpits; as a rule, opinion finally upheld the commander.

The story of the rescue, as told by the survivors when they reached the United States, is one of the dramatic incidents in Arctic history. It was late on the night of June 22, with a terrific storm raging, that Greely thought he heard above the gale the sound of a ship's siren. Brainard and Long crawled to the brow of a nearby hill and looked out to sea. They reported to the commander that there was nothing in sight. Presently they heard outside the lusty voices of sailors, who burst into the hut. The rescuers were led by Commander W. S. Schley, destined to win greater fame and the rank of Admiral at Santiago. So ended the long and bitter ordeal.

MISS BROWNE sketched in various poses by Marguerite Martyn at the St. Louis Country Club.

A Real Champion: MARY K. BROWNE

For Three Years Miss Browne Was the Woman's National Tennis Champion.

Now She Is Taking Up Golf and has Made Good Progress Toward the Top.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

AT THE sixteenth hole of the St. Louis Country Club golf course, in the recent Women's National Tournament, stood Mary K. Browne, measuring with her eye the long putt which would give her a par three. Her opponent, Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, a three-times national champion, had pitched her second to within six feet of the pin; she was three up. Miss Browne, not the least bothered because she was on the very verge of defeat, sighted carefully, swung slowly and tapped her ball toward a chance for victory. It struck the cup, wavered, then sank in. Once more this remarkable Californian had risen to the occasion.

But her adversary was a champion, too. Mrs. Fraser set herself carefully to the business of finishing off the match and gaining her fourth national title. With a sure touch she pushed her ball across those disturbing six feet. It sank. The match was over. Mrs. Fraser was on her way toward another championship. And Miss Browne, the subject of this story, was as cheerful and apparently as happy as when, a few hours previously, I had first talked with her.

At that meeting I found Mary Browne to be exactly what I had expected—a truly remarkable person, entirely unconscious of the fact. For it is an unprecedented versatility in sports which is hers—a national champion in tennis and a runner-up to champions in golf. In 1912, 1913 and 1914 Miss Browne held the national women's tennis championship. In 1915 she defaulted the title to Molla Mallory, then Molla Bjerstedt, the muscular invader from Norway. But in 1917, a war year, in which no official contests were held, in exhibition games played for patriotic benefits, Miss Browne won more matches from Mrs. Mallory, then national champion, than Mrs. Mallory won from her. During 26 Red Cross matches the rivals played 540 games, Miss Browne winning 282, Mrs. Mallory 258. Since then and up to the present time Miss Browne's official rank has been high. She now is second among women tennis stars in the United States.

THERE can be no doubt of her superiority on the tennis courts in the past, whether at doubles or singles, on clay or grass courts, for she won titles in every department of the sport, though her highest honor came in singles, which are, of course, the supreme test. She was ready to meet Suzanne Lenglen when the international champion sustained her famous collapse before the American field. Moreover, Miss Browne still is going strong at tennis and expects to enter important matches in the South this winter. She is not without hope that she may one day meet Helen Wills, present national champion, in a decisive battle upon their own mutual stamping ground in California.

Now, during all those years of her unquestioned prowess at tennis, nobody thought of Mary K. Browne as a golfer. She had not taken up golf even desultorily, much less seriously. When she did, along about 1920, she promptly seized the women's golf championship of her native State and last year, entering the national tournament for the first time, finished second, reaching the finals and being defeated only by Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd.

At this year's national meet here at the St. Louis Country Club, though her qualifying score was lower than last year's, indicating that she was playing better golf, as has been told, she went down to defeat.

This defeat may incline one to accord her at least an accurate estimate of her own powers when she modestly said: "It was luck that won me second place in last year's tournament."

However, still young in the game of golf and young in years as golf players go—she is 33—there are more reasons than enough for expecting that the one-time holder of a national tennis championship may yet also become a national golf champion. If ever she does it will be a situation unprecedented in the world of sport. There are good all-around athletes and sportsmen and women, but the champions as a rule are those who concentrate their efforts in one field only.

ASKED why she had broken this rule, Miss Browne made a reply which is said by one authority who has watched her career to be in character with her whole reputation as a good sportswoman—"the most truly sportsmanlike player among all the women tennis stars," as he expressed it.

"I am dividing my interest between two sports so that I shall not be in danger of becoming professionalized," she said. "With many champions it becomes too much a business of winning. They play to win titles and honors rather than for the sake of the sport. You are almost a professional when you devote your whole existence to winning titles. You cannot excel in one sport if you scatter your energies among a number of sports, but I would prefer not to excel than to become professionalized.

"In the interest of sports in general when I took up golf I had a desire to disprove the fallacy that devotion to one sport impairs ability in another," she continued. "It doesn't. Naturally, one cannot excel experts who are devoting their whole lives to perfecting themselves in one direction unless one also devotes one's whole life to perfecting one's self, but I do not play worse golf for having played tennis, nor worse tennis since I've been playing golf, and I enjoy the one game the more for having rested up on the other. It is refreshing to turn from one to the other. One isn't likely to grow stale and bored and fed up. And devoting one's self to sport ought to be the very antithesis of work."

In street clothes Miss Browne doesn't look like the athlete she is.
—Underwood & Underwood.

ACTIONS rather contradict her words when she says that championships cannot be won without exclusive specialization. There are other contradictions about her quite as surprising to the observer.

For you might expect a woman champion in this day and age at least to look the typical picture of a woman athlete, to be big and brawny and masterful, like Molla Mallory, for instance. Such is not the case with the subject of this sketch. She is short and slight and her presence is anything but commanding. She is five feet three inches tall and weighs 120 pounds. Her feet attract attention, they are so small and slim and arched, not at all the sort you expect to find in flat-soled golf shoes.

Flitting about the Country Club lounge after she had changed to a girlish frock of white crepe, with her hair shingled like a boy's, she might easily have been mistaken for a sub-deb. Seated among the couch cushions she was not at all formidable in an interview. She smiled continuously, refusing to be taken too seriously, and blushed once or twice as if it were a new experience. Her voice was rather hoarse from the effects of a recent operation for tonsilitis. And here was another bit of contradictory evidence. Bulletins are issued when a ball player or prizefighter undergoes a surgical operation, but it was news to me, and has not appeared elsewhere in print that I know of, that Miss Browne had within the month preceding the national golf meet, spent ten days in a hospital recovering from having her tonsils removed, the ten days being subtracted from the six weeks she had set aside for instruction and training preparatory to meeting the best women golf players in the country.

I could imagine this small, spry person excelling at tennis, where nimbleness, speed, quickness of eye and brain are prime essentials, but at golf, where great strength for the long drives and great deliberation as well as skill and accuracy are required, I really wondered how one so slight, so animated, one whose words trip over one another, so rapidly does she talk, fulfilled the more conservative requirements of golf.

"Oh, I have the muscle necessary, if that were all," she said in response to my query. And sure enough, her shoulders, which had escaped me bulging through her thin sleeves, were evidence of the power she must necessarily possess, developed no doubt in the overhand service at tennis which she was one of the first women players to adopt.

"I used to think golf was a slow poky old person's game," she remarked. "I once wrote an article upon the superiority of tennis over golf, dwelling upon how tennis brings into play the more essential physical resources of speed, skill, accuracy, endurance, quickness of eye and judgment. Then I took up golf and in due time I wrote the publisher a letter asking that I be allowed to write another article contradicting everything I had said before, telling how I had found golf required skill and judgment, sensitiveness and accuracy, endurance, control and lots of good nerve, the same as tennis."

SHE spoke of the merits of the Country Club course as especially suited to a woman's game, since the drives are not long and yet the hazards call for all the best that is in the player in the way of placing. And she spoke of the wonderfully matched field for the national meet; how women are playing better golf, as evidenced by the low qualifying scores they made. I was sorry not to be able authoritatively to discuss with her the technical secrets and fine points of her own games and the comparative merits of both the sports with which she is identified; but it seemed to me this record-breaker is interesting enough as an individual.

The circumstance under which she happened to become an adept at sports is explained by the fact that she grew up out of doors in sunny California and in an atmosphere rife with championships. Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, a world tennis champion, was her neighbor, friend and preceptor at tennis.

Far from being a professional sportswoman Miss Browne has another very serious profession—that of sociology. For years in Los Angeles and in Chicago she has worked among the poor. Wherever she goes, quite naturally society seeks to lionize so conspicuous a representative of the world of play, only to find that she is far more interested in the doings of the working people who rarely gain opportunity for wholesome recreation. In preference to social entertainments she always, when there is time to spare, asks to be taken to visit the social settlements in the community.

This winter she is to enjoy her first real fling at indoor recreation, she told me, when she expects to spend two months in New York, "seeing good plays and hearing good music and taking some literary courses at Columbia University." Whether she regards study as recreation or not I do not know, but her eyes sparkled as eagerly at this prospect as at that of the theater.

Meanwhile during this interview she had been postponing her luncheon in order to keep her appointment with me—though it was now 2 o'clock and she had not eaten since 6 that morning. Which bespoke a patience and a faithfulness to her word—but further evidence of good sportsmanship.

FOLLOWING her defeat here by Alexa Stirling Fraser in what was spoken of as the feature match of the day, Miss Browne declared she had nothing for which to apologize, no alibi. Mrs. Fraser was playing her best, everybody admitted that, and our Women's-Hope-for-a-Double-Championship refused to acknowledge that she had not also played her best.

Sport writers commented that Miss Browne's faults were those peculiar only to the newer players of golf, that she lacked a steadiness of form that is always a matter of years of training and practice.

They predicted that with all the other attributes of sportsmanship already hers and more than half the battle already won, Mary K. Browne may yet be the first double champion, the first holder of the two most dearly sought titles in the world of amateur sport.

CHART of Gus Bishop's daily life. From his home (upper left-hand corner) he would walk each day to his shop in the court house square, stopping at the three stores to visit (route shown by black line.) At night he would walk back. Four times a year he would cross the square to the bank. Once he went to depot (shown at bottom.) And once he walked as far as his college (upper right.) He never took a step in any other direction.

Here is the reverse of the usual magazine story. This man is worth reading about simply because the list of things he NEVER did is longer and more remarkable than the average man's list of accomplishments.

By HARRY R. BURKE.

GUS BISHOP, who died in Liberty, Missouri, last month at the age of 71, deserves a niche in the Hall of Fame for the things he never did. He never married. He never owned a phonograph, contenting himself with his French harp and his piccolo. He had never used a telephone. He had never ridden on a street car or passenger train. He had never been on a steamboat. He had never seen the Missouri River but once—although Liberty Landing is only four miles from the town where he was born. He never chewed gum. He never tasted ice cream. He never used tobacco and never did he drink intoxicating liquor. There were but two adventures in his life.

On the morning of St. Valentine's Day, 1866, he had seen the border outlaws hold up the Clay County Savings Bank in the town of Liberty and thereby inaugurate the new profession of daylight bank-robbing. And in 1871 he had visited Kansas City. He saw four-story buildings there and his neck got tired from craning up to look at them. Also, there were too many people on the street. They made him nervous. Gus returned to Liberty to regain a sense of freedom. Never again in his life did he step a foot off the soil of old Clay County, where he was born.

Gus never saw a skyscraper. He never rode in a passenger elevator. Only once—then a friend had tricked him into it—did he take a ride in a motor car before his last ride in a hearse. Naturally, he had never ridden in an airplane. This was not without reason, for Gus was a bit by way of being a philosopher. "God made man with feet," he'd say, "so he could walk. That was His intention. If He'd wanted us to fly He'd have given us wings. If He'd wanted us to dash about like these automobiles do He'd have tacked wheels on our feet."

GUS died in the town where he was born, in the house which had been his home from childhood, in the little room that had been his own as a baby and remained his until he was carried out of it.

His traveled friends had often told him of far-distant places. He would listen curiously, courteously, as though these were wonder tales which he could hardly understand. He might have answered as Candide answered the philosopher Pangloss: "That is all very well, but let us cultivate our garden." His was a little garden, where Friendship grew—and Remembrance. Each day he made his way two blocks to the courthouse square to visit the old friends in business there. Always he journeyed by the streets that bound the west and south sides of the intervening block—never by the north and east. Although he was educated at William Jewell College, which is down the street—or up if you prefer, for a gentle swale intervenes—just four blocks from the square, he had never set a foot within the portals of his alma mater from that day in 1869 when as a boy of 15 he set out, sheepskin in hand, to conquer the world. There were dozens of streets, there were scores of buildings in the town of Liberty that Gus had never seen.

He would talk sometimes of visiting St. Louis. It was a lifetime's dream, but in the end Gus was always too busy. "After all," he'd say, "why should I go down there to look at the skyscrapers when I can see the stars right here at home?"

So he lived and died. The Rev. Fred V. Loss was Gus Bishop's friend and once took the nevelist Opie Reed to see him. The humorist studied Liberty's Master Stay-at-Home through an hour of conversation. "Humph!" he said as they departed. "Compared to Gus Bishop the Rock of Gibraltar is a gadabout and the Pyramid of Cheops is a Wandering Jew."

That might serve the man as an epitaph; but a better was spoken by the Rev. Mr. Loss when he preached the funeral sermon. "He counted all men honest, each woman virtuous and everyone his friend."

And that was true.

EIGHTY years have passed since the steamboat berthed at Liberty Landing which brought the German cobbler, A. F. Bishop, up the Missouri River. In Liberty he stayed, unpacking his household things, his lapstone, his awl, his hammer and his lasts and setting up a shop in that bustling frontier town. Just off the southeast corner of the square he built a log cabin—torn down four years ago—in which his son Gus was born on February 7, 1854.

Here was this boy, then, born into the very heart, as one might say, of the great West's epic. His blood must have tingled at the stories of the pioneers. To his father, of Bavarian stock, hard work and thrift were better than the lure of land or gold at the rainbow's end. Finding opportunity he was content. Tapping over his lapstone with measured rhythms from early dawn to twilight A. F. Bishop got ahead. Seven children came to his home and none went hungry. He bought the old brick house. He owned a lot or two with a frame building on the north side of the square. He had one slave. He purchased a little farm in the Roosterville country. He raised his own hemp, his own flax, his own wool and his tobacco. The tobacco went up in smoke, but the Bishops did not burn it. The flax became linen, the wool was woven into cloth. There are still old spinning wheels in the homes of Liberty and old handlooms, too. To the day of his death Gus Bishop wore a suit of homespun cloth woven and tailored by his sister. Liberty never saw him in anything else. "Paw used to wear that kind," he'd say. The Arrow Collar man would have smiled from his magazine page at Gus Bishop's gear, but Gus Bishop was content. He knew his father would have given him approval. To the day of his death the consciousness of "Paw's" approval meant a lot to Gus.

MANIFESTLY, as a youth he had ambitions. One was to be an actor. In the days of "home talent" dramas, Gus was cast for the role of Abraham Lincoln in a melodrama built about the tragedy of the martyr President. A man more unlike Lincoln would be hard to find. Gus Bisbop was a little less than medium height, had a smooth face, blue eyes and a pink smooth skin, with a large nubbin of a rounded nose, a firm straight mouth and a determined chin. "Buck" George, who was small and slim and dark and saturnine, had been cast for J. Wilkes Booth in the play.

A tent had been pitched on the hill for the performance. The stage curtain was made of two old carpets. The box in which the President sat was a drygoods box that had been draped with flags. With catlike tread the assassin stole up behind the President. The audience held its breath.

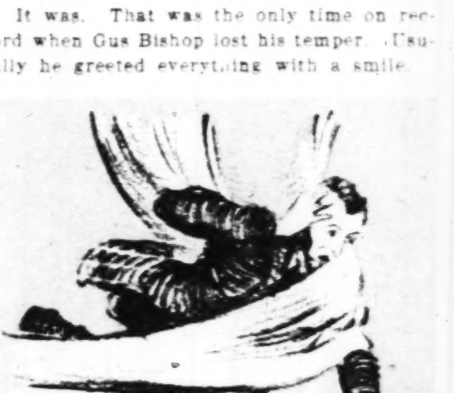
John Murray, then editor of the Liberty Tribune, had loaded the old cap and ball pistol—which was not to have any ball. Unknown to the hero or the villain he'd rammed a bean down in the barrel.

"Sic semper tyrannis," cried Wilkes Booth, and fired.

The martyred President jumped clear out of the drygoods box. He dashed from the stage and took its curtain with him.

"The damned show's over," he cried.

It was. That was the only time on record when Gus Bishop lost his temper. Usually he greeted everything with a smile.



HIS schooling was at William Jewell College, which overlooks the town, its stern white classic pillars rising full three stories in the recessed entrance to Old Main. Then, its students wore boots and jeans and hickory shirts. Today, the campus is studded with yellow-slickered freshmen in tiny caps of green. There Gus Bishop learned his "three R's" before the Civil War. During the war Old Main was a Government hospital. When peace came there were readjustments. Gus went back to school again and finished his studies in 1869. It was different—in token of the change the authorities had taken to locking the college doors at night.

One night in 1870 Gus climbed the hill to his alma mater and tried the door and found it locked. He never went back again. Some folks think it was because, being shy and sensitive, he thought he wasn't wanted there. More likely 'twas because he didn't see utility in such a visit. He didn't do things unless he could see a reason.

He opened his barber shop when he was but 16. The first year out of school he had been apprenticed to Liberty's barber, an old German, for whom his job was to clean the shop and get the boss his can of beer. Gus took a German pride in his craftsmanship. He liked to tell, in later years, of the good old days when the he-men of this country all wore whiskers. Smooth-shaven himself he was proud of the trims he gave the other fellows. Proud also of his technique as dyer of their beards. Many a virile black full-bosomed whisker of the '70s and '80s owed its magnificence to Gus Bishop's skill.

The shop was upstairs in his father's building on the north side of the square. There today are stored the fixtures—a narrow carven walnut chair, with slanting but immovable back and swan's neck arms that end in little birdheads. It was upholstered in red plush with white-topped tacks. The foot-rest, like a prayer bench, was a separate piece. The long, narrow mirror was gay with gilt and carving. He never changed from these nor would he put in modern plumbing. Each morning he brought from the cistern at his home a little tin bucket of rainwater to use on his customers. Each morning he carried from the well in the courthouse yard another tin bucket of water for drinking purposes. Both these things he continued to do long after all business had departed from his shop.

At 7 in the morning he opened the shop door, never varying from the time an instant. In his shop he stayed until 11 and then went home. At 1 p. m. he was back among his razors. At 4 he turned in the lock the big flat key which folded in its middle like a razor. Always he walked away just 15 steps and then went back to try the lock. He never found it open.

Henry, his brother, whom the town called "Neighbor," had fallen heir to the father's shoemaking tools and had his cobbler's shop in the back of his brother's "tonsorial parlors," for that was the high-falutin' name of a barber shop in those old days. After "Neighbor" died in 1902 Gus fixed old shoes in his idle time.

For there was idle time. He confessed to the Rev. Mr. Loss, before he closed the shop for good a dozen years ago, that he had just three customers whose hair he cut each year. "And when the third comes in in the spring," he said, for the three were farmers, "I know the hair-cut crop is over."

Yet he managed always to be busy. "I haven't time," he'd say, when some friend asked him to take a ride. Jim Bivens, about 10 years ago, inveigled Gus into a carriage seat beside him and kidnaped the barber. On that famous ride Gus saw the C., B. & Q. depot, which lies just three blocks south of the southwest corner of the square. The "Q" had built through Liberty back in '72, but Gus had never had any business at the depot, so he hadn't seen it. To the day he died he had not seen the Milwaukee station, built 40 years before.

Some thirty years ago he said to the Rev. Mr. Loss: "I'd like to go to St. Louis by boat. How far is it?"

"About 225 miles."

"Pretty big town?"

"Yes indeed."

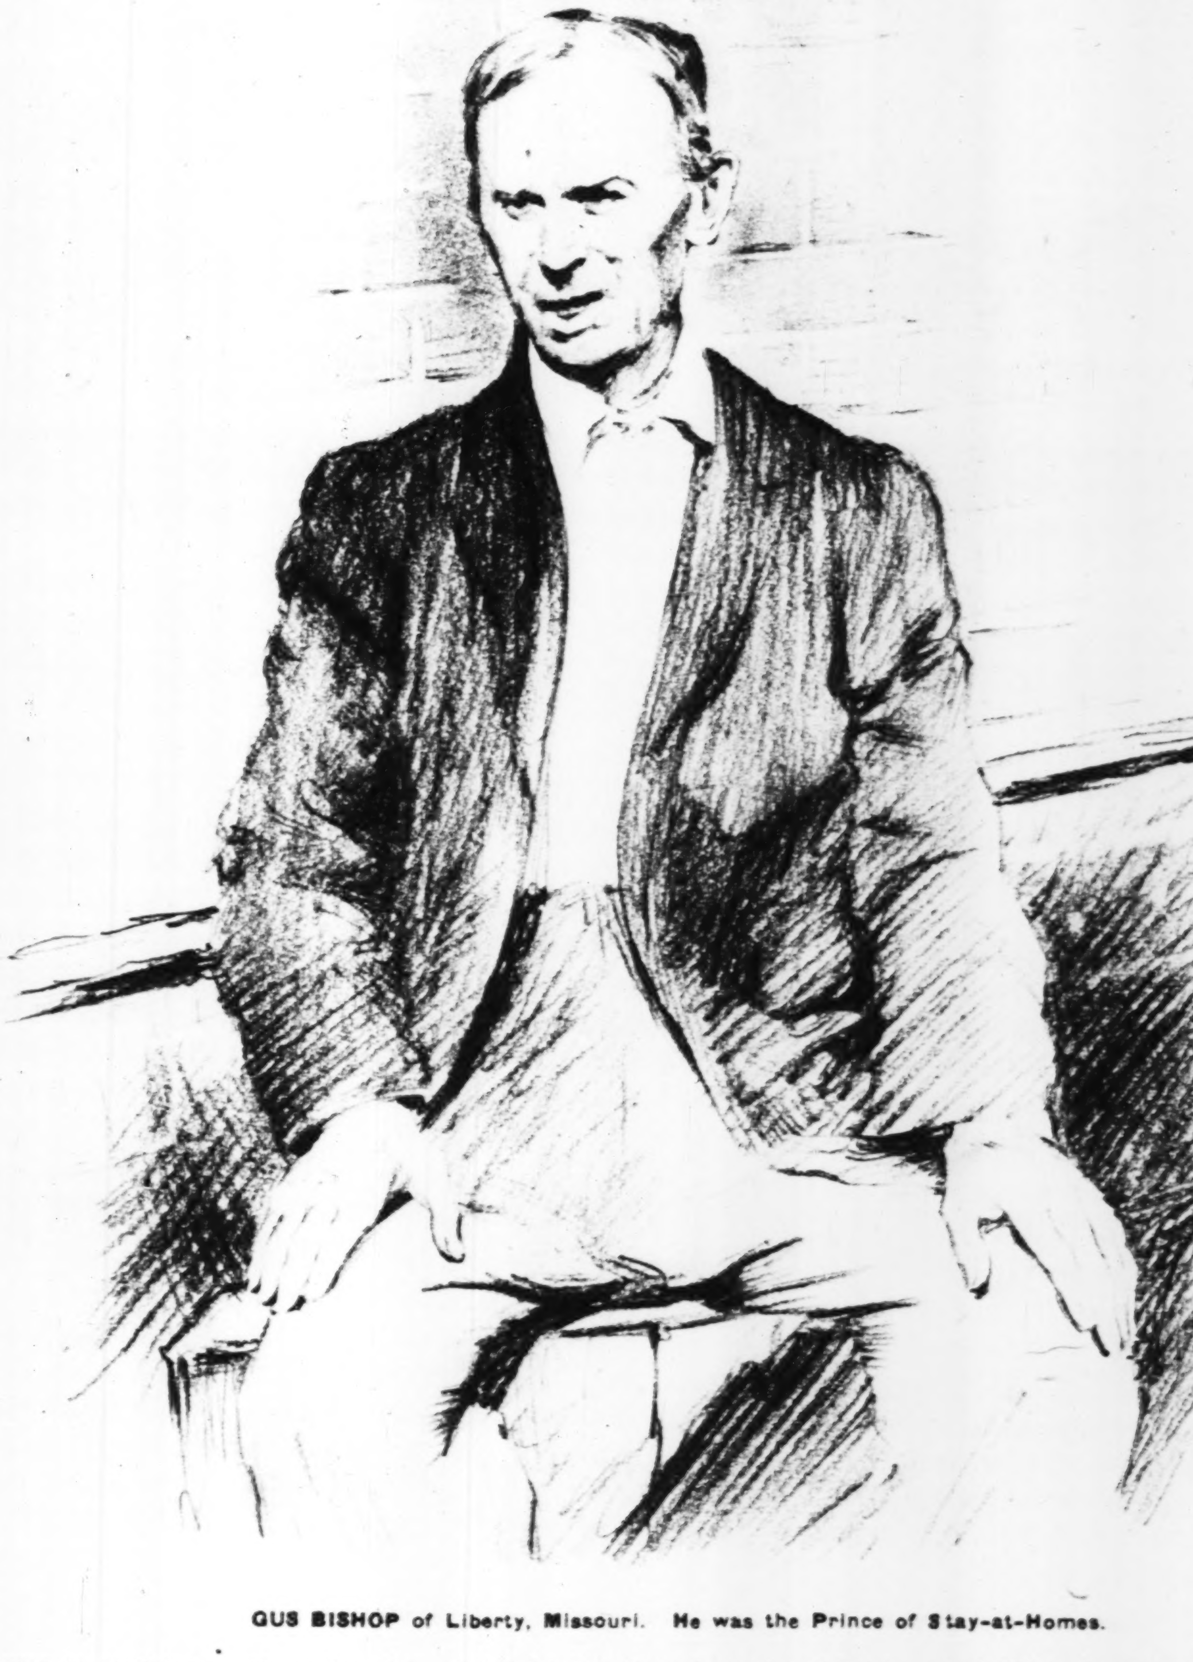
"Hundreds of people on the streets?"

"Thousands," the minister answered.

"Could I see it all in one day?"

"Hardly. Not in several."

Gus Bishop looked perplexed. "Two hundred and twenty-five miles, you say? That's a long way and I'm pretty busy now. Besides, I don't come from a seafaring family."



GUS BISHOP of Liberty, Missouri. He was the Prince of Stay-at-Homes.

Other small-town barber shops are a gossip center for men. Gus Bishop's never was. He never knew, he couldn't believe, he wouldn't repeat, a word of scandal. All men were honest, as he saw them, except that some would lie. He hated liars. "I don't believe," said Mr. Loss, "Gus ever told a lie. It wasn't because he believed honesty the best policy. It just never had occurred to him he could." Similarly he knew but just one kind of women—the kind his mother and his sisters were. And stories they could not have heard were never told in Bishop's barber shop.

He liked women. He even liked to be teased about them, just a little. He was as shy as a girl if women were mentioned and if you teased him he'd blush a bit and laugh and move away. "Once," he confessed to Pastor Loss, "I knew a mighty good woman. That was long long ago." In his voice was the gentle echo of some poignant regret.

That, then, was the romance of his life. "He never told us even her name," said his sister, Miss Flora Bishop, who survives him. "It was years after before we even heard of it. Then he used to say he'd give a lot to have a photograph of a girl he once had known. But she was a schoolgirl when he knew her. And afterward she died."

He kept his secret forever—even from the one he loved. But one can see him, a gentle, blue-eyed, gawky boy, sensitive and shy, and imagine him upon the street that day when a vision of loveliness overcame him, a winsome miss in ruffled crinoline and pantalets, with great brown eyes and curls that peeped from underneath her bonnet. He would look, and yearn, and boyishly would hold his peace, believing that such beauty was unattainable. In silence he would worship from afar. But before advancing manhood had given him courage that he might speak, gray death had chilled her beauty.

SO HE lived on, his longing transmuted by the years into the wisdom of contentment. He'd potter about his home, then go each day up to the square to visit his married sister, Mrs. Kate Fischer, and then in turn Joe Simmons' drug store, Wad's shoe shop, Pennington's butcher shop and W. W. Whiteside's jewelry store. If he failed one day he'd come the next with an apology. "I was feeling poorly yesterday. I just couldn't get uptown."

Those places are on the west and north sides of the square, which lies like a shelf on the hillside. In the square is the curious and quaint old courthouse, its dome surmounted by the Goddess of Justice, blinded and with her scales. From each corner of the square central portion of the building a square addition juts out, making the structure in the form of the letter "X." At the southeast corner of the square is the Citizens' Bank. Four times a year Gus Bishop crossed over there to clip interest coupons.

On that Saturday when Gus Bishop failed to come uptown Buck George went down to see his friend. "I don't believe he'll ever get up," he said, when he returned. But on Sunday Gus walked up once more to the west and north sides of the square. He was tired that night when he laid down. Next morning he didn't want to get up. His sister brought him breakfast. He was dead.

STEVENSON wrote of such a man in "Will o' the Mill." Through the long years Will had never stirred from his childhood's scene. "Bit by bit he had pieced together broken notions of the world below; of cities full of brisk and beautiful people, playing fountains, bands of music and marble palaces, and lighted up at night from end to end with artificial stars of gold; of great churches, wise universities, brave armies and untold money lying stored in vaults." But one night a visitor called on Will o' the Mill in his garden.

"You shall come with me for a turn in my barouche," said the visitor.

"You need not think," Will answered, "that I am a stay-at-home because I fear anything under God. God knows I am tired enough of it all and when the time comes for a longer journey than you ever dream of I reckon I shall be prepared."

"The time has come," the other answered solemnly. "You have seen what there is to be seen about your mill; you have sat close all your days like a hare in its form. But now that is at an end."

"You are a strange physician," said Will, who believed his caller was a doctor.

"I am a natural law and people call me Death."

"Why did you not tell me so at first?" cried Will. "I have been waiting for you these many years. Give me your hand and welcome."

There was a smile of welcome on Gus Bishop's face that Monday morning.

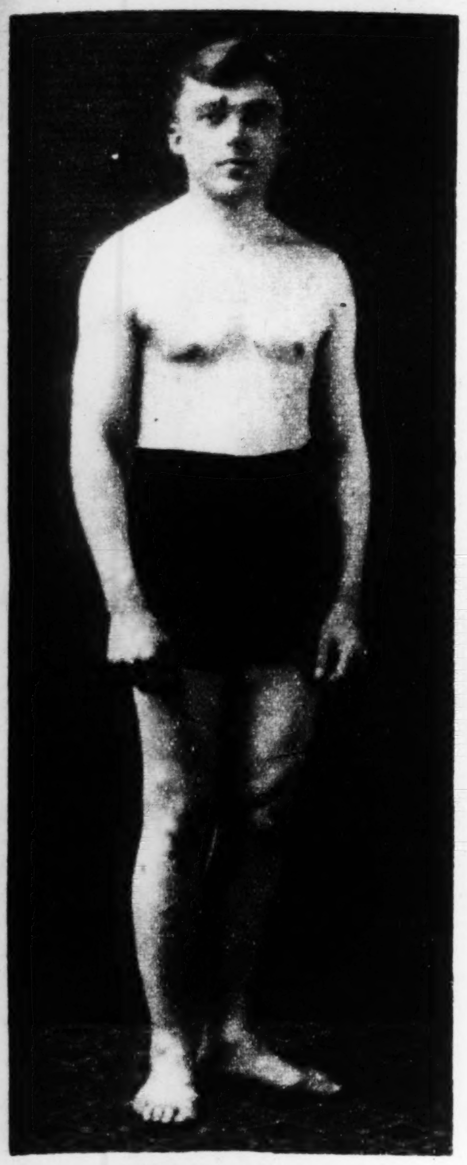
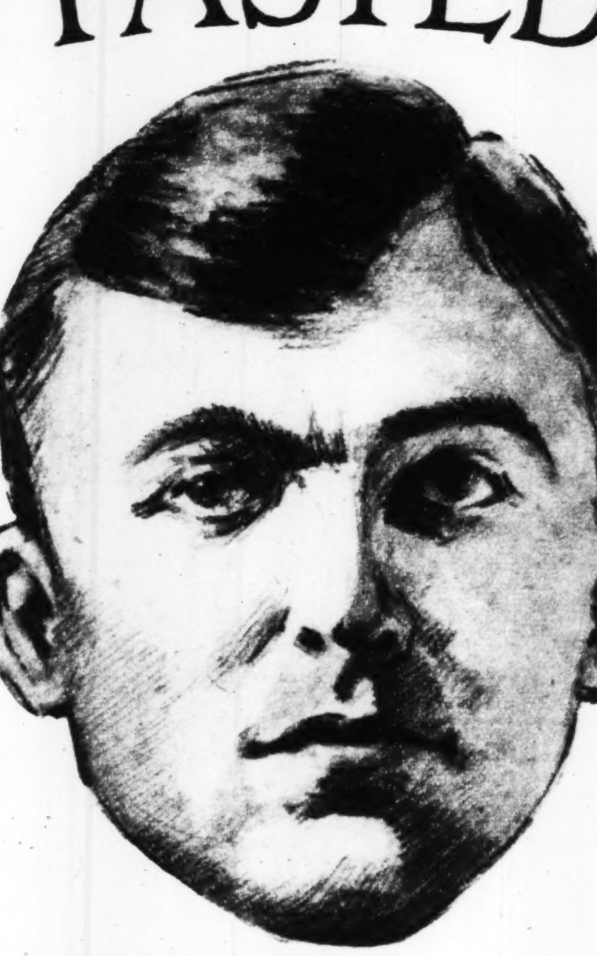
He Has FASTED 33 Days



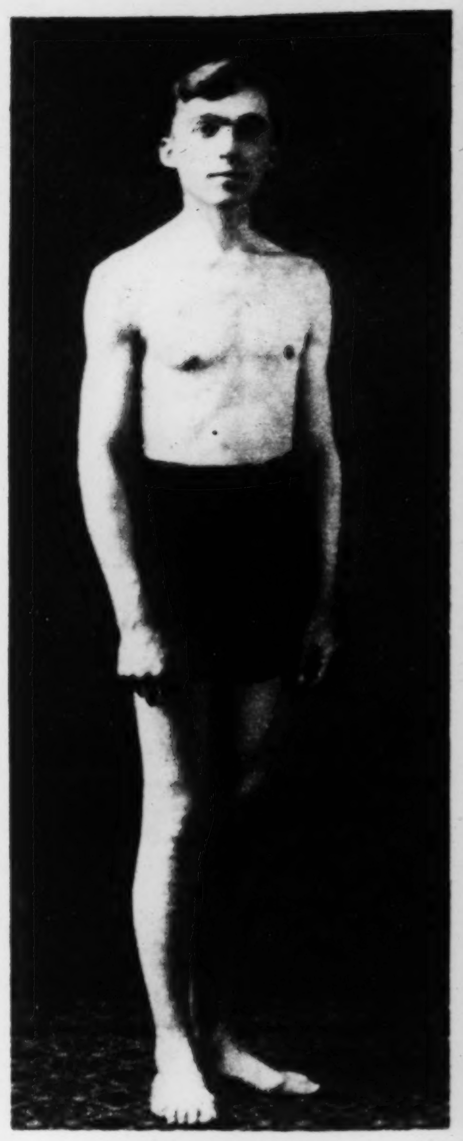
BEFORE the fast.

The longest fast ever made has just been completed.



FREDERICK HOELZEL, of the University of Chicago, has broken all records for fasting.

This scientist believes fasting is certain to lengthen life.



AFTER the fast.

HE HAD eaten some oranges, a pint and a half of red raspberries with a half-pint of cream, two pounds of porterhouse steak and some coffee. He had walked three miles. "Thus," wrote Frederick Hoelzel in his diary for June 30 of this year, "endeth a perfect day." A great day—the first in over four weeks on which he had eaten food. Hoelzel, who is a lay scientist working with the University of Chicago, had just completed a fast of 33 days—the longest of which there is scientific record.

But the perfect day just ended was only a beginning. For 33 days he was to eat again and appetite, not conscience, was his guide. On the eleventh of those 33 feasting days his food was one pound of round steak, one pound of halibut, one pound of salmon, one pound of shrimp, two pounds of tomatoes, two small heads of cauliflower, one pint of cream, over a half a pound of butter, four cantaloupes, one pineapple, two bars of milk chocolate and some coffee.

After the feasting period a fast again. Once more he went 33 days without food. On the twenty-fourth day of the second fast he walked from his home at 415 South Robey street, Chicago, to the Congress Hotel to see the writer. His cheeks were sunken and the bony structure of that firm determined eager face showed through. His obviously bony frame at that time suggested the skeleton of a circus tumbler. But he was full of energy and enthusiasm.

During his fast Frederick Hoelzel kept a diary of his experiences, his reactions, his condition. That record, save for the purely scientific data it includes, is given here. The fast started May 27 last, ended on June 30, and is described by Hoelzel thus:

OFFICIAL RECORD OF FAST.

FIRST DAY—Day passed perhaps easier than any other first day without food. No distinct hunger at any time during day.

Second Day—Yawned a good deal afternoon and evening. Began to weaken a little. Stride is less natural. Arms tire holding newspaper. Went to a movie which I liked but became tired sitting it out. No distinct desire for food and felt good enough to whistle to myself when retiring.

Third Day—Walked four miles. The rapid fatigue I feel in fasting is always due to straining myself or keeping in one position for a long time. To leisurely walk a few miles, taking short steps, is a wholesome diversion.

Fourth Day—Enjoyed a vaudeville in the afternoon. More impressed by the emotional element in music and song than ordinarily. Hot weather (95 deg.) seems favorable to fasting. Did not enjoy a movie. A little weaker.

Fifth Day—Walked five miles. Somewhat more interested in food displays but cannot say I was annoyed by hunger. On the whole fasting is easier than during any previous experience of similar length.

Sixth Day — Increasingly difficult to find a restful position in bed. I don't think 15 days of fasting would be much of an ordeal but shrink at the thought of 25, though I would like to make it 35. Enjoyed a movie. Don't like to hear G. (the man who fasted 15 days with me) constantly talking about food for it directs too much attention to the fact that one is not eating. Such talk might go well toward the end of a fast. Not distinctly hungry at any time during the day, but I was genuinely impressed by the sight of a dirty old slice of ham I noted on the pavement in an alley. I had an instinctive impulse to pick it up. The sight of a $10 bill lying there could hardly have made my eyes pop further out of my head.

Seventh Day—Lost 10 pounds thus far. Probably felt better than yesterday but in some sense weaker and lazier.

Eighth Day—Continue to note marked tendency to yawn at tedious scientific tests. Walk with much better stride.

Ninth Day—Left ear tends to roar on breathing deeply and in talking. (The woman who fasted 10 days had similar trouble.) Until 3 p. m. felt better than for last few days and thought I might be able to fast 40 days, but changed my mind when I felt decidedly weaker in the evening. Sense of smell has become decidedly keen. Practically no sensation of "hunger" but food begins to be more interesting in a certain deep sense.

Tenth Day—Felt unusually good except for expected weakness. Even my mother did not deplore my fasting as she did so often previously. Walked over four miles with steadier step.

Eleventh Day — Enjoyed vaudeville much in the afternoon, but felt exhausted immediately after. Went to "Bug House" Square in search of diversion, but there was nothing doing. Walked five miles and went to a movie. I am progressively weakening but cannot complain of pain, hunger or weakness of any kind which is intolerable. Do not dream of food as much as I had expected from previous experience.

Twelfth Day — Practically fainted but did not lose consciousness after blood was taken from under arm for tests. The veins are shrunken and the tissues rather loose, making it hard to pass needles used for blood-taking into the blood vessels. Recovered easily after being taken to a cot. Stride fairly good. Went to a movie in the evening.

Thirteenth Day—Less affected by sight or smell of food or by hearing talk about it than a few days ago. Sense of smell quite keen. Feel the cool weather sharply and was glad to get to a hot stove in the evening. Today it looks as if I might make over 30 days of fasting.

FIFTEENTH DAY—Dreamed about food but not vividly. I seem to be figuring more and more on when the fast will end and whether I can equal or exceed Levanzin's record.

Sixteenth Day—Mother and sisters note I have become very thin but make no other unfavorable comment. Food looks and smells very good. Walked four miles. Still hope to fast 35 days.

Eighteenth Day—Dreamed of writing about fasting after reading on the subject before retiring. Preferred to stay home and read rather than go to a movie.

Twentieth Day—I judge I have reached about the lowest energy level likely to be reached even with further fasting.

Twenty-second Day—Unquestionably developing an increasing interest in eating. Candy and pastry displays (with the exception of chocolates) make no appeal to me but the odor of meats is highly attractive.

Twenty-third Day—Less inclined to exert myself in mental tests. Folks comment on my thin facial appearance but otherwise seem favorably impressed.

Twenty-fourth Day—Went to a vaudeville thinking I was in better mood to enjoy it than last week, but did not like it. Walked about five miles afterward, feeling fairly good after getting home. There just seems to be nothing which can excite more than a dull momentary interest today aside from food. Sex interest is apparently entirely gone, although a very beautiful girl still looks beautiful. But between a beautiful girl and a dirty piece of scrap meat or a bit of cheese in an alley the latter excite a keener interest.

Twenty-sixth Day—Comments on how thin I am are increasing, but general condition seems a surprise to all. Have little doubt of passing Levanzin's mark.

Twenty-seventh Day—Dreamed of food and farming among other things. Still tendency for ears to roar. Walked about six miles and went to a movie. Did not think much of food during the day.

Twenty-eighth Day—Dreamed of dog featured in last night's movie and of food. Was raining and cool, but weather did not trouble me. Bought a few second-hand books for reading at home in case bad weather prevents walks.

Twenty-ninth Day—Rather glad the end of the fast is drawing near. Would prefer to find excuses for shortening the remaining time than for lengthening it. Rain and cool weather prevent walking early in the day. Stayed by fire till rain stopped when I walked four miles. Day passed easily.

Thirtieth Day—Must take it easy for the first hour or so after rising to keep from fainting. Walked about five miles. To the movie in the evening. Odors (meaty) from delicatessen stores seem to make the keenest appeal thus far.

Thirty-first Day—Dreamed of shoveling snow and other things. Professor Carlson took me for a spin in his car, but it was too cool to enjoy the ride. Passed the stockyards purposely on the way home to evaluate the smells. Keenly appreciated the odors from the smokehouse (hams, bacon, etc.) but never was more offended by the putrefactive stench from fertilizer and rendering plants.

Thirty-second Day—How good was the smell of frying bacon at my mother's. Walked six miles and went to a public lecture in the evening. Am eager for the end. With 36 hours to go the time seems interminably long. With the exception of my legs I am like a skeleton. Don't seem to feel any satisfaction in having fasted longer than Levanzin. Cannot say that I am in discomfort, but I certainly miss the energy necessary to do things and simply want to eat rather than enjoy the smell of food.

Thirty-third Day—Bought half a dozen oranges to start off tomorrow. Nauseated after drinking some warm water. Fear orange juice tomorrow may nauseate me.

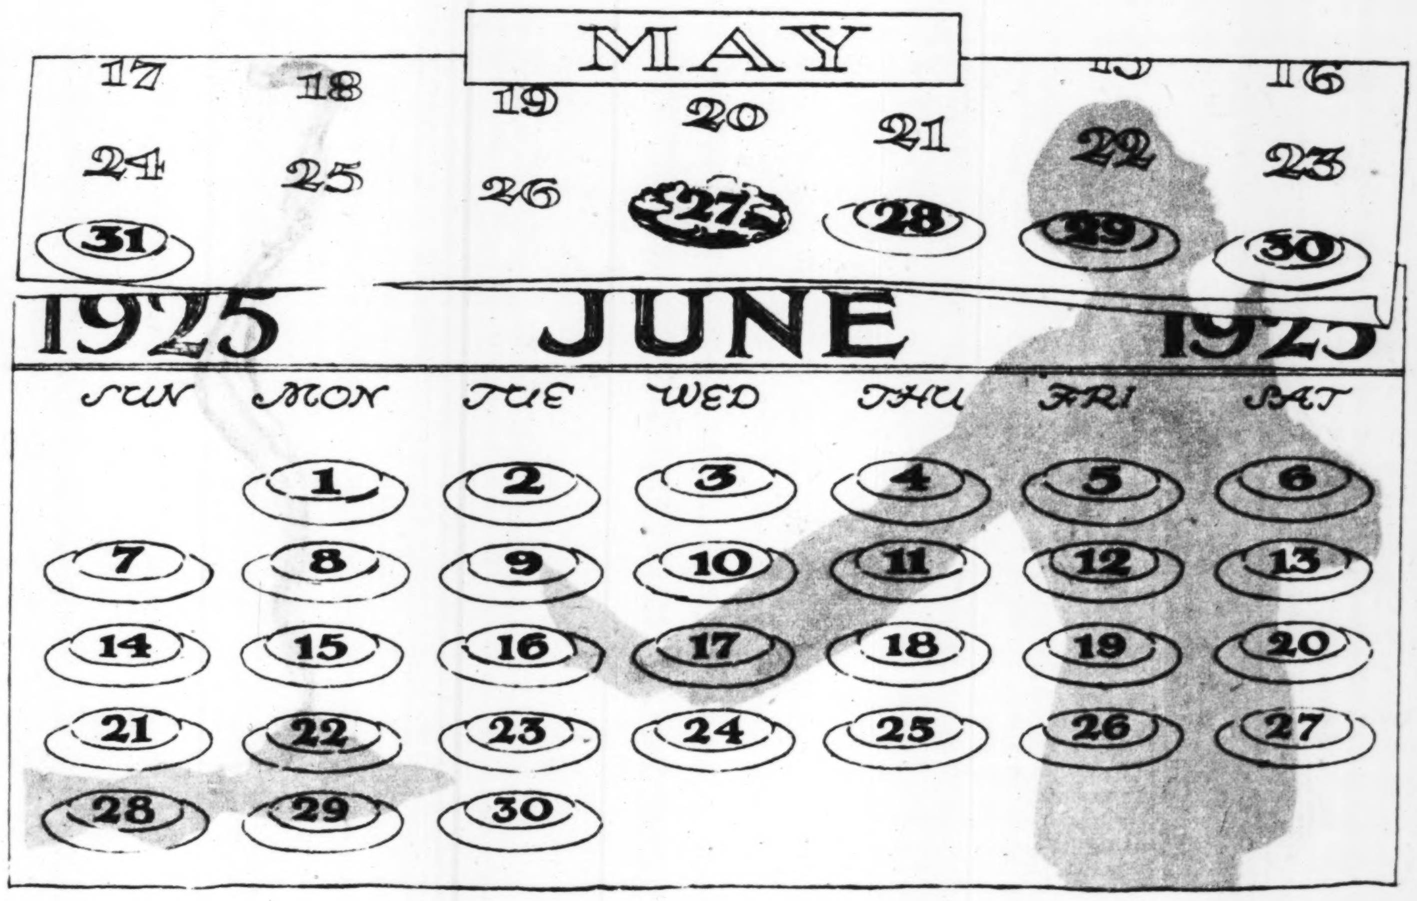
Thirty-fourth Day—Blood taken from under the arm with difficulty at 9:30 a. m. After edema test and blood count I procured two pounds of porterhouse steak and fried it so as to see whether the odor would give rise to increased gastric secretion. Pressed the juice from one orange, which I took diluted at noon. Within half an hour I ate an orange, rejecting only the coarser pulp. Following this had one and a half pints of red raspberries with half a pint of cream and sweetened. Ate slowly, for the stomach was evidently somewhat shrunken from the fast and time had to be allowed for dilating. Increasing thirst and a slight headache, which disappeared shortly. Began to eat the steak. Ate three-quarters of a pound and felt thoroughly satisfied. Went to the University of Illinois medical school for further blood tests. Veins on the arms stood out and it was easy to insert the needle. About 6 p. m. had the remainder of the steak. Walked about three miles. Felt decidedly good in the evening. Considered both the fast and breaking it a success. Thus endeth a perfect day.

"I had lost 30 pounds in weight as the result of that fast," he continues, "but weighing myself about six hours after eating found that the food and water I had taken had already added six pounds to my weight. The next morning I had lost four pounds of this. I believe I made a greater mistake in taking the diluted orange juice to break a prolonged fast than if I had eaten about a pound of steak. Marked thirst came as the result of eating oranges and berries but cleared up after eating the meat. Not that I recommend any particular food or combination of foods immediately after fasting. I believe that a healthy individual should be able to eat freely after a fast just as a starved animal or starved savage may enter upon a dietic debauch without any ceremony. But it is better to be careful than sorry."

Now began his period of 33 days of feasting. "My food for the next 30 days or so averaged something like two pounds of meat or fish, one pint of cream, half a pound of butter, one and a half pounds of tomatoes or greens, two or three pounds of fruit, melon or berries, some sugar, chocolate, honey and coffee." Even his greatest meal, recited above, did not spoil his appetite. The following day he ate three pounds of beef hearts with his other food allowance. "But the third week," he says, "I could have fasted again without feeling that my craving for food was too great to be voluntarily denied satisfaction." On the eighth day of feasting he had regained 20 pounds of what he had lost by his fast. At the beginning of the second fast he weighed four pounds more than when he started the first. "I believe," he says, "that weight was of healthier, sounder material than I had starved off.

"I did not realize how weak I had become by fasting," he observes, "until I again began to eat. I had often said, and truly it seemed to me at the moment, that I was 'feeling good' or 'quite normal' when a rigid test might have shown me on the verge of physical collapse. I had been weaker than I was willing to believe.

"Perhaps this would explain why weaklings so often answer you that they feel fine when vigorous individuals complain when they are similarly questioned. I began to feel so good after a few days of eating that I have sometimes been inclined to think it was worth while to fast a month to feel so good for one day afterward."



In his high school years, when he was a weakling, he had undertaken his first fast. "A sense of well being developed beyond my wildest expectations," he said. Ill health then, he had believed, was due to errors in diet. His food—he is still convinced—failed to furnish proper elements for growth. He had tried Fletcherism and vegetarianism. That was 17 years ago, since when he had fasted in all about 350 days.

PART of these were undertaken for his body's sake. A part were Hoelzel's contribution to science. Robbed by circumstance of the education he had sought he determined to work in his own way towards solving some of the riddles of biology. Chicago University offered him a chance to cooperate in its investigations. So it was that this summer he set out to study the effect of fasting on the stomach. Five days, he thought, would be sufficient for his studies. But the Department of Psychology at the school was undertaking a series of tests to learn the effect of fasting on mental efficiency. He volunteered for this as well and instead of five days lengthened his fast until he had surpassed the mark of Levanzin, who for 31 days had fasted in connection with a study of mental efficiency made by the Nutrition Laboratory of Carnegie Institution.

It is very obvious—though none but Frederick Hoelzel seems to have thought of it that way—that man, while fasting, becomes a cannibal. He consumes his own human flesh. He lives on it. And the discomfort which usually follows the beginning of a fast, he says, is due largely, in his belief, to the change from a food ration which contains vegetables and carbohydrates to one of meat alone. The same discomfort he has found to follow the beginning of a test he made some years ago of a 10 weeks' exclusive carnivorous diet. In each case after two weeks he became more or less adjusted to the new condition. To guard himself against unpleasant disturbances which usually follow the beginning of a fast he took with his last meal or two a few ounces of pure white petroleum jelly. Later, in the course of the fast, he mixed such jelly with cellulose flour (Cellu Flour) flavored with a solution of saccharine. It was without the slightest food value, but it served to sweep all waste from the alimentary canal.

"WHAT is the good of it all?" you ask. The four pounds Hoelzel gained will give a clew. "It was healthier, sounder material than I had starved off," he says. There is not scientific data enough to formulate a positive theory, but the indication from this and his other fasts, together with the experiments of biologists with other animal life, incline Frederick Hoelzel to a belief that through fasting may come a renewed youth and man may grow young again.

The secret lies in an increased energy output. At the University of Chicago some years ago Professor Child prolonged the life of flatworms by alternately starving and refeeding them, and thus kept them alive for eleven times as long as those which were fed plenty of their usual food all the time. Professor Goetsch, in Germany, experimenting without knowledge of the work of Professor Child, has reached conclusions almost the same which he recently announced. He had kept lower organisms from growing old by carefully regulating their food supply. "The Potential Immortality of Living Matter" he called it.

By their experiments on Hoelzel, on other human subjects and on dogs, Professor Carlson and Dr. Kunde at the University of Chicago have demonstrated an increase in energy output as the result of fasting, and a Japanese investigator, Dr. Sakashira, has independently secured similar results.

"The conclusion is therefore warranted," says Hoelzel, "that fasting in general causes a rise in energy output, that is, it has either a real rejuvenating effect or does something which amounts to a sort of rejuvenescence."

But whether the results are worth the price, he believes is a question. "The benefit will depend on habits of eating after fasting," he says, on knowledge and self-discipline. "In some cases," he continues, "the length of time the benefit lasts or may be made to last would make fasting pay even though it were a difficult ordeal. However, I believe that when fasting is better understood ways will be found to make it less and less trying. Personally I believe if no other way of fasting is found someone will some day invent some kind of anesthetic which will put one to sleep to hibernate for a few months and that one will wake up out of that sweet dream to find himself 10 or 20 years younger!

"These are wild dreams? Inventing a new kind of rose or a fruit is one of the practical possibilities of science today. Making a Methuselah who will always be young may be the accomplishment of tomorrow."

THE TRAGEDIES AND THE TRIMPHS

Since the recent crash of the nt Shenandoah, has been claimed by the questionls the Dirigible
To aid in the answering of thiuestion the follow of dirigible ry is presented.

THE SHENANDOAH—She flew across the Atlantic, BUT when she fell last month 13 were killed.

Lieutenant Commander Lansdowne, in command of the Shenandoah. He was killed.

By GUY FORSHEY.

IT WAS just 20 years ago this month that man gained his first notable conquest of the air when the renowned Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, flying an awkward craft mounted on skids, remained aloft for the amazing period of 38 minutes and three seconds. They flew 24 miles on that memorable occasion, but so little credence was placed in reports of the feat that it scarcely got in the newspapers. That triumph marked the real beginning of aviation.

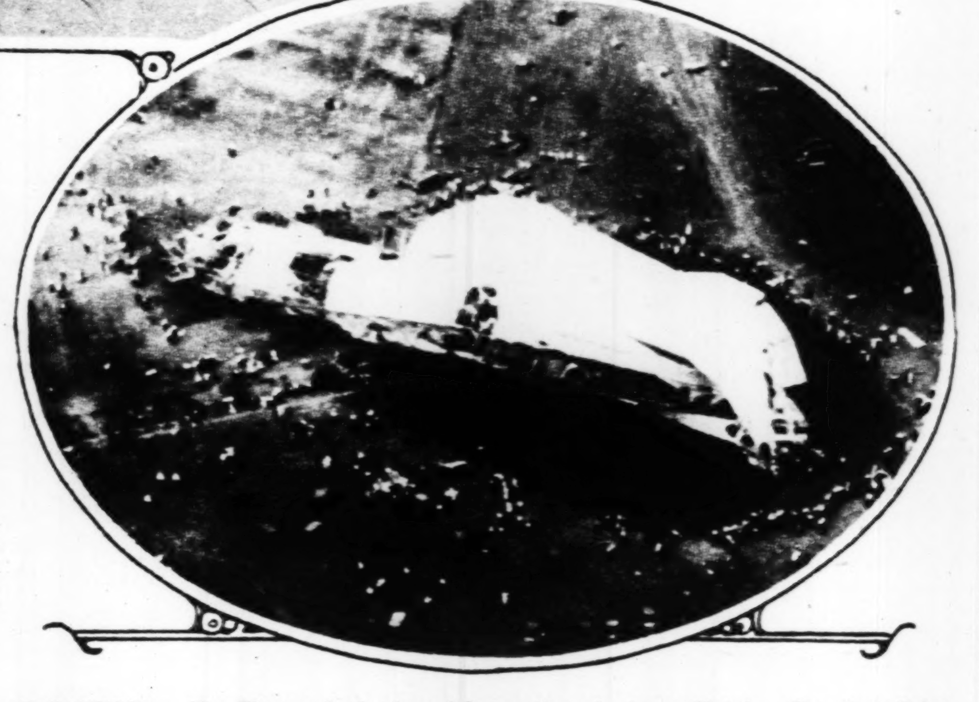
Three years later Orville Wright, having just achieved a new world record of 57 minutes in the air, was giving a demonstration flight at Fort Myer, Virginia, in that same "world supreme" airplane. He was riding on the crest of another triumph when the propeller struck a guy wire and the plane dived 40 feet into a hillside and to its doom. Wright's flying partner, Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge, was killed and the inventor himself suffered a broken leg and several fractured ribs. That marked aviation's first notable disaster. It followed close on the heels of the first triumph and since that time the two offsprings of aviation have remained inseparable—triumph and tragedy.

THESE last two decades have been a period of breath-taking evolution in aircraft. From that ungainly fledgling which 20 years ago appalled the world by soaring for 38 minutes at a stretch has come a family of swift and graceful birds which cross the Atlantic at one hop; which dash from coast to coast between dawn and dusk; which invade the front yard of the North Pole, and which roar around a race course at 302 miles an hour. From the old free balloon of county fair days has sprung a race of giant dirigibles which carry a hundred men on cruises of thousands of miles and in times of war hurl two-ton bombs upon great cities.

THE OFFICERS of the Shenandoah. Five were killed.

But disasters have kept pace with triumphs in this era of aircraft evolution. One gives only passing notice to such commonplace occurrences as the crash of an airplane nowadays. The Fort Myer accident which shocked the country in 1908 would scarcely find a place on page one today. Front-page banner lines and "top heads" are reserved for such stupendous news events as the crash of a mighty dirigible with a resultant dead list ranging anywhere from 10 to 50. A glance over the list of a few comparatively recent catastrophes will show how relentlessly disaster has stalked on the heels of progress.

The giant dirigible ZR-2, bought in England for the United States, met destruction on August 24, 1921, when her frame buckled and she fell into the Humber River, near Hull, England. Forty-four men, including 16 Americans, were killed.



THE CRASH. The Shenandoah viewed from the air immediately after her fatal dive.

The great army dirigible, Roma, bought by the United States in Italy, crashed to earth in flames near Hampton Roads, Virginia, on February 21, 1922. The death toll was 34.

The French dirigible, Dixmude, cruising over the Mediterranean, was presumably struck by lightning and fell into the sea on December 21, 1923. Her officers and crew, numbering 52 men, were all lost.

The great Shenandoah, America's pride of the air, broke in pieces in a storm near Caldwell, Ohio, early on the morning of September 3 and hurtled down from an altitude of 5000 feet, carrying 13 men to their deaths and others to serious injury.

THESE are a few of the later calamities, but the list is longer than merely the roll of most of the greatest dirigibles ever built. The story of lives lost in man's effort to conquer the air goes back even beyond the age of aviation and into aeronautics of the last century. Frequent fatal mishaps attended the development of aeronautics, one notable instance being the destruction of Andree's balloon in 1893. That intrepid Frenchman, it will be recalled, attempted to sail to the North Pole in a free balloon. The only trace ever found of him or his craft after his departure from Spitzbergen was a note stating he was sailing 800 feet above the limitless expanse of jagged ice floes.

From that point the list of tragedies and failures extends on through Walter Wellman's dismal attempt to cross the Atlantic in an early type of dirigible; through the disasters to aircraft during the war; through the countless airplane accidents of the flying fields and other dirigible mishaps which rank scarcely lower in importance than the great Shenandoah and Roma disasters already mentioned. Here are a few more of the blows which have buffeted the advance of lighter-than-air craft:

Zeppelin L-1 destroyed off Heligoland September 9, 1913, with a loss of 15 lives.

Zeppelin L-2 exploded over Johaninsthal airdrome October 17, 1913, killing 28 persons.

The balloon Akron, groomed for transatlantic voyage, exploded at Atlantic City July 2, 1912, killing five.

An airship and airplane collided at Vienna June 20, 1914, resulting in nine deaths.

British airship NS-11 fell into the North Sea with a loss of 12 lives after being struck by lightning July 15, 1919.

Airship fell in flames through roof of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank at Chicago July 21, 1919, killing 10 persons.

The British dirigible R-34, which made a transatlantic voyage in July, 1919, was wrecked at her base by a storm on January 29, 1921.

Confronted by this appalling list of casualties the observer looks with shaken confidence upon the future. He is beginning to ask himself the question, Does it pay? Even though mighty triumphs have been achieved in the last 20 years, have they been enough to outweigh the tragedies that accompanied them? Few, perhaps, will argue that the airplane has not proved its worth, but these giant dirigibles—are they worth the cost? And will any dirigible achievements even in remote prospect be worth the price they will exact if disasters such as that of the Shenandoah are to continue?

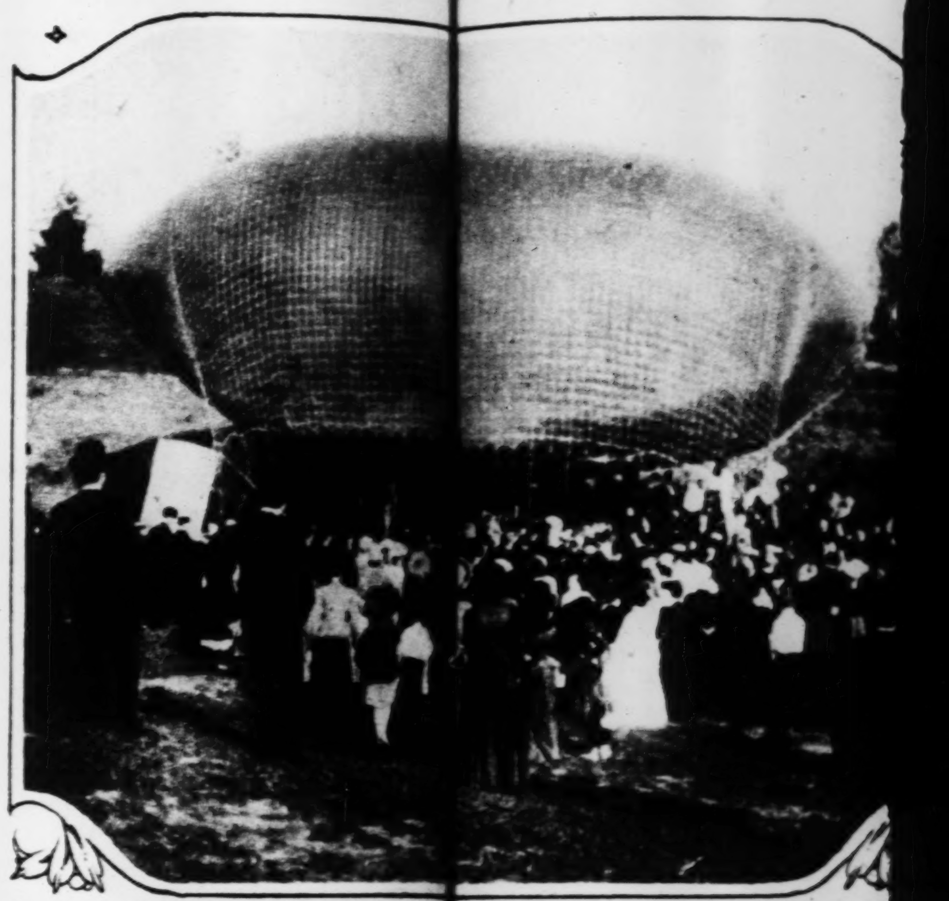
MAJOR NORMAN E. PEEK, acting commander of Scott Field during the absence of Colonel John M. Paegelow, and internationally known authority on both aviation and aeronautics, is of the opinion that the sacrifice is and has been worth while.

"Disasters are part of the game," declares Major Peek. "We had to expect them. When we enter a conquest holding such a vast potentiality as mastery of the air, it is inevitable that we must pay dearly for our achievements. Virtually all really great steps in human progress have been made over the bodies of martyrs to the cause. Particularly has this been true of aviation, but it has also been true of other epoch-making developments in transportation. The railroad always has taken its yearly toll of lives and probably always will, but nobody would seriously consider dispensing with railroads on that account. The same is true of the automobile. So far as we can see now it is true of any mode of transportation that accomplishes a speed of a mile or more a minute.

"I won't go so far as to say that in aviation we must continue to suffer disasters like that of the Shenandoah, but I will say that we must stand ready to face them as possibilities, or even probabilities. The crash to earth from a dizzy height is always an eventuality that haunts the course of the airman. It happens to comparatively few when you consider the number of persons engaged in flying, but it always has a chance of happening. It would be folly to talk of giving up the fight because so many of our big dirigibles have met with misfortune. If we did that the lives already lost would have been lost in vain. Almost daily improvements and discoveries are being made which contribute to the safety of the flyer and we have abundant reason to hope that accidents and the likelihood of accidents will be greatly reduced even if they cannot be entirely eliminated.

"There is every reason for belief that in a few more years dirigibles will be in everyday use as carriers in both passenger and freight lines. Germany's experiments with Zeppelins long ago proved that such craft were practicable for commercial purposes. Events of the war such as the bombing of London proved they were practicable and valuable in military operations. Some advance the argument that the cost of building a ship of the Shenandoah type is so great that it could never pay for itself from a purely business point of view, even barring the probability of accidents. Of course, it must be granted that the cost is tremendous, but there is strong probability that it can be greatly reduced, especially if there is developed a cheaper method of obtaining helium gas than that employed at present. The cost of helium now is one of the biggest items. But even with the expense what it is now (the Shenandoah cost the Government $1,876,250) authorities on aerial commerce have calculated that a dirigible can pay for itself in a few years."

WITH the exception of the ZR-2, which met destruction soon after she first emerged from her hangar, most of the big ships survived long enough to prove they possessed sufficient merit, even beyond their experimental value, to justify their construction. Their feats showed clearly enough that dirigibles could fill a place in commerce the airplane could never hope to fill because of their longer cruising radius and greater carrying power. Last October the Shenandoah completed a transcontinental trip and return, a total cruise of 8100 miles, in 235 hours of actual flying time. The trip was begun at Lakehurst on October 7 and ended on October 25, so including a stay of 11 days on the Pacific coast, the craft was away from her hangar just 18 days. Her flying time was considerably faster than the fastest possible time of an express train. A year earlier the Shenandoah, then known as the ZR-1, visited St. Louis and was seen by thousands at the air races at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field.



THE FIRST DIRIGIBLE IN AMERICA. e years ago, Roy Knabenshue flew this ship over St. Louis during "tennial Week" at the World's Fair.

The Dixmude also achieved fame as a long-distance cruiser of the air before disaster overtook her. In October, 1923, she shattered all previous endurance marks when she completed an uninterrupted 118 hours and 41 minutes. Leaving the southern coast of France, the big ship made straight across the Mediterranean, flying over the outskirts of the Sahara Desert. After considerable cruising over North Africa she then recrossed the Mediterranean, flew over Paris, Nice, Monte Carlo and back to the starting point.

Built in Italy, the Roma was brought to this country deflated instead of under her own power, as was to have been attempted in the case of the ZR-3, and so had no opportunity to try her prowess in transoceanic flight. However, the ship's brief period of activity in this country before the wreck at Hampton Roads indicated she might have led a highly useful life had accident been averted. It has remained for the Los Angeles, however, to do most to keep alive the nation's hope in dirigibles. Constructed in Germany, the Los Angeles, first called the ZR-3, made a spectacular flight across the Atlantic, maintaining a speed which was twice that of the fastest ocean liner. The total distance covered was 5066 miles and her flying time was 81 hours 17 minutes from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, New Jersey. This, incidentally, smashed the world's endurance record previously hung up by the Dixmude. Several short cruises about the East and two trips to Bermuda with mail have constituted her accomplishments so far, but the Los Angeles is still alive and greater achievements are in prospect. Frequently there has been discussion of the advisability of turning the ship into purely commercial channels. By increasing her lifting power slightly, experts have pointed out, it would be possible to convert her into a passenger ship capable of carrying 100 persons through the air at a speed of 60 to 70 miles an hour. This, according to transportation specialists, would make the earning power of the ship great enough to justify the investment.

In spite of the fact that the day of the biggest airships has witnessed the most terrible disasters, it cannot be denied that safety has developed along with dirigible dimensions. The fact that the death list has continued to mount with the advancement of dirigible aviation does not mean that the giant craft of the present day are any more hazardous than those of the old days. Everybody knows that automobiles, considered individually, are safer than they were 20 years ago, but at the same time everybody knows more people are getting killed by them than were killed 20 years ago or one year ago. There are so many more each year who risk death in the air.

THE elimination, to a great degree, of dangerous hydrogen gas in favor of noninflammable helium has done much to promote safety in dirigible operations. So have improvements in motors and steering apparatus. Picture a primitive airship, such as the "Arrow," flown by Roy Knabenshue at the World's Fair here in 1904, attempting to make a transcontinental flight such as that accomplished with ease by the Shenandoah. Think of Walter Wellman's "America," which plunged into the Atlantic off Cape Hatteras in 1910, setting out to accomplish such a transoceanic victory as that turned in by the Los Angeles last October. Now that we are more familiar with the limitations of aircraft and better acquainted with the perils that mark their courses, we are inclined to smile at the presumption of Wellman, who dared to hope that he could cross the Atlantic in a puny craft 228 feet long, with motors of 160 horsepower and a lifting capacity of only 24,000 pounds. The Los Angeles is 656 feet long, lifts 180,000 pounds and has motors of 1600 horsepower.

St. Louisans who saw the "Arrow" when Knabenshue startled the World's Fair crowds with its maneuvers here 21 years ago, may find interest in calling back to memory the proportions of that pioneer among dirigibles and picturing it floating beside the Los Angeles. It was far more puny, even, than Wellman's "America." Its gas bag attained the prodigious length of 52 feet; its gasoline engine was capable of developing the mighty total of 7 horsepower and it tore along at the dizzy speed of 12 miles an hour.

TALK about effrontery. Here is the way the prideful aeronaut of 1904 talked about his ship:

"I am part of the wind and do not feel its sweep or motion. I travel its paths which are absolutely unobstructed. I go up, down, left, right. There is nothing to stop me; no waves to buffet me. Don't you see the absolute freedom of it? All points of the compass are alike. There never will be such a thing as a chart of the ether, for there are no shoals, no headlands, no Cape Horns to go around, no Hatterases to go down upon. The airship navigator is as safe as his intelligence and caution are sound. His apparatus complete in every detail, nothing weak, nothing forgotten, and he is as safe as if he were on land.

"A man rides at a high rate on a rickety railroad, with bad bridges, incompetent operatives and all that; or he goes to sea in an unworthy ship, the plaything of the winds and waves; or he drives a horse insensible to reason and far stronger than himself, that may bolt at any moment. Those are the elements of real danger. There is no use going into comparative death rates for the air has no record beyond those of a few parachute jumpers. But the traveler of the air is safe at all times by using just ordinary intelligence. Winds blow upon the traveler on earth or sea with danger. The sky navigator rides in calm no matter how strong are the winds."

Let us meditate that Roy Knabenshue had a lot to learn.

However, his ship was the queen of its time and the object of as much admiration as the Los Angeles is today. Thousands watched it with mingled consternation and curiosity on that day in November, 1904, when it set out to break all airship distance records by sailing from the World's Fair grounds to Compton Hill reservoir and back and then northeast for 10 miles and back. Two accidents spoiled the plan, for hardly had the flight begun when the motor stopped and the craft settled down in a cornfield in part of what is now University City. An hour later it rose again and again the propellor stalled. This time it ascended higher in the air and veered off across the country toward Normandy. Two Post-Dispatch reporters and Thomas S. Baldwin, the inventor and owner of the craft, sped after it in an automobile, taking with them carrier pigeons to fly back with news of its landing. height of almost a mile attracted so much attention that the funeral assemblages took a recess, suspending interments and mourning until the craft had passed from view. The Post-Dispatch reporters came up with it just as it landed northwest of Normandy, about four miles from its starting point.

Confidence in the prowess of dirigibles, it seems, rose more rapidly in those days than did the standard of dirigible construction. The year 1909 found Walter Wellman, with eye unalterably fixed on the North Pole, already starting out to navigate the rigorous air currents of the Arctic in a craft less than 200 feet long. It is quite clear now that his venture represented more courage than judgment, for had his ship been just a little better he might have gone far enough to get himself and his whole party killed. As it was, the first substantial gust of Arctic wind encountered sent the bag careening over the ice hummocks and caused it to explode. The explosion inflicted no personal injury but it did put an end to the expedition before it had proceeded 30 miles from Spitsbergen.

Wellman, still as intrepid as ever, then conceived the idea of crossing the Atlantic. The next year he tried it in a ship somewhat larger and better than that figuring in the North Pole fiasco. This venture was scarcely more fortunate, for the ship fell in the ocean 400 miles off Cape Hatteras and the navigator, with his crew of five men and a cat, had to be dragged out of the water by the steamer Trent. Wellman was feted as a hero after the attempt; but the ocean remained uncrossed by the air route until Lieutenant-Commander A. C. Read of the United States Navy accomplished the job in the seaplane NC-4, in June, 1919. Since then it has been crossed by several heavier-than-air craft and once by dirigible, honors for that last achievement going, as already has been stated, to the Los Angeles.

IN THE light of aviation's experiments since 1910 it is not difficult to understand why such ancient ships as the "Arrow" and the "America" could not reasonably hope to weather storms and perform such feats as were later performed by such giant ships as the Shenandoah and the Dixmude. The problem of aviation now is to discover and profit by the weaknesses that contributed to their destruction so that the Los Angeles and other big ships that still survive may escape a similar fate.

As both the Shenandoah and the Dixmude were victims of storms, it will no doubt be difficult for any board of investigation ever to say just how much responsibility can be placed upon faults of construction or manner of operation. Charges of neglect and carelessness have been flung right and left in the Shenandoah investigation. Captain Anton Heinen, German pilot and construction adviser in the building of the ship, says the removal of eight of the craft's 18 safety valves sealed the big ship's doom. Colonel William E. Mitchell, deposed assistant chief of the air service, charges the accident was the direct result of incompetency, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the War and Navy Departments. Others, among them some of the wreck survivors, hold to the opinion that the stress brought upon the hull of the ship by its rolling and rising and falling in the wind caused the wrenching loose of the cabins and that the holes thus torn allowed air to rush into the bag, causing the ship to buckle. All these theories may be correct in some measure, but regardless of how many congressional investigations are held, who will ever know just how much each of these things contributed to the disaster?

IT WAS the same way in the Dixmude investigation. Various allegations of responsibility for that wreck were made. Charges were heard that the ship was not in a fit condition for the trip; that it was ordered out at a dangerous season of the year. However, the only conclusion the commission of inquiry could reach was that the ship was struck by lightning while still intact, and so the blame had to be saddled on the elements.

The tragedies of the ZR-2, which broke in two pieces and fell into the Humber River on its trial trip, and of the Roma, which fell in 1922 at Hampton Roads, offered more tangible targets for criticism of the builders. According to information gathered after the ZR-2 disaster, which cost the lives of 44 men, a longitudinal girder broke amidship, cutting the craft in halves, and this was followed by a violent explosion of either hydrogen gas in the bag or petrol in the tanks. At any rate it was declared that the breaking of the girder and not the explosion was the real cause of the ship's collapse. Responsibility here was definitely placed upon those who fitted out the ship with a structural weakness. Even before the accident, it was disclosed, the girder had been found to be in a strained condition and had been reinforced.

The Roma's fatal dive was traced to a fault in her controls. The explosion, which followed her contact with live wires after she fell, did not leave enough of her for a post-mortem examination, but the report of Captain Walter J. Reed, chief pilot of the craft, who miraculously escaped death, was enough to direct blame to the controls.

SUCH have been the merits and the faults of the great leviathans of the air which in the past have challenged the elements and have gone down to defeat. If the building of giant airships should be abandoned because of past disasters, the victims of those tragedies then probably will have died for naught. But the indications are that the story of dirigible achievements is not ended and that the hundreds of lives lost were not sacrificed in vain. For this country, much now depends on the fortunes of the airship Los Angeles. To her from falling hands the men who died have thrown the torch. THE SHENANDOAH—She flew across the Atlantic, BUT when she fell last month 13 were killed.

Lieutenant Commander Lansdowne, in command of the Shenandoah. He was killed.

By GUY FORSHEY.

IT WAS just 20 years ago this month that man gained his first notable conquest of the air when the renowned Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, flying an awkward craft mounted on skids, remained aloft for the amazing period of 38 minutes and three seconds. They flew 24 miles on that memorable occasion, but so little credence was placed in reports of the feat that it scarcely got in the newspapers. That triumph marked the real beginning of aviation.

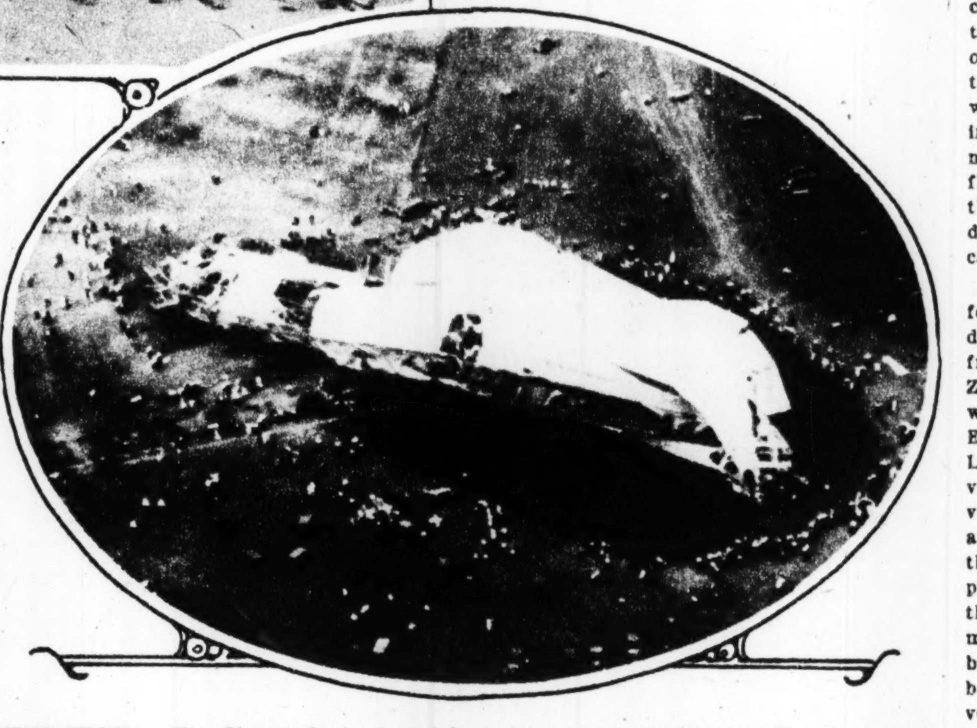
Three years later Orville Wright, having just achieved a new world record of 57 minutes in the air, was giving a demonstration flight at Fort Myer, Virginia, in that same "world supreme" airplane. He was riding on the crest of another triumph when the propeller struck a guy wire and the plane dived 40 feet into a hillside and to its doom. Wright's flying partner, Lieutenant Thomas E. Selfridge, was killed and the inventor himself suffered a broken leg and several fractured ribs. That marked aviation's first notable disaster. It followed close on the heels of the first triumph and since that time the two offsprings of aviation have remained inseparable—triumph and tragedy.

THESE last two decades have been a period of breath-taking evolution in aircraft. From that ungainly fledgling which 20 years ago appalled the world by soaring for 38 minutes at a stretch has come a family of swift and graceful birds which cross the Atlantic at one hop; which dash from coast to coast between dawn and dusk; which invade the front yard of the North Pole, and which roar around a race course at 302 miles an hour. From the old free balloon of county fair days has sprung a race of giant dirigibles which carry a hundred men on cruises of thousands of miles and in times of war hurl two-ton bombs upon great cities.

THE OFFICERS of the Shenandoah. Five were killed.

But disasters have kept pace with triumphs in this era of aircraft evolution. One gives only passing notice to such commonplace occurrences as the crash of an airplane nowadays. The Fort Myer accident which shocked the country in 1908 would scarcely find a place on page one today. Front-page banner lines and "top heads" are reserved for such stupendous news events as the crash of a mighty dirigible with a resultant dead list ranging anywhere from 10 to 50. A glance over the list of a few comparatively recent catastrophes will show how relentlessly disaster has stalked on the heels of progress.

The giant dirigible ZR-2, bought in England for the United States, met destruction on August 24, 1921, when her frame buckled and she fell into the Humber River, near Hull, England. Forty-four men, including 16 Americans, were killed.



THE CRASH. The Shenandoah viewed from the air immediately after her fatal dive.

The great army dirigible, Roma, bought by the United States in Italy, crashed to earth in flames near Hampton Roads, Virginia, on February 21, 1922. The death toll was 34.

The French dirigible, Dixmude, cruising over the Mediterranean, was presumably struck by lightning and fell into the sea on December 21, 1923. Her officers and crew, numbering 52 men, were all lost.

The great Shenandoah, America's pride of the air, broke in pieces in a storm near Caldwell, Ohio, early on the morning of September 3 and hurtled down from an altitude of 5000 feet, carrying 13 men to their deaths and others to serious injury.

THESE are a few of the later calamities, but the list is longer than merely the roll of most of the greatest dirigibles ever built. The story of lives lost in man's effort to conquer the air goes back even beyond the age of aviation and into aeronautics of the last century. Frequent fatal mishaps attended the development of aeronautics, one notable instance being the destruction of Andree's balloon in 1893. That intrepid Frenchman, it will be recalled, attempted to sail to the North Pole in a free balloon. The only trace ever found of him or his craft after his departure from Spitzbergen was a note stating he was sailing 800 feet above the limitless expanse of jagged ice floes.

From that point the list of tragedies and failures extends on through Walter Wellman's dismal attempt to cross the Atlantic in an early type of dirigible; through the disasters to aircraft during the war; through the countless airplane accidents of the flying fields and other dirigible mishaps which rank scarcely lower in importance than the great Shenandoah and Roma disasters already mentioned. Here are a few more of the blows which have buffeted the advance of lighter-than-air craft:

Zeppelin L-1 destroyed off Heligoland September 9, 1913, with a loss of 15 lives.

Zeppelin L-2 exploded over Johaninsthal airdrome October 17, 1913, killing 28 persons.

The balloon Akron, groomed for transatlantic voyage, exploded at Atlantic City July 2, 1912, killing five.

An airship and airplane collided at Vienna June 20, 1914, resulting in nine deaths.

British airship NS-11 fell into the North Sea with a loss of 12 lives after being struck by lightning July 15, 1919.

Airship fell in flames through roof of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank at Chicago July 21, 1919, killing 10 persons.

The British dirigible R-34, which made a transatlantic voyage in July, 1919, was wrecked at her base by a storm on January 29, 1921.

Confronted by this appalling list of casualties the observer looks with shaken confidence upon the future. He is beginning to ask himself the question, Does it pay? Even though mighty triumphs have been achieved in the last 20 years, have they been enough to outweigh the tragedies that accompanied them? Few, perhaps, will argue that the airplane has not proved its worth, but these giant dirigibles—are they worth the cost? And will any dirigible achievements even in remote prospect be worth the price they will exact if disasters such as that of the Shenandoah are to continue?

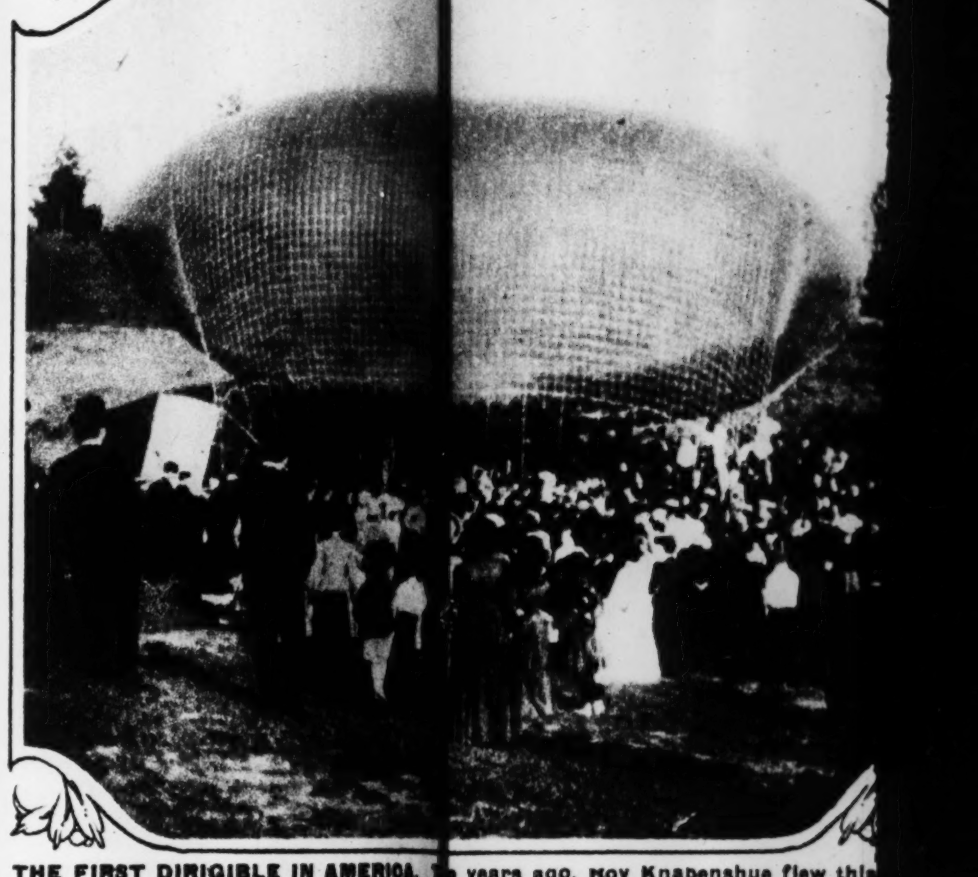
MAJOR NORMAN E. PEEK, acting commander of Scott Field during the absence of Colonel John M. Paegelow, and internationally known authority on both aviation and aeronautics, is of the opinion that the sacrifice is and has been worth while.

"Disasters are part of the game," declares Major Peek. "We had to expect them. When we enter a conquest holding such a vast potentiality as mastery of the air, it is inevitable that we must pay dearly for our achievements. Virtually all really great steps in human progress have been made over the bodies of martyrs to the cause. Particularly has this been true of aviation, but it has also been true of other epoch-making developments in transportation. The railroad always has taken its yearly toll of lives and probably always will, but nobody would seriously consider dispensing with railroads on that account. The same is true of the automobile. So far as we can see now it is true of any mode of transportation that accomplishes a speed of a mile or more a minute.

"I won't go so far as to say that in aviation we must continue to suffer disasters like that of the Shenandoah, but I will say that we must stand ready to face them as possibilities, or even probabilities. The crash to earth from a dizzy height is always an eventuality that haunts the course of the airman. It happens to comparatively few when you consider the number of persons engaged in flying, but it always has a chance of happening. It would be folly to talk of giving up the fight because so many of our big dirigibles have met with misfortune. If we did that the lives already lost would have been lost in vain. Almost daily improvements and discoveries are being made which contribute to the safety of the flyer and we have abundant reason to hope that accidents and the likelihood of accidents will be greatly reduced even if they cannot be entirely eliminated.

"There is every reason for belief that in a few more years dirigibles will be in every-day use as carriers in both passenger and freight lines. Germany's experiments with Zeppelins long ago proved that such craft were practicable for commercial purposes. Events of the war such as the bombing of London proved they were practicable and valuable in military operations. Some advance the argument that the cost of building a ship of the Shenandoah type is so great that it could never pay for itself from a purely business point of view, even barring the probability of accidents. Of course, it must be granted that the cost is tremendous, but there is strong probability that it can be greatly reduced, especially if there is developed a cheaper method of obtaining helium gas than that employed at present. The cost of helium now is one of the biggest items. But even with the expense what it is now (the Shenandoah cost the Government $1,876,250) authorities on aerial commerce have calculated that a dirigible can pay for itself in a few years."

WITH the exception of the ZR-2, which met destruction soon after she first emerged from her hangar, most of the big ships survived long enough to prove they possessed sufficient merit, even beyond their experimental value, to justify their construction. Their feats showed clearly enough that dirigibles could fill a place in commerce the airplane could never hope to fill because of their longer cruising radius and greater carrying power. Last October the Shenandoah completed a transcontinental trip and return, a total cruise of 8100 miles, in 235 hours of actual flying time. The trip was begun at Lakehurst on October 7 and ended on October 25, so including a stay of 11 days on the Pacific coast, the craft was away from her hangar just 18 days. Her flying time was considerably faster than the fastest possible time of an express train. A year earlier the Shenandoah, then known as the ZR-1, visited St. Louis and was seen by thousands at the air races at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field.



THE FIRST DIRIGIBLE IN AMERICA. years ago, Roy Knabenshue flew this ship over St. Louis during "ntennial Week" at the World's Fair.

The Dixmude also achieved fame as a long-distance cruiser of the air before disaster overtook her. In October, 1923, she shattered all previous endurance marks when she completed an uninterrupted 118 hours and 41 minutes. Leaving the southern coast of France, the big ship made straight across the Mediterranean, flying over the outskirts of the Sahara Desert. After considerable cruising over North Africa she then recrossed the Mediterranean, flew over Paris, Nice, Monte Carlo and back to the starting point.

Built in Italy, the Roma was brought to this country deflated instead of under her own power, as was to have been attempted in the case of the ZR-2, and so had no opportunity to try her prowess in transoceanic flight. However, the ship's brief period of activity in this country before the wreck at fore the wreck at Hampton Roads indicated she might have led a highly useful life had accident been averted. It has remained for the Los Angeles, however, to do most to keep alive the nation's hope in dirigibles. Constructed in Germany, the Los Angeles, first called the ZR-3, made a spectacular flight across the Atlantic, maintaining a speed which was twice that of the fastest ocean liner. The total distance covered was 5066 miles and her flying time was 81 hours 17 minutes from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, New Jersey. This, incidentally, smashed the world's endurance record previously hung up by the Dixmude. Several short cruises about the East and two trips to Bermuda with mail have constituted her accomplishments so far, but the Los Angeles is still alive and greater achievements are in prospect. Frequently there has been discussion of the advisability of turning the ship into purely commercial channels. By increasing her lifting power slightly, experts have pointed out, it would be possible to convert her into a passenger ship capable of carrying 100 persons through the air at a speed of 60 to 70 miles an hour. This, according to transportation specialists, would make the earning power of the ship great enough to justify the investment.

which has taken place al during the development of the dirigible shows funeral services fo lost their lives when the ZR-2 crashed.

In spite of the fact that the day of the biggest airships has witnessed the most terrible disasters, it cannot be denied that safety has developed along with dirigible dimensions. The fact that the death list has continued to mount with the advancement of dirigible aviation does not mean that the giant craft of the present day are any more hazardous than those of the old days. Everybody knows that automobiles, considered individually, are safer than they were 20 years ago, but at the same time everybody knows more people are getting killed by them than were killed 20 years ago or one year ago. There are so many more each year who risk death in the air.

THE elimination, to a great degree, of dangerous hydrogen gas in favor of noninflammable helium has done much to promote safety in dirigible operations. So have improvements in motors and steering apparatus. Picture a primitive airship, such as the "Arrow," flown by Roy Knabenshue at the World's Fair here in 1904, attempting to make a transcontinental flight such as that accomplished with ease by the Shenandoah. Think of Walter Wellman's "America," which plunged into the Atlantic off Cape Hatteras in 1910, setting out to accomplish such a transoceanic victory as that turned in by the Los Angeles last October. Now that we are more familiar with the limitations of aircraft and better acquainted with the perils that mark their courses, we are inclined to smile at the presumption of Wellman, who dared to hope that he could cross the Atlantic in a puny craft 228 feet long, with motors of 160 horsepower and a lifting capacity of only 24,000 pounds. The Los Angeles is 656 feet long, lifts 180,000 pounds and has motors of 1600 horsepower.

St. Louisans who saw the "Arrow" when Knabenshue startled the World's Fair crowds with its maneuvers here 21 years ago, may find interest in calling back to memory the proportions of that pioneer among dirigibles and picturing it floating beside the Los Angeles. It was far more puny, even, than Wellman's "America." Its gas bag attained the prodigious length of 52 feet; its gasoline engine was capable of developing the mighty total of 7 horsepower and it tore along at the dizzy speed of 12 miles an hour.

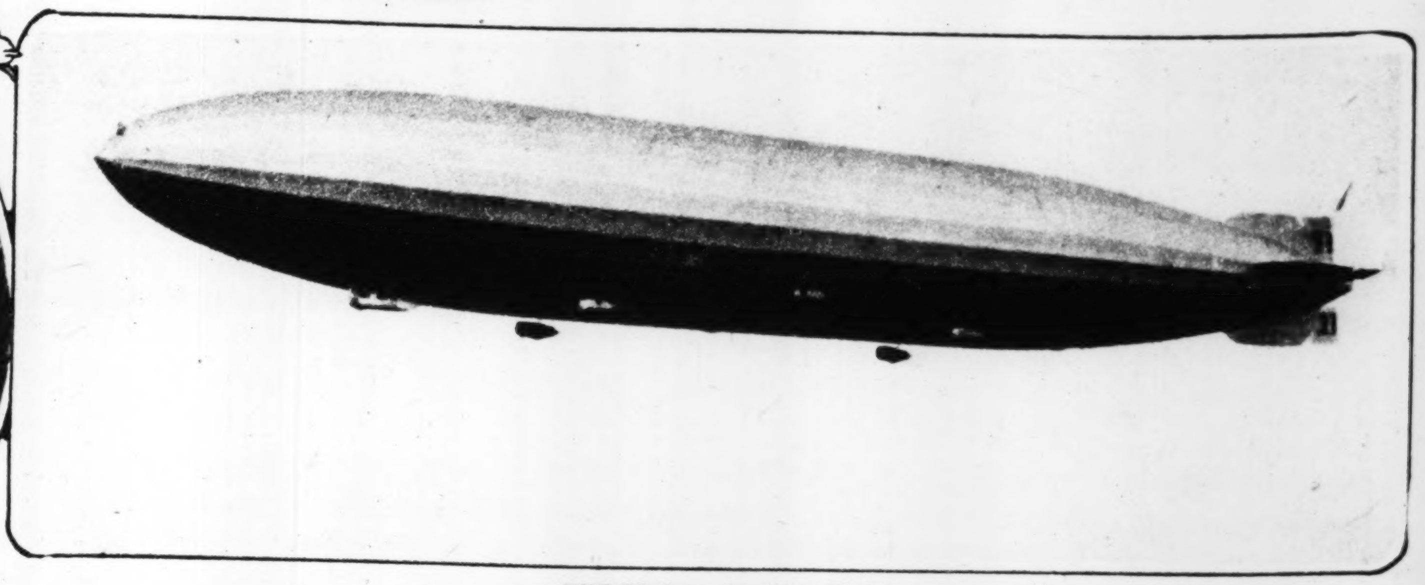
TALK about effrontery. Here is the way the prideful aeronaut of 1904 talked about his ship:

"I am part of the wind and do not feel its sweep or motion. I travel its paths which are absolutely unobstructed. I go up, down, left, right. There is nothing to stop me; no waves to buffet me. Don't you see the absolute freedom of it? All points of the compass are alike. There never will be such a thing as a chart of the ether, for there are no shoals, no headlands, no Cape Horns to go around, no Hatterases to go down upon. The airship navigator is as safe as his intelligence and caution are sound. His apparatus complete in every detail, nothing weak, nothing forgotten, and he is as safe as if he were on land.

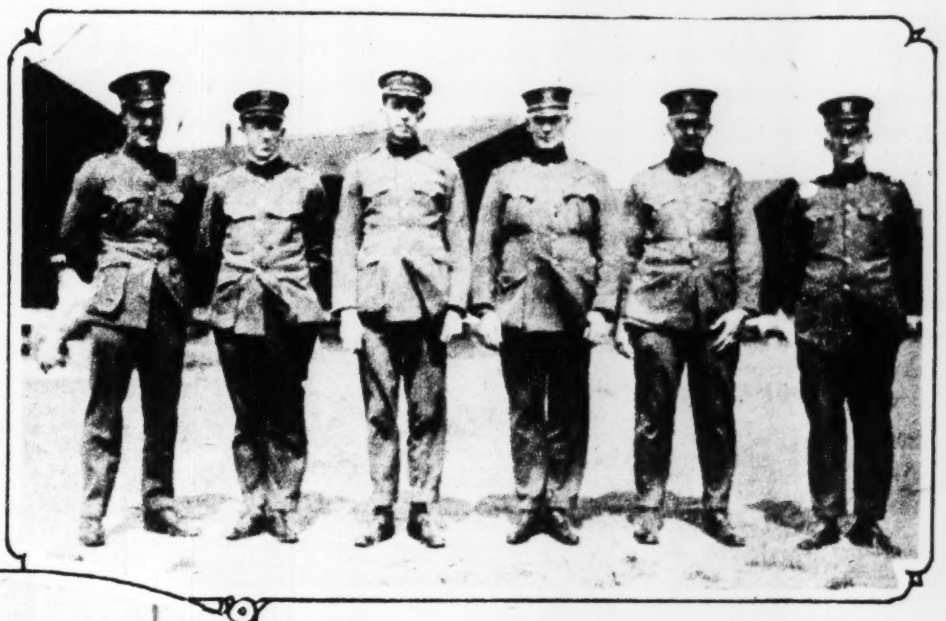
"A man rides at a high rate on a rickety railroad, with bad bridges, incompetent operatives and all that; or he goes to sea in an unworthy ship, the plaything of the winds and waves; or he drives a horse insensible to reason and far stronger than himself, that may bolt at any moment. Those are the elements of real danger. There is no use going into comparative death rates for the air has no record beyond those of a few parachute jumpers. But the traveler of the air is safe at all times by using just ordinary intelligence. Winds blow upon the traveler on earth or sea with danger. The sky navigator rides in calm no matter how strong are the winds."

Let us meditate that Roy Knabenshue had a lot to learn.

COMMANDER L. H. MAXFIELD—of the ZR-2. He was killed.



THE ZR-2 on her first flight.



THE OFFICERS. Three of these were killed.

However, his ship was the queen of its time and the object of as much admiration as the Los Angeles is today. Thousands watched it with mingled consternation and curiosity on that day in November, 1904, when it set out to break all airship distance records by sailing from the World's Fair grounds to Compton Hill reservoir and back and then northeast for 10 miles and back. Two accidents spoiled the plan, for hardly had the flight begun when the motor stopped and the craft settled down in a cornfield in part of what is now University City. An hour later it rose again and again the propellor stalled. This time it ascended higher in the air and veered off across the country toward Normandy. Two Post-Dispatch reporters and Thomas S. Baldwin, the inventor and owner of the craft, sped after it in an automobile, taking with them carrier pigeons to fly back with news of its landing. The Wild West

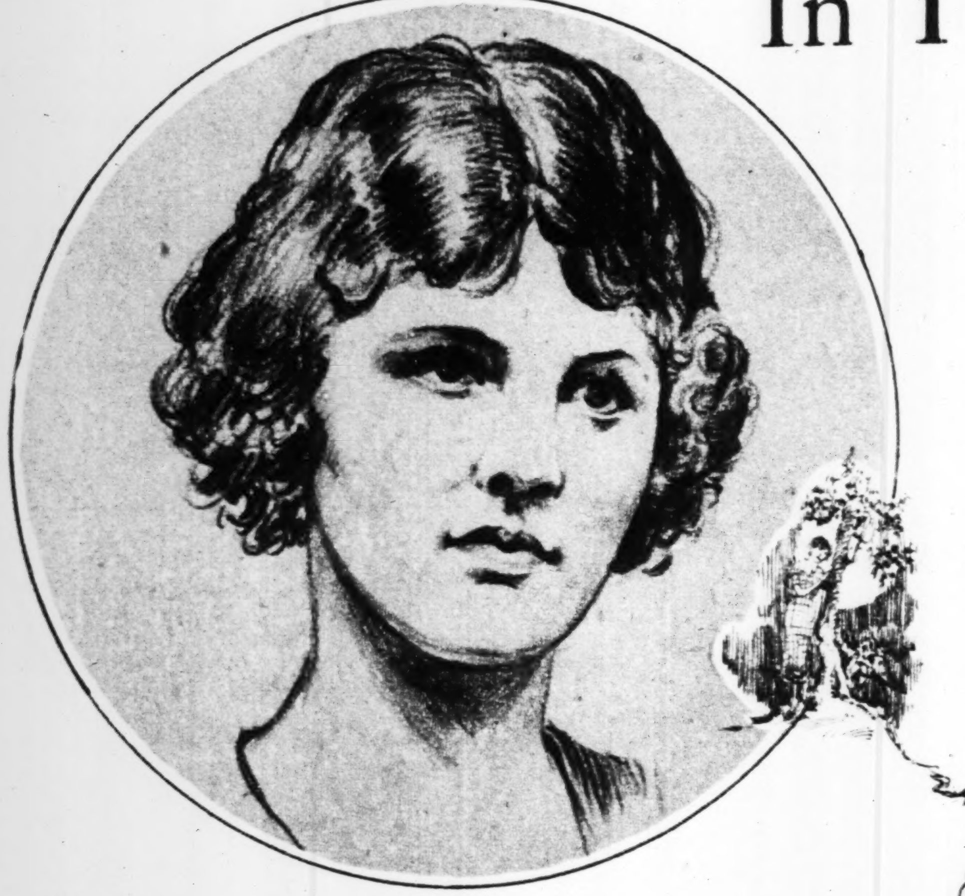
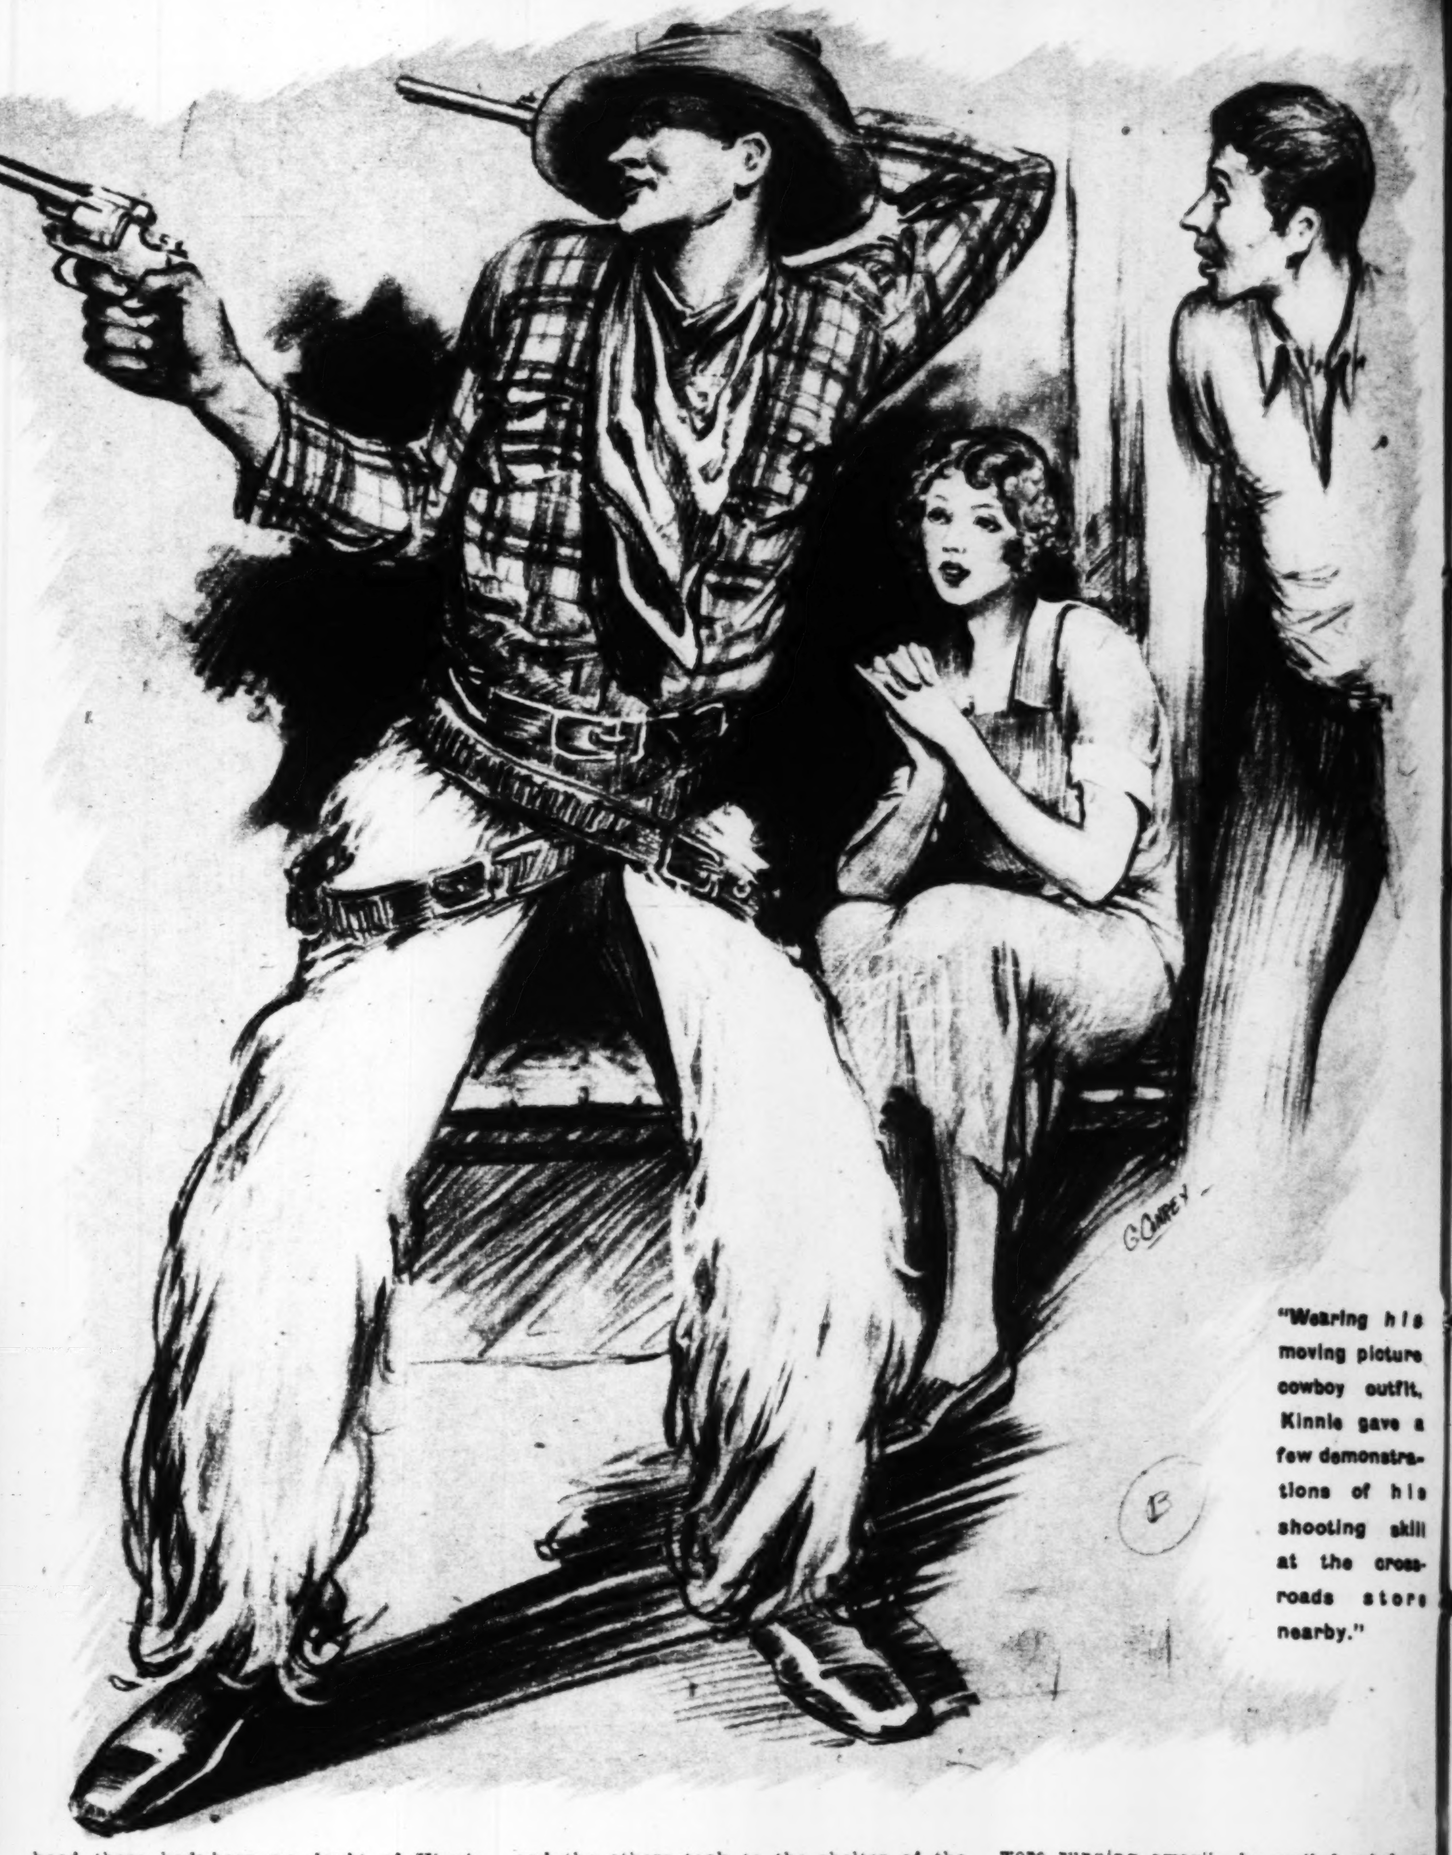
As One Boy Portrays It

In Tennessee

Twenty-two-year-old Kinnie Wagner of Tennessee has slain four men, because of a girl's pretty face.



BEULAH MINTON, heroine of mountain romance.



"Wearing his moving picture cowboy outfit, Kinnie gave a few demonstrations of his shooting skill at the cross-roads store nearby."

SUNDAY afternoon. The men folks, as is custom, loll about the door yard of a Tennessee hill farm, a scrap of land where men scramble among the rocks to grow corn. The talk turns on the parson's preaching at The Forks that morning. Then to some neighbor boy and girl who are keeping company. A great hawk circles overhead on lazy wing. There's a smell of autumn in the brush and the thoughts of the straggling boy who is sitting on the porch turn to pawpaws and persimmons. Now and then from beyond the brush which surrounds the farmyard clearing comes the clear call of a quail. And always one of the men answers it.

The straggling boy, who soon will be a man himself, tells of the walnuts he has gathered. "Shore fine. Big crop this year, too." He hands several that have been hulled and dried to a tall slim youth who seems to be his hero. The tall slim youth juggles the walnuts a bit, keeping two or three of them dancing in the air. Then, suddenly, he flings all three into the air, with his right hand whips a revolver from its holster, and smashes each nut with a bullet before it reaches the ground.

There's the call of the quail again. "Bob White," whistles the marksman cheerily, almost triumphantly. The women folks have rushed to the door of the house. From the back yard where they have been pitching horseshoes come a couple of other boys.

"Oh, it's jes' Kinnie showin' off," one of the women mutters.

"You hadn't oughter do that," drawls the voice of a bearded patriarch. "Them shots might bring some deputy snoopin' around. An' you kain't tell when you may come to need them bullets."

He is right. Kinnie Wagner, the 22-year-old youth who has done the shooting, is going to sell his life as dearly as he can. The commonwealths of Mississippi and Tennessee have put a price upon it—that's why. While Kinnie has been eating his Sunday dinner of fried chicken with his kinfolks the family has had outposts in the brush, mocking the call of the quail every little while to signal that all is well.

"You'd oughter get away from here," says the patriarch, "plumb outen the country."

Kinnie smiles. He won't go. Jails can't hold this youth, but a young girl does.

IT IS less than a year since Kinnie Wagner ran counter to the law down in Mississippi. Since then four men have lost their lives attempting to take him. Twice he has been in jail and twice escaped after pitched battles. Besides the four he has killed, two men have nearly died from his bullet wounds. County peace officers in Mississippi and Tennessee say that this slow-spoken, quick-acting youth is the South's most dangerous desperado. They vow that no man in America can shoot straighter, quicker, truer.

Up in the mountains of Tennessee his kinfolks also boast of Kinnie's quickness on the trigger. But they haven't a thought that he is a desperado. To them he's just a boy who's been unlucky. Their creed says he has killed in self-defense. They don't believe Kinnie Wagner was guilty when the Mississippi officers jailed him first for a trivial offense. And since, as they declare, he was innocent, then all that has followed has been an heroic battle against great odds; a fight in which, if he has taken life, it was to save his own.

They are treasured things, life and liberty, in the mountains of Tennessee. And treasured with them is "pursuit of happiness." That love for the mountains brought Kinnie Wagner back to Tennessee after he had roamed all over the United States. It serves to keep him there though the hand of the law is raised against him. These mountain folks are close to the soil. But with Kinnie there's an even greater reason.

NOT far from Kingsport, Tennessee, lives Beulah Minton. From the time they were little kids together Beulah has been Kinnie Wagner's "best girl." His kinfolks, his friends, are loyal, but her heart could give them lessons in loyalty. No matter what he's done she's true to the pledge she wrote on her slate when they were kids in school near Gate City, Virginia, a dozen years ago. "I love you," she wrote on her slate in that long ago. "I love you," she whispers now as she stands alone in the autumn evening and hopes the breezes will carry him her word. The Sheriff's officers say that so long as Beulah Minton is in Tennessee Kinnie Wagner will not be far away.

"If I could only know that he was gone," his sweetheart says. "If only I knew that Kinnie was safe somewhere far from here." To save him she would give him up, but he declares he has no use for a life she cannot share. So he skulks through the mountains, every cavern, every hidden nook of which he knows. Sometimes he slips down for a meal with his kinfolks when a whispered word reaches him that all is safe. Sometimes—who knows—he slips to the Minton home by unmarked tangled trails to whisper at the pressure of a hand a word of love.

"Kinnie's not half so bad as most folks think," his sweetheart says. "He's been hounded and imposed upon until he's almost crazy. He wouldn't let them arrest him down in Mississippi for something he didn't do. That started it all."

Whether he's right or whether he's wrong, she knows what her lover's end must be. A starved and hunted life. Pitched mountain battles with the searching posses. Death in the end, an agonized and lingering death, perhaps, or it may be a shot from ambush and a white and upturned face left lying lifeless on the rocks.

The two states that are seeking him have offered $2750 for Kinnie Wagner, alive or dead, and that's a lot of money. But not for twice that sum are there many men who would like to meet him on the trail. The South doesn't know his equal as a marksman. From his childhood Kinnie Wagner handled a revolver and a rifle. His sure aim eked out the family larder and furnished meat for the Wagner table when he was little more than a child. He always loved weapons. He always had good ones. He used to practice his shooting tricks by the hour. When he got good enough he left the mountains of Tennessee and joined a Wild West show. There he was billed as "The Champion Pistol Shot of the World." Maybe he was. You'd never get Kinnie Wagner to admit he wasn't. He'd shoot from horseback. He'd shoot over his shoulder. He'd shoot from between his legs. He'd break the glass balls he juggled as he splattered the three walnuts through the air that Sunday afternoon.

That was all show. He liked it. They'll tell you up in the Kingsport country and over near Gate City, Virginia, that Kinnie always liked to show off. He used to play at "Wild West show" when he was just a child. Nobody thought it strange when he ran off to join one. It would have been more strange had he stayed at home. The strange part was that he came back. There he was, you see, a boy of 19, lithe and tall, of muscular Indian build, who dressed in the fancy trappings of the circus West, the broad hat, the boots, the vivid flannel shirt and the high-heeled boots and spurs. A handsome youth, dark, with fine straight features and curly hair, at whom any girl would have looked twice—at least.

KINNIE WAGNER, photographed while a prisoner.

In the Wild West show the band played as he rode into the arena on his spotted pony and dismounted with a flourish of his sombrero. Nothing else moved while his act was on. The eyes of the audience were focused on his steel nerve and his unerring aim. Ball after ball was shattered amid cheers that sounded sweeter than the music of any band in Kinnie Wagner's ears. Here was travel, excitement, adulation, admiration. Yet Kinnie Wagner came home.

Beulah Minton was the reason. Though the ill-scrawled letters the boy wrote her while on his circus journeying gave no hint of his affection it was not because he didn't love. These mountain folks don't wear their hearts upon their sleeves. They are silent, reticent—it is almost as if they were ashamed of their affection. But from childhood there had been no doubt of Kinnie Wagner's devotion to Beulah Minton. When he was a growing kid at school some youngster questioned it. Even then he was quicker to act than to talk things over. He made it known that there would be no rivalry. Beulah was his girl and that was all. He was tall enough and strong enough and quick enough to have settled any rival claims to his—and not to the other fellow's—satisfaction. So their mountain courtship continued on through youth. They met at parties and at church after Kinnie had left school to earn his living. So that even though the bleachers applauded when the boy appeared he was homesick for the mountains and for Beulah.

AND no girl in the Kingsport district was prettier than his girl. Naturally when Kinnie was gone that finely chiseled, brown-eyed beauty attracted other men. One of them had come to woo when Kinnie Wagner suddenly came home. The new lover quickly resigned the field to the old, who, wearing a moving picture cowboy outfit, gave a few demonstrations of his shooting skill at the cross-roads store nearby and became a sort of mountain hero.

That was only two years ago. They have been eventful years. The mountains haven't a lot of work for a man to do. That's how Kinnie Wagner got down into Greene County, Mississippi, last year. He was looking for work. And he got into trouble. It doesn't matter what. It doesn't matter whether he was guilty. The law had him in its toils. He was held in jail awaiting trial.

It was early December. The boy wanted to be back in Tennessee for Christmas. He didn't propose to wait until the January term of court, when his case was set for trial. Perhaps he had been in bad company. Young men have been. And he had a friend who was willing to smuggle a gun into the jail. With that weapon he shot his jailer and got away.

A man hunt was on. Kinnie Wagner tried to make his way back into Tennessee, but his sixth sense warned him that the roads were watched. He decided to lay low. Days passed and travel for him was still unsafe. He hid in a deserted cabin in the middle of a swamp. Every time he tried to get away he was forced to return. He could not afford, he believed, to fall in with some chance passerby along the way and be reported to the officers. But some hunters, ranging near the hidden cabin, caught a glimpse of the man and set Greene County deputies on his trail. Early on Christmas Eve he was surrounded. From a distance the officers called to him and ordered him to surrender.

"Come and get me," he yelled.

They started shooting. But one of the deputies fell dead, shot through the head, and the others took to the shelter of the nearby timber. Whenever one would show his head Kinnie Wagner sent a bullet screaming in its direction. Hours passed and the posse awaited reinforcements. Dusk fell upon the swamp and in the dusk young Kinnie disappeared. When, with their reinforcements, the Sheriffs stormed the cabin Christmas morning it was empty.

Forced from his hiding place Wagner moved out of the State of Mississippi, traveling by night and sleeping in hidden corners through the day. No one seems to have encountered him. No one was found who had seen the fugitive or given him aid. When next the officers heard of him he was with kinfolks up in Tennessee.

So on April 13 last a posse which had been searching through the mountains came upon the boy by the banks of the Holston River, near Kingsport, whither he had come, it was believed, in an effort to get supplies while the officers were hunting for him in the neighborhood of his hiding place. They outnumbered him five to one. They had come upon him from behind just as he was about to step into the boat.

He whirled about, whisked two six-shooters from his pockets and began to fire.

Policeman John Smith and Deputy Sheriff Webb were instantly killed. Policeman Frazier was fatally wounded. All three officers were struck in the left side of the chest, two of them pierced through the heart, by bullets from Wagner's revolvers, at a distance of from 50 to 75 yards. The two unwounded officers turned and fled.

Kingsport and the whole county were aroused. Hillsfolk sympathized with Kinnie—many of them—but the townsfolk remembered the officers who were slain. A systematic search was organized. A posse of several hundred men started out to scour every inch of the county.

BUT two days later Kinnie Wagner had sprung a surprise of a different kind. He had walked into jail at Blountsville, Tennessee, nine miles from Kingsport, and quietly surrendered.

The Commonwealth of Tennessee began hurried preparations to try the youth. Mississippi officers came up to help bear witness against him. His hill friends hurried together in consultation. They hired five attorneys to defend the boy.

The trial was held in May. Kinnie Wagner, in that courtroom, seemed to enjoy the role of star as he used to enjoy the attention of the bleachers in the circus. He took the stand in his own behalf. He hadn't a bit of regret, he said, over the killing of the four officers. He told the details of the battle at the cabin down in Mississippi, of the fight along the river bank in Tennessee.

"I could have killed the other two men in Kingsport that day," he declared. "But they were running away"—he smiled grimly at the remembrance and two of the deputies who sat in that courtroom shivered at their memories as he spoke—"and I don't like to shoot a man in the back. If a man ain't bothering me I won't kill him, but if he starts to bother me, look out! I shot those officers to protect my own body. I'd do the same thing again under the circumstances."

The State tried to bring the name of Beulah Minton into the case. Wagner stiffened from an attitude of bored indifference to deadly hostility. "I'll tell you nothing now," he said, and glared at the prosecutors.

A JURY found him guilty in less than an hour. He smiled grimly again as he heard the sentence of death in the electric chair.

"I don't give a damn," was his comment.

But the attorneys did. They got a new trial on technical grounds. Judge Guy [illegible] Chase, who had presided at the first trial, agreed that they had not been given a proper time to prepare a defense. The new hearing was scheduled for August 17. Kinnie Wagner's mountain friends hired ten attorney to defend him.

On July 10 Wagner and six companions in the jail leaped upon Jailer A. E. Barr as, bringing their supper, he opened the cage door. Kinnie took his revolver. When two Deputy Sheriffs rushed in they were halted by Kinnie Wagner with the jailer's weapon. Their own firearms were appropriated.

His pals rushed for cover when they escaped through the jail entrance, but Wagner characteristically backed away coolly deliberately firing with careful aim as he covered his retreat. The guards insist that he could have killed them easily if he had desired but merely wished to keep them at bay by sending bullets screeching at their ears. He got away—escaped without a trace—after he had whirled and run down an alley off the street from the jailyard.

Then he sent word to Sheriff Joe J. Thomas that he didn't propose being taken alive and if another officer challenged him it would be that officer's life or his. Thomas got together a posse of 500 men. No trace could be found of the fugitive. Yet almost weekly came reports to the Sheriff's office that he had been seen in this vicinity or that. There were almost weekly sallies against these hiding places. Sometimes his camp was found—but never the man.

"He's still in the country," says Sheriff Thomas. "He won't go away from where Beulah Minton is."

But the girl maintains she has not seen this man she loves. The beauty of her face has been pinched with suffering and anguished worry, through the long months.

"Oh, why won't he go away from here!" she asks herself tearfully. Kinnie Wagner's only answer is to stay on. Though jails won't hold him he is a prisoner of love.

"Wearing his moving picture cowboy outfit, Kinnie gave a few demonstrations of his shooting skill at the crossroads store nearby."

The WILD WILD Child

A very up-to-date love story in which the heroine craves excitement, and steps out and finds plenty of it.

By Steuart M. Emery

"DRAGGLED AND BRUISED, Rowena Vanderhaydin stood in the doorway. Beneath one arm she seemed to be cherishing a limp bundle of battered rags. 'This is Charles G. Moore,' she announced. 'I've just picked him out of what's left of his taxicab.' "

YOU two sit there," remarked Rowena Vanderhaydin to her father and mother, "looking like a pair of stuffed eggplants. Do you wonder why your brightest daughter has tossed her tooth brush and an extra frill into her suitcase and is going where women are women and don't have to be ladies? I'd be a nothing if I didn't tell you."

She jammed a cigarette into her mouth and lit it with a highly vulgar flourish. A horrified coughing on the part of both parents accompanied this act. Her father, Peter Vanderhaydin, stroked his whiskers, while his full pink face grew both fuller and pinker. Mrs. Vanderhaydin's ordinarily majestic and balloonlike black silk seemed to deflate into the limpness of a rag gown. Their undutiful daughter Rowena was off again. The thorn amid the rose garden of their family life was sticking once more into their sides.

"Listen, folks," proceeded Rowena. "You pain me. Honest to Mike, you do. You represent all that is finest and best in Brooklyn Heights. So do my sweet but slightly dumb sisters, Patricia and Priscilla. So do I myself—in an armadillo's ear. Put on the headsets and hark to me a bit—this is Station GRIEF broadcasting."

Long, long ago, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Vanderhaydin had given up their third and youngest daughter, Rowena, as hopeless. Patrica and Priscilla had been delightful children to rear. Never had they failed to answer the call of "tea and bedtime, darlings." But not so Rowena. No less than four times she had been discovered assisting the grocery boy on his rounds by sitting on the front seat of his covered wagon.

ROWENA had disappeared not long thereafter—freckles, gangling legs, and all—into the fastness of the Misses Pennington's School for Young Ladies. All travelers who pass the Hudson River by train or motor are familiar with its towers on the more exclusive bank of the river. Those towers are still there to engage the eye—but not Rowena.

At Priscilla's debut in the Vanderhaydin mansion Rowena had appeared with a tow-headed conquest from the next block named Otto Glutz. The dinner in honor of Patricia's engagement had been celebrated by Rowena through the medium of a telephone call informing the family that she was at an interesting movie and couldn't think of leaving before the end of the film.

"I think—I think," Peter Vanderhaydin, the man of many corporations and affairs, had remarked cautiously at the time, "that she must get it from your side of the family, my dear."

Mrs. Peter Vanderhaydin gasped more pronouncedly than ever.

"Peter," she remarked briskly, "we have done the best for that child that can be done. I am sure that any acts of hers are as much your fault as mine."

"But she—she doesn't behave like a lady," Peter Vanderhaydin replied.

"It simply can't be explained by any reasonable process, my dear. We send her to an exclusive school and she returns with the—ah—vocabulary of a truck driver. We surround her with the advantages of as good a home as there is in Brooklyn"—his tone here became pained indeed—"and day by day she approaches nearer to the character of a Paris apache."

"Is it inhi"—faltered Mrs. Vanderhaydin—"is it in—hibition, do you suppose? Perhaps we ought to have sent her West."

"Or put her in a reformatory," Peter Vanderhaydin would reply.

Rowena was a great trial to her father and mother. She promised on this particular evening to furnish even more spirited fireworks than usual.

"I CAN see it in your eye," Rowena continued, casually kicking at the leg of the nearest chair. "You're dragging up all you've got against innocent me in the past and mulling it over in the vacuum of the dome. You'll never be rid of me by the altar route, darlings—the last hand-picked beau I had left the house in one hell of a—"

"Rowena!" It was a cry of mounting horror from her mother.

"Of a hurry," proceeded Rowena calmly. "When you know a good adjective, use it, is my motto. And all I did was to ask him if there had ever been a chorus girl in his life. I do love a sheik.

"I crave my action, darlings. And honest to Mike, I'm going to get it."

Rowena paused in order to let the full effect of these remarks sink in. They did so—but slowly.

"Don't think I'm not fond of you both," went on Rowena. "I am in my own naive way. But it's all wrong, folks, it's all wrong. I don't belong in this respectable household—it bores me. I'm a throwback to the generation of Vanderhaydins who slung coal on the docks of Rotterdam in their shirtsleeves."

Two pairs of hands rose fluttering in horror at this remark. Looking at the rotund, groomed lines of Peter Vanderhaydin, one knew instinctively that his ancestors had never slung coal. Mutiny and rebellion were bad enough, but sacrilege could not be tolerated.

"Rowena," he declared, "you are saying things which you will sadly regret when this strange outburst of yours is over. You had better go upstairs."

"And bathe your temples in cold water and go to bed," faltered Rowena's mother. "I'll put some sweet spirits of ammonia in the water."

Their daughter placed a hand on her hip and wriggled her cigarette holder into the corner of her mouth. She also slouched one shoulder, her pose in general suggesting a factory girl getting ready for her spring outing. When she spoke she fairly volleyed her remarks.

"I'm a wild wild child and I'm wilder when I'm riled. I'm a low-life and a sharpie. And I'm not happy in the four hundred—I get my best fun in the submerged tenth. Take a good swift look at your ugly duckling, darlings. She's flapping her wings tonight."

THE parents looked, as a complete and ghastly silence fell upon the Vanderhaydin library. More in sorrow than in anger, it seemed, a double row of Vanderhaydins in the costumes of past generations looked down from the tall gilded frames on the wall upon a scene unparalleled in family history. A Vanderhaydin—and a lady Vanderhaydin—was going wrong.

"What—what are you going to do?" ventured Mrs. Peter Vanderhaydin.

"Me?" inquired Rowena. Her wide mouth curved in a broad almost unmaidenly grin. "I'm pulling my private and personal freight out of this dead way station and the lights are all bright ahead. It seemed to be the clubby thing to do to tell you about it first so you won't be advertising in the papers for a missing daughter. Cheerio! I'll drop you post cards."

With a piratical swagger Rowena crossed the room and laid a hand on the bell cord. In the Vanderhaydin home they still called the servants by a gentle twitch at a cord. In the case of Rowena's present gentle twitch the velvet strip broke away from its fastening and tumbled to the floor. A substantial form appeared. Malkin, the butler, had been thirty years with the Vanderhaydin family.

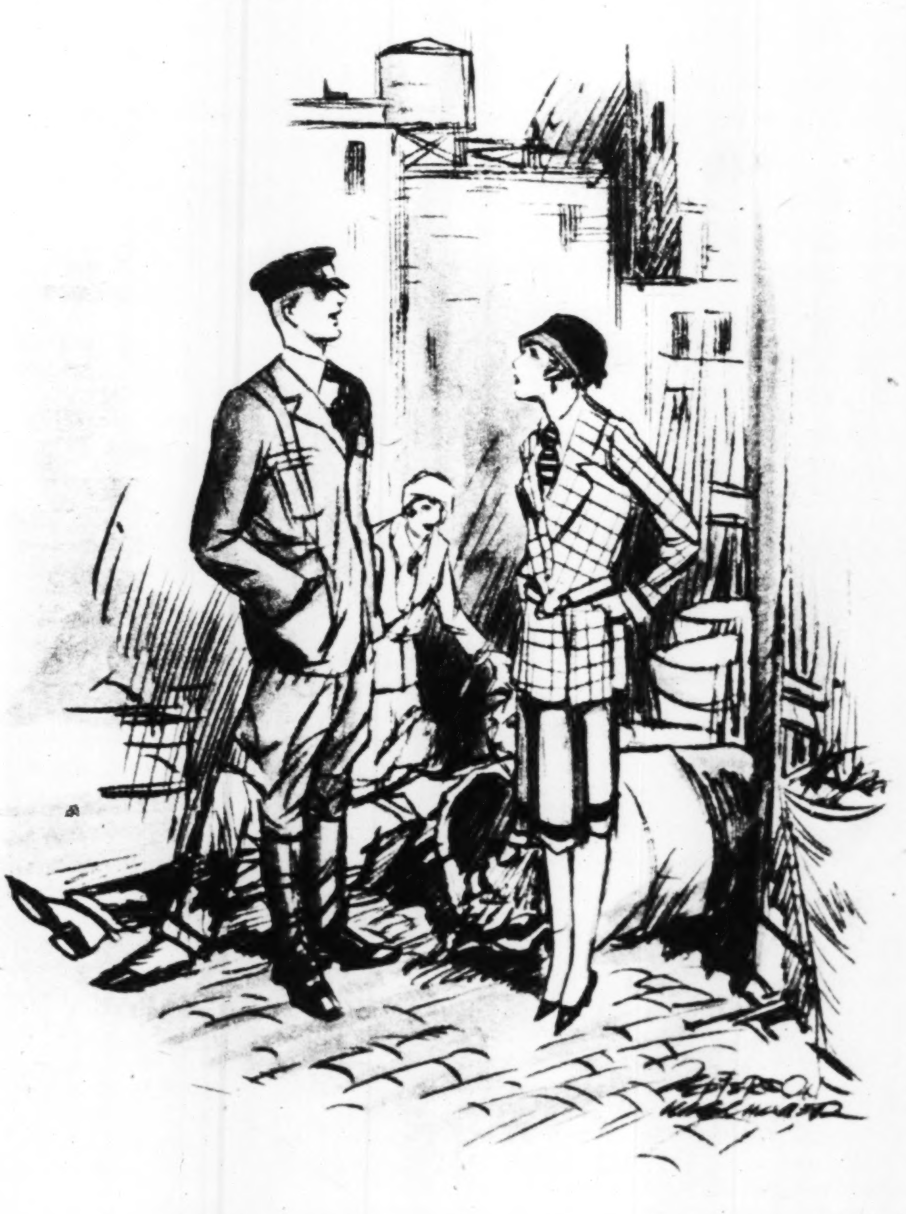
"Malkin," said Rowena, "you'll find a packed valise in my room. Do a brisk gallop up the stairs and see if you can get it down here inside the next forty-five seconds without having either asthma or kittens."

Malkin disappeared backward through the door. Perhaps he had fainted. Rowena spun about on her heel to face a stricken audience.

"I guess that order got across," announced Rowena. "And I guess you get what it means without the aid of a chart and a diagram. Your daughter's fed up with respectability. She's stepping out to find a nice little level with mud on it."

"You—you sound as though you meant the gutter," managed her mother with a great effort. Her eyes blinked feebly.

"Maybe I do," said Rowena calmly. "Anyhow, I'm getting away from the crowd of pop-eyed swains and zero brains that hang around this house and my sweet sisters. I'm going out and be myself if jail's the only place I can do it in."



"YOU PACK A MIGHTY WALLOP," she observed. "But who in hades told you I needed a protector?"

FROM the doorway came a slight sound. Malkin stood there with the bag, his portly features once more at normal. Rowena waved a casual hand at her parents.

"Twenty years from now you'll still be sitting there," she pronounced. "Take a good look at yourselves once in a while. Remember, the moss grows thickest on the north side. Good-by and fare-thee-well, darlings. Your errant daughter can take care of herself."

One swift final look was all she permitted herself before the hall portieres swung behind her like a curtain spelling finis to a scene.

"Do you wish the car, miss?" It was Malkin speaking in his customary sonorous accents.

"No, thank you," said Rowena as she took the bag from his hand. "I'll just stagger down to the corner and yell for a taxi. And, Malkin, old pet, a word in your eardrum. This place is getting you, too. Your days are full of nothing but sound sleep. Why don't you snap out of it and be an honest bricklayer or something with zip and steam to it? Life's too short not to do what you want in it."

For just a moment Malkin permitted a vestige of expression to cross his features. That was just as Rowena reached the top of the steps. His nobly molded head was actually thrust around the edge of the door.

"Maybe I will," he whispered hoarsely. "Good luck, Miss Rowena."

The front of Blumgarten's department store is an elegant panorama of plate glass, imported gowns, lingerie, drawing-room scenery, neckwear, hardware, and all the thousand and two other articles which expert window dressers lay out to entrap the passerby.

The side of Blumgarten's however, is a blank-walled alley, presenting nothing more interesting to the gaze than a pair of ash cans.

A young woman in a belted tweed coat with a hat jammed down over one eye had just done a clatter over the nearest ash can. Behind her and around her twittered the outgoing throng.

"You was lookin' into the sky an' you stumbled, dearie," vouchsafed a chunky maiden with a red Tam o' Shanter and a perpetual smile. "That means you was thinkin' of a wedding."

"In a giraffe's tonsils, I was," remarked the young lady addressed. "Marriage and this child are teetotal strangers. I've heard so much about it I never want to meet it. You hand me the ache."

A cheerful giggle answered her. By now the throng of another store's employes was debouching in a noisy stream onto the cross street. The red Tam gave a squeal.

"Here he is, dearie, waiting for you. Gawd, ain't he grand?"

Sauntering debonairly in their direction, quite evidently from a post of waiting, there approached a tall, immaculate young man in the cutaway and spats which Blumgarten's requires of all its gentlemanly floor walkers. There were thirty of them, but Arthur, of the ladies' wear department, outshone them all.

"Good evening," he observed, speaking boldly to the young lady in the belted coat. "I was trusting you would not be late."

PERHAPS he expected the coy blush which ordinarily met his charming chivalry. If so he was severely disappointed.

"About half a mile down this street there's a river," he was informed. "Go jump in it and wet yourself all over. I told you yesterday to lay off the sweet nothings."

"Aha," returned Arthur with his engaging smile. "Now you're mad at me."

He reached forth a companionable hand and with perfect technique placed it on the arm of the young lady. It was promptly flung off. The red Tam shrieked with glee and withdrew to watch the performance with an interested crowd of her fellows.

"In one more minute, if you keep that stuff up," remarked the young person in the belted coat, coldly eying the point of Arthur's jaw, "it will take more than the jingle of an alarm clock to bring you back to the world."

A small square chin was thrust forward, the determined cleft in it more apparent than ever. Arthur winked at his delighted audience and lounged forward, his large white teeth prominently displayed in the gallant smile of a conqueror.

The target was far too attractive to miss. From somewhere behind the young lady a hard and competent closed hand shot out and Arthur's teeth disappeared from view. The impact was splendid.

"Quite correct," spoke a cheerful voice. "It'll be time to go to work again before his bright blue eyes open."

No one had seen the young man in the taxi driver's cap and uniform who up to now had been quietly sitting on the nearest fire hydrant in supreme defiance of all the laws of the city. He had sprung from the pavement, it seemed, the very same pavement upon which the elegant form of Arthur, the floor walker, was at present somewhat sadly crumpled. Rowena Vanderhaydin looked up into the face of her preserver.

"You pack a mighty wallop, Sir Galahad," she observed. "But who in hades told you I needed a protector? I can poke my mashers for myself, thank you."

He grinned at her. This common taxicab driver grinned at Rowena Vanderhaydin. And as he did so she obtained her first real look at him. Fresh colored complexion, humorous gray eyes, features of classic mold in which there was no flaw. Beneath his cap, she knew, his hair would be crisp and curly. He was undeniably handsome and therefore abhorrent.

"THE error is mine," announced the taxi driver with the same grinning calm. She saw now that his lips turned up at the corners. "But just the same you'd better pop into my cab and let me roll you home. Harold or Percy, or whatever his name is, has shambled away, but he may be waiting around the corner."

He said it to Rowena as though she were a ten-year-old child. A most complete haze of red began to waver before her eyes.

"You're about as funny as typhoid in the milk," she remarked. "I guess I can crash my own path through this jungle. If that's your tin juggernaut over there, its front seat needs a driver."

"And one for company," was the prompt answer. She did not quite realize how it was happening. She only knew that she wanted to put this thoroughly masculine, far too insolent, young man in his place. She found, strangely, that she was doing it from the extra seat beside him, bowling miraculously through a swarm of traffic. She also realized that here was a pilot who regarded a quarter of an inch as an ideal margin by which to whisk past a truck. Roused and raging, she fell back on the one weapon which she thought would curl him up like a stricken porcupine.

"I may work in Blumgarten's," she said charmingly, "but I happen to be Rowena Vanderhaydin. Any time I want I can go back to the well-known Vanderhaydin mansion on Brooklyn Heights and the front door will swing open. Is that sufficient for you?"

He eyed her with absolute joy.

"Quite," he remarked. "I'll go with you any time you want to try it. I've never seen a young lady come down a flight of stone steps on her ear. Personally, I am the Prince of Wales."

ROWENA'S lips were compressed in a dangerous line. Many a young man of Brooklyn's best circles had seen that line and disappeared from view incontinently.

"I am also Charles G. Moore," proceeded the young man with total calm. "Better known, however, as Bummy."

"Which conveys nothing," said Rowena sweetly. "There are a number of Moores in the telephone book."

"But only one in the Sunday supplements," smiled the young man. "I recommend to your attention the splendid article captioned 'Is Young Moore Crazy or Is He Not? Guardian Great Uncle Roger Wearies of His Ward's Cavortings.' That's one reason why I am driving a bucking taxicab."

"And the other," said Rowena crisply, "must be because fresh air makes you fresher. Here is my stop—the brownstone front with the shopworn cat on the doormat."

From her pocket Rowena drew out a bill. It was airily waved away.

"No charge to you, lady," said Bummy Moore, still grinning. "Professional courtesy from one bad egg to another. I'll be round tomorrow night at seven prompt for you. It's pay day."

Rowena hunched her shoulders and glared at him. "And you suppose that sweetie will be waiting for you all-a-quiver with excitement?"

"I don't suppose it," he said with unbearable confidence. "From a long and ex-

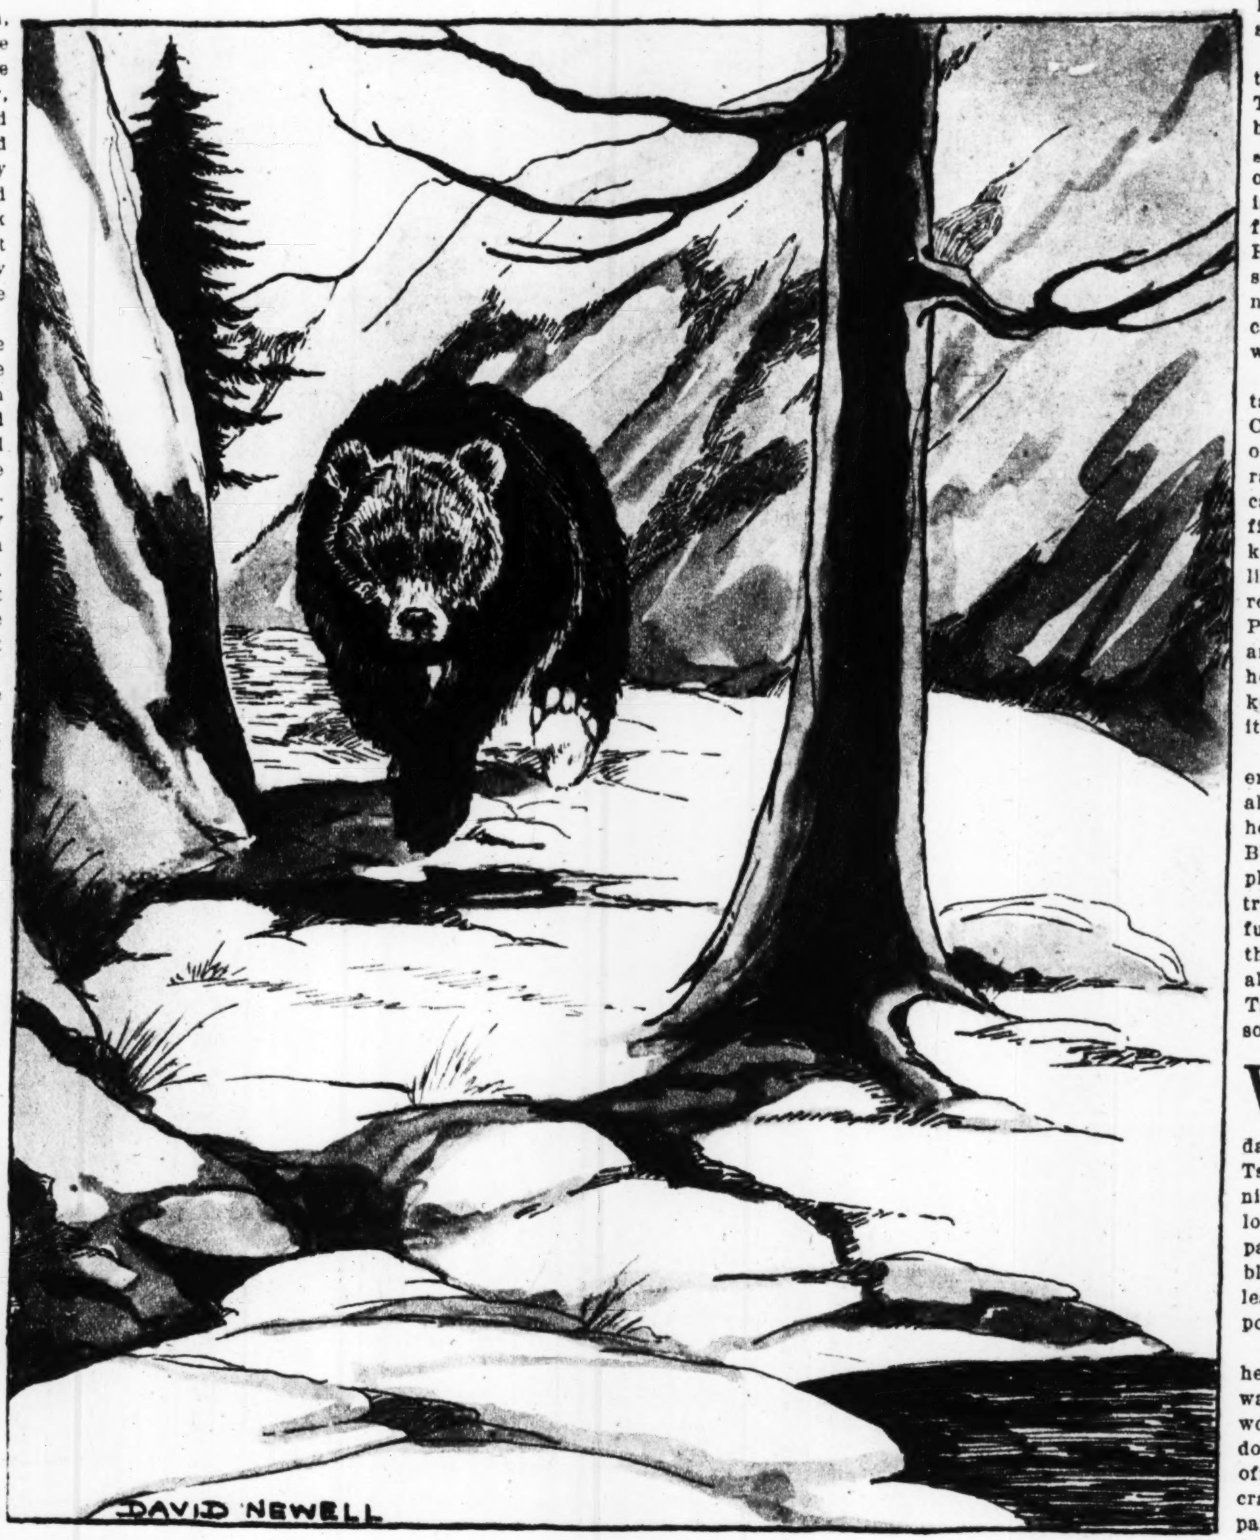
TSHASH, the Grizzly Bear, Finds Out

By DAVID NEWELL

NEAR the head of Black Canyon, where the grim rock walls rise sheer and forbidding and the snow lies deep in the dead of winter, is a cave. Only a few of the old Apache Indians know of this cave, and they will not tell where it is. Many moons ago a strange thing happened there in the silent cliffs of Black Canyon. Even now the Indians do not like to talk about it, and when they do, it is only in whispers around the campfires.

To begin with, the Apaches believe that long long ago Tshash and Apache were brothers. Tshash is the Indian word for bear. Because of this blood brotherhood, no good Apache must kill or eat bear. The medicine men have songs that they sing to the bears. When the bears hear these songs they remember the old tie between them and the Indians and so are friendly. Of course you and I may think that this is funny and I don't suppose we believe it is true—but then we don't know everything after all.

The first Indian to learn about the cave in Black Canyon was old Mbu, the owl. All day he had been trailing a fat old buck through the craggy breaks of Black Canyon. As evening came on Mbu gave up his quest and headed back toward his camp, which lay some 12 miles to the south. His pony was tired and he knew that he would have to hurry if he wanted to get to camp by dark. Therefore he decided to take a short cut through Black Canyon. As he neared the canyon rim his horse snorted violently and stopped so suddenly that old Mbu nearly fell over his neck. The old Indian grunted. Something wrong here! His trained eye scanned the ground ahead of him. Again he grunted—this time with surprise—and exclaimed, "Tshash!"



IN many years of experience Mbu had never seen such a bear track. He got off his horse and measured it. Almost two spans of his hand it was in length and half as wide! This was the back foot, and the old Indian examined the ground carefully. You and I probably would have failed to find anything there on the hard stony ground, but it was all easy for old Mbu. When he saw the broad print of the great bear's front foot he decided that camp was the best place for him to go—brotherhood or no brotherhood. The thought of meeting the owner of such feet sent little chills up his back.

And then he discovered something else that scared him still further. There was another track alongside the big one and after a brief scrutiny the Indian muttered, "Tshash-bi-zhaszhi!" (bear cub). A silvertip grizzly with a cub is nothing to trifle with—and Mbu didn't happen to be a medicine man and didn't know the bear's song. Just between you and me I doubt very much whether old Mbu would have done any singing right then if he had known fifty bear songs.

But like lots of folks Mbu was curious. He knew that the track was fresh from the way his horse had acted and that the old bear might be even now in the rock ledges on the side of the canyon. He couldn't resist the temptation to see, and so crept to the rim and looked over.

Perhaps forty feet below him was a broad ledge at the mouth of a cave. On this ledge was sprawled the biggest bear that old Mbu had ever laid his eyes on. And beside her lay a woolly cub—no bigger than a raccoon. The Indian gazed down at the sight with awe. This was surely the grandmother of all bears.

And then the grizzly scented him! With an angry startled "Woof" she whirled to her feet, every hair on end. That was enough for old Mbu. He fled back to his pony as fast as he could go, leaped into the saddle and galloped away.

THAT night by the fire while the squaws cooked supper and the children played in the doors of the wick-i-ups old Mbu told of what he had seen, and in the dancing shadows, Mba-Tsossa, the fox, listened with half-closed eyes and his heart was full of cunning. And long after the others had gone to bed, when the campfires smoldered and the coyotes howled to the stars, Mba-Tsossa the fox lay in his blankets thinking—and his thoughts were evil thoughts.

With the first streaks of day behind the mountains Mba-Tsossa arose and saddled his buckskin pony. Without waiting to eat anything he stole out of the camp and took the east trail toward Yellow Mountain. Three hours' riding brought him to Crooked Creek, and this he followed, winding around the south side of Yellow Mountain.

At length he came to a grove of cottonwoods beside the stream where was the camp of Jim Calvert, a white man who had come into the Indian country on a hunting trip. As Mba-Tsossa rode up Calvert's hounds and Airedales ran out barking furiously, and shortly Jim Calvert emerged from his tent to see what all the noise was about. Calling to his dogs to keep quiet, he approached the Indian and said: "Hello. Do you want to see me?"

"Ao," replied Mba-Tsossa, and then continued, "Mebbe so white man like catchum bear—big bear. Me savvy."

"You know where big bear?" queried Calvert, at once interested.

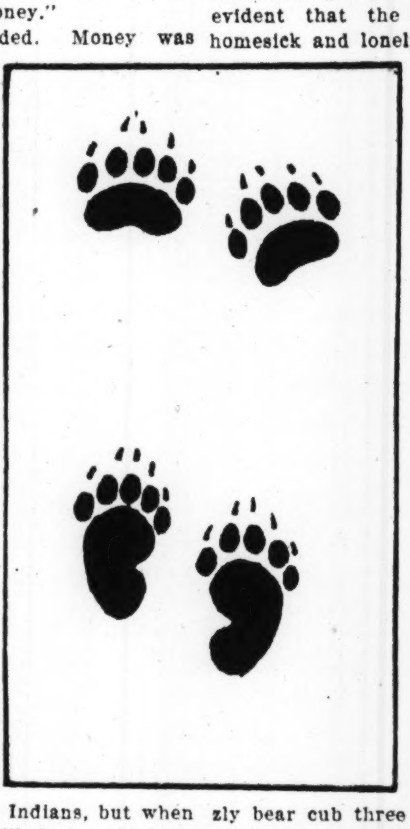
"Ao," answered Mba-Tsossa again.

"Mebbe so you show me this place where big bear live," suggested Calvert. A cunning look came into the Indian's eyes.

"Me 'fraid," he grunted. "Bear bad medicine. Mebbe so kill Indian."

"You show me place," replied Calvert, "I pay you money."

Mba-Tsossa nodded. Money was what he wanted.



"When can go?" asked Calvert.

The Indian pointed to a range of mountains that lay to the east. "Tomorrow when sun look over mountains me come," he said. "You no tell Indians I come here. Indians think very bad to kill bear."

"All right," laughed Calvert. "I won't tell anybody and I'll be ready tomorrow morning."

"Good!" grunted Mba-Tsossa, and rode away.

Now Mba-Tsossa was superstitious, like all Indians, but when Jim Calvert had killed the old bear and had taken the cub away to his home in the East, the Indian forgot all about it. The white man had paid him fifty dollars—for was not the skin of the big bear a very fine one and the little cub worth a great deal of money? Mba-Tsossa knew that he had done wrong; but he did not worry, for he thought that none of the other Indians would ever find it out.

For a long time Jim Calvert enjoyed the antics of the little bear, which he had named Tshash. But by the following spring Tshash had grown to be quite a good-sized youngster and was becoming harder and harder to manage. He was as strong as two men and very quick. The only person he seemed to care for was Calvert. He would bristle up and snort at strangers and he had no use at all for dogs of any kind. I suppose he remembered that day in far-away Black Canyon when three big Airedales had clamored for his life, while he clung terrified to a limb in the top of a dead spruce tree.

During the summer Tshash lost his interest in playing and became very quiet and gloomy. For hours at a time he would shuffle back and forth, as far as his chain would permit him to go. Occasionally he would stop suddenly and stand for a moment on his back feet gazing far away toward the distant hills. Jim Calvert watched him one day for a long time. It was evident that the young bear was homesick and lonely for his kind. A resolve kindled itself in the man's heart and he spoke aloud: "All right, old chap, we're going home!"

Tshash stopped his restless pacing as if he understood what Jim had said. Perhaps he did. Anyway, he lay down in the leaves and went to sleep.

When Jim Calvert's friends heard that he was going back to Arizona to take Tshash home, they shook their heads. Poor Jim, he was surely losing his mind. The idea of bringing a grizzly bear cub three thousand miles to start with was bad enough, but to take him back when he was three-quarters grown and give him his freedom—why it was the craziest thing they had ever heard of. But Jim didn't care. He had come to love Tshash and he knew that the bear could never be happy in captivity. Bears are a good deal like people. Every bear has a different disposition. Some are fat and good-natured and some are cross and ugly. Some thrive in captivity and some die of sheer homesickness.

The sun was setting behind the distant ranges when Jim Calvert and Tshash reached Black Canyon. The man unsnapped the bear's chain and, patting him on the head, whispered: "Good-by, old chap. I'm mighty sorry but I can't stay here with you and you couldn't stay with me."

With that he turned and walked away. Jim's last view of Tshash was when he reached the down trail into the valley. The bear was standing uncertainly where Jim had left him, gazing wistfully after the only friend he knew. Jim looked away hastily and wiped his eyes.

With the coming of night Tshash climbed wearily to a shelving rock and lay down. He was tired from the long trip and he was very lonely. He raised his head and sniffed the cool air of the mountains, laden with the pungent scent of the pine needles. A feeling of peace and contentment came over him and he sighed softly—and slept.

The next three or four days were like a nightmare to poor Tshash. He was used to having his breakfast brought to him and he wandered aimlessly through the canyons. It was not until the second day that he realized that if he was to have anything to eat he must find it himself. So he settled down to hunting.

AS HE rounded a little cliff he came suddenly face to face with a large tawny-colored creature as big as he was. Tshash stopped. For a minute he was terrified. The strange creature laid back its ears and its long tail twitched angrily. Of course Tshash didn't know what a mountain lion was. He had never seen nor smelled one. But instinct told him that here was an enemy. His bristles rose and he gave a deep rumbling growl. The lion snarled and backed away a step or two. Suddenly something snapped in the young bear's brain. He lost all fear and went hot with rage. Uttering a mighty bellow he charged down at the great yellow cat.

Now while Tshash did not know just what he was tackling, the lion was fully aware of the fact that Tshash was a grizzly bear and since he knew a good deal about grizzly bears he turned and bounded away as fast as he could go. Tshash was really quite surprised. He had expected a fight but he found himself boss of the situation without a blow being struck. He sat down to think things over.

And then another smell came to his nostrils, the smell of fresh beef. This was not a new scent to Tshash and he licked his lips with anticipation and shuffled down through the boulders. Presently he came to a newly killed calf all nicely buried under a pile of sticks and pine needles. The scent of the lion was very strong around the calf and Tshash growled fiercely as he dragged it out. And then he forgot the lion and everything else in the delightful sensation of filling his empty stomach.

For two days Tshash stayed around the calf—until he had finished it all. The lion, discovering that his kill had been appropriated by the bear, disgustedly left the locality in search of other food. Tshash was just finishing the last of his meat when he heard far in the distance a familiar sound. He listened, irritated, for it was the sound of dogs in full cry. He did not like dogs. Closer and closer they came and Tshash turned to face them with a menacing growl.

The day before Mba-Tsossa had taken a long ride through the Black Canyon country in search of a band of wild horses that he knew were ranging there. On the way back to camp he had seen a bear track—the first he had seen since Jim Calvert had killed the old silvertip and taken the little cub. Mba-Tsossa's eyes narrowed. He remembered that $50. Perhaps he could himself kill this bear and some day sell its skin, although he would have to use much caution to keep the other Indians from finding it out. He decided to try.

Now Mba-Tsossa had three big powerful cur dogs with which he occasionally hunted lions. The next morning he took the dogs and rode toward Black Canyon. When he reached the place where he had seen Tshash's track the dogs bristled up and refused to go further. Mba-Tsossa urged them. Finally one started and soon all were baying eagerly on poor old Tshash's track. Mba-Tsossa slipped some cartridges into his rifle.

WHEN the dogs reached Tshash they began at once to worry him. One would dart in and nip his flanks. When Tshash would whirl, another would nip him from behind. It wasn't long until the poor bear was mad with pain and rage. He struck terrible blows at the dogs, but they always leaped back just out of reach. At this point Mba-Tsossa rode up.

As soon as Tshash saw the Indian he started to run toward him. Here was help, thought Tshash. This man would call off the dogs as Jim used to do. But treacherous Mba-Tsossa was off his horse aiming his rifle. At the crack of the gun a sharp, burning pain shot through Tshash's left shoulder. This was the last straw. With a mighty roar the young grizzly charged down the canyon at Mba-Tsossa.

That night there was a big hubbub in the Indian camp. Mba-Tsossa's horse had come in with an empty saddle. The three dogs had come in tired and footsore. Where was Mba-Tsossa? Early next morning the Indians went out to look for him.

Tshash stood on the rim of the canyon as the moon rose blood-red back of the dark pines. Below him in the valley a weird sound broke the stillness of the night air. It swelled and died away and swelled again. The Apaches were singing a song to the bears, their blood brothers. For a long time Tshash listened. Then he turned slowly and limped away. All night he traveled, ever southward toward the rugged ranges on the border of Old Mexico. He was lonely and something seemed to tell him that he must look no more to man for help or friendship. Three days and nights he journeyed, stopping occasionally to dig out a ground squirrel or eat some manzanita berries.

Sometimes in the spring of the year when the snow is gone and the cactus blooms in the canyons, Tshash will stop and gaze far away to the North across the misty ranges. Perhaps he is thinking of Jim Calvert. Or perhaps of Mba-Tsossa. Who knows? And far away in the Black Canyon country old Mbu, the owl, gathers with his tribe to sing the bear song and remind the younger Indians of the old old tie that must not be broken.

tensive experience with the female of the species, I know it. You and me—we sort of fit together. You'll be waiting for me all right"——

"With a half brick in each hand," shot back Rowena. In a swift run she mounted the steps and disappeared into the house. Presently a tousled, hatless head appeared in a second floor window. Young Bummy Moore was still sitting contentedly in his employer's taxicab in front of the house. Only he had shifted it to the middle of the street and behind him an ever increasing line of stalled motors, trucks and other taxicabs were tooting their horns in wrath and impatience.

"Go on home, if you have any," hurled the young lady in the window. "Get off this block and give us some peace."

Bummy grinned up at her, more cheerfully than ever. The honking and tooting increased horribly. Hoarse shouts and imprecations began to come down the line, directed at the young man's taxicab.

"I'm in love's young dream," he shouted at the top of his lungs. "This is my serenade."

The last view that Rowena had of him showed him lighting a cigarette with nerves unperturbed. She slammed down the window and turned to face her old friend Mae, the settlement worker, upon whose room she had descended like a minor whirlwind the night of the great escape from the Vanderhaydin atmosphere.

"Mae, old kid," she remarked dreamily, "I think at last I've met a wild wild child like myself. But at present my one ambition is to kill him."

"RAZZBERRY!" howled the voice of a young man. "Take him out! Drown him out! Drown him!"

From the seat beside him a shrill tempestuous whistling was sounding. Rowena Vanderhaydin had two of her fingers in her mouth and was producing an amazing din. Far below them on the stage a mournful looking comedian continued his mournful sounding song, the strains of which were gradually penetrating to the balcony of the Elite Vaudeville House through a blue haze of cigarette smoke.

"Awful!" shouted Bummy Moore again, cupping both hands about his mouth. "Send him to Sing Sing!"

Rowena's private siren let loose a terrific blast. Never in all the two weeks of their acquaintance had she and Bummy been having so good a time. The steady, measured tramping of their feet arose.

"Say, youse two," grated a harsh voice. "Youse can that racket. This ain't no menagerie."

From the aisle next to them an usher was glowering full upon them. They visited him with smiles.

"You bet it isn't," howled Bummy. "It's a morgue. Hey, corpse, off that stage!"

It then became apparent that there were three ushers—all stalwart youths with bulging shoulders. The nearest reached in and attached himself to Bummy's collar with an expert hand. The next moment he withdrew the hand with a yelp.

"Try that stuff," announced a young lady's determined tones, "and you'll get this hatpin through your larynx next time. I'm a mean kid when I'm mad and I'm not sweetly simpering now."

Bummy Moore had arisen and was in the aisle, a glad light in his classic countenance as he confronted the Elite Vaudeville House's band of balcony ushers. There were three of them in front of him—three more were pouring down to do the job in style. He felt a defiant hand thrust inside his arm.

"There's murder in their left eye," announced Rowena. "I say we walk out on our own feet instead of on the stretcher they would doubtless prefer. Let's go, doughboy!"

THE group of ushers parted before them as though they were carrying red-hot pokers. The right fist of young Mr. Moore was describing triumphant circles—in front of her like a lance went the glittering hatpin of Rowena. In another moment they were stumbling delightedly down the nearest fire escape under the red "Exit" sign.

"I've always wanted to be thrown out of a theater," announced Rowena calmly. "My only regret is that Father and Mother Vanderhaydin were not there to see their daughter engaged in a vulgar brawl."

Bummy nursed a knuckle slightly scraped on account of one of the ushers becoming more daring than the others at the last minute.

"You do pretty well for a young lady," Bummy observed. "If you only had some brains or looks you might get to be Joan of Arc or something."

To this sally Rowena Vanderhaydin made no immediate reply, inasmuch as it did not seem worth answering. Slowly, and in the aimless manner of young people with nowhere in particular to go and nothing to spend, they found themselves drifting into the darkened reaches of the park. Here by the side of a moonlit lake they amused themselves for a while by throwing pebbles at the sleeping ducks. A frightful squawking finally attracted the attention of a park policeman and they moved hastily into protecting shadows where there was a bench.

"Did I tell you," inquired Rowena, "that I was out home only day before yesterday? The Vanderhaydins' errant child is completely disowned now. It was my dumbbell sister Patricia's wedding, so I thought I'd better be there to give it the proper refined tone. I slung the old shoe for luck through the back of the limousine window so hard that the bridegroom had to go to the hospital for six hours while they picked glass out of his neck. That's about all I've been doing recently."

"That's nothing," remarked Bummy in a tone of scorn. "The last night I spent under Great-uncle Roger's roof our quiet little crowd lined up all his Japanese vases in the conservatory and bowled for them with a Revolutionary cannon ball he kept around the den. The cannon ball was hardly hurt a bit, but I went to Europe the next week on a cattle boat just the same. There was one flinty-eyed old philanthropist without an ounce of merry humor and I told him so. He gave me a mean and thoughtful look in return."

"And you haven't seen him since?" Through Rowena's mind there flitted pithy lines from a series of highly lurid Sunday newspaper articles featuring the cheerful career of one Bummy Moore. She had dug them up in the public library. They had been colorful indeed.

"Seen old frosty-face since? I should say not, or ever want to again after he booted me out of his mansion. I took my year hanging around Europe doing odd jobs for my board and keep, and got back here about two months ago. I haven't heard even a word about Great-uncle Roger since the day I left his house. It was too full of pet cats and dogs to suit me, anyhow. His hobbies were a silver-headed cane, the gout, and hating the world."

"I don't blame him for hating you," said Rowena candidly. "Every time you look in the mirror you come away with a better impression of yourself, don't you? And you're nothing but a second-rate taxi driver."

"And what are you?" inquired Bummy with equal candor. "One of the help in a hand laundry since Blumgarten's fired you for talking back to a cash customer. You and I are just a couple of bum branches in good old family trees. They have 'em every generation or so. You ought to be darned glad you met a nice chap like me."

ROWENA knew what was coming as she watched the cautious motion of Bummy's arm. A confident smile illuminated his face—the smile that always made her want to part his hair with something solid. Even back on the refined Brooklyn Heights there had been occasional young men who had wished to put an arm about Rowena Vanderhaydin. Always they had retired in confusion. But this time a strange tremor seemed to possess her. She disliked the idea intensely. In another moment Bummy might be giving her orders and she might be taking them.

"Officer," she said loudly and clearly. "This man is annoying me."

The back in blue that had just passed them turned with businesslike promptitude.

"Young feller," boomed the voice of authority, "you get out o' here and get quick. Want him run in, lady?"

"Not this time, officer," said Rowena. "He's just a fresh stiff that needs a good hard jolt."

"Rowena," Bummy informed her feelingly, "you're a charming little devil! The next time I see you I hope you're looking through the gate of the reformatory."

"And the next time I see you," Rowena flung at him promptly, her cleft chin thrust forward, "I hope you're completely surrounded by calla lilies. Take him away, officer. I've changed my mind."

MALKIN, the butler, sat ponderously on the edge of the guest chair in Rowena's room, clutching the brim of his derby hat. A strange happy expression now overspread his face.

"I thought to myself," he said huskily, "that I'd come and tell you all about it. You see, it was you, Miss Rowena, that put the idea into my head the night you left the house. Thirty years I've been with the family and it was a blow to them to see me go. But you were right, Miss, when you said life's too short not to do what you want in it."

"Malkin, old pet," announced Rowena, lighting a cigarette, "the brains which I never suspected in you seem to have popped to the surface at last. My heartiest felicitations on your decision to lead a mad free life. Thirty years of saying 'Dinner is served, madam,' must have come to be a trifle mechanical in the end. As I remember it took you about fifteen years to get it down really right."

A slight trace of pain appeared on Malkin's countenance, but it passed away. "I'm sure I always did my best, Miss Rowena. But I'll make a confession to you. I was never meant to be a butler, though I did my duty at it and saved money."

"So now what reckless act have you committed?" inquired Rowena.

Malkin peered cautiously about the room and lowered his voice to a husky whisper. "I've gone in for a detective, Miss Rowena. It's what I've always wanted to do since I was a boy."

"MALKIN," said Rowena, "honest to Mike, I'm proud of you. A detective with a hard hat and flat-heeled shoes. A 250-pound shadow. Thank God, the city is now safe. Shake hands with a mere laundress, old pet."

The act of handshaking was performed solemnly, whereupon Malkin cleared his throat. "I shouldn't tell you this, Miss Rowena, but I'm on a big thing now. You remember Mr. Eustace Greene, up on Park avenue, who used to dine with us on Friday nights? He's giving our agency a fine bit of work. It's a missing heir case—just like you read about in the books. If we don't locate Charles G. Moore by 11 o'clock tomorrow night he'll lose half a million dollars."

"He'll which? He'll what?" demanded Rowena.

"It's part of the will of Roger K. Moore, his great-uncle who died nine months ago," explained Malkin, champing his jaw with excited glee. "He left this missing young gentleman $500,000 in cash provided that by 11 o'clock of the night of May 17 he appears at the home of Mr. Greene, the executor, to claim it. You've been around the city a lot since you left. Have you met him, Miss Rowena?"

"Your childlike confidence in me is touching," remarked Rowena. Her wide mouth was firmly pressed and her eyes held a strange fire. "I have never met Charles G. Moore. I never hope to meet him. I have a headache, Malkin. Would you mind going out and pounding the pavements some more?"

Inside of the next five minutes Rowena was hearing at the other end of a telephone wire the cheerful and confident accents of one Bummy Moore.

"Aha!" he was chortling, "so my little playmate has called me up, has she? She isn't sore any more that I talked the park cop out of locking me up for the night? Rowena, I'm through with you for life. I'm hanging up. Good-by."

"Shut up, you dumb-bell," commanded Rowena clearly. "Meet me here tomorrow night with your taxicab. Ten o'clock. I've got something to say to you."

"I don't want to hear it," he shouted. There came a click and Rowena had replaced the receiver, a look of absolute calm on her face.

"DRIVE slowly," she ordered as, the following evening at exactly 10:01, she climbed into the front seat of Bummy Moore's taxicab. "In the direction of Park avenue. I want to see how the other half lives."

Her directions were followed to the letter.

"Bummy," demanded Rowena presently, "what would you do if you came into half a million dollars in cash?"

"Spend it with both hands," he replied promptly, "and kick it over two continents with both feet. I'd go over the horizon with it like a bolt of green lightning. And you'd never see me again for the trail of sparks."

"I gathered as much," said Rowena. The taxicab gave a swift jerk and curved into the lower reaches of Park avenue. "You should have been president of a bank. You'd have enjoyed watching the depositors fight to get their money out of it. Whereabouts on this street would you say No. 436 was?"

"Round the fifties somewhere, country maiden. Want to stop and look at it?"

"No," said Rowena sweetly. "I'm going to do you a great favor. Too much money has made you into quite a fair taxicab driver. Too much money again would make you into a hopeless nut. Drive me up to the hundred and twenties."

Bummy shot a calm insolent glance at her and they rolled steadily north along smooth asphalt. He caught now and then a low muttering from beside him, which was Rowena Vanderhaydin communing with herself.

"The lowlife. The bum. Half a million cold coming to him and his handsome face if I spill him the glad tidings. And then Rowena can fold her hands and watch him disappear out of her young life. Shall I tell him there's a pile of bank fodder waiting for him to show up and grab it? Yes, I will—in a centipede's hind leg."

"Where are we now?" she demanded a moment or so later.

"Hundred and thirtieth street. Foothills of the Adirondacks."

"And what time is it?"

"Half past ten or after. Time for good little girls to be in bed." He turned to face her and she felt a sudden, unexplainable storm of rage sweeping through her. Could it be that she was still Rowena of the Heights? Did the old Vanderhaydin traditions still encase her despite her bold adventure into the perfect freedom? She caught the glint of a seal ring on her finger. It had a coat of arms and a motto—"Fearless and leal."

"Bummy," she said, with a small wrathful choke in her voice, "I'm afraid that it's once a lady always a lady. Turn around and drive like Halifax for 436 Park avenue. Damn the luck anyhow."

He grinned once and swerved the cab. The blocks began to roll by in a single low gridiron of cross streets. Rowena began to rock in her seat.

"Faster," she shouted. "Faster, Bummy! There's only ten minutes left to make it." And then a queer, twisted smile appeared on her wide mouth. The watch on her wrist said five minutes to 11, the darting taxicab had just passed 460. Just then a big black shining limousine, driven at a furious rate of speed, shot out from the cross street and crashed into the side of the cab.

"A MOST interesting clause to a most interesting will," declared Mr. Eustace Greene to his pair of guests. "It was not at all the impression of anyone that old Roger Moore would leave anything to his young ward, Charles. He was known always to feel most spitefully towards him. And now, apparently, the money must go to charity." He consulted the clock on the drawing room mantel with a precise eye. Everything about Mr. Eustace Greene was precise. "There is exactly one minute and seven seconds left for him to appear in."

Peter Vanderhaydin's hand went restlessly toward his whiskers. There had been practically no topic of conversation at this evening's dinner other than the strange bequest of old Roger Moore. Mrs. Peter Vanderhaydin, somehow, could not keep her eyes off the door. A moment ago she had been seen to start visibly. That had been at the intrusion of a loud, crashing noise into the ultra quiet of Park avenue. But a complete and soothing silence had followed it.

"It is over," said Eustace Greene. "The clock is now striking the hour. Charles Moore is not here."

"He certainly is," arose a loud and competent voice. "Here he is under my arm."

Draggled and bearing a large black lump over one eye, Rowena Vanderhaydin stood in the doorway with fire in her glance. Beneath one arm she seemed to be cherishing a limp bundle of battered rags.

"This is Charles G. Moore," she announced. "He's been knocked for a loop. His nose is broken, his wrist is sprained and he won't come to for a bit of time yet. I've just picked him out of what's left of his taxicab and carried him a block and a half. I call that service."

"Rowena!" Mrs. Peter Vanderhaydin had gone completely limp from the shock.

"Rowena, my daughter!" cried Peter Vanderhaydin.

"Greetings, father. Hello, mother," hailed Rowena, with her young man still under her arm. "Salutations, Mr. Greene. Can you stir up something to bring the missing heir to?"

MAGICALLY from somewhere there appeared cold water and cloths. Rowena bent to her task of reviving young Bummy Moore with complete competence. Faintly his lips moved.

"Grand Central," he muttered. "All out."

"What did I tell you?" inquired Rowena. "I knew he'd come round like a clock. He'll be making sense in another quarter of an hour. That's more than he usually does."

He was making it in less than that. He was sitting up fairly bright-eyed but still more or less numbed about the upper portions of his anatomy in exactly 12 minutes. It would take another two or three days, however, to make him look like anything in particular.

Mr. Eustace Greene, with the air of a stage manager not to be distracted from the show, was indicating an important-looking steel dispatch box which had just been brought in and placed on the center table.

"It was part of the extraordinary provisions of your Great-uncle Roger's will that the $500,000 in cash be placed in your hands the moment you appeared," he explained carefully to Bummy. "Therefore, I have had it in my private safe for some time. I am glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Vanderhaydin and Miss Vanderhaydin as witnesses that the original seals are unbroken. Here is the key, Mr. Moore."

"Rowena," muttered that young man brokenly. "You open Captain Kidd's chest for me. Show me what half a million dollars in real money looks like. This head of mine might burst under the added strain. It's buzzing still with the merry news."

"In my life," remarked Rowena, "half a million dollars is nothing. You're what I call the jellyfish's spine. You expect your great-uncle to leave you nothing but a lot of hard words and now you don't dare look a complete flock of luck in the face. Beat it to Paris tonight if you want to. Slip me the key, Mr. Greene, or I'll use a fire poker on it."

Five strained faces hung over the box as Rowena lifted the lid. Neatly packed within and filling it from bottom to top was a mass of packages of currency.

"MY GOD!" said Rowena. "It's $500,000 all right. But it's all in Confederate money."

It was. There was enough of it, duly stamped with the seal of the Confederate States of America, to finance the Army of the Valley of Virginia for a three years' campaign. But outside of that it was doubtful if it could be spent for much.

The ghastly silence that followed was broken by the loudest laugh ever heard on the stately premises of Mr. Eustace Greene. Holding his throbbing head Bummy was rocking to and fro in his chair.

"Ouch!" he shouted. "And I'm the boob who told Great-uncle Roger he didn't have an ounce of humor. The old boy has certainly pulled a cuckoo on me. I never really appreciated him until now. Ha, ha! I hope he hears me utter that."

An equally loud peal of mirth joined him. That was Rowena. She hunched her shoulders and dove in the direction of her father and mother. Her father she struck so smartly on the back that his gold-rimmed pince-nez fell to the floor and was promptly trodden under his daughter's heel. Her mother she kissed so emphatically on both cheeks as to leave her out of breath for the next five minutes.

"Darlings," she exclaimed. "You can't be mad at your sweet daughter any more. She's skipping about from sheer glee. She's found out that after all she's a lady at least. It's back to the Vanderhaydin mansion and the sheltered life for me tomorrow."

"What's that?" inquired an insolent and cheerful voice. It was Bummy Moore, the battered wreck, being heard from again.

"You'll have a little property, Mr. Moore," tactfully cut in Mr. Greene, evidently trying to smooth over a distressing situation. "Your great-uncle had in trust for you a certain small amount of funds from your own family. It is not much as money goes, but"——

"IS IT enough to start a taxi business of my own?" inquired Bummy. He did not wait for an answer but arose somewhat groggily to his feet. "Rowena, you come over to this window and you come quick."

Behind them they heard the excited sound of voices still discussing the devastating tragedy of Great-uncle Roger's humor. But Rowena failed to give an ear to them.

"My face will be a wreck from now on," Bummy was commencing. "I'll be a picture of bargain day at the white goods counter."

"You were too darned good-looking anyhow," returned Rowena critically. "A crook in your nose and most of the skin off your forehead will improve you tremendously. Also, I like you with that eye half-closed."

"You dry up," Bummy informed her. "Save it for the long winter evenings. All I've got to say is that you're not going back home to Brooklyn."

"I'm not? Who says so, sheik?"

"I do," he announced calmly. "You know darned well that the other night in the park when I put my arm around you I was going to ask you to marry me. I'd have married you tonight if that money had been real, and you know that, too. We wild wild children ought to stick together. Isn't that so, old kid?"

Rowena Vanderhaydin regarded him defiantly. They were alone in the window, and once more she felt that arm of his creeping around her waist.

"This time are you going to call a cop, Rowena?"

"You poor fish," she stated cheerfully. "I think I've been in love with you ever since you took that mighty wallop at Arthur the floorwalker. No, I'm not going to yell for a cop as soon as your arm gets around me. I'm going to yell for a minister."

They were married within the week in the parlor of a Justice of the Peace on a side street in the forties. But no one could have called it a quiet wedding. Workmen on a neighboring building were blasting and riveting continuously so that they both had to shout "I do" to each other at the top of their lungs.

WOMAN ARRESTED FOR FRAUD WILL MAKE RESTITUTION

Sister of Miner Supposedly Killed in Explosion Taken by Police at Miami Postoffice.

WILLING TO REFUND $60,000 INSURANCE

Brother, Recently Returned From Germany, Taken to Kentucky to Face Double Murder Charge.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 19.—The search for Mrs. F. F. Farley, sister of W. H. Turner who obtained $50,000 life insurance on the supposed death of her brother who later was found to be alive, ended when she was taken into custody at the Coral Gables post office when she called for mail yesterday.

The police here, so far as could be learned, had no warrant for Mrs. Farley. It was stated that she was held at the request of the Pikesville, Ky., authorities.

Mrs. Farley told the police she had received the $60,000 life insurance, but that she had done no wrong when she had every reason to believe that a body recovered after a mine explosion was that of her brother.

Willing to Make Restitution.

Through her attorney Howard S. McCay, she stated that she was willing to make restitution.

According to her attorney she was in Detroit, when she was told her brother was killed and did not arrive in Pikesville until in time for the funeral. She did not view the body which previously had been identified by friends and his wife.

Last Thursday Mrs. Farley appeared at the Miami police station and said she had heard through newspaper stories that she was wanted. She showed a newspaper clipping from a Pikesville paper. The police at that time had not been requested to hold her and she left. Later Pikesville authorities wired the Miami police to arrest Mrs. Farley and search for her began immediately.

Turner Back in Kentucky to Face Murder Charges.

By the Associated Press.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19.—William H. Turner, believed to have been killed in a mine accident nine months ago, returned here today in the custody of a sheriff, charged with participation in the deaths of two men.

Following the mine accident in which Turner was supposed to have perished, his wife and a sister were given $85,000 insurance money. Of this amount, Turner said he received $10,000.

Turner was arrested in New York when he stepped off a steamship after a nine months' sojourn in Germany. During the last part of Turner's rail trip here from New York he was shown the grave in which he was supposed to have been buried.

On arrival here, Sheriff Johnson brought about a meeting of Turner and Joe Jack Jr., Turner's brother-in-law, who is in jail here on a charge of bringing about the premature explosion which killed the two men.

For a minute Turner and Jack did not speak. Turner then asked: "Who was the Hungarian you told me Wilson 'blowed up' with himself in the bank?"

"I never told you I 'blowed up' any Hungarian," Jack replied.

On further questioning, Jack said: "Talk to my lawyer."

Turner told officers today he gave the $10,000 his sister gave him to his son, Theodore, to take to his wife at Trenton, N. J. Theodore, when questioned by officials, said he took the money to his stepmother.

Young Turner turned over to officials a letter bearing the name of Mrs. F. F. Farley and dated Miami, Oct. 8, containing the admonition: "Don't talk whatever you do."

Mrs. Farley Indicted.

Sheriff Johnson announced today that Mrs. F. F. Farley, sister of W. H. Turner, had been indicted on a charge of murder here last week at the same time that similar indictments were returned against Turner and Joe Jack Jr., Turner's brother-in-law. Sheriff Johnson also announced that Federal aid would be sought in an effort to return from Austria Joe Jack Sr., father-in-law of Turner. The Sheriff said Turner told him the elder Jack had paid Turner's way to Europe.
